A Lost Patient.

A foreign scientific journal relates the following story, which is full of suggestions:
A lady called upon a celebrated oculist in order to consult him on account of her eyes, complaining that their power of vision had of late considerably diminished. At a glance the doctor saw that she was a lady of rank and wealth. He looked at her treatment would require much time, as there were reasons to fear amaurosis in her case. He must advise her, that as she was residing a distance in the country, she must move into the city at once, and thus enable him to see her daily.

The lady rented an elegant mansion in the city, and the physician was punctual in his attendance. He prescribed this and that, and thus days ran into weeks and weeks into months. The cure, however, was still coming.

One day the patient procured for herself a very old and poor attire, put a hood of tremendous size upon her head, took an old umbrella and a market basket in her hand, and in these habiliments visited her physician, selecting for the purpose a very rainy day. She had so well succeeded in distorting and disguising herself that the eye even of a lover could not have recognized her. She was obliged to wait a long time in the ante-room of her physician, with many others, who, like her, were seeking relief. At last her turn came.

"Well, my good woman, what have you to complain of?"
"Very bad eyes, doctor," she answered.

He took her to the light, looked into her eyes but failed to recognize his patient. Shrugging his shoulders, he said:
"Your eyes are well enough."
"Well?" she said.

"Yes, I know what I am saying,"
"But I have been told that I was getting the—a—a forget how it is called."
"Amaurosis?"
"Yes, that is it, doctor."

"Don't let them make you believe any such nonsense. Your eyes are a little weak, but that is all. Your physician is an ass!"
"An—"
"Yes, an ass! Tell him boldly that I said so."

The lady now arose, and in her customary voice said: "Sir, you are my physician; don't you know me?"
The face the sage counselor made is easier to imagine than to describe. "Gracious, madam!" He commenced to stammer an apology, but the lady would not listen to him, and left him indignantly. She never saw the gentleman any more.

Bouquets.

However pretty individually, however sweet and shapely each one may be in itself, if taken at random, and simply tied together, flowers are no more a bouquet than the run of the fingers, vaguely, and wantonly, over the strings of a harp, is productive of general form, not mathematical symmetry, but such as we see in a birch or a chestnut—for a bouquet may in general design be either light and tender, or massive and sumptuous; there must be accurate balance also of color with plenty of white and green, and a nice concord of scents. The last named particular, though often one of the least regarded, or never thought of at all, is in reality one of the most vital. The very name "bouquet" carries with it, indeed, this identical idea, being derived from certain ancient words which imply "perfection of odor;" and a trifle judiciously thrown in, of some odor comparable with deep bass, or even with a good treble, will often as completely change the quality of a bouquet as a bit of scarlet, where previously there was no accent. Colors require to be disposed, as to tone and contrast, after precisely the same principle as that which guides a lady of sense in the choice of apparel. All colors are good somewhere and at some time, though the best of the brilliant class may be utterly lost as to effect by malarrangement; while delicate ones may be made seem wan and worthless just for want of a little study of what constitutes a wise and friendly juxtaposition. Fancy, for instance, the effect of the sweet and tender yellow of the winter jasmine along-side of a white; and, as a contrast, mark the effect of a bit of maiden-hair fern placed somewhat en rapport with a white camellia, or of the timely introduction, amid pearly things, of a spray of the scarlet euphorbia jasquiniflora. There are flowers that should never be used in bouquets. For although it must be a remarkable plant indeed, for which a suitable place could not be found in the open garden, it is quite a different thing when we have to bring the garden rays, as it were, to a point. There is not a plant in existence that is unfitted to give a charm or a tinge of splendor to scenes receptive of it; and in a certain sense there is scarcely a decorative object. But the bouquet has limitations; and in dealing with plants and flowers we are bound not only to treat them kindly, but to treat them justly.

All bulbs with annual roots, which includes nearly all the lilies, must be taken up as soon as the leaves become ripe and brown, because the roots will die if the bulbs are allowed to remain in the ground. After taking them up let them dry in the shade for a few days.

BRIEF MENTION.

TRANSFER.—Mr. Ira Cushman has sold his residence, in Chelsea, to F. D. Cummings, for $3,000.

Jealousy is only the art of tormenting yourself for fear you should be tormented by another.

The weather is changeable and boisterous. On Tuesday last we had about three inches of snow.

Mr. T. McKune, of Chelsea, is laying a new sidewalk round and round his hotel mansion. We may say, "long looked for," has come at last.

The Walker family, entertained a small portion of the inhabitants of Chelsea, on Wednesday evening of last week, at the Congregational Church.

We are informed that Mr. William Oxtoby is about retiring from the Hotel business. Another party from Unadilla, Mich., was to take possession last Wednesday. Success to our new landlord.

"A WORD TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT." The above quotation is applied to a great many things; but in this case, we advise all who are not insured, to do so at once, in that safe and reliable company, the "Watertown." M. J. NOYES, Agent.

If you are in want of a good reliable watch, one that you can depend on, go to C. Bliss & Sons, Ann Arbor, Mich. You can't do better anywhere else in the State.

PERSONAL.—Mr. A. J. Sawyer and family left Chelsea, last Friday, for the city of Ann Arbor, where they intend to make it their future home. Our best wishes go with them.

POND'S EXTRACT. Let those who have never used it, inquire of some friend concerning its virtues.

The Board of Supervisors have been in session now over two weeks, and the business that seems to trouble them more than anything else, is how to dispose of the small-pox claims from the city of Ann Arbor. They called upon the Prosecuting Attorney for his opinion, and he has given them a decision that seemed to commend itself to the good judgment of the entire Board.

The wheat market all through the country is still very quiet, not much moving. The millers here have plenty of money, and are paying for good wheat from $1.40 to $1.45. Owing to the fact that navigation will soon close, and freight advance, it is thought by many that the price will not be much higher this fall. The merchants are finding fault with their customers. They say trade is good on credit, but that collections are poor, and they think that even if the price does not suit they should sell enough to pay their debts.—Ann Arbor Courier.

WONDERFUL CURES.—Prof. G. V. Armstrong, M. D., of Chelsea, is now traveling through the State of Michigan, performing wonderful cures in all diseases pertaining to the human system—such as chronic cases that baffled the best of physicians. The doctor is now called on an Eastern tour, to attend some of the most chronic diseases that the human flesh is heir to. May success attend him.

HANDSOME PROPOSAL.—H. N. F. Lewis, Esq., the well-known publisher of the Western Rural and Young Folks Rural, offers to donate to the Chicago relief fund two-thirds of the entire receipts for subscriptions to the latter paper from citizens of Chelsea and suburbs, and visitors at the Exposition during the week commencing Monday, October 13th, 1873. This paper, started only three years ago, has been remarkably successful, and all who subscribe for it will undoubtedly be pleased. The price is only $1.50 per year.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.—Inquiry among the business men of Chelsea, reveals the fact, that for the past two weeks there has been marked by a decided improvement in business, and the cash sales of all our leading merchants averaged up among the hundreds. The change has been apparent on our streets, which has assumed its old appearance of activity. The prospects are also fair for a good winter trade. The liberal rates being paid for produce, and the low prices which our merchants have adopted in selling goods of all kinds, are producing their legitimate fruits, and also gaining quite a large trade from our sister towns. Chelsea is deemed at no distant day, to be one of the largest cities in the county, (Ann Arbor not excepted). We invite strangers to come and settle amongst us—our fertile land, and our beautiful villa lots is fast becoming populated; but still there is room for a few more. Our hospitable doors are open to all, and our arms are extended to welcome the new comers who intend to settle amongst us.

FOR SALE. A HOUSE and LOT for sale, in a well located part of the village. Enquire at this office. Chelsea, Mich., Oct. 16, 1873.

Old Newspapers for sale at this office at 10 cents per dozen.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FORRESTER, MICH. October 24th, 1873. EDITOR HERALD.—In my first letter, I wrote you of the pleasant surroundings of "mine host." There are other pleasant homes in our village, but of course, none are quite as magnificent. Money is a convenient help in this world for poor mortals, who must have house for shelter, clothing to wear, and food to eat. My church building is the prettiest I ever saw east or west; it is a perfect gem. It was a present to the M. E. society here, by Messrs. Smith, Kelly & Adams. It is neatly furnished; the audience room is complete, not a thing that I can think of is wanted. The orchestra contains an eight hundred dollar organ, made in Buffalo. There is a pastor's room near the pulpit; and on the opposite side of the church is the Sunday-school library room, containing some five hundred volumes, and all covered. We have a catalogue printed in pamphlet form, and the librarian in distributing books, uses the card system, so popular in many of our larger Sunday-schools. In the rear of the church, and attached to it, is the chapel and Sunday-school room. It is seated with reversible seats, and the walls are made still more beautiful, by being adorned with hanging mottoes expressive of some great Bible truth. The church and chapel are heated with furnaces, and lighted with Argand lamps. Friends visiting from Springfield, Mass., thought we had the neatest and most complete church property they had ever seen. Of course, we like to hold service in such a church building as we are privileged with. Since I have been here, it has been used quite often; besides the regular service, I have attended four funerals. Thus death is in this and every place; go where we may, and death will sooner or later find us.

The parsonage building is some larger than the one we left in Chelsea, and much better furnished. We have all the heavy furniture needed—stoves, tables, etc., and in addition, a furnished parlor, a neat bedroom set, costing seventy-five dollars, in the parlor's room or study, up stairs. We are now cozily settled in our new home, and making acquaintances as fast as possible. If you, Mr. Editor, or any of my many good friends at or about Chelsea, should come this way, we will assure you as good a cup of coffee, as was ever made by pastor's wife, in all this sterile land. Since we have been here, our children have been very sick, but are better now; and we hope when he gets fully acclimated to this lake shore climate, to be as hearty as the strong ones, who look so hale, and who have been here these twenty years. For the present, I must say good bye. Your's truly, W. B. HOLZ.

SALEM, OREGON, October 19th, 1873. EDITOR HERALD.—The extreme wet weather which is characteristic of this country during the rainy season, has been with us for the past week, and has damped some, I think, the ardor of the people, who have thronged here with tents and blankets, to be present at and during the State Fair, which began on the 6th, and breaks up on the 15th of October. The hundreds of tents in the groves in the vicinity of the grounds, form a pleasing and active prelude to the meager exhibition on the inside, which, it seems, would hardly call so many farmers together with so little interest as they seem to manifest in exhibiting their products.

However, the rain, I suppose, accounts for (in a measure,) this very limited display in every branch of the exhibition. Still one would think that those who have the courage to come here in the rain, pitch their tents in the mud, and stay a whole week, (notwithstanding there has been almost a continuous rain,) might bring along something to represent their cause.

In the line of stock there is a few very good horses, (four or five,) lots of imported cattle, (short horns,) a few good sheep, (the usual varieties of coarse and fine wool;) also, some Angora goats; these, though they do not grow as much wool per head as sheep, I believe are considered more profitable, from the fact that it brings more in market; $1.00 and $1.25 I think is the common price per pound.

There is scarcely anything in the line of machinery or farming implements; a few wagons and bugies manufactured here and in Portland. By the way most of the wagons used here are Eastern manufacture. The Jackson wagon is used, and sells for $120, instead of $75. The quality of fruit makes up in a measure; I think for a limited quantity, apples are larger and finer than in the East; and the country seems to be well adapted to growing pears, plums, and berries of all descriptions. We saw pears which the exhibitor said would weigh two pounds each.

As the track was in a very poor condition, we saw no racing worthy of notice. In the pavilion there are a few organs and sewing machines, all of Eastern manufacture. A few pictures and quite a good display of needle work, and some shell work attracted our attention as worthy of notice; also, flowers in wax and worsted.

By this brief list you will see the Fair was a failure; and considering the weather, one could hardly expect it otherwise. Farmers here are still sowing wheat; there is a queer custom among farmers here, viz: That of doing their work whenever they get time. Yours, &c., H. C. ACKLEY.

OBITUARY.

DIED.—On Friday morning last, at his residence in Blyvan, Mr. WILLIAM JUDSON, Jr., aged 67 years. His illness was of but short duration, but he died peacefully passing down the dark valley seemingly without a regret. Deceased was a Christian gentleman, and highly esteemed by all who knew him, for his genial qualities of head and heart.

Our buried friends, can we forget, Although they've passed death's gloomy river, They live within our memory yet, And in our love must live forever. And though they've gone awhile before To join the ransomed hosts in heaven, Our hearts will love them more and more, Till earthy chains at last be riven.

Farwell, my wife, and children, dear; Though absent from you, do not fear; God will protect and comfort too, So love one another as I loved you.

MARRIAGE MAXIMS. A good wife is the greatest earthly blessing. It is the mother who moulds the character and destiny of the child. Never make a remark at the expense of the other; it is meaness.

Never part without loving words to think of during your absence. Besides, it may be that you will not meet again in life. "How gently glides the marriage life away, When she who rules still seems but to obey."

Never manifest anger. Never speak loud to one another, unless the house is on fire. Never reflect on a past action which was done with a good motive, and with the best judgment.

Let each one strive to yield oftentimes to the wishes of the other, which is the mutual cultivation of an absolute selfishness. Never find fault unless it is perfectly certain that a fault has been committed; and even then prelude it with a kiss.

Never allow a request to be repeated. "I forgot" is never an acceptable excuse. Marry into a different blood and temperament from your own.

Chips from the Editor's Block. Among the opera queens Nilsson is emphatic, and Parepa is limb-fat-ic. They are making bricks out of other in Kansas.

In Montana they pick up gold nuggets by the pound, and throw away the little ones. Henry Ward Beecher suffers annually from hay-fever or Summer catarrh.

A Pottsville (Pa.) man, ate a peck of raw tomatoes at one sitting, the other day. Somebody said "Dress makes the man." In Paris a man makes the dresses.

"Though lost to sight to memory dear," as the man said when he paid his dinner bill. While the "Sea of Ice" was being played at Fond du Lac, Wis., one of the icebergs took fire.

A Johnstown (Pa.) paper talks about a man who "never enjoyed a day's sickness in his life." Anjos, Brazil, is overrun with the agents of managements, who are buying bon-constrictors for $1 apiece.

A Galesburg (Ill.) barber advertises himself as a "professor of craniocultural abscission and craniological tripa."

Mrs. Smith says her husband is like a tallow candle, because he always will smoke when he is going out. Farmington, Me., will put up 680,000 cans of sweet-corn this season, and boasts one workman whose champion record is 1,500 cans in one day.

A New York lady has invented a corset which will squeeze a woman to death in five minutes, if she feels like suicide. Ladies just returned from Europe wear the hair very plain and low on the neck, a style, we are assured, "all the rage" in Paris.
