moment she stood, wide-eyed with amaze But with never the faintest shudder; en opening her arms with a loving gaze, Cooed tenderly, "Come to your mudder." -Youth's Companion,

The minister said last night, says he,
'Don't be afraid of givin';
If your life aint nothin' to other folks
Why, what's the use o' livin'?"
And that's what I say to my wife

John Jankin's Sermon.

And that's what I say to my wife, says I,
"There's Brown, the mis rable sinner,
He'd sooner a beggar would starve than a
A cent toward buyin' a dinner."

I tell you our minister 's prime, he is,
But I couldn't quite determine,
When I heard him a-givin' it right and left
Just who was hit by his sermon.
Of course there couldn't be no mistake
When he talked of long-winded prayin',
For Peters and Johnson they sot and scowled
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say,
"There's various kinds o' cheatin',
And religion's as good for every day
"As it is to bring to meetin'.
I don't think much of a man that givea...
The Lord Amens at my preachin',
And spends his time the following week
In cheatin' and overreachin'."

I guess that dose was bitter enough
For a man like Jones to swaller;
But I noticed he didn't open his mouth,
Not once, after that to holler.
Hurrah, says I, for the minister—
Of course I said it quiet—
Give us some more of this open talk:
It 's very refreshing diet.

The minister hit 'em every time;
And when he spoke of fashion
And a riggin' out in bows and things, As woman's rulin' passion,
And a comin' to church to see the styles,
I couldn't help a winkin'
And s-nudgin' my wife, and says I, "That's And I guess it sot her thinkin'.

Says I to myself, "That sermon's pat; But man is a queer creation,
And I'm much afraid that most o' the folks
Won't take the application.
Now, if he had said a word about My personal way of sinnin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself
And not set here a grinin'."

Just then the minister says, says he,
"And now I've come to the fellers
Who've lost this shower by usin'
friends

As sort o' moral umbrellas.
Ge home, says he, "and find your faults,
Instead of huntin' your brothers';
Go home," he says, "and wear the coats
You've tried to fit for others."

You've tried to ht for others.

My wife she nudged and Brown he winked,
And there was lots o' smilin',
And lot o' lookin' at our pew—

It sot my blood a-bilin'.

Says I to myself, "Our minister
Is gettin' a little bitter;
I'll tell him when meetin' 's out that I
Aint at all that kind of a critter."

On hearing the shot Brutus stopped short, and put his ears forward in an attitude of attention. I was surprised to see him so impressionable. After the brilliant military education I assumed he had received in his youth, he must be well accustomed to the report.

He stopped short, and planted himself more resolutely than ever. I then got into a rage, and my riding-whip entered into play; I took it in both hands, and struck the horse right and left. But Brutus, too, lost patience, and finding passive resistance unavailing, defended himself in rearing, kicking and plunging; and in the midst of the battle, while the horse capered and battle, while the horse capered and kicked, and I, exasperated, was flogging him with the loaded butt-end of the efforts of Brutus to unseat me my broked whip, Brutus, nevertheles, after the two shots, "I understand it impatience and surprise, but with rage and indignation. LANSING.

Fourth Week of the Legislative Session-Bills Passed and Pro.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LANSING, January 24, 1879.

The fourth week of the session is drawing to a close, and, like that of the preceding week, may be characterized as one of great preparations and small results. The law-makers have been drawing up and introducing bills and resolutions on all sorts of subjects with great industry, and the several com-mittees are almost swamped under the accumulation of documents referred to them for consideration and report; but thus far the engrossing and enrolling clerks have had an easy time of it. A very large proportion of the bills which startle us on their introduction by their novel and extravagant character are quietly pigeon-holed by the committees and never heard of afterward. Even when the bill appears just and neces-sary, it is frequently held back by the committee in expectation that other bills on the same subject will be intro-

The usual grist of notaries public has been ground out, and includes a tair proportion of the voting popula-tion of the State, running up into thousands, I should think, though no census has yet been taken of them. It includes men of all classes, professions, and occupations, and the honors and emoluments of the office must be considerable, judging from the importuni-ty of applicants for appointment. Why there should be so few lady applicants for this or any other position in the gift of the State is not easily explained. Much of the c'erical work in the State offices here might be done by ladies as well as that in the departments at Washington.

INVESTIGATIONS.

There is a decided disposition on the part of a good many members to have things investigated, and the most promising subjects appeared to be the State printing and the management of the Insane Asylum at Kalamazoo. As no testimony, nobody appearing with any specific charges. It is said such charges will be presented at an ad-journed meeting of the committee to be vented in the future; therefore. on the aforesaid institution be and they are hereby instructed, acting jointly, to make a careful and thorough investigation of such charges.

Representative Moore moved to amend, by striking out the word "male" from the qualifications of voters in such societies. After an animated debate the amendment was concurred in. The amendment is understood to be satisfactory to the parties most interested, but it is certainly a novel spectacle, the Legislature attempting to amend the rules of the church. It will probably try amending the prayer book by-and-by.

Finding Fault.

In speaking of a person's faults, Pray don't forget your own; Remember those with homes of glass Should seldom throw a stone, If we have nothing else, to do Than talk of those who sin, 'Tis better we commence at home, And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man Until he's fairly tried ; Should we not like his company, We know the world is wide. Some may have faults, and who has not The old as well as young; Perhaps we m y, for all we know, Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan, And find it works full well, To s ek your own defects to cure, Ere others' faults you tell; And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know, My own short-comings bid me let The faults of others go.

Now let us all when we begin To slander friend or foe, Think of the harm one word may do To those we little know: Remember curses, chicken-like, Sometimes to roost come home; Don't speak of others' faults until You have none of your own.

the death of Dr. Robert T. Hallock, the well-known Spiritualist, whose funeral took place from his late residence, No. 140 East Fifteenth street, yesterday merning. The coffin rested in the front parlor, a wreath of white roses was laid on the lid, and small bouquets stood at the head and foot of the bier. Mrs. Nellie J. T. Brigham, who officiated, is a lady well known in spiritual-istic circles in this city, and her text was: "I will send you a comforter." Mrs. Brigham spoke of the high qualities of the deceased, whom she termed a man of rare ability, sterling integrity and most genial disposition, fearless alike in thinking and in giving expression to his views. While making her remarks in a singularly melodious and sympathetic voice the speaker seemed wholly lost to her surroundings. Previous to the announcement of her text she had offered a brief prayer, thanking God for "that life which men call death." Dr. Hallock was not originally a Spiritualist. His father and grandfather, of Milton on the Hudson, were Quaker preachers, and in that faith Also the Senate bill making the 22d of February a public holiday in the District of Columbia. Quaker preachers, and in that faith the deceased was brought up. On arriving at manhood, however, he became an out and out materialist, and held that belief until after his settlement in this city, over thirty years ago. In 1851, with Robert Dale Owen, Judge Edmunds, Dr. Gray and Charles Participe. > A winter camp-meeting is in gress in the Willett Street Methodist Episcopal Church, under the auspices of the National Camp-Meeting Associ ation, and the special direction of Rev. J. S. Inskip, President of the Association, assisted by Rev. Mr. McDonald, Rev. Mr. Wood and a host of volunteers. The services yesterday, morning and afternoon, did not rise to the ecstatic height peculiar to such occasions, but last night, under the influence of an address by the veteran, Mr. Inskip himself, the barriers gave way, and more than half the congregation flocked to the altar for prayers. The scene now became of that exciting type that always ensues when large bodies of men and women are swayed by a common religious enthusiasm. A young brother was called upon to lead in prayer, and commenced with a low, solemn, basso whisper, so distinct in its enunciation that every syllable seemed to cut its way into the brain. Low groans and prolonged amens came from every part of the house; and as the young man went on his body began to rock to and fro with a slow, rhythmical movement, and his arms to jerk spasmodically. He prayed for the blessing to come down, for God to reveal himself to the many hearts bowed down at the altar, his voice rising and swelling in volume, and his imagery growing bolder and more dramatic with every sentence. He pictured Jesus descending and knocking at the door of each callous heart, his voice rising as he three times pronounced the words, "Come in Lord." The effect for the moment was terrific. Men groaned; women sobbed aloud; Brother McDonald walked up and down, clapping his hands at intervals of a few seconds, and crying, "Glery! Hallelujah!" The kneeling figures at the altar took up the refrain, the audience joined in, and the old stone building trembled with the hymn. Brother Brownleigh prayed, brother Brown prayed, and finally the brother who had been walking to and fro and clapping his hands, suggested that the whole congreation should unite in prayer. The proceedings opened with prayer meeting at 10 o'clock this morning. Gen. Smith, the President of the Police Board, gave a dinner last evening to a number of his friends at his residence, No. 19 East Forty-first street.

An African King.

A correspondent of the London Standard gives the following account of the coronation of King Archib of Old Calabar, on the west coast of Africa.

Both on the river and in the village there was a great display of bunting while guns were fired almost incessantly. Mr. David Hopkins, the English consul, who had been at Old Calabar for some little time settling disputes between traders and chiefs, was select ed to proclaim Adam Archibong king On the morning of the 6th ult., Consu Hopkins was escorted to Duke Town with the chiefs and people of Henshaw Town as a guard of honor.

The procession formed a spectacle of an unusual kind. The men were attired in the gaudiest colored prints it was possible to collect, while an umbrella of extraordinary dimensions and colors was carried above the head of the Cersul. The cavalcade arrived at the inclosure adjoining the palace, where a throng had been placed on a newly-erected platform. The natives were here assembled in thousands and were very enthusiastic. Shortly afterward the procession of the King-elect issued from the palace, a rudely-con-structed building of wood, and wended its way to the platform. Like the other body, many and various were the colors worn by the men. It was headed by a band of "musicians," making a great uproar with toy trumpets and tom-toms.

Many military coats were conspicuous there, as in the Consul's following. In several instances big negroes wore very small coats, which, not meeting in f ont, were drawn tightly reugohtte death was fatty degeneration of the heart. He was not found dead in bed, but was taken home in a dying conditional dressed. His loins were girt with a long. satin cloth of many colors while a long slieve hat covered his head. This hat had evidently seen much service, being almost shapeless with indentations. His feet, like those of his attendants. were bare, and there was also a huge umbrella held high above his head. Archibong, who is a man about 60 years old, is totally blind, and leaned on the arm of his son. He ascended to the platform amid the enthusiasm of the assembled crowd, who danced and shouted in the most frantic manner; but as soon as Consul Hopkins received the King the tumult ceased. The Consul read the existing treaties between the former Kings of of Old Calabar and Queen Victoria. which were interpreted to the King by Mr. Campbell, an English missionary on the coast, and to which Archibong assented. A new treaty was also drawn up, the King agreeing thereto, which makes it compulsory upon all his female subjects to wear the European style of dress. Treaty matters having been arranged, the ceremony of coronation was proceeded with.

The Queen, with her retinue of fe-

Amid the continued silence of the native throng, Consu Hopkins threw a scarlet cloak round Archibong, put a crown on his head and a sceptre in his hand, and proclaimed him "King Archibong III. of Old Calabar." Then the shrieks and hurrahs of the assembled thousands rent the air, the men and women dancing and shouting in the wildest glee. The crown appeared to be of gold, was very massive, and was studded with "representative" diamends.

During the ceremony the King seemed to be greatly agitated, and at one time was scarcely able to hold the sceptre. Immediately after the coronation a selute of 21 guns was fired, and the King and his courtiers adjourned to the lace, where a banquet in the native shion was prepared. The English residents were especially favored by the King, and among those present at the dinner was Consul Hopkins, the whole of the English missionaries of the district, and the captain, chief engineer, doctor and purser of the mail steamer Kinsembo. The principal dish consisted of "palm oil chop," which is considered a great luxury by the na-
