TRAPPED BY A HEIRESS.

A cosier place than the big sitting-room at Hillcrest would have been hard to find, if one had travelled from Land's End to John O'Groats; and this eventful evening, when the destinies of two worthy people were about taking definite form—two people who had never seen each other, and who had heard of each other so often that both were curiously eager to meet-on this or cosier.

A huge fire of logs glowed like molten carbuncles in the open fire-place; on the table in the centre of the floor whose cover matched the glowing crimson of the carpet, was a silver stand that held a dozen snowy wax tapers, whose beaming light contrasted exquisitely with the ruddy glow of the "Very commendable, indeed; only, if you had consulted me upon the letter you sent. I should have advised you to say nothing about Mabel, or her charms or her expectations. I should have simply asked him to come and bel's blue eyes. You see Abiah?"

His lips compressed slowly. "I think I see. And my hopes in that direction are all ruined!"

In the works of the Telegraph Supply Company the careful workman watched the dragging hands of the clock until the dragging hands of the clock until they stood at 8. Then the current was turned on. In the park the great globes, each touched with a faint, clear light, darkened for a second, flickered a moment, and then burst out in one dazzling ball of fire. From the throats of the assembled multitude burst a wild cheer, in which the sound of the Grays' Band was partially heard. To Detroit, $752,315 57; Dowagiac, $738 94 of fire-works. surrounding buildings, the scene presented some of that strange beauty of the Forest City House, looking north and west, the sea of heads moving to and fro presented an animated scene, mated by the fact that a book could be read 160 feet from any of the lights. From this position the strength of the light could be much better judged than from the ground below, where one could see little more than the effect of the single light in his immediate vicinity. The crowd lingered till late. Shortly after the light was turned on a great many adjourned to the rooms of the Telegraph Supply Company, where the electric machine supplying the light is situated. The brush dynamo-electric machine consists of two large horseshoe electro-magnets, their like poles facing each other, and a circular armature revolving between them at the rate of about 600 revolutions per minute. The armature is a grooved iron ring, wound with coils of copper wire, the current being generated in this wire by induction as they revolve in front of the poles of the electro-magnets. The currents of electricity are carried from the armature out to the commutator, taken off by the copper brushes which bear upon the surface, and from thence to the wires on which the lamps are placed. The length of circuit in the present case is 4,000 feet. The lamps or electro-carbon regulators are simple contrivances for feeding the carbon points, which burn away in the production of light. The lamps, further, contain no clockwork and but the simplest possible mechanism of any kind. Other lights have been made to give forth a brilliant light, but the Brush claims to be the only one that burns a large number in a single circuit. The current passes through all of the lamps in series, and yet no lamp can possibly get more than its share.

A Skillful Cripple.

The Empress of Austria was filled with wonder on meeting with Mr. Kavanagh, M. P. for County Carlow, with Kildare hounds. He was born without legs or arms. In place of legs he has six inches of muscular thigh stumps, one being about an inch shorter than its fellow; while his arms are dwarfed to perhaps four inches of the upper portion of these members, and are unfurnished with any termination approaching to hands. Yet he is a beautiful penman, a dashing huntsman, an artistic draughtsman, an unerring shot, an expert yachtsman, and drives four-in-hand. In writing he holds the pen or pencil in his mouth and guides its course by the arm stumps which are sufficiently long to meet across the chest. When hunting he sits in a kind of saddle basket, and his reins are managed with surprising

Mr. Cameron (Rep., Wis.) argued that the question was decided in October, 1877, in favor of Kellogg, and against Spofford, and the Senate at that time declared the proceedings to be final and conclusive. The chairman of the committee (Mr. Saulsbury) had never known of a court taking testimony in order to ascertain whether a case was finally adjudicated.

Mr. Carpenter (Rep., Wis.) said when he first heard of the proposition to unseat Kellogg he laughed it to scorn. He could not believe the Democratic party would undertake a thing so revolutionary and unequaled in partisan atrocity. The Senator from Delaware (Saulsbury) had told them that the Democrats few seconds. John Hawkins was furwere in earnest. ### The Explosion at Stratford.

The village of Stratford, Ontario, was the scene of a most terrific and disastrous explosion on Monday, the particulars of which seem to be as folows: On Saturday night, among other ears arriving from the east over the Grand Trunk Road to lay over at Stratford station till morning, was one billed to contain 30 cases of blasting powder, weighing 3,750 pounds, from Belleœil, Quebec, and shipped to C. H. Dunbar: of Amherstburg, who is the contractor engaged in the government work of blasting the bed of the river at the Lime Kilns crossing near Grosse Isle. At the time of the accident a freight train was being made up for the west, and in shunting this the car containg the explosive was driven with considerable violence against another, when, with a sudden deafening roar that shook the ground, the car itself and many others were blown to atoms and everything in the vicinity was wrecked. A great rent was torn in fully requires a good soil well prepared; the ground some 9 feet deep by 24 feet Francis Pigeon, single, aged 31, a

The offices belonging to this building were in a small frame structure, 18 by 24, at the west end. This little building was blown to pieces, and now lies a total wreck; but, strange to say, none of the three clerks who were in it before the accident, but who were literally blown out of it by the force of the explosion, sustained injuries that are likely to prove very serious.

Within a radius of 300 or 400 yards from the wreck. Beneath the spot where the explosion took place was the great rent in the earth already alluded to, fully 9 feet deep and over were piled earth, gravel, the fine fragments of splintered ties, and the rails twisted up like tangled stovepipe wire.

All the buildings anywhere near the scene of the accident were more or less shaken, and nearly every window was broken. . In fact the whole town received a terrible shaking. Many windows were broken fully two miles from the scene of the disaster, while in its immediate vicinity furniture was broken, partitions shaken out of place, and the inmates of many of the houses suffered seriously from flying pieces of glass and falling movables. In a field fully 400 yards from the spot where the explosion took place a 12feet rail, which had been torn from the track and sent flying through the air, was found half buried in the ground, One-half of a broken car-wheel was found imbedded in the ground fully a quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident. A portion of a broken axle. weighing fully 150 pounds, was blown into a garden 200 yards away, where it buried itself in the ground. The explosive is known in commerce as "Hercules powder." Frequent experiments have been made with it which demonstrate that it cannot be exploded by not freeze. It is not safe to plant concussion, and the opinion is expressed that in some way a spark from the lo-comotive must have blown into the car and came in contact with a broken

THE FARM.

Cultivation of Corn.

As a very large portion of the corn raised in Michigan is fed in the State and is raised with special reference to feeding, Prof. Kedzie's analysis showing the relative food value of the different varieties are conclusive on that point and will materially aid farmers in selecting the best. It does not fol-low, however, that the variety furnishing the largest percentage of "flesh formers" is in all cases the most profitable to cultivate. Account must alse be taken of its productiveness, its hardiness, its adaptability to the soil and climate, and its other qualities as well as its food value. In this as in all cases the conclusions of science must be accepted in the light of experience and applied with common sense. Partly as a supplement to Prof. Kedzie's paper and partly as the experience of some of the most successful cultivators of corn in Southern Michigan, we give the substance of the discussion at Paw Paw which led to the chemical analysis. Mr David Woodman, Jr., said: My favorite is the Yellow Dent. I have cultivated it for 30 years without change of seed. To raise it success plant three grains in a hill, or thin to three stalks, with rows four to four and a half feet apart each way, cultishunter in the employ of the company, who is supposed to have been in the act of coupling the cars at the time of the accident, was literally blown to to 66 bushels shelled. That I consider a good crop; an extra yield is 100 bushels of shelled, which I have frequently produced; 80 bushels is a fair, and 50 I would consider a poor crop. Next to the Yellow, I prefer the White Dent. Its yield is nearly equal to the Yellow, but its nutritive qualities are inferior. The Pony, or Small Dent, is a valuable variety, early and reliable. The eight-rowed Flint, Smut-nose, Wisconsin Dent, and Tuscarora are valuable for late planting or for the norththe air. He came down with a fractured skull, and breathed his last in a perimented with the White, Yellow, and Calico Nebraska, Quail Track, Chester County Mammoth, Iowa Hackberry, Virginia White, and other varieties. Some of them succeed well and can be advantageously grown in this vicinity. I don't know whether Prof. Kedzie has analyzed the corn yet, but I am satisfied that the Yellow Dent is the most nutritious and therefore the are coupled with heavy cross-beams or most valuable for feeding. Horses, too, if offered both the White Dent and the Yellow Dent will prefer the Yellow, and I believe they are pretty good judges.

Capt. Hendryx said: I have had at least ten years more experience growing grain than Mr. Woodman. My son and I had some dispute about the black bug appears, and a war of exterbecame so sharp that we finally con- bit of of shingle beside each hill; go cluded to weigh it in the ear, and the around before breakfast, and look unresult was that the Yellow weighed der the shingles for the bugs, and when seven pounds more to the bushel than

In scarcely any other way can the yield of corn in this State be increased as by planting only perfectly sound seed. While speaking of seed, it may be well to observe that, to obtain the largest yield, it is necessary that we plant those varieties that will get the benefit of the whole growing season and ripen before frost. The best time to plant squashes is just as the fruit trees are in bloom in May, but if they are to be grown as a second crop after potatoes, cabbages, peas or field, I found the corn earlier, can greens, and it is needful to have the more uniform and of larger growth soil occupied by the early crop till July than the rest of the field.
