

I dreamt of a beautiful time
When the world shall be happy;
When the elephants and hyenas
Shall blossom on every tree;

I'm weary of seeing the cabbage
Handle the rake and the hoe;
I'm weary of watching and waiting
For the grasshopper bush to grow;

Oh! sweet were the vanished hours
When I wandered down the glen,
And wreathed my brow with tomatoes,
Or plucked the ripened hen;

But gone are the days of childhood,
And manhood's dreams are mine;
Yet I long for the by-gone hours
When I sat 'neath the Turkish vine.

A POCKET-BOOK

I was just 25 when I first met Alice Thorne, the daughter and heiress of George Thorne the great banker.

Her father was reported to be a very proud, ambitious man, who would look high for a son-in-law.

So we bade good by without a word of explanation, though I knew she read the anguish in my heart, and tears were ing brusquely and to the point.

"What?" I sprang toward him in the wildest excitement.

"Oh, sir," I began, but he stopped me.

"Let me finish," said he. "I've done
this because I'm convinced that you are an upright, honest man; and the Ever since it became known that John B. Gough was engaged in writing a new book, its appearance has been watched for with intense interest. It has recently been published, and the enormous sales afford a striking instance of the success that is sure to be awarded to a really good work.

John B. Gough, the author of Sunlight and Shadow, is too well known to require any eulogy here. Thousands are familiar with the history of his life: his early poverty, the depth of the degradation to which he descended while a victim of drink, his wretched condition and terrible sufferings, his superhuman struggles against intemperance, his reform, his relapse, his resigning of the pledge and final victory, his world-wide fame, and his extensive travels and protracted labors in this country and abroad.

From grave to gay, from lively to severe; which all the world knew had crowded themselves into his long and varied career. These have now been gathered for the first time, and the new book, Sunlight and Shadow, is the medium—and the only one—through which these thrilling details have ever been presented to the public.

"SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW" is indeed a remarkable book by a remarkable man. Mr. Gough's recollections of his own experiences have made him ever ready to lend a helping hand to others, and the very nature of his life-work has brought him into close contact with poverty, crime, destitution and vice, and he has listened to life-histories of the most thrilling nature, and witnessed scenes that testify anew to the truth of the adage, "Fact is stranger than Fiction."

Some of the saddest and most pathetic incidents ever told are narrated in the present work, and the reader's eyes will fill in spite of himself at the power of Mr. Gough's pathos in describing scenes that have come under his personal observation.

But Sunlight and Shadow is not altogether a record of dark experiences. It has a bright and sunny side. Mr. Gough's stories and descriptions of the humorous side of life, as he has seen and experienced it, portray many amusing scenes. His remarkable facility for seeing the humorous side of every thing, and his talent for humorous description, are well known. No one can tell more amusing things and in a more irresistibly humorous way than John B. Gough. The comedies from life, absurd blunders, laughable mistakes, comical incidents, embarrassing situations, mostly drawn from his own experience on the platform and among the people, will provoke the mirth of the most serious. His experiences with brazen-faced people; with letter-writers and their remarkable wants; with aspirants for fame and seekers after "middle" lectures; with beggars without number and bores of all kinds—are given in Sunlight and Shadow without reserve.

In short, Sunlight and Shadow is a mine of extraordinary interest. It can be truthfully said of it, that for thrilling interests, touching paths and irresistible humor, no book has ever equaled it.

In point of paper, printing, binding, and above all, beautiful and costly illustration, we have not seen its equal in many a day. It is superbly illustrated with magnificent full-page engravings, engraved in the highest style from original designs by F. O. C. Darley, Frederick Dielman, and other famous artists. The magnificent steel-plate portrait of Mr. Gough was engraved from a photograph taken expressly for this purpose, and will be highly prized by tens of thousands who have listened to his eloquence.

pose, and will be highly prized by tens of thousands who have listened to his eloquence.

We advise our readers to buy Sunlight and Shadow at the first opportunity. They can, in our opinion, much better afford to dispense with a dozen other books than not possess this.

SUNBEAMS.

John Bull will continue to send for American beef until he finds himself confronted with a hunk off the hind leg of a Tennessee steer. Then diplomatic relations between the two nations will cease.

Boatmen are kept at each of the 3 bridges at Rome, to rescue persons attempting suicide, and occasionally some vigilant taxpayer fires himself into the stream just to make the lazy fellows earn their wages.

Mrs. PARTINGTON says.—Don't take any of the quack nostrums, as they are detrimental to the human system; but put your trust in Hop Bitters, which will cure general debilitation, cystic habits and all comic diseases. They saved Isaac from a severe extract of tripod fever. They are the ad plus unum of medicines.

An editor describing the effects of a squall upon a canal-boat, says, "When the gale was at its highest, the unfortunate craft heeled to larboard, and the captain and another cask of whisky rolled overboard."

Josh Billings says if I wuz called upon to mourn over a dead mule I should stand in front of him and do mi weeping. That is all very well Joshua, but if a live mule was called upon to plant his foot suddenly against your bosom there is nothing like a quick application of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.

"Gem'men," said the old man, "remember dat it am not safe to form an opinun on a stranger by the size of his mouf or de number of his hat. No pusson kin tell de number of mules in a barn by looking at de stable doah."

A meditative man was roaming through an anatomical museum, and came across the skeleton of a donkey. "Ah!" he said, in reverential awe, as he adjusted his green spectacles, "we are, indeed, fearfully and wonderfully made."

HARD TO BEAT.—The California horse, St. Julien, has beaten Haras' great trotting record, reducing the time to 2:12 1/2, but nothing has been found equal to Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for rheumatism, sprains, stiff joints or bruises.

One of the latest discoveries made by the latest Arctic explorers is that the length of the Polar night is 142 days. What a nice place that would be in which to tell a man with a bill to call around day after to-morrow and get his money!

If you want to study the immense variety of the human face in expression you should bend your gaze upon the mobile countenance of a deaf and dumb man when he reaches under the plank walk for a lost nickel and picks up a raw bumble bee by the stem.

Hail to the Chief among pulmonary remedies, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, used externally. This grand preparation annihilates coughs, colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, lameness, piles, kidney troubles, and remedies sores, cuts, burns, boils, warts and corns. Said a Galveston school-teacher: "If I have ten apples, and give you five and your big brother five, what will be left?" "I'll be left," responded the younger brother; "for he will get away with all of them. That's the kind of a presidential candidate he is."

"I only want to show you one thing more, professor. I have invented a short method of boring mountains which I think will prove very valuable." "My dear sir, if you would only invent a short method of boring individuals you would indeed confer a lasting benefit upon the race."
