My letters written in my earnest boyhood To one who left us but the other day...

Hetherington's heart without elating it. "Good-morning, said Miss Hetherington--"Good-morning, Mrs. Fries."

you go or not," she said to me; but if you've soul in your body, you won't take her in your. He's asking for her now; she may save his life.

HERNANDO CORTEZ. The Conquest of Mexico--Indian Relations. In the year of 1504, at the small country town of Medellin, in Spain...

idea of the goodness and greatness of the King of Spain, to invite them to conciliate that monarch by presents of gold and pearls, and acknowledge him as their sovereign lord.

Chickens and Ostriches. All middle-aged people must remember the great chicken waltz that swept over the land some twenty-five years ago.

ON THE VERANDA.

The people who owned it called it a porch, but Miss Hetherington thought that a rather deprecatory way of speaking of her country resort.

Miss Hetherington looked up, and was surprised to see that Mrs. Fries had turned into an old woman. From a comfortable middle age she had shrunk and faded into something quite pitiable.

It was a terrible risk. I waited in great suspense, placing what hope I could in trepanned skulls and the modern improvements in artificial limbs.

He was only nineteen when he took passage in a merchant vessel, and after a most tempestuous passage, reached Hispaniola, then the seat of Spanish power in America.

Cortez hesitated not a moment. Feigning submission, he prepared at once to march to Mexico. Some of his followers, however, not so bold as himself, murmured, and plotted against him.

It was found that the Shanghai was a dreadful bird, and would lay eggs only at rare intervals and in small quantities. The eggs in nine cases out of ten hatched cocks instead of hens.

Just now it was delightful. She had just left the breakfast table, but by the little watch that hung from her girdle it was already nine o'clock, and the little watch kept excellent time.

"Dear madam, dear Mrs. Fries," she said, in that low, caressing voice which was a valuable accessory of Miss Hetherington's, "don't, please, worry. I assure you there's nothing to worry about."

An Arkansas Yarn. The most remarkable escape on record occurred in this city several nights ago. Jack Juckles committed an act, which, according to law, would send him to the penitentiary.

Nevertheless, when the governor offered him a portion of land and a number of Indians as slaves, there being nothing better to take at the time, Cortez accepted them, and became a planter.

Who would have thought to find such a passage in the will of Cortez? Nothing is more certain than this, that Cortez, in all that he did in Mexico, fully believed that he was an instrument in the hands of a benevolent God.

As for the cost of keeping ostriches, it is practically nothing, if the farmer resides in a region where gravel is plenty, and in any event must be very small, when we remember how cheaply scrap iron, scrap tin, and broken bottles, suitable for ostrich food, can be bought.

But that was a matter of course. Ceta va sans dire, Miss Hetherington said, and felt sorry that these little hobbies of mothers always interfered with their happiness.

"I'll go now," she said, beginning, in fact, to gather up her draperies. "It's too late now. The mischief's done." And it seemed that more mischief was at hand, for a great cry arose from the opposite field, and a bad sight could be seen from the veranda.

The deputy went out and locked the door. There was not the slightest danger to be feared from a mob, but an idea had occurred to the prisoner. No sooner had the deputy taken his place in the hall than Jack softly raised one of the windows.

But in 1518 he returned to Santiago (Chili), after an absence of several weeks a small fleet which Velasquez had sent out to explore the coasts of the adjacent continent.

Miss Hetherington put up her glass. Her sight was tolerably good by moon or gas light, but deficient in the garish light of day. Without her glass, John and the mower looked one; she couldn't tell where John began and the mower ended.

She turned on me quite fiercely. "You, a woman!" she said, and talk of going at a time like this!

Did you ever see anything more graceful than a handsomely shaped fern? I never did. But I must confess I have seen some straggling, awkward, twisted fuchsia plants which fairly distress me.

He sent for Cortez, revealed the project to him, and offered him the command. Cortez accepted it, and agreed to embark his fortune in the enterprise.

John, and there is always something delightful in the attributes of an unfettered will. Humming-birds and bees, darning-needles and butterflies, and all sorts of winged things, darted in and out of the blossoms, and a gorgeous spider hung midway in a magnificent place made in a single night.

"We didn't know there was a man within miles," said poor Kate; "that is, a young man--I mean a gentleman--"

DIED.

CUSHMAN.—Died in Chelsea, at the residence of his son, Warren Cushman, Josiah Cushman, after a short illness of two days.

Mr. Cushman was born in the eastern part of the State of New York, December 24th, 1811. In early manhood, he was converted and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. About the year 1833 he was married to Miss Louise Morgan, who was also a member of the same church. After two years of married life they came to Michigan and settled on a farm just east of Lima Center. A few years after that he moved to the Center, and for some time followed the occupation of a blacksmith. Mr. Cushman has owned several farms in the township of Lima, and was generally known throughout all this section of the country. Some 12 years ago the family were sadly bereaved in the loss of the wife and mother, who died from the effects of an injury received by being thrown from the carriage one Sabbath as they were leaving the church at Lima, where they were both members and regular attendants on divine worship. After this, father Cushman never enjoyed attending church at Lima, probably because of the sad memories it brought fresh to his mind, although he held his membership there to the day of his death. For some years past he has enjoyed a quiet and peaceful retirement in the home of his son, Mr. Warren Cushman. Of 5 children only two survive him, a son and a daughter, (Mrs. Milo Baldwin.) Father Cushman was greatly favored in the last years of his life in the loving care he received at the hands of his children, who tenderly supported him as with trembling steps he neared the tomb. On Wednesday Dec. 29th, he was prostrated by a second stroke of paralysis, after which he lay in an unconscious state until the hour of death. Just as the old year was dying, he laid aside the burdens of life and entered into rest. The funeral services were held on Sabbath afternoon at his home, and were attended by an unusually large circle of relatives and friends who followed him to the vault in the cemetery, where his body was deposited.

THE USES OF BEAUTY.—It is impossible for the peripatetic philosopher of the time to walk about the world and not be struck with the novel fact that beauty is one of the most useful commodities which is brought into the modern utilitarian market, if it only comes in the guise of our own flesh and blood.

Beauty runs money very hard, and when beauty and money combine, the strongholds of society deliver up their keys, and sign a capitulation. Moreover, beauty can command money, whereas money cannot command beauty. Each, it is true, can buy the other; but the bargain is not quite the same in the two cases.

When beauty concludes a contract with money, it procures for itself the full use and absolute possession of the things it stipulated for.

Money, on the contrary, in buying beauty, too often finds, not only that it has paid for a perishable article, but that it has merely been allotted a limited share among a company of persons who likewise have an allotment, but without having paid anything at all for it.

If beauty were lasting, it would be the most tyrannical influence in life. Lucky for our poor slaves it is a despotism which never endures. Hence the feverish anxiety of beauty to wield the scepter but a moment, and to enjoy the good things that were designed for it.

Nature, with its usual beneficence, not uncommonly bestows upon a decayed family, or vulgar parvenu, a lovely daughter; and the uses to which her beauty may be put are not easily recounted. It opens society for the first time to people against whom society seemed to be eternally closed, and the most dreadful of mothers, and most objectionable of fathers, are welcomed in the train of their ravishing offspring.

But it is the husband who trades most successfully on beauty, it beauty happens to be the dowry of his wife, for her attractions carry him into spheres into which he never could have hoped to gain admission either by rumored opulence, consummate assurance, or even good dinners.

Some of the loveliest women in London are saddled with husbands whom one would have thought a priori would have proved to them an insuperable social bar, and an overwhelming encumbrance; but they carry these Old Men of the Sea on their fair shoulders through the daintiest equally with the deepest waters.

It is for this reason that men who can boast no education, and abominable manners, but much money, find beauty so excellent an investment. For the vulgar husband can address to his charming wife the words of Ruth, with but slight variation: "Where thou goest, I go; thy people shall be my people, and thy lord my lord."

THE TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MR. & MRS. Wesley Camfield's wedding day, was celebrated on last Saturday, (New Year's day), in this village. There was present a large gathering of relatives and friends on both sides. Their friends, to the number of nearly fifty, celebrated the occasion at their residence. During the evening the couple were presented by Elder Gay and Elder Hudson, and numerous friends with beautiful presents—in the following neat speech.

"It is my most agreeable and happy privilege in behalf of your numerous friends gathered here to-night to present to you these tokens of their esteem and regard. They have not forgotten the anniversary of your wedding day and its twentieth celebration has brought them together and afforded them the much coveted opportunity to testify their good wishes and the great interest they take in your welfare. Most of your married existence has been spent in this community—here you have passed, as it were, the very noon of life. Here you have made that record for nobleness of action, for kindness of nature, for a far spreading influence for good, that has endeared you more than any passing speech of mine could. And it permits me to say in this connection, that, after all the ambition that leads to the advancement and elevation of our fellow-creatures, it is the grandest and loftiest of any. He who has made the world better for having lived in it has fulfilled a noble mission, and he who has accomplished the most in this direction, is justly entitled to be crowned 'the greatest benefactor of his race.' And it permits me to say further that, in proportion to the good deeds we perform, will the capital of our happiness grow and increase. You have laid up a stock of this character, of which, the very best of us might well be envious, and it gives you the assurance that your virtues and your labors in the cause of righteousness, will be as unfading in the memory of all your friends as the stars above will be forever unfading in the works of creation."

After having a pleasant time, the party wished Mr. and Mrs. Camfield a long life of happiness and every enjoyment in this world. As the we sma' hour beyond the twel' had come, the party broke up, feeling happy, which will long be remembered.

[Our thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Camfield for a bountiful supply of wedding cake.

OUR TELEPHONE.

PERSONAL—Miss Hattie Hurd is visiting friends at Chelsea.

ATTENTION is called to the new advertisement of Wood Bros., on second page.

The inhabitants of Sylvan are enjoying a week of prayer. Elder Hudson presiding.

CHELSEA was unusually quiet both as to business and amusements for the holiday season.

The people may talk about humbugs and patent medicines as much as they please, but westick to the plain fact that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure a cough quicker than any physician's prescription.

The holiday vacation of our Union School has been extended one week, on account of sickness.

New Years day passed off very quietly in this village. No drunks—no dog fights—everything serene.

Miss JENNIE HOAG has resigned her place as a teacher in the school, at this village, and Miss Cora Lewis takes her place.

An unusual number of deaths have occurred in Chelsea within the past week. Diphtheria is quite prevalent among the children.

The elephant has just arrived in the shape of a large and fresh assortment of family groceries, cheap for cash, at W. R. Reed & Co's store.

On account of the cold weather, last week, the lecture that was to be delivered by Myatt Kyan, in the Baptist Church, at this place, did not come off.

PALMER.—HAMMOND.—Married, at the M. E. parsonage, Jan. 5th, 1881, by the Rev. J. L. Hudson, Mr. Chas. Palmer, of Jackson, and Miss Mary Hammond, of Lima Center.

The average citizens about Chelsea lengthen for at least a small part of that 11 feet of snow that was prophesied to be here last week. Answer Venor.

SURPRISE PARTY.—Mrs. C. H. Kempf and about thirty relatives and friends surprised Mr. C. H. Kempf, at his residence, in this village, on last Saturday evening. The occasion being the 50th birthday of Mr. Kempf. A good time was enjoyed by all present, of which will long be remembered. The printer was not forgotten with a basket load of the delicacies of the season, to which he responds, by wishing that Mr. K. may live to enjoy a good many more birth-days.

E. C. CHANDLER, the party who has been writing up the Pioneer History of our county, left last Tuesday for Ypsilanti, where he will commence his labors.

CHRYSLER.—SWENEY.—Married, Jan. 3rd, 1881, in Chelsea, by Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D., Mr. R. R. Carpenter and Miss Mate C. Sweney, of Fenton, Genesee County, Mich. [No cake.]

The township of Sylvan including Chelsea, already has over 800 voters signed to the petition asking the legislature to submit to a vote of the people the prohibition constitutional amendment.

GLAZIER.—GEDDES.—Married in Chelsea, December 30th, 1880, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D., Mr. Frank P. Glazier and Miss Henrietta Geddes. May many long and happy years be theirs.

The A. O. U. W. Lodge of Chelsea held its election of officers lately, when the following officers were elected—J. Bacon, M. W.; L. E. Sparks, G. F.; E. McNamara P. M. W.; Chas. Canfield, O.; D. B. Taylor, R.; C. E. Babcock, F.; H. Lighthall, R.; J. M. Wood, G.; W. A. Campbell, L. W.; M. Sullivan, O. W.

CHRISTAL WEDDING.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gorton, of this village, celebrated their 15th anniversary of their wedded life. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends, who were present to greet the happy couple. A large number of valuable presents were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Gorton. The evening passed off very pleasantly, which was enjoyed by all.

Try it, for it never disappoints. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Per bottle, 25 cts.

IT HAVING been reported that Joe T. Jacobs would contest the seat of state senator-elect Rose, on the ground that he was not eligible, he already holding an elective office, also for irregularities claimed in one or two townships which gave Mr. R. a majority, we took the trouble to call on Mr. Jacobs yesterday, who scorned the idea of contesting the election for, as he said, every one knew a majority of the people of the county had voted for Rose and he was entitled to the office. Mr. Jacobs said, "Admitting there were good and sufficient grounds on which to base a contest, I am not the person to take advantage of technicalities." And those who are acquainted with him know when he says a thing he means it.—Ans. Arber Democrat.

A CARD.

The family of the deceased desire to return hearty thanks to the friends of Chelsea, who so kindly tendered sympathy and aid in this their time of bereavement.

HURD.—Died at his residence, at Farnholt, Minn., on Friday Dec. 31st, 1880, of Neuralgia, DEWITT HURD, aged about 50 years.

Mr. H. was formerly a resident of Chelsea. He leaves one daughter and hosts of warm friends to mourn his loss. His body arrived in Chelsea on Wednesday last, and was buried in Oak Grove Cemetery.

ROYCE.—Died at his residence, in this village, Jan. 1st, 1881, of apoplexy, Mrs. MARTHA H. ROYCE, widow of the late Thomas H. Royce, aged 63 years.

Obituary will appear next week.

ROBERTSON.—Died in this village, on Thursday last, KATIE MAY ROBERTSON, infant daughter of Dr. Robertson, of Diphtheria, aged 5 years, 5 months and 8 days.

TURNBULL.—Died in this village, on Jan. 2nd, 1881, GEORGE W. TURNBULL, infant son of G. W. and Edith Turnbull, aged 1 year, 2 months and 15 days, of Diphtheria.

BURKHART.—Died at Lima, Dec. 30th, 1880, infant son of Orrin Burkhardt, aged 3 weeks.

At a meeting of the Board of Health, of the township of Sylvan, held at the office of the township clerk, on the third day of January, A. D., 1881, the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

Whereas, the householders of the township of Sylvan and the physicians practicing in said township, have neglected the duty imposed upon them by Section 43 and 44 of Chapter 46, of the compiled laws of 1871, by not reporting the existence of diseases dangerous to the Public Health to the Board of Health or Health Officer, of said township of Sylvan; Therefore, and whereas, it is the duty of the householders and physicians, as hereby warned of in the future, they neglect or refuse to comply with the law, its penalties will be imposed upon them. And said physicians are hereby ordered and required to report all cases of a contagious nature that they have treated during the past year, that the health officer may be able to make the proper report to the State Board of Health.

By ORDER OF BOARD OF HEALTH.
Dated January 3rd, 1881.

HEAR what the Jackson Daily Citizen says of our new firm—
"John Farrell and John W. Boardman have established a first-class grocery and provision store in the village of Chelsea, one of the liveliest and best business places of its size on this line of the road, and their claims are welcome addition to their business firm. Mr. Farrell went there to-day to open the new store, while Mr. Boardman still continues at the old Steuben Wine Company's stand on Cortland street."

A minister was questioning his Sundayschool concerning the story of Eutychus, the young man who, listening to the preaching of the Apostle Paul, fell asleep and, falling down, was taken up dead. "What," he said, "do we learn from this solemn event?" When the reply from a little girl came, put and prompt: "Please, sir, ministers should learn not to preach too long sermons."

We will pay until further notice, 10 cts. per pound for unsalted butter delivered at our store. Wood Bros.

THE AMERICAN GIRL ABROAD.—Here is a pen-and-ink sketch of an American girl, which is interesting as showing how a Yankee girl appears to French eyes: "Stylish to the back-bone. Independent as independent can be, but very pure. Is devoted to pleasure, dress, spending money; shows her moral nature nude, just as it is, so as to deceive nobody. Flirts all winter with this or that one and dismisses him in the spring, when she instantly catches another. Goes out alone. Travels alone. When the fancy strikes her she travels with a gentleman friend, or walks anywhere with him; puts boundless confidence in him; conjugal intimacy seems to exist between them. She lets him tell what he feels—talk of love from morning till night—but she never gives him permission to kiss so much as her hand. He may say anything—he shall do nothing. She is restless; she gives her heart and soul to amusement before she marries. After marriage she is a mother annually; is alone all day; hears all night nothing except discussions about patent machinery, unexplosive petroleum and chemical manuxes. She then will let her daughters enjoy the liberty she used without grave abuse. As nothing serious happens to her, why should Fanny, Mary, Jenny be less strong and less adroit than their mother? She originates French fashions. Provincial women despise her. Men of all countries adore her, but will not marry her unless she has an immense fortune. Her hair is vermilion, paler than golden hair; her black eyes are bold and frank; she has a patent shape which 'tis forbidden to counterfeit; she spreads herself in a carriage as if she were in a hammock—the natural and thoughtless posture of her passion for luxurious ease. When she walks she moves briskly, and throws every glance right and left. Gives many of her thoughts to herself, and few of them to anybody else. She is a wild plant put in a hot-house."

There is a little railroad at Bayou Sara, Louisiana, that runs to Woodville on a very uncertain schedule. A stranger came in the other day and inquired how often the steam car made trips to the country. The party interrogated said, "tri-weekly." "What do you mean by tri-weekly?" The answer was, "It goes up one week and tries to come down the next."

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure of Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriages, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hand of every youth and every man in the land. Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps.
