Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow,
Leave the things of the future to fate;
What's the use to anticipate sorrow?
Life's troubles come never too late.
If to hope overmuch be an error,
'Tis one that the wise have preferred,
And how often have hearts been in terror
Of evils that never occurred.

Of evils that never occurred.

Have faith, and thy faith shall restrain thee, Permit not suspicion or care
With its doubt or its weight to sustain thee. But bear what God gives thee to bear;
By his spirit supported and gladdened,
But ne'er by forbodings deterred,
Think how many hearts have been saddened
By fear of what never occurred. By fear of what hever occurred.

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow,
Short and dark though life may appear;
We may make it still darker by sorrow,
Still shorter by folly and fear.
Half our troubles are our own invention,
And often from blessings incurred
Have we shrunk in the vague apprehension
Of evils that ever occurred.

THE JOLLY OLD PEDAGOGUE. BY GEORGE ARNOLD.

Twas a jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
Tall and sle der, and sallow and dry;
His form was bent and his gait was slow,
His long, thin hair was as white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye;
And he sang every night as he went to bed,
"Let us be happy down here below;"
The living should live, though the dead be dead,"

Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago. He taught his scholars the rule of three,
Writing, and reading, and history, too;
He took the little ones upon his knee,
For a kind old heart in his breast had he,
And the wants of the littlest child he knew;

"Learn while you're young," He often said,
"There is much to enjoy down here below
Lite for the living, and rest for the dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

With the stupidest boys he was bind and good, Speaking only in gentlest tones;
The rod was hardly known in his school—Whipping to him was a barbarous rule,
And too hard work for the old bones;
Besides it was painful, he sometimes said;
"We should make life pleasant down here below."

The living need charity more than the dead, Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago,

He lived in the house by the hawthorn land ith roses and woodbine over the door; With roses and wooddine over the door;
His rooms were quiet, and neat and plain,
But a spirit of comfort there held reign,
And made him forget he was old and poor:
"I need so little," he often said,
"And my friends and relatives here below
"I little that we me when I'm dord" Won't litigate over me when I'm dead,"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

But the pleasantest times that he had, of all, Were the sociable hours he used to pass, With his chair tipped back to a neighbor's Msking an unceremonious call,

Over a pipe and friendly glass.

This was the finest pleasure, he said,
Of the many he tasted here below;
"Who has no cronies better be dead." Said the jelly old pedagogue, long ago. Then the jolly old pedagogue's wrinkled face Melted all over in sunshiny smiles; He stirred his glass with an old school grace, Chuckled and sipped, and prattled apace, Till the house grew merry, from cellar to

"I'm a pretty old man," he gently said;
"I have lingered long while here below;
But my heart is fresh if my youth is fled!" Baid the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

He smoked his pipe in the balmy air,

Every night when the sun went down,

While the soft wind played in his silvery hair,

Leaving its tender kisses there

ess till we are dead aid the jolly old pedagogue, long ago. He sat at the doof one midsummer night,

After the sun had sunk in the west, And the lingering beams of golden light Made his kindly old face look warm and bright, While the odorous night-wind whisper

Gently, gently he bowed his head;
There were angels waiting for him, I know;
He was sure of happiness, living or dead,
This jolly old pedagogue, long ago!

Banks' Babies.

I was detained over Sunday in Barnsbury, and on Sunday morning I resolved to go to church. The first church I came to, a small frame strucfate. A certain amount of suspicion attached to me, but it was only momentary, and I at once cleared myself out adopting foul means, and time was steps whittling a stick, and I said to Magisterial investigation was made, experts were employed, and every endeavor made to penetrate the dark veil of mystery surrounding the event; but all efforts were unsuccessful. One of his Majesty's Ambassador's had completely and mysteriously disappeared, without leaving a clew to light up the awful obscurity which enveloped the tragic occurrence.

Several years had elapsed since the distressing event, and the memory, the endeavor made to penetrate the dark you murdered his Excellency went for cold blood?"

"Not exactly that, friend," he quietly "Sit down, and I'll tell you about it. You know Banks, he came to this town to live a few weeks ago a perfect stranger, and he rented a pew in this church. It seems that Banks had had three little babies, triplets, not more'n two months old, and then, be sides these, he had twins about a year old. So nobody knew about the babies: where they kept him secretly until after the excitement of the disappeardistressing event, and the memory, the painful memory of it, was beginning to fade from my mind, when I happened to be in Antwerp on a short tour through Belgium with patrons. And, while listlessly strolling by myself on the quay one summer's evening, watching the passengers disembarking from the newly-arrived steamer, I was accessed by a mean, haggard-looking little man of beggarly appearance, who tle man of beggarly appearance, who spoke to me in Flemish.

The crowd of persons augmented on walls of the jail not a moment too soon. The crowd of persons, augmented on the road and by many persons from Lapeer, the runfor of Fitch's capture having preceded him by a few minutes, rushed up to the jail door and attempted to follow the prisoner within. But they were baffled and nobody was allowed to enter. Altogether it was a scene, the like of which was never before witnessed in Michigan and for fore witnessed in Michigan, and for the credit of the State, we trust it may never be witnessed again.

Rescued from the Utes.

A dispatch dated Los Pinos, Col., October 24, says: Just arrived from the Indian camp on Plateau creek. The women and children captured at the Milk River agency, at the time of the massacre, are now safe at chief Ouray's house, nine miles below. They stood the journey well and Mrs. Meeker has improved in health every day since we started. We left on the morning of the 22d. The Indians seemed unwilling for us to leave nntil they learned what success Gen. Adams had in stopping the further advance of Merritt's command. Merritt's papers were burned, and what money Mrs. Meeker had was taken from her by Douglass. The intention was to kill the women and children, as the windows of the room in which they first took refuge we e riddled with bullets the instant they had left it for a more secure place in the milk-room. Mr. Meeker thinks Susan, the squaw wife of chief Johnson, sister of Ouray, did more than all others to save their lives. She was as kind to them as a mother. Their parting was very affecting. Jack's band fought the troops, and the Douglass men killed the agent and employes. Agent Meeker was killed by Antelope and Waupottits. Mrs. Meeker was shot at while running from the house, attempting to hide in the sage bush. A ball passed through her dress and made were most complete. Two hundred Arapahoes had joined Jack, and many others from the neighboring tribes, and had it not been for the timely arrival of Chief Ouray's order to cease fighting, the name of Merritt and his comto Indians; no head chief the same as Ouray here; a Ute Indian for interpreter unfriendly to Meeker, and plenty of bad whisky furnished by ranchmen. Maj. Pollock is here doing all in his power to make the ladies comfortable, and looking after the interest of the department in general.

A dispatch dated Denver, Col., October 28, gives these additional particuus of the Rio Grande railroad, says that the women and children, recent captives among the Utes, arrived there at 4 P. M., where they will remain for a few days before proceeding to Denver. They were surrendered to special agent after a parley of five hours, at the camp on a tributary of the Grand river, on the 21st, and on the morning of the 22d started homeward, proceeding through the Indian country, in care of an employe of the Los Pinos agency to Ouray's house and agency, arriving at the latter place on the morning of the 25th. They started immediately homeward, and arrived at Alamosa as above. The captives report that the money and papers, which were represented to be safe, were destroyed or taken by the Utes. Miss Meeker's life was once threatened by Douglass, who placed a gun to her head, but she did not flinch, and told Douglass that she was neither afraid of Indians nor death, and he skulked away. The women agree that they owe their safety to one woman, Susan, wife of Johnson and sister of Ouray, who protected them at all times even going into the council, an unprecedented move for a woman among the Indians, and raising her voice for the release of the prisoners. A dispatch dated Rawlins, Wy., October 29, says: James Drais, Gen. Merritt's chief of scouts, came into Rawlins this morning with dispatches and mail. He reports numerous fresh Indian trails crossing the road in the vicinity of Williams fork and Mow rariver, about eight miles north of Snake river. At the crossing of Cottonwood creek, on the Muddy, he saw three Indians. He and Eugene Taylor, one of Merritt's scouts, fired upon them and they retired up the creek. Drais came on into Rawlins, warning the escort with the body of Lieut. Weir, which was a short distance ahead of him, and also a number of ranchmen on their way to Snake river. Inspector Pollock telegraphs to the commissioner of Indian affairs from Los Pinos: Ouray says the five lodges of the Muache band of the Utes, who had been living on the Dry Cimaroon, started about thirty days ago for the southern Ute agency, and were last seen near Laveto station, on the Rio Grande railroad. It is feared they have been killed by soldiers. If so the southern Utes will seek revenge. Will start for that agency at noon.

It is ascertained at the interior department that the subsistence of the Hualapai, Arizona, Indians, whom Gen. McDowell reports to be starving, was provided for by the Indian bureau several months ago by means of an official letter authorizing the war department to issue rations of beef and flour to those Indians, and to present accounts for payment by the Indian bureau. The term for which this authorization was given will not expire until the 10th of December, but Commissioner Hoyt vesterday extended the time for 60 days from that date. Before the expiration of this period congress will have an opportunity to make an appropriation for the Hualapais. They are PECTORAL. chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitts, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of Ayen's Cherny Pectoral are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

The first dispatches were confirmed by later ones, and by noon the sad news had spread all over the city and was the principal topic of conversation everywhere. Flags were displayed at half-mast on the City Hall and over business blocks generally; the bell in the City Hall was tolled; the dailies issued extras, and unusual excitement and indications of grief were apparent every where. The dispatch was a simple announcement that Senator Chandler had been tound dead in bed in the Grand Pacific Fiotel at Chicago. This was telegraphed by been tound dead in bed in the Grand Facility Hotel at Chicago. This was telegraphed by John B, Drake of the Grand Pacific to Ex-Governor Bagley about 9 o'clock, and the painful duty of breaking the sad news to Mrs. Chandler, then at the family residence, was delegated to Mr. Allen Shelden, who has been delegated to Mr. Allen Shelden, who has been Mr. Chandler's business partner for years, Ex-Governor Baldwin, who was his former business partner, and Mr. W. should be called at 7 in the morning to take the train for Detroit. To Mr. Spalding he said, as that gentleman withdrew, "I am glad it's over, too. After I have delivered my speech in Detroit Monday night, I shall be through. We have had a pleasant trip together and met a great many pleasant and prominent gentlemen and I hope before long we shall see each other again. Good-bye." These were the last words he ever spoke.

When called at 7 in the morning, there was no response, and when an entrance was effected through the transom, he was found with his feet on the floor and his body lying across the bed, as though he had fallen backward while sitting on the edge of the bed and expired instantly. There was no evidence of any strug-gle, and death had evidently been painless. The case was wrapped in the American flag, and on its being placed in the car, the lid was epened and the face of the dead Senator exposed. At several cities along the line the train stopped and crowds of people came aboard to take a last look at the dead Senator. The train, heavily draped, arrived at the De-troit depot soon after 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and was there met by an immense concaurse of people. The military organiza-tions formed in two lines extending from the platform to the Third street exit of the depot and through this line passed the pall and escort, while the vast throng stood in silence and with uncovered heads. The Late Senator Chandler.

Zachariah Chandler was born in Bedford, N. H., December 10, 1813. His education was limited to that of the common schools and an academy in his native State. In 1833 he removed to Detroit and shortly afterwards angaged in the dry goods business. He was elected Mayor of Detroit in 1851, and in 1852 was the nominee of the Whig party for Governor of Michigan. He. made an active canvass, and ran far ahead of his ticket, but the Democratic party was then in the ascendancy in the State. In 1857, the Republican party having come into power in Michigan, Mr. Chandler was elected to the United States Senate to succeed Lewis Cass, and took his seat March 4, 1857. He at once took prominent and radical ground in hostility to the encroachments of slavery. He made speeches in opposition to the admission of Kan-sas under the Lecompton constitution, in opposition to the annexation of Cuba and other measures which were strong ly urged in the interest of the South

As a member of the committee on commerce, he actively promoted measures for the improvement of the commerce of the lakes, chief of which was the appropriation for the construction of a ship canal through the St. Clair flats. He was re-elected in 1863 and again in 1869, thus serving in the Senate eighteen years. In December, 1861, he moved the appointment of the committee on the conduct of Mr. Chandler was made chairman of the committee on commerce, and held the position until the expiration of his third term, March 3, 1875. He was one of the most earnest supporters of the administration of Lincoln and Grant, possessing the firm friendship and esteem of those men and Mr. Stanton.

Mr. Stanton was appointed to the supreme bench at Mr. Chandler's request on the same day that the request was made. On July 16, 1862, Mr. Chandler delivered in the Senate the greatest speech of his first 18 years of service. It was in relation to the conduct of the war, and his severe criticism of McClellan's career led in the end to the transfer of Gen. Grant to the command of the army of the Potomac. From the time of his entrance into public life, Mr. Chandler was an active and most sagacious politician, and party success was generally assured when his advice was followed. He always advocated a protective tariff for the encouragement of home manufactures. and earnestly advocated, and often secured government aid for river and harbor improvements, was among the first who favored the overthrow of the slave power, the preservation of the and the protection by law of all the rights of the humblest citizens.

He was chairman of the Union congressional committee for four years, was made a member of the national Republican committee in 1876, and was chosen chairman for four years. His care and vigilance did much to secure the election of Mr. Hayes to the Presidency. On the morning after the election he sent the report, "Hayes has 185 votes and is elected," which, though often disputed after a contest of a kind never before known in American politics, proved to be true. October 19, 1875, Mr. Chandler was appointed Secretary of the Interior by President Grant, holding the position until after the inauguration of President Hayes. His administration of affairs showed high ability, surprising his friends and extorting praise from his enemies.

He introduced and carried out a system of regeneration and reform in civil service such as was never before seen in Washington. In less than one week he had dismissed every clerk from one room in the patent office, for dishonesty or immorality, thoroughly examined and sifted other bureaus, especially the Indian office, where bribery and corruption ran riot, and thoroughly renovated the whole department-a series of reforms being adopted which were radical, practical and effectual, requiring an amount of moral courage and executive ability seldom possessed by public officials. For the past few weeks Mr. Chandler had been making speeches in Massachusetts, Ohio, New York, Wisconsin, awakening the enthusiasm of the people everywhere to a surprising degree. His last speech was made at Chicago Friday night.

Mrs. Fremont in Arizona.

Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont has found in Arizona, where General Fremont is now territorial governor, a field for her well known scholarly talents. Certain grown boys and girls, the children of poor parents, and obliged to work for their livelihood, had formed themselves into a class for the reading of history at such times as they could spare from their labors. They were plucky and bright, and so pleased Mrs. Fremont that she gave her Friday evenings to them. On this work she writes to a friend: "It was a great pleasure to me to find that I could add to the knowledge of these young people, that I could make real and human to them names and personages, that I could link together one event and one personality after another until history became not a dry mass of names and dates and isolated events, stream of human effort. I acquired last winter a practical insight into the vast and preading influence of the spoken word on receptive and willing young minds. I have never done any one thing that gave me so much content in the doing and the remembrance." It is suggest ed by an eastern journal that there are many fashionable maids and matrens in New York who feel a desire to let their light shine into the darkness of the ignorance around them, and that here is the way. But it is forgotten that Mrs. Fremont is one woman in ten thousand. Such a work as she carried on, simply enough seemingly, calls not so much for knowledge, which may be said to be almost common as foot barrels of oil. The fall is 2,100 carried on, simply enough seemingly, calls not so much for knowledge, which may be said to be almost common, as
