Don't take my paper, printer. Don't strike my name off. You know the name of the printer...

I can't afford to drop it. I find it doesn't pay. To do without a paper, however others may...

Then take it kindly, printer. If pay be somewhat slow, for cash is not so plenty, and wants not few, you know...

The Number Seven. Its Peculiarities and Curiosities. Seven is a holy number. There were seven days in the week, and the seventh is the Sabbath or day of rest...

Nor is this confined to sacred history, and it will be interesting to enumerate some things to which this mystic number was given.

The seven virtues—Faith, hope, charity, prudence, fortitude and temperance. The first three are called the holy virtues.

The seven champions of Christianity—St. George for England, St. Andrew for Scotland, St. Patrick for Ireland, St. David for Wales, St. Denis for France, St. James for Spain, and St. Anthony for Italy.

behind the stationary inhabitants; and if she sail equally toward the east, he will be 50 days in advance of them.

IMPARTING FRAGRANCE TO FLOWERS.—A new process has been discovered by an Italian florist, by means of which, it is asserted, a delightful fragrance may be bestowed upon plants that are naturally inodorous.

THE "SCOOPING" OF DOLLARS.—The Secret Service has recently received a trade dollar, which has been neatly scooped out of the center, leaving a thin plate...

Seven years' war.—The war maintained by Frederick II. of Prussia against Austria, Russia and France. The seven dials, London.—A column raised in, which formerly stood at the ancient limits of St. Giles, and seven dials were affixed to it, facing the seven streets which radiated from that center.

Seven times Christ spoke upon the cross.—"Father, forgive them, they know not what they do." "To-day thou shalt be with me in paradise." "Woman, behold thy son!" "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" "I thirst." "It is finished." "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

WHAT IS LOVE?—Some years ago the late Empress of Russia, while inspecting a girls' school in that country, asked one of the pupils "What is love?" Blushing deeply, and much embarrassed, the girl made no reply.

At a theater in Dublin a gentleman requested a man in front of him to sit down, adding, sarcastically: "I suppose you are aware, sir, that you are not opaque." "I shall sit down when it suits me," was the response; and if you want to handle my name, mind it's not O'Pake at all, but O'Brien."

A PARADOX AND ITS SOLUTION.—Two persons were born at the same place, at the same moment of time. After an age of 60 years they both died, also at the same spot, and at the same instant, yet one had lived 100 days more than the other.

THE SEVEN SISTERS.—This is a window behind the stationary inhabitants; and if she sail equally toward the east, he will be 50 days in advance of them.

LOST AT SEA

Out of Seventy Passengers Only Thirteen Survive. The Steamer City of Vera Cruz Goes Down Off the Coast of Florida.

A special dispatch from St. Augustine, Fla., on Friday, says: There is very little doubt that the steamer City of Vera Cruz, Mexican line, which sailed from New York August 25, for Havana and Vera Cruz, went down in the recent hurricane which has already strewn our coast with wrecks.

The terrible discovery was made yesterday, when portions of the mail carried by the ill-fated vessel washed ashore some miles south of the city. One mail bag contained letters for Cuba or Mexico, which had been posted in Paris August 15, and another lot was found with envelopes bearing the postmark "New York, August 25."

At the time the steamer was sighted a mail steamer bound for southern ports and the surmise was that it must have been the City of Vera Cruz, as she left New York on the day last named. Closer examination showed several bills of lading of the steamer Vera Cruz. Saturday afternoon a large steamer, supposed to have been the Vera Cruz, passed the brig Caroline Eddy, then about sixty miles from the coast of St. Augustine. This brig was soon after struck by the hurricane and wrecked, drifting on the beach near where the lost letters were discovered.

At the time the steamer was sighted she was heading south. The wind was then coming very hard and the gale was rising. The City of Vera Cruz must have been struck by the hurricane and probably foundered Saturday night or Sunday morning. Every hour brings news of some more startling discovery in regard to the supposed wreck. The bodies of a lady and little child have been found on the shore cast up by the waves. They were buried by a party of wreckers on the beach near the place where the steamer was sighted. The bodies of three others being corpses of unknown persons. From their dress two are thought to be passengers, and the other evidently a sailor.

For over forty miles south of this place the Florida is strewn with the cargo of the steamer. A trunk was found marked "Hernandez." This corresponds with the name of a lady on the passenger list of the City of Vera Cruz, as appears in the New York papers of Thursday. All that could be recovered of the mail was brought here yesterday and forwarded to their destination. In addition to the brig Eddy, two sailing vessels have come ashore since the gale, near here. The signs are that the hurricane has been very fatal to shipping.

The City of Vera Cruz was a wooden vessel, 174 tons register, built at Greenpoint, L. I., in 1874, for the Alexander & Sons line between New York, Havana and Mexico, in which trade she was employed.

The only correct list of the names of the crew of the City of Vera Cruz, was in possession of the purser on board the vessel. Capt. Van Sloger's family reside in Yonkers. Agents do not give up the hope of the vessel's safety. They say that the mail bags and passengers' trunks were in the house on the deck, and a heavy sea might have swept them away. This would account for the mail bags and trunk marked "Hernandez."

Following is a corrected list of the passengers: Arrue, Rafael; Arrue, Mrs. R.; Attridge, Alex. W.; Attridge, Alexander W., Jr.; Betchel, Walter; Besque, Adolph; Burns, Miss E.; Clark, Miss A.; Cole, Geo. W.; Fay, Miss Sadie; Fenwick, Edward; Garcia, J. A.; Garcia, Mrs. J. A.; Glushko, H.; Glushko, Philip; Gourley, John; Hernandez, John; Hernandez, Mrs. S.;
