CHELSEA, OCT. 23, 1873.

Beating a Railroad.

Many droll stories are told of the gentleman-beat and polite swindler, known as Beau Hickman, who died a few weeks ago at Washington. He inherited $40,000; but the lazy, dissipated, wasteful habits of the Virginia "chivalry"—of which he was a sprig—made him a poor "dead beat" for the last 25 years of his life. On one occasion, Beau being on a train without a ticket, took a seat in the cars, and after the train had been in motion some time, he stepped into the next car and came out loudly, "Tickets!" when every one, thinking him the Conductor, held out their tickets. Beau only took up one, however, selecting that of a poor, honest old German farmer; and, passing into the next car, took a seat, sticking the ticket into the band of his hat.

A few minutes there was the call of "Tickets!" and the old Conductor made his appearance. When he came to the old German farmer, he attempted to explain; but the Conductor cut him short, saying, "Show your ticket, pay your money, or get off the train."

"Good many passengers who had witnessed the transaction between Hickman and the farmer, and wondered at the time why their tickets had not been called for, now came to the relief of the German, and remonstrated, protesting that the man had paid, and the Conductor who had just passed through, had already taken up his ticket. The Conductor, thinking for a moment, said, "I'll bet Beau Hickman is on this train;" and, sure enough, on entering the next car, there sat Beau, as large as life, looking quite innocent, and his ticket exposed in full view.

"Where did you get this ticket?" asked the Conductor, pulling it out of Hickman's hat-band.

"It was given to me by a gentleman in the next car," frankly replied Beau.

"You ought to be ashamed to rob a poor old German farmer in that way."

"Politest and cleverest people in the world on your road," said Beau with his inimitable smile and little bow. "Why—would you believe me, sir?—I only needed one, but every man in the car, when they knew who I was, tendered me his ticket; and the ladies—God bless them!—at least a dozen offered me theirs."

The Conductor passed him.

An Adroit Robbery

There are in Paris two or three women whose scandalous fortune has removed them from the demi-monde, and placed them in a world apart. One of these women is notorious for her adventures.

She is said to be among the depository of the jewelry by means of the false keys, gradually abstracted the gems and replaced them by artificial ones. The deception passed unnoticed until a friend of Madame —, on the eve of a visit to London, borrowed a single stone, supposed to be of immense value. In some business transaction with a noted London jeweler the stone happened to come in question, and the jeweler declared it to be a mere imitation. The police were put upon the track, and so the affair came to light.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any thing worked so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in estimation, as it has become better known, its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the danger was affecting of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed at all seasons subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although entitled Cherry Pectoral, it is not a remedy, still great benefit is derived from its use, and the disease is cured, and the patient is restored to health by the Cherry Pectoral.

It is sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine.

MENTION.
THANKS.—We tender our thanks to Mr. Orville Burlingame, for a nice basket of eating apples.
Then pull up the wicket and the stake, and put by the mallet and the ball; for no more croquet 'll be played this year. It's getting too late in the fall.
Making wreaths from the beautifully colored leaves that now are so plenty, appears to be a popular amusement with the ladies, both old and young.
The printers join in to thank Mr. N. H. Robinson, for a sample of peach-blow potatoes. They were as large in size as we have seen this season.
Our reporter in recording his observations upon the current fashions, says that lace is now worn by ladies behind, more than it ever was before.
FIRST SNOW OF THE SEASON.—Chelsea was visited on last Monday night, with quite a snow storm, to the depth of six inches, accompanied with wind, sleet, hail and rain.
A Chelsea young man who has been boarding for several years, declares that in his life he has never seen a more beautiful landscape than the one he is now viewing from his window.
Fresh nuts (of all kinds) are being brought into market in quite large quantities, and, finding ready sale, the youthful generation are correspondingly flush as to pocket money.
If the following motto was adopted by more of our business men, they would prosper much better: "Early to bed and early to rise, never get tight, and Advance!"
An up-town baby, on Main street, is reached for, as having swallowed, at one sitting, three dozen buttons, a cast-iron nut and a pair of gold sleeve buttons, without manifesting the slightest symptoms of indigestion.
PERSONAL.—Our readers will be happy to learn that Albert Congdon, Dry Goods Merchant, who lately lived amongst us in Chelsea, is here at present, and is about establishing a first class dry goods store in town. We wish him success.
AUCTION SALE.—Mr. Levi Tuttle, will sell at public sale at his residence, two miles south-east of Chelsea, on November 4th, 1873, his farm stock, implements, etc. He will also offer for sale his farm, consisting of 87 acres. Ira Cushman, Salesman.
Kate hates moustaches, so much hair makes every man look like a bear.
But Ida, who no thoughts could fetter, Blunts out: "The more like bears the better, because," her pretty shoulders shrugging, "Bears are such glorious chaps for hugging!"
ALL ABLE.—Oh! oh! John, our house is all a fire. I told you that some day this calamity would befall us, and you would not listen. The cause of all this trouble is, because you did not insure in that reliable insurance company, the "Hibernian."
M. J. NOYES, Agent.
ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF DRY GOODS.—The money panic has so unsettled affairs, that we have concluded to sell out our elegant stock of Dry Goods and Carpets, at cost. Now is your opportunity to buy cheap. P. R. Sabin & Co., Jackson, Mich.
Two street urchins got in a war of words near the Chelsea Post-office the other day, and called each other a good many hard names. Finally, as a clincher, and to show his contempt, one of them sang out: "O, yes, you are getting mighty stuck up, you are. You're the chap that eats grapes and don't swallow the skins!" This was a clincher, for the true, genuine, swallows skins, seeds and all.
An exchange says that hogs, at this season, should have plenty of sulphur and powdered charcoal given to them in their food. The other ingredient of gunpowder, sulphur—might also be administered. Then by giving the hog a box of friction matches and letting it run, an explosion might be produced that would save the cost of butchering by blowing the animal into stakes and chops.
The "Cardiff Giant" is asserting its influence upon art in England. A noble amateur sculptor—one of the Paget family has whittled out of concrete a colossal figure of Lord Nelson, which has just been set up on the Menla strait as a landmark for mariners. This concrete business may be all very well in the abstract, but for practical purposes it is not likely to supersede marble and bronze.
Newspaper men are not all "great guns" but still they bear some resemblance to them, for they are very apt to make report when they go off. In the ability of some of them to go off at his cock there is also a decided resemblance to untrustworthy fire-arms.

MARRIED.
In Chelsea, October 6th, 1873, by Rev. B. Franklin, Mr. CHARLES KIMBLEY, to Rosa A. FREE, all of Chelsea, Mich.
COMMUNICATION.
"A Dream That Was All a Dream."
EDITOR HERALD:—Would you be kind as to allow the undersigned a small space in your valuable paper—to state an incident that happened lately, not many miles from Chelsea.
I regret as deeply as any outsider can that I am thus compelled to mutilate the above quotation; but it would not answer my purpose at all as I to use as a caption: "A Dream that was not all a Dream."
With this little digression I proceed to relate: A maiden lady between the ages of thirty and forty, and of more mature years of sixty, a dress-maker by profession, "conceived it would be vastly fine" to accept an invitation to attend a dance at hall. She went; she danced; and then she danced some more; she danced the Cotillon, the Quadrille, the Schottish, and "topped off" with a Waltz; then having danced into the "wee sma' hours," it is reasonable to suppose she danced to her home, accompanied by her chaperon.
"Just as happy as a big sunflower." Then to bed, and to sleep soon followed in the natural course of events. Aye, she went to bed; she slept; she dreamed; "in the dim land of dreams" she saw a vision; of that vision she says: "Methought I was now 'younger than I once was.' Young love I had always known to be a thing of reality; but now methought it was forever past, and I was married. Time passed on, as I dreamed, and methought I was a happy mother. If the real joys of mother are what I experienced in my dream, I would give all I possess to be fifteen or twenty-five years younger, and have some 'gentle youth' proposing for my hand. But to return to my dream: I was happy; a happy wife and mother. I dreamed these joyous scenes were all a dream; I turned over on my couch; sure enough somebody was in the bed; I thought at once of the accident that befell the girl that had been out late at night to dance, whose father informed her, in an unexpected manner: 'Jane, the school-master is in that bed!' I gave a start; I awoke; awoke to have all my bright visions scattered to the winds; for the individual in that bed was only one of my apprentice girls, who, to my horror and indignation, was snoring away as though nothing had happened. I should feel more hopeful, but the fact is I have always believed that if there is anything in dreams they must be taken contrary." I pity this poor dress-maker; as I trust you also do, gentle reader. It seems sad that young love should thus be crushed in all its bright hopes and prospects in a single night. The time once was when this ancient maiden might have realized that similar to which she dreamed, but now, alas, it is forever too late. MORAL: Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.
L. B.

MIX IN PLEASANT WORDS.—It is related of two ship captains, that one went the rounds of his vessel with an eye only to the faults of his men. He had no words of praise for what was well done, but sharply reproved the neglects. As a natural consequence, his men were surly and morose. They were never glad to see his coming. They had no encouragement to do well, for they said, let them try ever so hard, they could gain not one word of approbation; only at best a little less of fault-finding.
The other captain, with no better natural disposition, but a profounder insight into human nature, seemed in his rounds to notice mainly the excellencies. The faults were passed over, or spoken of in an under-tone. But no instance of painstaking failed to draw forth warm commendation. As a consequence his men all loved him. They were delighted to see him coming. In striving to merit commendation, they avoided the faults which so occupied the attention of the other captain. Discipline, good order, cheerful obedience, characterized his ship. Bad habits may often be most effectually corrected by praise of the opposite virtues.
THE MUSICAL ECHO.—This popular monthly presents a rich variety of contents for its October number. It opens with a sketch entitled "Beethoven's Love," which is an interesting reminiscence of the early life of the great composer of instrumental music. The other articles are instructive and interesting, and are suited to the various tastes of the general reader. The Echo—though comparatively a new paper—already takes rank among the first magazines in the land, and is somewhat noted for its plainness of speech and soundness upon musical matters. Besides the original poems, sketches and other matter, the Echo gives each month, three or four new pieces of music, which, if bought in sheet form, would cost more than the price of a whole year's subscription to the Echo. The current number contains a song by Tucker, "There, darling, wait for me" a Mazourka, by Patton, "The Faultless;" and the "Never tire Waltz."
The list of maritime disasters for the month of August last, compiled by the Bureau Veritas, shows that during that month 176 sailing vessels and 12 steamers were to ally lost. The sailing vessels are thus subdivided according to flags: English, 118; French, 18; American, 10; Norwegian, 7; German, 4; Dutch, 3; Greek, 2; and 1 each of Australia, Chili, Spain, Nicaragua, Sweden, and Turkey. Included among the lost of the above list are 3 vessels reported missing. Of the lost steamers, 10 were English, 1 Spanish and 1 Swedish.

A man who had been sitting on a wash, arose early to his feet, as the wash-bowl noticed it, and with a laugh, he said: "Ouch! I have the wash-bowl on my head!"
Said Mrs. Jenks on her return from church, "When I see the shawls of those Johnsons, and then think of what I have to wear, if it was not for the consolation of religion, I don't know what I would do."
A glass gold-fish globe, filled with water, set fire to the sleeve of a lady's dress in New Haven, the other day, by concentrating the rays of the sun. Quite a large hole was burned before the fire was found.
A negro boy was driving a mule when the animal stopped and refused to budge. "Won't you go, eh?" said the boy. "Feel grand, do you? I suppose you forgot your fadder was a little jackson."

A man at Oswego, Kan., getting ready for a party, dropped a pocket-book containing $1,000 into the cistern. He baited forty barrels of water from the cistern, recovered the money, and got on his clean shirt in time for the party.
The Postmaster General of Madras, India, has a very mean estimation of linguistic talent. He advertises for a clerk who can read, write and speak English, Hindostanee, Arabic, Bhora, Guzerati and Mahratta, and all for $14 a month.
At a juvenile party one little fellow, rejoicing in the splendor of his new clothes, went up to another with the triumphant remark:—"You ain't dressed as well as I am." "Well," retorted the other, "I can lick you anyhow."
A Feejee cannibal, traveling in a noted American show, has gone back to his native land. He says he'd rather carry his native hood than be a haythen at $20 a month. An ambitious teamster has been promoted to the vacant position.
A peculiar way of discharging printers exists in the Dayton (Ohio) offices. Each compositor has a nail to hang his coat on, and, when the foreman concludes to dispense with the service of one of the hands, he takes a hammer and drives the nail in to the head.
A rough North Carolinian, going West with his dozen children and two dozen dogs, recently got on board a steamer at a Kentucky landing, and his first question was, "How much will you charge, cap'n, to take us up to St. Louis?" "Will you go on deck or in the cabin?" "Wal, cap'n, I've lived in a cabin all my life, and I suppose the cabin 'll be good enough for me now."

"Gentlemen," said an auctioneer, who was selling a piece of land, "this is the most delightful land; it is the easiest land to cultivate, it is so light, so very light. Mr. Parker here will corroborate my statement: he owns the next patch, and he will tell you how easy it is worked." "Yes, gentlemen," said Mr. Parker, "it is very easy to work, but it is a plaguey sight easier to gather the crops."

Mortgage Sale.
DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a mortgage, executed by Lewis H. Van Antwerp and Zelinda Van Antwerp, to Mathias Alber, bearing date the 7th day of September, A. D. 1868, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for Washenaw county, State of Michigan, in Liber 85, of Mortgages, on page 593, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at this date, the sum of three hundred and forty-nine dollars and thirteen cents, and thirty dollars as an attorney fee, as provided in said mortgage, and no suit being pending at law, or in chancery having been brought to enforce the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, Notice is therefore hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed on Saturday, the twentieth day of December, A. D. 1873, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the south door of the Court House, in the city of Ann Arbor, in said county of Washenaw, (said Court House being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county of Washenaw,) by sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, of the premises described in said mortgage, which said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage, as follows, to-wit: All the north-east quarter of the north-east corner of section twenty-seven, containing forty acres of land, more or less; also, the north-half of the south-east quarter of the north-east quarter of section number twenty-seven, all in township number two, south of Range number three east, in the county of Washenaw, and State of Michigan.
Chelsea, Mich., Sept. 24th, 1873.
