

A SERENADE.

From the folds of your snow-white pillow,
My love, my beautiful, true,
And come to the casement window,
Where the wind thrushes the cedars sigh,
Star and planet are leaping
Out through the cloudless blue;
Paved and star are you,
And wondering where are you,
The moon, like a royal maiden,
Sits on her cloud-built throne,
And the breath of the dainty tips
From the garden paths in bloom;
Under the drooped narcissus
The tulip sits and sings
And the leaves of the rose are brushing
The dew from the white's light wings,
Under the leafy casement,
Sweet, I am waiting still,
Watching the lamp-light
Till the hand on the window-ill
Rustles the dainty rose-veils—
That heavily cased
Sighing till somebody calls them
To trine in thy dark-brown hair.

My own, my beautiful Nina,

Come, till my love I pour—
 Come, till I feel the passion
 My heart can hold no more—
 Till I sit in the rich sweet lustre
 Of thy dark-blue eyes divine,
 And view in a blessed light
 The hour that shall make three mine.

Shine out, O shimmering planet!
 O radiant shadow, is it still
 Melancholy the rim of her raiment
 I see by the window-sill;
 Hush, hush! under the trees!
 Oh, pasture! the hour draws near!
 Silence, thou restless zephyr!
 "Ther step, 'tis her voice I hear!"

"Do you think we have all gone mad, sir?
 In truth, I wish you'd leave out
 'Tis trying to-night, with this weather,
 And your howling won't cure my cough.
 'Tis really strange, 'tis monstrous,
 How little of sense remains,
 Of even of common politeness,
 When folks get love on their brains."

FRESH DANEBURIES.
(From the Danbury News.)

If there is room for one more in the balloon of the Graphic's, there is a young man in Danbury who can fill it. He lives opposite us and plays an accordion. He might object to running the risk but he could be stung by blow on the head, and got into the balcony before he recovered.

WE saw a man who was crossing White street, yesterday, pick up a lump of coal and put it in his pocket. "There," we said to ourself, "a truly economical man. He is not afraid to save. He realizes that a penny saved is a penny earned, and he will profit by it." Then he stepped into a saloon to get a drink, and we moved on.

A NORTH MAIN STREET gentleman saw his boy in front of the house throwing a ball in the air, last evening. He hadn't played ball himself for thirty years, and knew nothing of the kind of ball base-ball clubs have introduced in the last few years, but he felt the obligation in him, at the moment, to former triumphs, and he held up his hands and told his son to "let her slide." She said, "He caught it full and fair," and then dropped it, and started in the house, with his eyes full of tears, and his hands pressed under his arms. The youth subsequently informed a neighbor that he could plainly hear the "old man's" bones snap.

A DANBURY man of statistical turn can tell how many stalks of oats there are in the average acre. He has counted the hairs on his children's heads, and has the number pasted in their hair. He keeps company waiting while he demonstrates the number of tendons there were in the animal from which came the steak, and will stop people in the street when they are in a hurry

The pastor of the Slawson church sends us the following item: The church, as will be remembered, is holding a series of revival meetings, which are largely attended. Prominent among the speakers is Rev. Mr. Chaffee, of Illinois. Last Friday evening the burning was crowded, and Mr. Chaffee was considerably animated. He was sitting in a chair at the front, his wonderful long legs crossed, and his voice sent forth a volume of song. The upper was swinging majestically, the motion increasing as the singing advanced.

They had just reached that part of hymn where it says, "Then I can see reach my home, my God, my heavenly all," and Mr. Chaffee was doing loud best, and had just got out "Then I can safely reach my home." When the rattling limb came suddenly in contact with a miserable dog that had some way got into the house, and it flying and howling under one of benches. Of course Mr. Chaffee surprised, but when a little while popped up in the gallery and shook one's head looking umbrella at him cried in a voice of passion, "You that dog again, you Illinois giraffe, you won't safely reach your home, you more than astonished—he was fazed, amazed. He subsequently informed that he be never our informant that we was so completely flabbergasted, so thoroughly circumbobolated," whatever

SCANDAL MONGERS.

My friends, a little rhyme I'll make, And hope no one offense will take, But if some one the coat should fit, All they'll have to do is don it.

My subject is, some worthy ones, Who claim descent from Adam's sons, Scandal is the God they worship; Though some call it friendly gossip.

On afternoon's 'tis their delight, Their neighbor's faults to bring to light; Though what they tell is sometimes true, They love to add a word or two.

There's a pleasant state of mind, For in themselves no faults they find; But if their neighbors go astray, They'll publish it without delay.

Unto your face they're good and fair; You would not dream deceit lurked there; But when on them your back is turned, With their false tongues you're often spurned.

If e'er on him you should attend, Just drop a hint about a friend; They'll want to know what 'tis about; But do not tell, 'twill soon come out.

If there's some news the town should hear, Whisper it in their willing ear; And say, for fear I should offend, Don't keep it to a living friend.

There's none escapes their tattling tongue, No man or woman, old or young; You must not heed what e'er they say, But quietly pass on your way.

I toward them no malice bear, Although I always get my share; For what they say I do not mind, More than I would an idle wind.

Catching Burglars.

[From the Danbury (Conn.) News.]

There is a peculiar saddening effect in awakening in the night and hearing burglars at work in your house. This was the case with Mr. Henry, on South street, one night recently. As soon as he detected the noise, which appeared to be down stairs, he softly crept out of bed, and commenced to prow around for a match. His wife was soon awakened by the same noise, and believing that something was the matter with the children, who slept in the next room, she carefully withdrew from bed, so not to disturb her husband, and started for the door. An instant later they collided. What he thought was evident enough. All the hard earnings of an arduous life were at stake. Before him stood one or more robbers. With an exclamation of condensed eloquence he clinched her. What she thought is not quite so evident, but it was doubtless of her husband and children, and being plucky withal, she at once twined her fingers in his hair, and gave him a wrench that made him think of death.

Then both of them went down to the floor together, she having the advantage in the full, and getting on top, with her hands still in his hair, she shook his head against the floor with an energy and courage that would undoubtedly have filled him to overflowing with admiration, had he known who it was, or had he known anything at all. Every time she rapped him she shrieked for help, and in a brief space of time the children and Mrs. Eben Davis, who lives down stairs, were on the scene. Mrs. Davis was not dressed for company, but in the excitement she didn't mind that. She had a candle in one hand, and a long carving fork in the other, and was about to drive the latter into the legs of the villain, when recognition ensued. Then Mrs. Davis laid down her candle in one direction, and the fork in another, and immediately returned to her own apartments, her yellow flannel nightcap, as it shot down the stairs, being the first thing Mr. Henry saw on springing to his feet. The children were returned to their room and put to bed, but the parents did not resume their couch. It was so pleasant that Mr. Henry concluded to remain up the rest of the night and enjoy the scenery, and Mrs. Henry thought it best to stay up too, so to change the cloth on his head as often as possible.

THE weather is warm, but not warm enough to prevent A. A. Hillis, in Chasea, from paying the highest market price for unsalted butter, fresh from the churn.

OUR VILLAGE IMPROVEMENTS.—Mrs. Doyle is erecting a two-story dwelling on east Liberty street. It will cost when finished, $700. Messrs. Mazonie & Monroe are the builders. Aaron Durand is putting up a new fence and sidewalk all around his residence, which adds considerably to the appearance of our town. T. McKune, our enterprising hotel landlord, is having a sidewalk laid round and round his hotel mansion. Success to enterprise.

RUNAWAY.—Mr. F. F. Tucker of Chasea, had a runaway with a swarm of bees in his buggy, a few days ago. The bees stung the horse about one hundred times, and the horse ran, throwing the live to the ground, completely crushing him, honey, and bees in the dust. The horse ran nearly a half mile, breaking the buggy into a half dozen pieces. The bees stung Mr. Tucker about as many times as they did the horse. Mr. T. says, he don't intend to move bees in a buggy, with the top of the hive loose, any more.

DEPARTED THIS LIFE. In the village of Chasea, on the morning of the 25th inst., EMERY, the older son of Rev. D. Casler, aged three years.
Our dear brother and sister Casler, so well known and greatly beloved in this community, are passing through deep waters of affliction. Their dearest treasure has been suddenly taken from them, and their fondest hopes withered in the bud. Many hearts bleed with theirs under this bereavement, for they are greatly beloved for Christ's sake. But the waterflood shall not overflow them, nor the deep swallow them up! They are the beloved of Christ, and he will walk upon the stormy waters and allay their fears. While the black clouds, contrary winds and surging billows, fill them with alarm, He will whisper in their ear, "Be of good cheer: it is I, be not afraid." Christ will be their consolation while they mourn over him who sleeps in Jesus. "O, thou afflicted, tossed with tempests," listen to the voice Jesus who comes to thee in the storm, walking on the waters, and says, "It is I; be not afraid." The presence and the voice of Jesus in the storm, is everything to the believing soul.
"Is it well with the child? It is well."
"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."
"Dear as thou wast, and justly dear, We would not weep for thee; One thought shall check the starting tear— It is—that thou art free.
And thus shall faith's consoling power The fear of loss restrain; O, who that saw thy parting hour Could wish thee here again?"
"Though earth may boast one gem the less, May not 'e'en heaven the richer be? And myriads on thy footsteps press, To share thy bliss eternally."
Rev. R. F.

BUTTER! BUTTER!! BUTTER!!!
Important to Butter Makers.
For Butter prepared in the following manner, we will pay the highest cash price: Churn and work the butter ready for salting, then stop.
Why it is better for the farmer to sell his butter in this way.
1st. Fresh butter weighs more than after it has been salted, and worked the usual way.
2nd. We pay the highest market price in cash at your door.
3rd. It is a great saving in labor to the farmer.
4th. This gives you a steady cash market at home.
5th. There being from three to five cents difference between cash and trade, we claim it is much in favor of the cash system.
N. B.—Parties taking their Fresh Butter to the Butter Market, in basement room of Wm. Judson & Co's store, in Chasea, will receive the highest market price in cash.
