FANCY'S CHANCES.

Our brother, let us sing a dirge—
A dirge for myriad chances dead;
In grief your mournful accents merge—
Sing, sing the dirge we might have read.

Sweet lips were those we never pressed
In love that never led the door
In sunlight of a love confessed—
Kind were the girls we never knew.

Sing low, sing low, while in the glow
Of fancy's hour those forms we trace,
Howering round the years that go—
Those years our lives can never replace.

Sweet lips are those that never turn
A cruel word; dear eyes that lead
The heart on in a blissful career;
White hand of her we did not wed.

Fair hair or dark, that falls along
A form that never shrinks with time—
Bright image of a realm of song
Standing beside our years of prime.

When you shall go, then may we know
The heart is dead, the man is old;
Life can no other claim bestow
When girls we might have loved turn cold.
—How H. Lathrop, in Harper's Magazine.

The Flag of the Prophet.

The flag of Mohammed is in the custody of the Mohammedan chief priest, Sheikh-ul-Islam, and is kept in the mosque of St. Sophia in Stamboul. It is made of green silk. There is a large crescent on the top of the staff, from which hangs a horse-hair plume, claimed to have been the tail of Mohammed's favorite horse. On the folds of the flag are displayed the crescent and certain quotations from the Koran. Mohammed adopted "green" as his emblem, because nature is green, and it is "everlasting and universal." The following words are on the flag: "All who draw the sword will be rewarded with temporal advantages; every drop of their blood shed, every sword and hardship endured by them, will be registered on high as more meritorious than either fasting or praying. If they fall in battle their sins will be at once blotted out, and they will be transported to paradise, there to revel in eternal pleasures in the arms of black-eyed houris. But for the first heaven are reserved those of the faithful who die within sight of the green flag of the Prophet. There may no man give or expect money." It is difficult to predict what effect the raising of the green flag would have upon the 120,000,000 fanatical Mohammedans in countries from India to Morocco.—Textile Manufacturer.

The Kind of Country New Mexico Is.

Gen. Lew Wallace does not give a very encouraging account of New Mexico. He says: "The southern portion of New Mexico and Northern Old Mexico is infested by bands of thieves, robbers and murderers, many of whom are wanted in the East to answer for crimes committed. They think no more of killing a man than of shooting a game. They rob the miners of their horses, mules and other property. They rob anybody they lay their hands on. If a man resists they kill him. The property and life of no one are safe from them. When a Deputy Marshal, armed with authority and backed by his posse, gets after them they go over into Old Mexico, and laugh at their pursuers. The latter cannot stay there watching them and neglecting their own business. As soon as they retire the outlaws come back into New Mexico, and go to robbing and killing again."

One Touch of Nature.

A gentleman was going home at a late hour recently when he was suddenly confronted by a footpad, who, with his pistol pointed at his head, demanded his money. The gentleman assured the fellow that he had no money—that he had "been to a church fair." Before he could say more the rascal dropped his pistol, put it in his pocket, and presently took out his wallet, and, crushing something into the citizen's hand, said in grief-stricken accents, as he turned on his heel: "Been to a fair! Poor fellow! Take that—I wish it was more." He was soon lost in the night. Upon approaching a street lamp the gentleman found that the miscreant had given him a $10 bill. Verily, one touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

Water for Animals.

Many people seem to think that almost any sort of water will do for an animal to drink, and the filthy, stagnant fluid which some farmers depend on, even for their milch cows, is disgusting alike to the animal and those who use their milk. A horse or cow has just as much sense about drinking water as a man or woman, and we have seen a herd of cows travel a mile to get their drink from a clean, cool spring, passing by standing pools which ordinarily seem to be pretty fair drink. A horse will often go without water, when very thirsty, rather than drink from a pond or stream tainted with any pollution. And in the hot days, when men demand pure and cooling drinks, the poor beasts, who can only silently express their preferences, should have the best that can reasonably be procured for them. Better pump an hour for refreshing well water than force them to drink from the warm and reeking pools of the swamps. Put yourself in their places for the time, and see which you would prefer.—Exchange.

That Little Poem.

"I have a little poem that I tossed off in an idle hour the other day. What shall I do with it?" writes a young lady in Iowa. Go up on the roof and toss it off again, selecting a day when the wind is high. Perchance it may fall in waste places, and nobody ever be bothered by it.—Exchange.

The Sun Made of Metal.

In a recent article in the Nineteenth Century, by Mr. J. Norman Lockyer, the writer strongly objects to Dr. Draper's discovery of oxygen in the sun. Mr. Lockyer says he has gone carefully over the whole ground and finds: First, that the photograph on which Dr. Draper bases the discovery is not one competent to settle such an important question; second, that he does not find the coincidence between bright solar lines and oxygen lines in the part of the spectrum with which he is most familiar; and, third, that, comparing Dr. Draper's photograph with the fine photograph of the spectrum obtained by Mr. Rutherford, he "fails to find any true bright line in the sun whatever coincident with any line of oxygen whatever." Mr. Lockyer sums up the evidence as to the sun's composition in these words: "So far as our uncontented knowledge goes, the sun is chiefly made of metal, and on this account is strangely different from the crust of our earth, in which the metals are in large minority."

Zephaniah.

"ZEPHANIAH," said his wife with a chilling severity, "I saw you coming out of a saloon this afternoon." "Well, my darling," replied the heartless man, "you wouldn't have your husband staying in a saloon all day, would you?"

An Illinois youth, husking corn in a field near the railroad, saw a new locomotive, with a red smoke stack. He became frightened, and ran to the house crying: "That 'ere engine is going to bust, sure; it's red hot clean to the top of the stovepipe."

"Think! that explains where my clothes-lines went to!" exclaimed an Iowa woman, as she found her husband languishing in a stable.

A tall man having rallied a friend on the shortness of his legs, the friend replied: "My legs reach the ground—what more can you do?"

Legal Printing.

Persons having legal advertising to do, should remember that it is not necessary that it should be published at the county seat—any paper published in the county will answer. In all matters transpiring in this vicinity, the interest of the advertisers will be better served, by having the notices published in their home paper, than to take them to a paper that is not so generally read in their vicinity, besides it is the duty of every one to support home institutions as much as possible.

To Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of the paper only. No communication will be published unless accompanied with the real name and address of the author, which we require, not for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

All communications should be addressed to "THE HERALD,"
Chelsea, Washburn Co., Mich.

THE HABIT TO WORK.

There is scarcely anything of greater importance to a young man than that he should acquire early the habit of regular application to some pursuit. Many persons who are not of an indolent nature live on, from day to day, from month to month, from year to year without accomplishing anything worth while. They wonder that others are successful, and they are not; that others progress and they remain stationary.—The difficulty with them is that although they are not particularly averse to labor, they have never learnt to work to advantage. They have never formed the habit of regular, systematic application. Desultory and merely impulsive efforts are attended by very insufficient and unsatisfactory results. The first requisite is to know what you want to accomplish. Have some purpose—some plan. Then see to it that the sun does not set on a day in which something has not been done to carry forward that plan—to promote that purpose. Have, so far as possible, regular hours of work, and let no light interruption interfere with them. If you take a day's recreation, be sure that on the morrow you promptly resume your work, and give to it the benefit of refreshed strength and renewed vigor.

At the end of every week, regularly review your work. Consider just how much you have accomplished. If you are satisfied with what you have done, it will bring to you a feeling of repose and content. If you find you should have done more, than make sure that the coming week shall show an improvement on the past. Finally let nothing—no matter what—daunt or discourage you. Glory is a resolute and invincible will!

If all the young men now coming on the stage would scrupulously observe these instructions, what an increase of success and of happiness there would be!

The three servants were discussing the merits of their respective lovers. Susan was very sure that her's was the smartest and the best. Mary said her beau could dance, and he was a perfect gentleman. "Well, I don't care what you all say," spoke up Ellen, "my beau can beat them all for he sings base-ball in the choir."

A lawyer asked a woman in the witness-box her age, and she promptly replied: "Old enough to have sold milk for you to drink when a baby, and I haven't got my money yet!"
