In swaying robes of gorgeous dyes The grove is decked for sacrifice. Amid the mountain's slumb'rous haze I see the forested maples blaze.

A LUCKY DIE.

What the deuce ails me? Where am I, anyhow? Wherever I am, springs and mattresses must be scarce, for I know I am laid on some mighty hard substance.

These were my first thoughts, very cheering, indeed, as I became conscious. I could neither speak nor move; and I soon learned that I could hear. A door opened, footsteps approached, I felt a cloth removed from my face, and a voice, which I recognized as that of my intended father-in-law, said: "H-h-h-h-h, changed much, and his companion, whose voice I recognized as Sowerby's, the undertaker, said lightly: "There's just where you are mistaken, Mr. Muffins! he looks a cussel sight better dead than alive, but how does Priscilla feel about it? Take on much, eh?"

"Oh! no, just enough to appear well," said the father of my affianced, with a chuckle. "She never cared much for Smith; 'twas his stamps that she fancied. My Priscilla is a practical girl and went in for his dimes, his carriage and greys, although at the same time I must own that she was spooney on bald-pated Howard, the artist, but he's poor as Job's turkey, as the saying is."

"Well, she can have him now for all this poor cuss, can't she?" said Sowerby, beating a tattoo with his digits on my chest.

"I presume so, but she will wait till the year is up, for fear of gossip, you know."

"But who gets his money, seeing the poor cuss has no relations?" queried the undertaker.

"Oh! that's all right. You see my Priscilla is a sensible girl. Before she promised to marry him she had him make his will in her favor. Poor Smith was rather sappy, you know; had nothing against him, however, although he was decidedly homely, and such a barndoor of a mouth, always open."

"Well," said the cheerful voice of the undertaker, "this mouth is shut tight enough now, I reckon; he'll never open it in this world again. I reckon his immortal part is now with the angels. And my mortal part is also with the angels, thought I—a fine pair of angels! I felt indignant at their clumsy ridicule. I tried to shut my fist, but the devil a shut was to it. I could do nothing but listen. He then began to measure me for my coffin. I had heard that undertaker's whistled joyfully when they got a measure. I believed it to be only a joke on the craft; but Sowerby actually struck up the air "Polly Down the Blinds" in a subdued trilling whistle while he measured me."

"A nobby casket and 100 hecks, eh, Mr. Muffins?—Must make a big thing of it. The cuss left lots of money, and remember he was to be your Priscilla's husband. Must make a splurge, Mr. Muffins," said the worthy undertaker, with an eye to his own pocket.

"Well, I don't mind if the coffin is a little nobby looking; but 100 hecks! The deuce! Just send one or two for the mourners, and the rest who come to attend the funeral can furnish their own rigs or hoof it, whichever suits them."

"They covered my face again and left me to my own reflections. I had often heard remarked that meditation was good for the soul, and this was the best chance I ever had of trying it. An hour must have passed and the door was again opened, and two persons came, whispering along, to where I lay, and the voice of my promised wife fell on my ear.

Confidence Between Husband and Wife.

If you ever read a novel or a serial in which the domestic incidents occurring in the life of the hero or heroine were detailed, you were sooner or later told that domestic happiness had its foundation in perfect confidence between man and wife. I don't believe it, and I'll tell you why.

I know the Knight family like a book as the saying goes, and I know they are unhappy, and that most of their unhappiness comes from the perfect confidence between them. They started out on their nuptial life with the firm determination to keep no secrets from each other. They hadn't been married a week when the bride said:

"Richard, I must have no secrets from you, must I?" "No, darling," he replied.

"Well, then, Richard, Anna Cobb told me today that she'd ever jumped into the well before she'd ever married a man with feet as big as yours. She told me not to tell, but we must have perfect confidence in each other, you know."

He was nettled, of course, and he said something about big ears and a Roman nose, and their first quarrel was a hot one. The affair did not shake their confidence, however. Richard came home one night and moodily remarked:

"Some one seems to want to see us divorced, but they can't turn me against you, no they can't."

"Why, who's been saying anything?" she asked.

"The old man Gable has. He stopped me on the street today, and wanted to know how on earth I came to marry such a woman as you. He said you were thirty-eight years old, half-blind, ugly tempered, and a confirmed gossip. I knocked him down, of course, and I shouldn't have told you anything about it but for our agreement to have every confidence in each other."

"Who's thirty-eight years old?" she screamed, as she made a grab at his hat.

"Who's half-blind? Who's ugly tempered?" she shrieked, as she clinched one of his mutton chop whiskers.

"They didn't sleep much that night. He sat down and looked at the Dictionary until three o'clock in the morning, and she laid on the sofa and cried until her nose was as red as a beet. Such of us do not believe in the 'perfect confidence' theory would not have mentioned a word about meeting Gable, and the tea would have been splendid, the evening agreeable and our sleep gentle and sound."

The troubles of the Knights had just been smoothed away, and people were remarking on their perfect happiness, when old Mrs. Ryder dropped in there to make that evening with Knight came home that evening with a bad headache, and he was in a bad humor because business had dragged during the day. His wife took his hat, gave him a sweet kiss, and as she poured out the tea, she said:

"Richard, do you think our parlor carpet has anything to do with your headache?" "What a foolish question!" he answered. "What put such a foolish idea into your head?"

"I wouldn't tell any one else, of course," she continued, "but I can keep anything from you, you know. Well, Mrs. Ryder called on me this afternoon. She thinks we have a beautiful place here."

"Does, eh?" he replied, smiling a little.

"Yes; and she gave you a high compliment on setting the sitting room stove in such a picturesque position; she said you must be a natural artist."

"Quite a nice person, isn't she?" he remarked, his bad humor giving way considerably.

The Burton Murder.

As noted in our news summary, one of these burly warriors which seem to be unusually prevalent in Michigan this year, occurred in Burton, Genesee county, on the morning of the 27th ult. A township drain running through Wm. Withiam's farm had been ordered cleared out by the proper authorities, and had been duly advertised by the Township Drain Commissioner, Henry Franklin. The contract was awarded to George Rinehart, who in company with William Copeland, both of Flint, went to work upon the ditch contrary to Withiam's wishes. What happened is thus described by Copeland, the only eye-witness in his testimony before the coroner.

We got to Withiam's about half past seven in the morning. We had two shovels, two spades and one pick; we started where we had left off between two or three weeks ago, and went to work to dig out the ditch; we had worked for an hour and a half or two hours digging the ditch when Withiam came there; I should think he was six or seven rods from us then; says I, "George, here he is;" he had a gun and a revolver in his hand; Withiam said, "Men, what are you doing here?"

We both made answer that we were putting the ditch through; he said, "I want you to get right off from here; George says, 'Old man, ain't you speaking a little too fast?' speaking too fast," he says, "I want you to get off;" George says, "hold on, I think you are speaking a little too fast; this thing was tried before;" at the same time George went a little toward him up on the bank of the ditch; Withiam had the gun to his shoulder; he said, "If you come any nearer I'll fire;" with that George lifted one foot and he fired; Rinehart said, "My God, Bill, I'm dead," putting his hands to his stomach; he turned around, walked four or five paces, and fell into the ditch; that is all he said; Withiam told me to leave before George fell; he said, "You get out as quick as you can, or I'll give you the same;" I had my shovel in my right hand; I picked up my spade and he said the second time, "You get out as quick as you can, or I'll let you have it;" when I was about eight rods from him, he said a third time, "that he'd let me have it if I didn't get off 'lively;" George never spoke again after I spoke except as I have stated.

Officers were at once notified and Withiam was lodged in the county jail where he now lies awaiting trial. He is 65 years of age, and has a wife and three grown up children. He is described as a man of most violent temper and on bad terms with all his neighbors. His version of the affair as given in the Waterloo Citizen is as follows: He says he had, or supposed he had, himself made the contract with Commissioner Franklin to do the work on the drain, and was only waiting for Franklin to furnish him the proper form for a bond which he was to give before commencing work. Learning that somebody else was about to begin the clearing out, and having heard several times that they had said they would fix him if he came near them, he had decided to commence work himself on Monday morning, and had started out with his tools for that purpose when he first discovered the men at work. Remembering the threats he had heard, and fearing personal violence, he left his tools and took his gun, etc., to go down and see who they were and what they were doing. Withiam asserts that as he approached and spoke to the men, Rinehart raised his shovel as if to strike, and came toward him, and he (Withiam) ordered him to stop or he would fire, which threat was not heeded and he did fire.

The Proper Diet for Children.

Here is another disease of the cornea. This baby is twenty months old. There is a white spot over the center of this little girl's pupil. It is soft-looking, and I therefore know that it is recent. The child has nasal catarrh. It was weaned when six months old, and it is just cutting its eye teeth. The mother says it is being fed with whatever there is upon the table; that it receives a little tea and coffee, and that it is allowed to suck pieces of meat, all of which is wrong. Do not allow it to have any patients, gentlemen. If the good Lord has willed us to eat meat at the age of twenty months, he would have given us a full set of teeth ready for use at that time.

Dr. Learning, of this city, whom you should all know, has for some years had charge of an asylum in which large numbers of children are received and cared for, and he does not allow one of them to have anything except milk, and substances which can be dissolved in milk, until they are seven years of age. I think your professor of materia medica is equally emphatic upon this question, and now your professor of ophthalmology comes to you and beseeches of you to use all possible influence in the direction of having children reared upon milk alone. Not upon tea, not upon coffee, not upon meat, not upon sweet cake and puddings, but upon milk.

Every physician will, under rare circumstances, prescribe beef juice for infants, very much as brandy is prescribed upon rare occasions for small children, and I shall not quarrel with them upon that point. But I have a decided opinion that, under ordinary circumstances, no child should have anything except milk and farinaceous food until it has been provided with teeth with which to prepare other articles of diet for the stomach. Follow nature in your practices in ophthalmic as well as in every other kind of disease. I will engage, if this month, who is anxious for her child, will listen to what I say about feeding it hereafter with milk, barley, farina, corn starch, hominy, with perhaps a small quantity of sugar, that the teaching will be easier, the bowels will be more regular, and disease of the cornea

The Right Way Upward.

Years ago—in the autumn of 1841—two strangers met in what was then a farming suburb of New York it must have been very near what is now the corner of Eighth Avenue and Twenty-ninth street. One was a young man from the country, with his spare wardrobe in a bundle under his arm; and the other a merchant of the city. The country-lad, observing that the gentleman was kind-looking, ventured to address him.

"Can you tell me, sir," he said, "where I can find work?" The gentleman asked him what kind of work he was looking for.

"As to that, sir," answered the youth, cheerily, "I am not particular, so long as it is honest. I left home hoping that I might get an opportunity to each school; but I find little encouragement in that direction. But I must earn a living somehow. I am strong and I am not afraid of work. I can take care of horses, or I can wheel a cart."

"And you think you know enough to keep school?" "I hope so, sir."

"But, failing that, you are willing to work at any honest calling?" "Yes, sir."

The gentleman reflected a few moments, and then handed to the youth a card, saying: "To-morrow morning, at the store there designated. If you do not find work before, you may find it there."

On the following morning the young man was at the store—a large wholesale house on Fulton street—and there met his friend of the previous day. He was engaged as a porter, and he set about his work readily and cheerfully, and proved himself attentive, punctual and faithful. And he remained in that same house, working his way upward; and to-day he is one of the wealthiest in material things, and wealthy in honor and trust. His name is known far and wide, and is a bond of itself; and he is a power for good in the land.

And the place which he now occupies is open to every youth in the land who has the wish and the will to climb the ladder.

Levities and Brevities.

For victims.—A photographer announces that, besides other accessories, he has a "new front-gate, just the thing for a lover's picture."

A lad in one of our schools being asked, "What is Rhode Island celebrated for?" replied, "It is the only one of the New England States which is the smallest."

Physician to Government clerk: "Well, what do you complain of?" G. C.: "Sleeplessness, doctor." Physician: "At what time do you go to bed?" G. C.: "Oh, I don't mean at night, but during office hours!"

"Maama, I don't think the people who make dolls are very pious people," said a little girl to her mother the other day. "Why not, my child?" "Because you can never make them kneel. I always have to lay my doll on her stomach to say her prayers."

And how does Charley like going to school? "Kindly inquired a good man of a little six-year-old boy, who was waiting with a tin can in his hand. "He goes well enough," replied the embryo statesman ingeniously, "but I don't like stayin' in a gig there."

A smart boy took it into his head to change the name of his dog to Infallibility. The first time his mother heard him call the animal she exclaimed, "Why, Jack, what do you mean by giving the poor beast such a name as that?" "Oh, returned the boy, "isn't infallibility a dog's name?"

A friend, visiting in a clergyman's family where the parents were very strict with regard to children's Sabbath department, was confidentially informed by one of the little girls that she would like to be a clergyman. "Why?" inquired the visitor. "Because then I could holler on Sunday."

They were courting. "What makes the stars so dim to-night?" she said softly. "Your eyes are so much brightened," he whispered, pressing her little hand. They are married now. "I wonder how many telegraph poles it would take to reach from here to the stars," she said musingly. "One, if it was long enough," he growled. "Why don't you talk common sense?"

THE FARM.

THE PROSPECT.

The frosts have at last come and the unbusiness of the wheat fly and the excessive growth of wheat, which was felt in some localities, is at an end. A gentleman who has travelled extensively through the southern counties of the State and conversed with farmers during the past two weeks, assures us that the damage from either cause is not great and that the prospect for the next wheat harvest is as good as ordinarily is at this season of the year. This is cheering news, so far as it goes, and we are inclined to believe it true of other sections of the State. With a good average crop of wheat in 1880, Michigan farmers can count themselves exceptionally fortunate. The last two crops have been unexpectedly good and present prices are certain to remunerate with no likelihood of their becoming less so.

The general revival in business, so long and anxiously awaited, is certainly here. The rapid advance in the price of lumber and salt must bring millions of dollars into Michigan, soon to find its way into the hands of manufacturers, mechanics and day laborers, and through them into the hands of the farmers in return for their products. The iron market which is our best business barometer, has not shown such buoyancy for years. All the foundries, furnaces, rolling and nail and other iron mills are in full blast, working with an increased force, and day and night, and are still far behind their orders. The sudden change from lethargy to activity among the iron manufacturers, is most remarkable, and such has been the advance in prices and the great demand for the product, that England which for several years has been driven out of our markets is again a competitor. The copper mines are also showing greater activity than for years and are attracting labor and capital to the Upper Peninsula and creating there an improved home market for the farmer.

It is, of course, a matter of conjecture what the future market of farm products will be, a question which people are apt to answer with positive prophecies. The student of the market, still it needs to be prophesied to see that with the increase of trade and manufactures, agriculture must prosper with the rest. Clear headed dealers who have been in the markets all their lives and made them a constant study, give it as their opinion that the price of wheat will continue to gradually advance, and that we need not expect any falling off until after another harvest. Corn also feels the effect of the European demand, and the advance in price is almost as marked as that upon wheat, and this in turn affects the price of pork and lard, both of which have materially advanced. Butter and cheese have also advanced within a short time, the former from six to eight cents per pound, the latter from nearly 75 cents per cwt. Beef and mutton are a ready sale and though the prices are still low, a steady and permanent advance is quite probable. Everything produced upon the farm is now salable at some price and in nearly every instance at a more remunerative price, all things considered, than at any time since the panic.

Among the other enterprises which must affect favorably the prosperity of Michigan in the immediate future should be mentioned the certain building of the Marquette and Mackinac (Hallroad) and the extension of the Grand Rapids and Indiana and the Jackson, Lansing and Saginaw roads northward to the Straits. Northern Michigan is fast filling up with a good class of settlers, and the next five years will witness a wonderful transformation from what but a few years since was literally a howling wilderness. The coming summer will witness a rapid increase in the tide of immigration already setting in that direction. If ever the farmer and settler felt as though he could safely go on caring land and making improvements, trusting to a prosperous future to bring him out even, now is the time. He should learn by experience, however, and not make drafts on the future money grower planter, to indulge again in the needless extravagance of which the hard times deprived him and from which they ought to have warded him. Let him hasten slowly. The prospect is bright but let no one be dazzled by it.

The Wool Interest.

The census of 1870 reported twenty-four woolen factories in this country, that spun yarn and 9,528,260 yards of woolen cloth woven in families, valued at $4,413,000. In 1880 there were 1,820 woolen establishments that employed 45,000 persons, and annually produced goods of various textures valued at $43,000,000. In 1880 the woolen establishments had increased to 2,020, employing 46,000 males and females, and producing goods to the value of $67,300,000 annually. Owing to the great demand of woolen goods in the Rebellion, the woolen manufactures in the United States increased nearly one-half in ten years, and the census of 1870 counted 97,000 persons as employed in the woolen manufactures, who annually produced goods to the value of $177,000,000. With the increase of population the demand for woolen fabrics continues about the same, and there are at the present time about the same number of mills doing about the same amount of business as in 1872—just before the financial panic commenced. But with all the natural facilities for the raising of a good quality of the manufacture of woolen goods in this country is far ahead of the supply.

will be less liable to occur.—Dr. D. R. St. John Ross, in New York Medical Record.

But with all the natural facilities for the raising of a good quality of the manufacture of woolen goods in this country is far ahead of the supply.

In the past forty-six years, or since 1833, the United States have imported wool, either manufactured or unmanufactured, to the value of $1,210,000,000. For the past four years this country has imported wool and woolen goods to the value (in the aggregate) of $170,000,000, while the export is but a trifle. In 1873 the total duties paid on wool and woolen textiles amounted to $30,214,126, and, with the exception of four years prior to 1848, was a larger revenue than ever produced in any one year in this country, or within $9,000,000 of what was expended in the eight years of Washington's Administration.

Commenting on the above from the Troy Times, the Driver's Journal says: From this exhibit it seems that we have never had but 92,000 persons, at one time, engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods. We ought this day to have 300,000 persons, men, women, boys and girls engaged in this industry. The genius of our countrymen has already greatly lightened the onerous labor, once necessary to perform this work; and a little more healthy competition in the manufacturing of these goods, would not only greatly stimulate manufacturers to turn them out more rapidly, but insure a constant improvement in all woolen goods.

The best interests of the entire nation call for a rapid increase of good sheep, and a speedy multiplication of our wool crop. Millions are drained out of this country every year for wool and woolen goods. For half a century the people of this great agricultural country, inexhaustible in its natural resources, have paid other nations more than $25,000,000 annually, for wool and woolen goods. Western grain and provision producers have paid millions for freight and charges on food sent to Europe, and on woolen goods brought hither, all of which might have been saved by manufacturing these goods at home. The advantages of such industries in our midst are so obvious that the facts need only to be stated to be appreciated and approved.

During the early years of the Republic, the increase of sheep, and the aggregation of the woolen interests of the nation, though gradual, were continuous; but for the last decade only a slight progress has been made. The people seem to be content to pay into the Treasury of the United States more than $20,000,000 annually, as duties on foreign woolsens!

A Potato Experiment.

Last fall we plowed up an acre of rather poor gravelly land, that had been in grass for ten years; in the spring four cords of well composted barnyard manure was spread on and plowed in; then the field was harrowed, and furrowed three feet apart. Then we selected medium sized potatoes of the "Proflite" variety, scooped out all the eyes but one, and planted one foot apart in the furrows; manured in the hills with hen-manure, one handful well mixed with the soil to each hill. The hen manure was scraped from under the roosts in the poultry house during the winter, mixed with three times its bulk of dry road dust, and stored in boxes and barrels under cover until wanted; as nearly as we could estimate, we used ten barrels of this mixture on the field. The potatoes were thoroughly hoed three times, and the bugs kept under by hand picking and Paris green. We harvested 200 bushels by actual measurement; all were marketable except eight bushels which were too small. The potatoes were large, remarkably even in size, and but very few scabby ones. The following is the debit and credit account.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Includes: To plowing, 1 00; Harrowing, 1 00; Seed, 10 00; Planting, 1 00; Hoisting, 1 00; Total, 5 00. By 200 bushels, at 50 cents, 100 00. Net profit, 95 00.

Interest, taxes, and the cost of "bugging" were not reckoned in the cost of the crop; as the manure left in the ground, and the eight bushels of small potatoes were sold from the field, so there was no cost for marketing.

We consider this crop a pretty fair showing for the "barren hills of New England," and if it proves anything it proves that poultry manure properly applied to the soil, is fully as valuable as any of the commercial fertilizers.—Cor. Prairie Farmer.

Cattle and Population.

According to the census reports the cattle increase was from 76 to each 1,000 inhabitants in 1850 to 84 in 1860. This was in cattle on farms. In 1870 the cattle of the country was only 75 per 1,000 inhabitants. This decrease in numbers gives an indication of the weight of cattle kept, improvements in breeding, better care and early maturity. This has come along through breeding to improved stock and principally by means of Shorthorn blood. Later the Herefords have exercised a considerable influence, and it would seem that this is to be an important one, especially so for far-west herds, and on those of the Southwest and of Texas. So far, the great herds of Texas have not been much influenced by improved blood. The prevalence of Spanish fever, among improved stock taken there, has operated against introduction of the native cattle there. The next census will be looked forward to with increasing interest, as showing just where the increase in live stock of every kind has been strong. Since the census of 1870 the population of the United States has increased about twenty-five per cent. The increase in animals has been about twenty per cent, but the increase in the weight of animals intended for the butcher, in the last ten years, will show, we think, that the increase in the weight of animals slaughtered has fully kept pace with the increase of population, even how could the United States have exported such increasing quantities of beef and pork to foreign nations, besides supplying the increasing quantity needed from year to year at home?

He came back to his mother, looking very forlorn, with a big red swelling under his left eye, and four or five handfuls of torn shirt boiling over his breeches band. "Why, where have you been?" she asked. "Me and Johnny's been playin'." He played he was a pirate, and I played I was a Duke, and he put on airs, and I got mad, and—" Yes, yes," interrupted his mother, her eyes flashing, "and you did not flunk?" "No mother, but the pirate licked."

Legal Printing.—Persons having legal advertising to do, should remember that it is not necessary that it should be published at the county seat—any paper published in the county will answer. In all matters transpiring in this vicinity, the interest of the advertisers will be better served, by having the notices published in their home paper, than to take them to a paper that is not as generally read in their vicinity, besides it is the duty of every one to support home institutions as much as possible.

Our Jackson Letter.

JACKSON, Nov. 13, 1879.

THE POOR—WHAT THEY COST JACKSON COUNTY.

"The poor ye have always with you" is significantly as true to-day as when the Great Teacher spoke to men; and no matter how good times we may experience, there will always be the poor in our midst. The wise decrees of Providence are past finding out. Jackson county has, with other counties, her share of these depending creatures; and during the year ending Sept. 30th, 1879, one hundred and seven persons have been supported at the county poor house.

The number of deaths are seven, and births two. The whole amount paid out for the support of the poor, in Jackson county, during the year, is thirteen thousand and four dollars and eighty-eight cents ($13,048.88). We have eleven insane paupers at the Michigan Insane Asylum, at Kalamazoo, chargeable to the county. The products of the county farm, for the past year, is estimated at two thousand and seventy-five dollars ($2,075). And how very many families, who have received assistance from kind neighbors and friends, that are not included in this list; and this class are the ones that our Divine Teacher especially speaks of the suffering ones, who would rather want than apply to our counties—the (honest poor.) Thanks to the spirits of the Young Men's Christian Association, who have resolved that all our deserving poor shall be provided with a Thanksgiving dinner.

While writing of the poor, I must mention a very laudable charity, started in our city, viz: The Home of the Friendless, under the special care of our ladies. The work accomplished by this institution is large, and the band of workers are unceasing in their labor for the common good.

A DISTINGUISHED DIVINE.
The first visit of the new Bishop of Michigan, the Right Rev. Bishop Harris, D. D., was an occasion of much pleasure to the members of St. Paul's Church, recently, and large congregations greeted him at both the morning and evening services. Bishop Harris is a gentleman of splendid physique. His views have breadth, his methods are progressive, and being evidently possessed of great resource and energy, and a most entertaining speaker, he will be a great strength to this diocese.

JOINTINGS.
The season of socials have fully commenced, and those who have the time and the will can certainly improve the long evenings. Apart from the large amount of entertainments at present before our pleasure seeking community, the church socials are conspicuous. Our Episcopal friends held fortnightly social parties at the residences of different members, and are being very largely attended. The last of these was held at the residence of our worthy Mayor, J. Mabley, and was a most enjoyable occasion.

Our Red Ribbon workers also give social entertainments, which are well attended; and their endeavors to attract young men to spend their evenings in their hall, and throw around the influence of sobriety, will no doubt produce much good.

MICHAEL J. FANNING.
This earnest Catholic temperance worker delivered one of his ablest efforts before the Reform Club last Sunday, to a interesting audience. The speaker is evidently deeply alive to the great work before him, and had he the support of his own people more largely, mighty results would certainly follow. We learn from the secretary of our Reform Club here, that since its organization, in December, 1876, some 4,643 men, over the age of 18 years, have signed the pledge, and 1,148 ladies and girls, making a grand total of 5,791 in this city. The club are putting forth an effort to place themselves on a firm basis, and our citizens who love sobriety and reform will no doubt come to their aid.

POST-OFFICE NEWS.
The following report will show the amount of business done here in one week, commencing Nov. 1st to Nov. 8th: Total number of letters and postal cards received, 14,312. New papers and magazines, 7,313. Transient matter, 3,223. Grand total, 24,948.

WEATHER REPORT.
Again we are having Indian summer, and if it continues we may expect to hear the sweet singers again. M. N.

THE SUN FOR 1880.
The SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1st until December 31st it will be conducted as a newspaper written in the English language, and printed for the whole people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligent shade—the shade that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is the law controlling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good, and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is influenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save those which may be had by any purchaser with two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discomfit the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, and the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November, the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration entrenched at Washington. The SUN did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. THE SUN will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the DAILY SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, in price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effective alternative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Fustulae, Blisters, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Headaches, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and cultivates the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

OUR TELEPHONE.

"Blow your horn, oh! Gabriel." SEE our Jackson letter. CORN huskers are still busy. Mud is the order of the day. THE lecture season is at hand. THE saur-kraut plant has been gathered. A MILD winter is predicted by the wise heads of this country. OUR population is increasing every day both in adults and new arrivals. THE annoying stove-pipe now tries the patience of the house-keeper. BRING along your sale bills. We will do you a good job at low prices. Do not impair your health by going with too thin clothing this cool weather. SPELLING bees among the schools and husking bees among the farmers will soon be in order. SOON, very soon, it will be too cold for the young people to hang on the front gates. Too bad. THE matrimonial fever has somewhat subsided. There is plenty of young men yet single, however. NOW is the time for tramps to make themselves bountiful. Keep your eye on them and save trouble. IT is authoritatively stated that more real estate has changed hands this season than in any former season. OUR dancing school commenced its term at Tuttle's Hall on last Friday evening, with twenty-five pupils. THURSDAY, the 27th instant, will be Thanksgiving; we call it "turkey day." Will the editor have one? AUTUMN leaves decorate the walls of numerous parlors, being torned into a great many beautiful designs. THE dry and warm weather of the past month has ripened the corn and given the farmers a good chance for husking. FARMERS are hauling into market some fine potatoes, some excellent corn, and some good-wood. The corn cannot be beat in the West. LAST Monday night we had a heavy rain, and towards morning a rain storm, accompanied with thunder and lightning. Rather rare at this time of the year. IT strikes us rather forcibly that we have had all the "dust," necessary to do our business with this coming winter. However, we may be mistaken. IF the back-bone of summer is not broken at last, at last at least received a formidable rench, which has weakened its spinal column badly. THE new brick building of S. C. Laird and F. D. Cummings is getting along very rapid. The walls are nearly up and the carpenters will soon be to work. AN exchange calls on young men who don't like to work to cheer up. Twelve of them in one little town have lately succeeded in marrying school mistresses. WE had about six inches of snow in this vicinity on Wednesday of last week. Some of our citizens took the advantage of it, by giving their families the first sleigh ride of the season. THERE is an answer ready somewhere to every question—the great law of give and take runs through all nature, and if we see a hook we may be sure than an eye is waiting for it. THE maddest kind of a woman is one who spends a half hour in arranging her toilet before descending to the parlor on the arrival of a visitor, who proves to be only a book agent. IT would be well enough for our people to examine their chimneys, and see that the accumulated soot is cleaned out. The season for fires is at hand, and citizens cannot be too careful. A DEMOCRATIC editor, of Ann Arbor, recently printed an article two columns in length on "The Best Breed of Hogs." A contemporary took him to task for devoting so much space to his family affairs. IT must be fun to take a girl home in her father's carriage twenty-five miles and walk home the next day, or pay one dollar for a ride on the cars, as it happened lately to one of our village young men. Ha! ha! THE Dexter band express their thanks to the Chelsea band, thusly: To Misses Tuttle and Ostoby; also, to Mort. Freer, for assistance at their concert, that was held on Wednesday evening of last week. WE are informed that the building lately occupied by McKone & Heatley, has been rented to a Detroit firm, who will fill up in a few days with a general store—such as dry goods, groceries, etc. We wish the strangers success. THE wild geese are greatly puzzled this season. Part of the time they are flying south, and the balance of the time are wending their way northward. They don't relish such weather, for they are at a loss to know how to take it. OUR friend Charles Steinbach, of this village, showed us another of those "preliminary" harnesses that was ordered by him to be made in Chelsea. It is a beauty, and Charlie is getting his fame spread far and wide for getting up the best, neatest and cheapest harness in the country. A FIRE broke out at the residence of D. H. Fuller, in this village, on last Monday, about six o'clock in the evening. It caught on top of the kitchen roof near the chimney. It was speedily put out, and done very little damage. Citizens ought to look out for their chimneys, and see to keep them clean. Delays are dangerous.

FASHIONABLE belts for ladies are made of alligator skins. They match nicely with snake bracelets and bugs for bonnets.

A BEAUTIFUL sight presented its appearance to the eye, in this village, on last Sunday, about seven o'clock in the morning; it was a double rainbow. The sight was grand, and very rarely seen at this time of the year, especially in November. A STRONG, of this village, has shipped over 40,000 dozen eggs this season, and has, also, shipped 10 barrels per day of dressed chickens, for the past week. You may all talk; but there is no other town of its size in the State that can beat Chelsea for business. A GENTLEMAN who has been spending several days in this village, viewing the sights, expresses his surprise at the great amount of enterprise and business which he finds here. He says, truthfully, that some of our stores would do credit to much larger places. THE Chelsea and Dexter bands gave a concert at Dexter on Wednesday evening of last week. Owing to the bad weather on that evening the attendance was small. The concert was a good one. Both Chelsea and Dexter rendered their parts well to the satisfaction of all present. WE are glad to note that our farmers are commencing to pay much attention to the cultivation of fruit. There is no reason in the world why Washtenaw county should not become one of the very best fruit growing sections in the State, if a proper interest is taken in the matter, and good judgment used in the selection of the varieties. WE must regard every matter as an intrusion secret which we believe the person concerned would wish to have considered as such. Nay, further still, we must consider all circumstances as secrets intrusted to which would bring scandal on another if told, and which is not our certain duty to discuss, and that in our own persons and to his face. JUST our luck. Here are $12,000,000 left in Holland for the Smith family in America, and we might have married a Smith girl once. We really intended to, but none of our folks would consent, and the girl would not consent, and as they seemed to have private sources of information on the subject they outgeneraled us, and there is another fortune gone. TOO much novel reading upset a Chelsea young man's mental equilibrium so badly, one day last week, that he ran away from his own home in the night, imagining that Indians had attacked the house. Young man, take heed; for behind the yellow cover lurked an enemy to steal away your brains and morals. Touch not the yellow covered "blood and thunder" stories, for at the last they blith like a bull pup and stings like the wrong end of a hornet. "Tis sweet to be remembered." An exchange in a neighboring town contains an account of a sad affair. It says a certain man in that town who has never advertised, was found dead under his counter, where he had been lying for two days. He was accidentally discovered by a small boy, who went in to get a nickel changed. As he had never advertised people had forgotten where his store was, and hence nobody happened to discover the corpse until decomposition set in. MICHIGAN Central Railroad Notice. TO OUR PATRONS: In view of the pressing demand for cars, it becomes necessary to take such steps as will insure the prompt unloading of the same. On and after this date all cars must be unloaded within twenty-four (24) hours after arrival, or to subject to a charge of three ($3) dollars per day, or part thereof, for each car after that time until unloaded. This must be rigidly enforced. Chicago, Nov. 6th, 1879. J. A. GRIER, Gen'l Freight Ag't, Michigan Central Railroad Co.

MEDICAL.

CATARH! ELY'S CREAM BALM A Decided Cure. A Local Remedy. HARMLESS, EFFECTUAL, SIMPLE. Application easy and agreeable. The effect is truly magical, giving instant relief, and as a curative, is in advance of anything now before the public. The disagreeable operation of forcing a quart of liquid through the nose, and the use of snuffs that only excite and give temporary relief, are already being discarded and condemned. CREAM BALM has the property of reducing local irritation. Sores in the nasal passage are healed up in a few days. Headache, the effect of Catarrh is dissipated in an almost magical manner. Expectoration is made easy. Sense of taste and smell is more or less restored. Bad taste in the mouth and unpleasant breath, where it results from Catarrh, is overcome. The nasal passages, which have been closed up for years, are made free. Great and beneficial results are realized in a few applications of the Balm, but a thorough use of it, in every instance, will be attended with most happy results, and generally a decided cure. Fifty cents will buy a bottle, and if satisfaction is not given, on application the proprietors will cheerfully refund the money. Trial size, 10c. Ask your druggist for it ELY BROS., Owego, N. Y., Proprietors. For sale here by W. R. Reed & Co. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 2, 1878. Messrs. ELY BROTHERS.—I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of your Cream Balm as a specific in the case of my sister, who has been seriously debilitated with Catarrh for eight years, having tried ineffectually, Sanford's Remedy, and several speciality doctors in Boston. She improved at once under the use of your diaphanous, and has regained her health and hearing, which had been considered irremediable. 8-25 ly ROBERT W. MERRILL.
