

The little ship, the phantom ship,
More fleet of foot than air,
Go gliding past through light and shade,
Through gleams and shadows rare,
Or where the moonbeam's silver path
Sheds glory o'er the sea,
Or where the sunbeam's splendor
Bathes the water's face.

The little ship, the phantom ship,
More fleet of foot than air,
Go sailing, sailing past the cliffs,
And past the frothing bay,
Are they from East or from the West?
From Turkey or from Spain?
Or but the shadows of dream-ships
Gliding across my brain?

These phantom ships, the phantom ships,
More fleet of foot than air,
With sailing wings spread far,
Flaunt forth no crimson pennons
In diabolical display;
Down the channel, past the shoal
With no rejoicing cheer,
With no resounding cannon,
Nor fire-flash glancing clear.

These phantom ships are like the hopes
Of days long since rolled by.
O'er dreamland seas they glide along,
Their gray sails mounting high,
O'er the sea's surface they glide along,
O'er the sea's surface they glide along,
And bear your dead away,
Past glittering castles and rampart cliffs,
And little frothing bay!

CAPT. TODD'S HORSE.

BY F. H. ANGIER.

"You see, Dr. Bragg," observed Capt. Todd, "I want a regular clipper-built horse. I don't want stiffness and breadth of beam so much as I want a good, clean run. I want a horse to show off with, ye see."

"Well, sir," said the doctor, patting on the neck a vicious-looking animal which he held by the bridle, "if you want a smart horse, I can't recommend a better animal than this. Just look at his heels. He'll don't you know. As I told you, I've three horses that I want to sell; but if you want a horse that will go, this mare is just the beast for you."

"You see," said the captain confidentially, "I don't know much about horses. I'm a seafaring man. Followed the sea man an' boy, nigh thirty-five years. Now I'm going to settle down on shore, an' I'm looking around for a wife. I don't mind telling you that I'm sorter countin' the Widow Bunn. Now, the widow is mighty fond of a good fast horse, an' there's another fellow, Sam Bliss—perhaps you know him—that's shinin' round the widow too. Sam's got a first-rate horse and takes the widow to ride a good deal. Now if I don't get something better than Sam's got I won't stand any show, for the widow will be sure to ride with the man that's got the fastest horse, don't you see?"

The doctor nodded admiringly. "I see," he said, "I see. Well, I think the mare will suit you. She's a knowing beast. Just see how her ears are laid back listening. If you find her getting lazy, just touch her up with the whip, and she'll climb, I can tell you."

"Well," said the captain, "if she's all you say she is, bring her around to-night, and turn her into my pasture, and to-morrow I'll hitch her up in my new buggy, and give her a trial."

The next afternoon Capt. Todd ran his bright new wagon out of the barn, and throwing a halter over his arm summoned Bill Tyke and proceeded to the pasture, where the doctor had left the mare the previous evening. Bill Tyke was the captain's right hand man. He had sailed with the captain all his life, and now that the former had retired from active duty, Bill had retired with him, and undertaken to learn the art of farming. In appearance he was much like what the immortal Bunsey might have been, and he was not much the inferior of that worthy in tenacity or oracular wisdom.

The captain and his factotum circumnavigated the mare and "bore down" upon the mare persuasively from the windward. But the intelligent animal saw them coming and flattened her ears. The captain was almost within reach when she threw up her head, changed ends and cantered away to the farther end of the field. The captain swore a round oath and divided his forces. Bill Tyke was sent to coast cautiously around the fence while the captain lay "off and on" in the offing. But it was that game the mare understood best. She trotted leisurely around the pasture, keeping tantalizingly out of reach and resisting all the blandishments offered her in the shape of wheedling words and ears of corn.

The captain and Bill Tyke both fell to swearing, and followed the beast around for an hour. At last, with consummate generalship, they succeeded in cornering her, and as she tried to rush between them both sprang at her mane.

The captain was successful, but Bill Tyke failed to secure a satisfactory grip, and was kicked back over heels into a blackberry bush, whence he emerged a few minutes later, and swearing worse than ever. As for the captain he was dragged a hundred yards before he managed to "board" the beast, but at last he found himself on her back, tearing across the pasture and bounding a foot in the air at every jump. The mare made straight for the barn, went over them, and finally came to a halt in the captain's dooryard. The captain slipped off in an exhausted condition, and drove his new purchase into the barn.

The operation of harnessing was one requiring all the seamanship of both the captain and Bill Tyke to successfully performed. The uses of various strops, buckles, and "belaying pins" were the subject of several animated discussions before the harness was finally adjusted. When all was complete, Bill Tyke cruised round the wagon several times, and observed that the "darned thing was all right, anyhow."

"Then," said the captain, "jest put that old boat anchor into the buggy with about three fathoms of stout line, an' you get in behind. Darn ye," he continued, addressing the mare, "I'll ye pay a trick like that again, I'll fix ye."

Bill marched off to the tool house and returned, carrying an iron keelock and a coil of inch manilla rope. To one end of this line he fastened the anchor. The other, by the captain's direction, he tied by a double hitch to the rear axle of the wagon.

"Now," said the captain, "jump in, Bill. I'll make the old vixen hum when we get the wagon in."

To the captain's great delight the widow was at home, and surveyed his new turnout with admiration. The harness she thought, looked somewhat peculiar, but she didn't know much about such things. Of course she would go to ride. How kind of the captain! What a beautiful horse!

As there was a hook inside the plaice, no doubt the flat fish took the bait first, and was afterward swallowed by the cod, who in turn was swallowed by the skate."

Cornering a Corn Doctor.

The meanest man lives in Fond du Lac, and his name is Captain Mangin. A few days ago a poor, unsophisticated corn doctor struck that town and began a business career. He was one of those innocent-minded, unsuspecting corn doctors that stand on a dry-goods box on a street-corner with a lighted torch, and plead for suffering humanity and twenty-five cents. He had no idea there were base, designing men in the world, or he would have entered the ministry and tried lead them to better life. He was a very beautiful young man, and his conversational powers were rare and of a high order. In his audience, one evening, was this Captain Mangin. They were telling about who was all through the war—not commissary department—and got shot full of holes and maimed for life.

The captain told the corn doctor that he had been a great sufferer, and money would be no object if he could get relief from a bunion that was dragging him down to a premature grave. The young man came down off his dry-goods box, remarking that he didn't want anything softer than that bunion, and Captain Mangin pulled off his boot and sock. There is no question but that the man who made artificial feet and legs nowadays have got the thing down to a science. The corn doctor gave the foot a close examination—as close as he thought was necessary—and then turned away like one overwhelmed by some great sorrow, some secret grief which he could not confide to others, but must carry hidden in his own bosom, while he walks up and down the earth till death comes to his relief.—Michigan Sun.

Youthful Vaquerors.

A gentleman who lives on the Stanislaus river, close to its junction with the San Joaquin, told a Mail reporter this morning what he never would have believed had he not known his informant to be entirely trustworthy. He said that near his place are a boy and girl, the former about twelve and the latter fourteen years of age, who frequently jump into the saddle in the morning and ride all day among droves of wild cattle which would surely give them to death should they become unseated. Both carry lariats, and if they see a calf in the drove that has escaped being marked they run on to it, the boy throwing his rope and catching it by the head and the girl by the feet, after which the ears and brislet are duly cut.

This is not all. On the ranch is a large bottom of undergrowth, in which roam hundreds of wild hogs. Of these the boys are perfectly ferocious, and will fight when pressed the least bit. The children, mounted on their well-trained horses and carrying in their hands the lasso which they so skillfully handle, dash headlong after these hogs over all sorts of ground, and down steep banks, catching one out of nearly every drove they scare up. Last summer they caught over thirty in this manner. When the lasso is thrown on the head and feet of the hog and he is stretched out so that he can do no harm, the boy gets down from his horse and ties the hog's feet with pieces of rope carried along for the purpose. His horse stands as firmly without as with a rider, being trained to that work and never having done any other. A wagon is sent for the hog, which is placed in a strong pen and soon tamed so that he can be ridden for market. A few days ago the boy was riding in the undergrowth, when he started up a deer. Putting spurs to his horse he got near enough to the deer to throw his lasso on to his horse, but he did not have time to fasten the other end of the lasso to his saddle before the deer-footed animal was off with rope and all. These children have been riding constantly ever since they were big enough to sit on a horse.—Stockton Mail.

Surgery on a Lion.

A curious occurrence has lately taken place at the London Zoological Gardens. One night one of the lions was observed to be in a state of great tribulation, rolling about, and trying to get something out of his mouth with his paws. Upon examining the animal to see what was the matter, Mr. Bartlett found that a great bone had become fixed in the poor brute's mouth. The difficulty was to remove it, as the lion was in a fearful temper. This was done by getting the lion into a "shifting den," where his face would not be very far from the bars. It was then ascertained that the object in the lion's mouth was the spongy, round bone, as big as a cricket ball, which forms the hip-joint of the horse. The lion had had part of a haunch of horse for dinner, and amusing himself with the bone, first got his upper large canine tooth into the soft part of the bone, and biting on it, the corresponding canine tooth in the lower jaw came through so far into the bone that it almost met with the point of the upper tooth; the jaw thus became fixed. The animal was prevented from taking food or water. Mr. Bartlett, with a great deal of tact and manoeuvring, managed to get this bone out of the lion's mouth, and lucky he did so, as it was found that the projecting part of the bone was pressing hard against the lion's tongue. This is the third clever operation in dentistry that Mr. Bartlett has performed—first removing a big tooth from the hippopotamus; second, operating on the base of the trunk of the big elephant; third, taking a horse's leg bone out of the lion's mouth.—Land and Water.

THE LOST AMBRIL.—"There!" she cried, in an excited voice, "I should like to know what's become of that ambril. I got it up again counter when I came in, and afore I could turn round, it's gone—and it was only a Monday that I got four and six for it!"

What kind of an umbrella was it, ma'am?" asked the polite clerk in his bland tones. "A spick and span new gingham, young man," was the eager response, "with an ivory handle on't, and a—'" "Like the one in your hand, ma'am, for instance?" "Sakes alive!" she exclaimed. And one might have thought she saw a serpent rather than her own "spick and span gingham," with its "ivory handle" clutched fast in her hand. She colored up like a druggist's widow, and went off amidst unintelligible excuses. She never felt so flustered in all her born days, as she told Jemima Ann when she got home.

THE LEMMING.—The Norwegian lemming is an animal about the size of a mouse. They live under stones in the summer, under snow in the winter. They live and bite. About once in ten years they migrate in large armies. They march in a straight line. Cross lakes and rivers. Go straight through hay stacks rather than go around. Nothing stops them, not fire, cascades nor swamps. If a man stands in the way they will jump at him as high as his knee. If struck they will turn around and bark and bite like a dog. Foxes, lynxes, owls, hawks and weasels will follow them and destroy large numbers of them, but it does not check them. They continue their course until they reach the sea, into which they plunge, as persistent and progressive as ever, until the waves exterminate them.

AN IMPERIAL EMBLE.—Dom Pedro, the Brazilian Emperor, who visited the county four years ago, has proved himself a genuine lover of science by telegraphing, under his own name, to the Paris Academy of Science, the first intelligible account that has been received in the north of the great comet discovered in the southern hemisphere last month. The comet passed remarkably near the sun, but it is now hastening back into the darkness of space, so that it seems, we shall not have a glimpse of it in this hemisphere. At the Cape of Good Hope it made its appearance suddenly and almost without warning, its tail was seen streaming across the evening sky from behind Table Mountain. It is noticeable that the Emperor signed his dispatch simply "Pedro Alcantara," without making any fuss about it.

The "Salvation Army."

Among the immigrants who arrived by the steamship Australis from London yesterday were eight persons—one man and seven women—dressed in a peculiar uniform, with red bands around their hats and an inscription in gilt letters. "The Salvation Army." They carried two silk flags. Their coats (loose patrol cloaks) were trimmed with red cloth, and on the collar was the letter "S," in gold for the captain and in red for the lieutenant. Their names and titles were: G. S. Ralston, Commissioner for America; and Sisters Captain Westbrook, and Lieutenants Coleman, Evans, Morris, Pearson, Shaw and Price. They attracted much attention by their singing, prayers and religious services while in Castle Garden.

Commissioner Ralston said to a Tribune reporter: "We come here for the purpose of extending the work of the 'Salvation Army,' and will make our headquarters in New York. The organization is an army of men and women mostly belonging to the working classes, and many who have been brought to Christ by its instrumentalities from lives of immorality and ruffianism, and who are now glad to spend all their leisure time in making known their salvation to others. The Rev. William Booth, formerly a Methodist Minister, was led to establish the mission by noticing immense multitudes in London that went to no place of worship, and for whose conversion no special efforts were made. He took a stand alone in the open air, in the East end of London in July, 1865, and on September 30, 1879, had enlisted 122 corps under the commands of 195 officers. These were using for services weekly, 148 theatres, music-halls, warehouses and other buildings, and were holding open air services at the rate of 45,000 annually, and indoor services at the rate of 60,000. There were 257 persons employed as officers, ministers, missionaries, colporteurs and Bible women, and 3,256 others ready to do service at any time. Our work is not sectarian, since we seek those who have no religion; and our service is that of early Methodists, so far as doctrine and principles are concerned; but our form of service is what might be called here an 'experience meeting.' We have no regular preachers, but simply teach the converts to speak from their own experience, which has the best effect on the class of people we hope to reach. It is not a society of unruly religiousists, defying or rushing into controversy with law, and society and coveting a cheap martyrdom; nor is it a new sect or church, but an army for missionary purposes, and we hope to convert workers here that we can send all over the United States."

The flag or banner has a red ground, with a blue border, and in one corner is a small American flag. In the center of the flag is a yellow ground representing the sun, upon which are the words "Blood and Fire." "N. Y. No. 1."—New York Tribune.

The Greedy Paper-Makers.

The question of the abolition of the duty on wood-pulp used in the manufacture of paper still continues to occupy the attention of the Ways and Means Committee. Letters and petitions from all parts of the country advocating the abolition of the duty on wood-pulp are constantly being received by members of the committee, and there is no doubt that a majority are desirous of affording the relief asked for. Congressman Warner Miller, of the Herkimer district, in New York, and William H. Russell, of the Lawrence district, of Massachusetts, who are the principal owners of the wood-pulp monopoly, are endeavoring to frighten the committee into a refusal to take action on the subject by threatening that if an attempt to take off the duty be made, they will add all sorts of amendments to the bill, and interfere with general legislation by proposing a wide variety of changes in the existing tariff law.

Gen. Garfield, who is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, has received a letter on the subject from the Cleveland leader. It is well understood that Mr. Cowles expresses the views of a vast majority of the publishers of Ohio and the neighboring States, and that his statements are not in the least exaggerated. Following is the letter in full:

MY DEAR GENERAL:—The paper combination have raised the price of paper again—this time 12 per cent. A member of the ring has given out that after Congress adjourns they will raise the price still higher—33 per cent.—making the price 12 cents, an advance of over 120 per cent. over what we are now paying for a contract which expires May 1. Our contract is for one year, and the price is a scramble among paper-makers to get the contract at that price at the time it was made, last April, which shows that there must be a profit in it. At present price it will cost us for paper the 12 cents and wood pulp five cents. The increase in the price of wood pulp is more than it has heretofore. If they raise the price to 12 cents, as they almost certainly will if the duties on chemicals and pulp are not repealed, it will cost us $30,000 a year more. The increase in cost, of course, will be the same in proportion with all other newspapers, and many will be driven to the wall. I have given figures merely to show the enormity of the increase, and to show how it is out of all proportion. During the war the combination raised the price to 27 cents a pound, an increase of 300 per cent. when gold averaged 160. This will show the grasping character of the combination. The cost of making a single sheet of paper is at least 50 per cent. less as compared with what it cost before the war, when it was made out of pure cotton rags. This decrease in cost is owing to the use of straw, wood, and other materials which were not then in use, and so owing to improvement in machinery. If you cannot vote to reduce the duty on paper, you certainly can to admit chemicals and wood pulp free. This will encourage the building of paper-mills, resulting in breaking the combination. It is not contemplated by the spirit which favors protection to protect combinations and monopolies. It has been a law understood by all statesmen of protection that internal competition regulate prices and prevent undue exorbitancy. Chemicals and pulp can be admitted free on the same principle that raw materials are admitted. I think you can consistently vote for such a measure. You will be doing it in the interest of free internal competition. Please read this before the Ways and Means Committee. Yours very truly, EDWIN COWLES.

Webster's Reply to Hayne.

A few days later, Mr. Webster heard his State and himself mercilessly attacked by General Hayne, of South Carolina, no mean antagonist. The son of a revolutionary hero who had fallen a victim to British cruelty, highly educated, with a slender, graceful form, fascinating deportment, and a well-trained, mellifluous voice, the haughty South Carolinian entered the lists of the political tournament like Saladin to oppose the Yankee Cour de Lion.

When Mr. Webster went to the senate chamber to reply to General Hayne, on Tuesday, January 20, 1850, he felt himself master of the situation. Always careful when he was to address an audience, he wore that day the whig uniform, which had been copied by the revolutionary heroes, a blue coat with bright buttons, a buff waistcoat, and a high white cravat. Neither was he insensible to the benefits to be derived from publicity, and he had sent a request to Mr. Gales to report what he was to say himself, rather than to send one of his stenographers. The most graphic account of the scene in the senate-chamber during the delivery of the speech was subsequently written virtually from Mr. Webster's dictation. Perhaps, like Mr. Healey's picture, it is rather high-colored.

Sheridan, after his forty days' preparation, did not commence his scathing impeachment of Warren Hastings with more confidence than was displayed by Mr. Webster when he stood up, in the pride of his manhood, and began to address the interested mass of talent, intelligence, and beauty around him. A man of commanding presence, with a well knit, sturdy frame, swarthy features, a broad, thoughtful forehead, courageous eyes gleaming from beneath shaggy eyebrows, a quadrangular breadth of jawbone, and a mouth which bespoke strong will, he stood like a sturdy Roundhead sentinel on guard before the gates of the constitution. Holding in profound contempt what is termed spread eagle oratory, his only gesticulations were up and down motions of his arms, as if he was beating out with sledge-hammers his forcible ideas. His peroration was sublime, and every loyal American heart has since echoed his last words, "Liberty and union—now and forever—one and inseparable!"—April Atlantic.

"What is eternity?" was a question once asked at a Deaf and Dumb Institution at Paris, and this beautiful and striking answer was given by one of the pupils: "The lifetime of the Almighty."—John Bates.

American Commerce.

As respects our commerce, it is again advancing. During the year 1877 the arrivals and clearances in our foreign and coastwise commerce, according to the Bureau of Statistics, exceeded 88,000,000 tons, and were quite equal to the arrivals and clearances in the ports of Great Britain and Ireland. In our foreign commerce the foreign flag predominated, but in our coastwise trade which now reaches to California, and exceeds the foreign trade of England, the shipping was entirely American, so that more than 80,000,000 tons of it, including repeated voyages, were our own. Assuming the value of our shipping to be forty dollars per ton, and the average value of the cargo per ton to equal that of the vessel, the aggregate of American property exposed on the oceans in each year reaches $5,572,000,000; and if we add for American property in foreign bottoms but $500,000,000, the whole property thus exposed exceeds $6,000,000,000.

To protect this vast amount of property, in which the whole country is interested, and more especially the West and South, which furnish or consume most of our cargo, we have expended yearly on our despatch ships, including repairs, wages, and salaries, some $17,000,000; or for the insurance of such property against piracy and war less than three-tenths of one per cent. per annum.

Again, we have in our sea-board cities property exceeding $4,000,000,000, according to the assessor's valuation, exposed to foreign iron-clads, some of which can throw Palliser shells of great size more than four miles, while our ships of war and our fortresses are insufficient to protect this property. The property thus exposed on the water and the land must exceed $10,000,000,000 annually, and the amount we expend on our navy for its insurance is but a sixth of one per cent.

As now applied, this is inadequate for the purpose, and our nation, with its vast commerce and revenue, can well afford a sufficient premium. The question then arises, How can such premium of insurance be best used? The answer is, in the creation and maintenance of an efficient navy, the Fire Department of the sea.—Harper's Magazine.

It shall be unlawful for any person to sell, barter, or give away, any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, on the day of any election held within this State, under the constitution or laws thereof, and it shall be the duty of all mayors of cities, presidents of villages, and supervisors of townships, within five days previous to the day of election, as aforesaid, to issue a proclamation, warning the inhabitants of the provisions of this act, and that all violations of the same will subject the offender to prompt and speedy punishment, and requiring sheriffs, marshals, constables, and police officers, to close, and it shall be the duty of such officers to close, all houses or places found violating the provisions of this act, and to report forthwith all violations of this act to the prosecuting attorney and mayor, president or supervisor aforesaid, and whose duty it shall be to immediately prosecute such violations of this act. Correspondence.

CHELSEA, March 27th, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR CHELSEA HERALD:—A dissatisfaction having arisen among some of the people of our town, concerning the disposition of the funds raised at our masquerade ball, we, the members of the band, think it proper, and perhaps necessary, that we make a statement of the financial affairs of the Chelsea Cornet Band. The following is a list of the receipts and expenditures:—

The above does not include music, wood, lights, and other incidentals, which would amount to, at least, $50. The net earnings of the masquerade was $100,—seventy-five dollars of which was divided among the members, according to Article 13, of the By-laws, which reads, "All moneys earned by the Association shall be equally distributed among the members, after the debts are paid." The nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President being the ultimate object of the above convention, the committee deem it of the first importance that as full an expression of the people as possible should be obtained. With this view they suggest that, if convenient, the several cities and townships elect delegates to the County Convention, at their respective city or township caucuses, at which the city or township officers are to be nominated, and that notice thereof be embraced in the call for the respective caucuses. Fully realizing that upon the results of the coming Presidential election may depend the stability and success of the Republic, if not indeed the existence of Civil Liberty, we cordially invite all who place country above party, love liberty and hate oppression, to meet and act with us.

A FORTUNATE CONCERN.—Last November and December, when Dry Goods of all kinds commenced to rise in value, Mr. Field, of Jackson De Hice fame, began buying on a liberal scale, and the lots of that store are filled with all kinds of domestic Dry Goods, bought at an average of fully thirty per cent. less than present market prices. It has been a question with people every day in the week, why prices are lower at Field's than elsewhere. Understanding the above facts, the question is easily answered. Goods bought at low prices can be sold at prices that seem very reasonable to customers, and yet pay a fair profit to the seller. We understand that of some kinds of goods, Mr. Field has enough on hand at the lower prices to last through the entire Spring trade, even if the demand should be on a larger scale than usual.

PROCLAMATION!! To The People!

We wish to proclaim to the People of this Vicinity that, notwithstanding the report so industriously circulated by some of our competitors to the effect that our Stock of

Boots and Shoes

Was bought after the Advance, and consequently very much higher than their's; and, notwithstanding the Enormous Advance which, on the average, will probably amount to 5 or 7 cents per pair,

We will NOT BE UNDERSOLD!

"The proof of the pudding is in eating it." We have several times had the pleasure of comparing our Prices with some of their's, with parties who had bought; and we have always found

OUR PRICES AS LOW, AND MANY TIMES

10 to 15 PER CENT. LESS!

And it is reasonable that it should be so. Our Stock is every Dollars Worth FRESH and NEW. We have no Old Goods to put off on the People. We went upon the MARKET at the Dullest Season of the Year, and BOUGHT NEARLY

$2,0000

Worth of Boots & Shoes!

For Spot Cash;

And it IS A FACT, which we stand ready to prove, that we OWN OUR STOCK AT LOWER FIGURES, than any merchant in this place. And this is not only true of

BOOTS & SHOES, BUT OF VARIETY OF GOODS

We Carry; and while we do not wish to Brag and Bluster, we do wish it Distinctly Understood that We WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD. We Invite Comparison, and DEFEY COMPETITION.

P. S.—All GOODS Marked in PLAIN FIGURES, and no Deviation. We Mean BUSINESS. Come and see if we don't Prove the Truth of Every Word we say.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brassy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair, The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

OUR TELEPHONE.

ALL fools are let loose to-day (Thursday).

We are having very pleasant weather. March went out like a lamb.

ANY one having a house to rent, please call at French's Shoe Store, South Main st.

A NEW partnership formed in the boot and shoe business—Leach & Tichenor.

Mrs. CONDON & HOOKER have moved their millinery goods to the south end of the "Bee Hive."

THOSE wishing to purchase a fine residence—or a brick store—at a bargain, see card on local page.

BERNARD PARKER, dry goods merchant of this village, has commenced to dig the cellar of his new residence.

PERSONAL.—Davis W. Begole, of Missouri, was visiting his relatives in this vicinity the past week.

THOMAS GODFREY, an old pioneer and a resident of Chelsea for the last 40 years, died at his residence, in this village, on last Monday evening, aged 83 years.

F. DIAMOND, the barber, has moved into the basement under Reed & Co.'s Drug-store, where he will be happy to meet his many patrons. Pay him a visit.

Mrs. GODFREY, wife of the late Thomas Godfrey, deceased, has been very sick for about a week. At this writing she is feeling a little better, and there are hopes of her recovery.

REMEMBER that "Zoe, the Octopus," will be produced at Tuttle's Hall, this evening, (Thursday,) by "Home talent." A large audience is expected.

OURSELVES.—We beg of our readers to have a little patience with us. The Herald at the present time is crowded with advertisements; but in another week one of the largest will come out; the other in two weeks.

A NEW firm from Manchester has opened out a boot and shoe establishment at Fred. Kantleiner's new brick store.

BOYD & SHAYER, barbers, have moved to the store lately occupied by L. Tichenor, first door east of Steinbach's harness shop. Patrons and friends make a note of this.

Look out for Gen. Cary. He is to pass through here next week, and it is hoped that we can get him to stop over one night and give us his famous lecture on "Mistakes of Moses; or Ingersol, which?" The prospects are fair.

CHELSEA is going to have a passenger depot at last. Mr. Brown, assistant superintendent of the Michigan Central Railroad, at Jackson, was in town Monday last. He says there will be a depot erected in Chelsea, in a very short time, costing $7,000. The building is to be a fine one, and will vie with any other one on the line. How is that for Chelsea?

A DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS will be held at M. J. Noyes' justice office, in Chelsea, on Saturday, April 3d, 1880, at 2 o'clock P. M., to nominate officers for the township of Sylvan, and appoint delegates to the County Convention. P. S.—Let every Democrat see that his name is registered.

By ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

Chelsea, March 30th, 1880.

HENRY GILBERT has opened an eating saloon, for the benefit of the public at large, in the basement of the Post-office. Hank says he will deal fairly and squarely by all, and give everybody a square meal for a very little money. Pay him a visit.

TEMPERANCE.—The Reform Club will give four special meetings, commencing on Thursday evening, and ending Sunday evening next. R. E. Frazer will address the club Thursday evening, and the Rev. D. R. Shier on Friday evening. Captain Allen, or some other good man, will speak on Saturday and Sunday evenings. The meetings will be held in the Baptist Church, of this village. All are invited.

For Sale at a Bargain.

A FINE RESIDENCE, about two minutes walk from the Post-office, situated in the village of Chelsea, on South street, west; also a new brick store, situated on Middle street, west. The party wishes to migrate, and will sell cheap for CASH. Enquire of C. S. LAIRD, Chelsea, April 1st, 1880. v9-29

EXPLOSION.—Quite an explosion occurred at the dental rooms of M. W. Bush, in this village, on last Saturday afternoon, caused by the vulcanizer being over heated while he was at work. It blew the glass out of the front window, and part of the vulcanizer went up to the ceiling and made a large hole. The glass above the hall door was also broken into fragments; in fact everything around was a total wreck. Mr. Bush had a narrow escape of his life, as he was at work within a foot of the machine; he was knocked down senseless, and presented a fearful appearance, being completely covered over with the debris. The damage done will amount to about fifty dollars.

AN EDITOR IN LOCK.—ST. JACOBS OIL cures Rheumatism; of this I am convinced. For two years I suffered with Rheumatism in my left shoulder and right arm, and last fall I was incapable of attending to my duties, and lay many a night unable to sleep on account of terrible pains. A few weeks ago a severe attack of this trouble struck me, and this time I concluded to try the St. Jacobs Oil. I must acknowledge, with but little confidence in its merits. I freely confess that the result has completely astonished me. The first application relieved the pain very materially, and the continued use of only two bottles has completely cured me of this chronic evil, and that, after the most eminent physicians and their prescriptions had been of no avail. I therefore consider it a duty to publish the above for the benefit of all sufferers with Rheumatism and kindred complaints.
G. A. IHLMAN,
Editor, Republican, Pittsburgh, Pa.

At French's new Shoe Store, on South Main street, you will find the largest and best stock of Boots and Shoes ever brought to Chelsea; and we can say without a doubt the prices are so low they will astonish the oldest inhabitant. He has a large stock of men's and boys' Kip Boots, and women's and children's Calf Shoes, which he is slaughtering at cost, to make room for summer goods. Now take advantage of these bargains and save money. Remember the place, French's Shoe Store, Kantleiner's new Brick Block, South Main street, Chelsea, Mich.

Card of Thanks.

HERALD:—Allow me, through your paper, to thank the church, of which I am pastor, and the many friends of the other churches, and the community at large, for their interest in me and mine, by their liberal donation on the evening of March 23, 1880. The amount, $71.81, for which I can truly say, no one is, or can be, more grateful for the token than myself and family. Other donation, since that time, making the amount $79.81.
