The Strength of Timber.

The strength of a piece of timber depends upon the part of the tree from which it is taken. Up to a certain age, the heart of the tree is the best; after that period, it begins to fail gradually. The worst part of a tree is the sap-wood, which is next the bark. It is softer than the other parts of the wood, and is liable to premature decay. The deleterious component of the sap-wood is absorbed if the tree is allowed to grow for a longer period, and in time the old sap-wood becomes proper timber fiber, similar to heart wood. Hence, the goodness of a tree, for timber purposes, depends on the age at which the tree was cut down. When young, the heart wood is the best; at maturity, with the exception of the sap wood, the trunk is equally good throughout; and when the tree is allowed to grow too long, the heart wood is the first to show symptoms of weakness, and deteriorates gradually.

The best timber is secured by felling the tree at the age of maturity, which depends upon its nature as well as on the soil and climate. The ash, beech, elm and fir, are generally considered at their best when of seventy or eighty years' growth, and the oak is seldom at its best in less than one hundred years; but much depends on surrounding circumstances. As a rule, trees should not be cut before arriving at maturity, because there is then too much sap-wood, and the durability of the timber is much inferior to that of trees felled after they have arrived at their full development.

The strength of many woods is doubled by the process of seasoning, hence it is very thrifless to use timber in a green state, as it is not only weak, but it is exposed to continual change of bulk, form and stability. After timber is cut, and before it is properly seasoned, the outside is found to crack and to split more than the inside of the mass, because it is more exposed to the surrounding atmosphere; but, as the outside dries, the air gradually finds its way to the interior.

If timber is cut by the saw when green, and allowed to season or dry in a gradual manner, it is found to be the most durable. In the arts, however, artificial drying is often resorted to, as in the case of gun stocks. These are put into a desiccating chamber, where a current of air at ninety or one hundred degrees is passed over them at such a rate, as to change the whole volume of air in the chamber every three minutes, and it is found that a year of seasoning may thus be saved. The walnut wood is as good, after this process, as if the seasoning had been accomplished by time and exposure, and works more smoothly under the cutting instruments of the stock machinery.

Wood will always warp after a fresh surface has been exposed, and will likewise change its form by the presence of any moisture, either from that contained in the atmosphere or from wetting the surface. The effect of moisture on dry wood is to cause the tubular fibers to swell; hence it is that, if a plank or board is wetted upon one side, the fibers there will be distended, and the plank, in consequence, must bend.

The amount of the shrinkage of timber in length, when seasoning, is so inconsiderable that it may in practice be disregarded. But the shrinkage in transverse directions is much greater, and presents some peculiarities which can only be explained by examining the structure of the wood, as resulting from its mode of growth.

A gentleman not fifty miles from Chelsea, who has tried it, says the best way to catch a rat, which has found its way into your room, is to lay a boot flat upon the floor, close to the mold board. The rat will run into the boot leg for protection, when he is readily captured.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by every body as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild and efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is more reliable and far more effective than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—[and it never fails through any fault or neglect of the composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to produce healthy and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their regular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Kind directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Heartburn, Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Stools, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Pains in the Side, Back and Limbs, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression, a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

BRIEF MENTION.

An individual with a horse and buggy, and full of forty-four poison, was parading our streets on Monday last.

Gilbert & Crowell bought twenty-five bushels of Siberian crab apples from Mr. Watts, of Lyndon, Mich., at one dollar per bushel.

Water-melons have made their appearance in our market. People should recollect the couplet of Saxe and eat them cautiously: "For from melons incautiously eat, melon-colic effects might ensue."

The weather is warm, but not warm enough to prevent A. A. Hillis, in Chelsea, from paying the highest market price for unsalted butter, fresh from the cream.

Social Party.—There will be a public ball at the McKim House, in Chelsea, on Friday evening, August 23d, 1873. All those who are inclined to trip the light fantastic toe, can have an opportunity. Mine host is a whole-souled man, and a rich treat is expected.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Daniel Tichenor met with a bad but not serious accident, on last Saturday evening, by falling down the hatchway into the cellar at Mr. Charles Tichenor's feed store, in our village. No bones were broken, and he is now in a fair way of recovery.

Unsalted butter is worth 17 cts. per pound, at A. A. Hillis' Creamery Establishment, under Wm. Judson & Co's store, Chelsea, Mich.

There are at this time nineteen prisoners confined in the county jail. Of this number, eight are held for murder in the first degree. In order that our readers may not think that our city is the worst place in the United States, we will explain that these eight are held for one murder, and at the most only one of the eight is guilty. These eight are held in order to find out which is the guilty one.—Ann Arbor Courier.

P. T. Barnum's World's Fair.

This last grand enterprise of the great showman has grown to such colossal proportions, it can only stop in cities and large towns. The nearest point to us will be at Jackson, Mich., where it will give three entertainments—morning, afternoon, and evening, on Saturday, August 30th, 1873. "If the mountain can't come to Mo-hammed, Mohammed must go to the mountain." We shall therefore pack up and be off, and advise all our friends to do the same, to see the irrepressible P. T. B. and his traveling World's Fair, said to be three times larger than ever, on the above-named day. The managers of our road, will of course, run an excursion train to and from the great show, for the accom-mo-dation of all who want to go.

We have no space to enumerate the ten thousand new and interesting features con-tained in Barnum's last. We can only judge of it, when it is said to contain one hundred thousand rare curiosities, fifteen hundred animals, birds, beasts, reptils, sea lions, and other marine monsters; two thousand men and horses, twenty mam-moth tents, a free menagerie, open to all for gratuitous inspection; a street proc-ession three miles long, a twenty-centre-pole tent, with three separate and distinct cir-cus, arene, and spectacular rings; three grand circus and hippodrome performances all going on at the same time, in the same pavilion, and in the presence of the same audience, without any extra charge; three bands of music, one hundred life-size oil paintings of Presidents, Statesmen, Kings, Emperors, and Military Heroes; Prof. Rogers' group of classic statuary, Hall of Art, one hundred moving mechanical automations, living water fountains, trans-formation landscape scenes, singing and flitting birds, mechanical musicians, and hundreds of gorgeous tableaux and vi-sual theatricals, all operated by a steam engine; the famous talking machine, riding goat, sea lions, canals, dromedaries, zebras, trained elephants, elk and deer in harness, which will appear in the pro-cession—in fact a whole world of contribu-tions, such as only Barnum has the nerve and audacity to furnish for the amusement and benefit of the multitude.

TATTTLERS.—Every community is cursed by the presence of a class of people, who make it their business to attend to every-body's affairs but their own. Such people are the poorest specimens of humanity well-known upon this ill-fated earth. It is well-known that almost every person is sometimes disposed to speak evil of others, and tattling is a sin from which very few can claim to be entirely exempt. But the object of this present article is to speak of that distinct class of tattlers, who make tale-bearing the constant business of their lives. They pry into the private affairs of every family in the neighborhood; they know the exact state of one neighbor's feeling toward another; they understand everybody's faults, and no little blunder or misdemeanor ever escapes their watchful-ness. They are well-posted upon every-thing connected with courtship and matrimony, and know who are going to marry whom, and can guess the exact time by every movement of parties suspected of matrimonial intentions, and, if there is the slightest chance to create a disturbance, excite jealousy, or "break up" a match, they take advantage of it, and do all in their power to keep people in a state of constant vexation. They glide quietly from gentleman to lady, from mother to daughter, from father to son, and in the ears of all they pour their bitter whispers of slander and abuse, and at the same time pretend to be the most sincere friends of those they talk to. Their nauseous pills of slander are sugar-coated with smiles and words of friendship.

Tattlers are confined to no particular class, and they operate in all. We find them among the rich and the poor—"upper ten" and out of it. They are people who have no higher ambition than to be well-informed in regard to other people's private business, to retail scandal to their neighbors, and to exult in fiendish triumphs over the wounded feelings and bruised hearts of their innocent victims.

UXIOUS PIE-CE.—There will be a Union Pie-ic at North Lake, Wednesday, Aug. 27th, 1873. The various Sunday-schools in Chelsea, North Lake, Lima, Sylvan, Unadilla, Stockbridge and Waterloo, are respectfully invited to attend; and also, the citizens are requested to join in. The fine clipper built boat Chelsea, will be ready at the pier in North Lake, for all those who wish to take a sail, and enjoy the beautiful breeze. There will be teams waiting at Chelsea, to convey Sunday-school scholars (who have no teams of their own) to and from the lake. We are informed that the above Pie-ic is to be one of the gayest of the season. All are invited to participate in the festivities of the day. Plenty of Cake.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISER'S
Please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

THE DEEDS OF THE COURT-HOUSE for a harbor, in a spirit of courtesy to the American citizens the Stars and Stripes were suspended side by side with the British flag. The Deeds of the Court-House are, beholding the terrible disgrace of the emblems of his adoration, in virtuous indignation he ordered the ladies in charge to "haul down that flag." No one obeyed his command, and he retired to his brother's room. At this time, Memphis, Minn., has been visited by a destructive conflagration. The total loss is about $100,000, with light insurance. Col. J. L. D. Morrison, of Illinois, has entered suit in the United States Court at St. Louis for the recovery of some 4,000 acres of land in St. Louis county. The notorious "Lord" Gordon, for whose attempted abduction several American citizens now languish in a Manhattan jail, suddenly left Fort Cass to go home, leaving his attorney and other creditors to squander his departure. It is said he has gone to the Rocky Mountains.

HENRY PAKE, recently an inmate of the St. Joseph (Mo.) Poor-House, has fallen heir to $500,000 worth of real estate in the suburbs of Indianapolis.

The South. The caterpillar has made its appearance in the Sea Islands, and the prospects are that the Sea Island cotton crop will prove a failure. The Attorney-General of Louisiana has begun suit against Gov. Warmoth and Joe Hernandez, his brother, to recover a large amount of money said to be illegally withdrawn from the State treasury.

The Cairo and Fulton railroad is completed to within a few miles of Red river. The cholera has reappeared at Chattanooga, Tenn. Dr. B. T. Dennis, a Deputy United States Marshal, was assassinated by some person unknown, at Corinth, Miss., a few days ago. He was shot through the head, while asleep. The press and people of Western Kentucky are said to be almost unanimously opposed to the new State movement. From Warren county, Ky., is reported a marriage between a negro and a girl aged 11.

The political troubles between the rival factions of the Cherokee Nation threaten to culminate in bloodshed. The full-blood Indians there are the friends of Jones, Baxter and his other leaders of the Progressive party. There is no question but that anarchy and crime is largely on the increase, and many of the best men in the locality begin to believe that the only safety lies in a strong territorial form of government under the protection of the United States. A band of Indians recently appeared near old Camp Colorado, Western Texas, and shot and stabbed a Mrs. Williams, and also shot a girl of Mrs. Williams' and mangled her head against a post and threw her body into the fire. Then they entered the house and shot a girl eight years old, and carried her away with them. Mrs. Williams, notwithstanding her two wounds, crawled into the delay, headed for the shore on the Virginia, and in a few minutes ran aground about 200 yards from the Virginia side. At this time the flames had spread with fearful rapidity, and to the excitement many jumped overboard. Several of them jumped into the water before the steamer struck bottom. She was provided with but two small boats, and in the front of the moment one of these boats was thrown overboard by the passengers, who, uncontrolled, were trying to launch her.

Capt. Wood, of the ill-fated steamer, and his assistants are said to have used every effort to control the passengers, but without avail, and but for the disobedience of his orders, many who were lost might have been saved. The vessel was well provided with life-preservers, but in the panic it seems that none of the passengers secured them, and this fact also added to the lamentable loss of life.

Over forty passengers were drowned. Capt. Wood was the last man to leave the vessel, and the pilot, Mr. Boswell, was surrounded by flames before he left the pilot-boat, which was not until after he had run the steamer aground. The flames spread with such rapidity that the tiller-ropes were on fire before the vessel struck ground.

All those lost lives, it is supposed, drowned, having jumped overboard to escape the flames. The fire was first discovered about twenty minutes before 11 o'clock, and Kenny states that in less than ten minutes the vessel was enveloped in flames. It was not until the fire had run aground, burned to the water's edge.

About one-half the passengers on the Wasawet were women and children, many of whom were en route to country places along the Potomac to spend a short time with their friends. The Wasawet was a side-wheel steamer, about 350 tons, and was engaged in running between Washington and the landings along the Potomac. She was insured for $25,000.

A Washington dispatch of the 11th says: The Wasawet disaster was evidently, to a great extent, the result of criminal carelessness. Although the certificate of the vessel allowed her only to carry fifty passengers on board, it is admitted that one hundred and fifty passengers were on board. There seem to have been scanty arrangements for the safety even of fifty persons. It is said there were apparently no precautions whatever against fire. The Treasury Department will order a rigid investigation into the matter. The latest estimate of the loss of those lost on the Wasawet is that it will reach seventy at least. Many of these, in all probability, not be identified, particularly in case of colored persons who fell victims to the disaster.

Miss McPherson, a passenger, describes the scene of the burning boat as "most terrible to witness." The flames burst out all around and swept off, driving women and children over into the water, the side of the boat hanging on by their hands to the burning steamer, and one after the other drop into the water, the flames driving them off. The colored people were perfectly wild, and no restraints on the part of the officers were

Anecdote of Palmerston. Lord Palmerston's wit was in such unmistakable fashion that the edge was of ten too sharp for very free use. Few persons have earned themselves a greater reputation for philanthropy than Lord Shaftesbury, who, by the way, married Lady Palmerston's oldest daughter by Earl Cowper, her first husband. Lord Palmerston was never weary of telling stories about his non-in-law, whose religious zeal he did not much believe in or care for; and Lord Shaftesbury, it was said, always took them in good part. It must be nearly twenty years ago that Lord Shaftesbury, then Home Secretary, called across the table to Lord John Russell, who sat reading a newspaper at the Garrick.

"Russell, have you read Tony's (the nickname by which he is always designated the Earl of Shaftesbury, whose name is authority Ashley Cooper) speech last night before the persons and parish paupers at Exeter Hall?"

"I have not, my Lord," replied Lord John, whose priggishness never permits him to treat or address any person familiarly.

"Well, read it. It's devilish good, and the examination of the children at the close, I am told, was better still."

"How so?"

"Tony was asking the children a variety of questions of a scriptural nature, to which he had received very satisfactory answers. Just as he was concluding, he addressed a girl somewhat older than the rest, and, among other things, inquired, 'Who made your vile body?'"

"Please, my Lord," responded the unsophisticated girl, "Betsey Jones made my body, but I made the skirt myself."

The Postoffice Department informs the public that postal cards cannot be sent at the ordinary rate when written over the side intended for the address. A person may compress Webster's unabridged on the other side, if he lies within his power to do so, and it goes for a cent; but a single word on the address side subjects the card to three cents postage.
