

Notice.—All communications, local notices, and advertisements must be handed in on Monday of each week, to insure that week's publication. The above rules will be strictly adhered to.

Legal Printing.—Persons having legal advertising to do, should remember that it is not necessary that it should be published at the county seat—any paper published in the county will answer. In all matters transpiring in this vicinity, the interest of the advertisers will be better served, by having the notices published in their home paper, than to take them to a paper that is not as generally read in their vicinity, besides it is the duty of every one to support home institutions as much as possible.

To Correspondents.
Correspondents will please write on one side of the paper only. No communication will be published unless accompanied with the real name and address of the author, which we require, not for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.
All communications should be addressed to "THE HERALD,"

COMMUNICATION.

ARMOR, Otto Tail Co., Minn., Apr. 28, 1882.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—Dear Sir:—As I left your town a few months ago, and am prospecting in the northwest—thought I would write a communication to you for publication—as I have had several letters of enquiry in regard to soil and climate, etc. Hoping this will meet with your approbation, and trusting to you to correct grammatical and punctuation errors. I will write a brief sketch of the country in which I am stopping at present, commencing with an introductory from the northwest.

The rapid development of the new north west, has within the past few years brought into prominent notice the valley of the Red river of the north. This stream and the country it traverses, is possessed of many peculiarities. The peculiar course of the river and its tributaries, indicate vast and subtle changes in the economy of nature. What those have been, we shall not attempt to say; as we have only opinion and conjecture in the place of facts.

Some maintain that all that vast region now known as the Red river country, and which finds drainage through that stream to Lake Winnipeg, in Manitoba, thence on to Hudson Bay. Ages past, east its waters to the southeast, which found an outlet through the Minnesota to the Mississippi river, thence to the Gulf of Mexico. That through some volcanic action, or disturbing agency of nature, the surface of the country became so changed, as to turn the course of the waters in an opposite direction, and then it is thought by some—and with many conditions and circumstances to sustain the theory—that this great valley was a large lake of which the Minnesota river was the outlet—whatever the facts may be—that a vast region of wonderfully fair and fertile land is comprised in the Red river valley.

This valley extends from Lake Traverse on the south, to Lake Winnipeg on the north, a distance of nearly three hundred miles, and is from one hundred, to one hundred and fifty miles wide.

The Red river of the north, has its source in Elbow lake, in what is known as the Leaf hills of the "park region" of northern Minnesota, and not more than ten or twelve miles from Lake Itasca the source of the Mississippi, near the great water shed which sends the St. Louis river to Lake Superior, the Mississippi to the Gulf, the Red and Red Lake rivers to Hudson's bay. It is along the source of the Red that I have been stopping for the last few months, enjoying myself immensely as a sportsman. The rivers and lakes, swarm with myriads of ducks, geese and pelicans, and whose waters afford the finest fishing I ever saw. It is only a matter of a few minutes to get all the fish one can carry of the choicest variety, pike, pickerel, bass, white-fish, cat-fish, buffalo-fish and many other varieties. Chickens, ducks and geese are abundant. Deer, bear, Lynx and wolf are found in the timber.

The land is exceedingly fertile, the soil being sand and much mixed. The subsoil is sand, which some think to be objectionable, as the soil is more leachy than the subsoil was clay—yet the land has its advantages in some respects over the land west of here—from the reason that no matter how much it rains, the soil is not sticky and is ready for the plow as soon as it stops raining. The soil retains moisture to quite an extent. The soil is not generally considered to be as strong, as along the valley from Traverse, to Manitoba, and does not yield quite as much per acre. The country here is well timbered and well watered, and generally each farmer has his timber joining his prairie. The country is as well supplied with timber as old Washington, but of no such quality, yet good enough for all practical purposes, consisting of oak, elm, poplar, birch, maple, occasionally a tamarac. I have not seen an apple tree in the State, but have seen some good varieties of grapes, fully matured.

As we had no frost till the 1st of October last, small fruits grow in profusion over prairie and woodland. Vegetables of all kinds attain a large growth. Corn is a middling crop but does not compare with the corn of Washington. Potatoes are a good crop. Beans are a good crop, all I have seen were planted on breaking, and are put in by chopping into the sod and dropping them in the crevice made by the ax. They were quite remunerative this season, as they receive no care after planting, and bring $3.00 per bushel, they much more than pay for the breaking.

Wheat is generally good. The variety cultivated mostly is the Scotch fine variety.

yielding from 15 to 30 bushels to the acre, and is selling at present at $1.25. The winter variety of wheat is not cultivated to any extent. Spring wheat is the principal production and is easily raised. The farmer does his breaking in May and June, and the next spring this is sown to wheat. The farmer does his plowing on land, which has been broken a year or more, from August to October, or till it freezes up in the fall. This gives the farmer a chance for a large acreage of wheat as the plowing is three fourths of the work—they rarely drag the ground more than once before sowing, and this is done as soon as the frost is out of the ground, in the spring. Some farmers do not drag their ground at all before seeding, but the best results are generally obtained by the best cultivation. Oats yield as well as in Michigan. Barley yields better as a general thing—no clover is grown here. Timothy does well.

The climate although much colder than in Michigan—yet the air is so pure and dry—one does not feel the severity of the weather as in our native State. We had good sleighing all winter, and but little snow, the heaviest snow was March the first which was eighteen or twenty inches. We had no blizzards this last winter in this vicinity. The summer season is delightful we have no warm sultry weather, but a clear pure atmosphere, which makes it agreeable both to man and beast. The scenery is fine, being dotted with woodland, prairie and lake.

All along the Red river, from its source to Fergus falls, are forests of pine and hardwood timber, which is accessible to the Red, by the many lakes and its tributaries, by which large drifts of logs and lumber are annually floated to the manufacture and consumer along its rout.

The principal water power which is being utilized at present along the source of the Red, (although there are others equally as good), is at Fergus Falls, the county seat of Otter Tail Co., and also the division of the main line of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba R. R. This enterprising little town is the center of a fine farming country. Manufacturing is carried on quite extensively. Milling is the principal manufacture. At Fergus Falls it is said there is a gradual fall in the river of 85 ft., and in a short distance above and below there is a total fall of one hundred and fifty feet. The excellent feature of this stream is the uniform stage of water, which does not vary two feet from low to high water mark—although farther down its course it rises many feet—and this season flooded the valley in the vicinity of Fargo and did much damage to property.

This the "Park Region" is a fine country—this but a few years ago was direct from the hands of nature, peopled only by the savage who contended for its possessions, as the blanch bones and grinning skulls tell of the many hostile meetings of the Chippewas and Sioux. The former who to-day wander in unrestrained freedom from lake to lake, and down the streams in his bark canoe, down among the cultivated prairies, making his annual pilgrimage, to his "Omega" home of his childhood.

The Influence of Home.

What tender influence cling about the word home! What depths of human feeling are stirred by the bare mention of the word! Home is the place to which one ever turns instinctively in times of trial, of sorrow, or adversity. "Home is home, be it ever so homely," is one of the truest of homely phrases. Home should be a place of happiness; that is, such happiness as mortals may enjoy in this life; and when it is really so, how doubly precious and significant the term. Home is said to be where the heart is, and home is not home if peace does not dwell there, and tranquility and such influences as promote and strengthen the growth of virtue and the elevation of character. Home to us seems a real place of dwelling, not a temporary shelter; which may be changed every month; such is not the home one can turn to with strength of affection, and cling to as the foundation of character.

Home is the place with which we were familiar in the days of our youth, when we experienced the joys and sorrows, the mortifications and disappointments of childhood; where we were taught the principles which tended to exalt and strengthen character. The very nature of one's surroundings have the most powerful tendency over them, and the effect of scenery upon character is a noticeable feature in the history of nations. Those who dwell in certain localities partake of the nature of the country; it is inherent in their very being, and develop certain characteristics that impress all their after life. Much depends upon home discipline, the habits inculcated with tender years, the principles taught at the mother's knee, the impression made in such a way, at times of quiet thought and restfulness, are almost ineffaceable throughout all time.

Confidence in the home among the inmates is one of the firmest pillars of strength in the structure of the character of the young. The father and mother must have the confidence of the child, if they would keep him from the paths of evil, for however pure the home may be, evil exists outside, and the moment the child steps out from that home influence, he must meet it. It is for this the little child must be strengthened, and in no way can he be so well protected from, or helped in resisting evil, as by having the full confidence of the parents, to go to father or mother in any doubt, or when tempted to do wrong.

Cheap Living.

It seems a little curious to eat the solid trunk of a tree, but there is a tree in the East Indies which makes a very agreeable and wholesome food for thousands of people. The food is well-known in this country, though the tree itself is never seen, being the sago so often made into puddings and custards.

A full-grown tree is cut down close to the ground. A strip of the bark is then torn off, laying bare the pith, which is about as soft as dried apples. With a club of heavy wood, pointed at the end with sharp quartz rock, the natives cut out this pith, which is carried to the water-side, and being mixed with water, is kneaded and pressed against a strainer till the starch is dissolved and passed through the strainer.

The water holding the starch in solution is then passed through the trough, where the sediment is deposited, and the water is drawn off. It is then put in cylindrical cakes, of about 36 pounds weight, and sold as raw sago.

The raw sago, to prepare it for use, is broken up, dried by exposure to the sun, powdered and sifted. This flour is made into cakes, easily baked, which are very delicious if eaten with butter and a mixture of sugar and dried coconut.

The cakes are not only eaten hot, but are often dried in the sun, and put away in bundles for future use. They will keep good for years, it is said. Children are fond of them, even when hard and dry; but older persons generally dip them in water and toast them, when they relish as well as when fresh baked; or by soaking and boiling, make them serve as puddings, or in the place of vegetables.

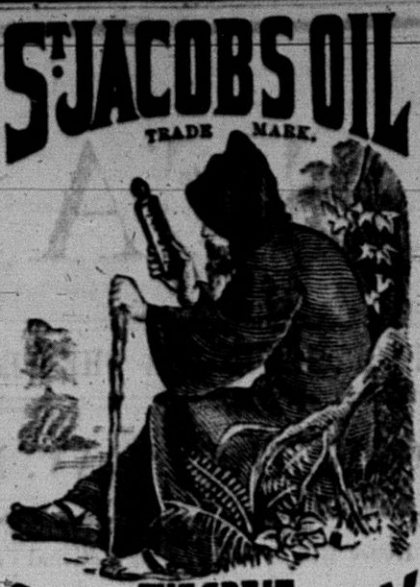

This food, as may be imagined, is extraordinarily cheap, costing much less than rice among the Hindoos, or potatoes among the Irish.

A good sized trunk of sago tree, 20 feet long, and 5 in circumference, will make at least 30 bundles of 30 pounds each. Each bundle, it is computed, will make 90 cakes, allowing 3 cakes to a pound; and 5 cakes are considered by the natives sufficient for a full day's food. A single good-sized tree will therefore furnish food for a native for an entire year, and many of them live upon it almost exclusively.

One needs to labor only a few days to secure this supply of food for the year. A man can reduce a tree to powder in 10 days, and a woman in the same time can reduce it all into cakes. By steady labor for 20 days, therefore, provisions may be laid up for a year. But such cheap living proves favorable neither to health of body nor of mind. A uniform diet of sago, varied only by fish, rarely by fruit or vegetables, is not good for the body, and the want of a stimulus to exertion is prejudicial to the character. What is not easily generally worth little; and the natives, having no occasion for physical toil or current thrift, have no force of character. Cheap food may be a curse instead of a blessing.—[Youth's Companion.

NAMING CHILDREN.—The names of Indians are sometimes so peculiar that people are made to wonder how the red men became possessed of them. That of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse, Man Afraid of His Horses, Red Cloud, etc., cause a good deal of thought to those who do not know how the names are given. The fact of the matter is that after a child of the forest is born the medicine man goes to the door and looks out, and the first object that attracts his attention is made use of to name the child. Suppose that the custom that is in vogue among the Indians should be in use among us, we would have, instead of George Washington and Hanner Jane, and such beautiful names, some of the worst jaw-breakers that ever was. Suppose the attending physician should go to the door after a child was born and name it after the first object he saw. We might have some future statesmen named "Red-headed Servant Girl with a rubber Bag of Hot Water," or "Bald-headed Husband Walking Up and Down the Alley with His Hands in His Pockets Swearing This Thing Shall Never Happen Again." If the doctor happened to go to the door when the grocery delivery wagon was there, he would name the child "Boy from Dixon's Grocery with a Codfish by the Tail and a Bag of Oatmeal," or if the ice man was the first object the doctor saw, some beautiful girl might go down to history with the name "Pirate with a Lump of Ice About as Big as a Solitaire Diamond." Or suppose it was about election time and the doctor should look out, he might name a child that had a right to grow up a minister, "Candidate for office so Full of Bug Juice that His Back Teeth are afloat," or suppose he should look out and see a woman crossing a muddy street, he might name a child "Woman got a Seal-skin Cloak and a Hole in her Stocking going Down Town to buy a Red Hat." It wouldn't do at all to name the children the way the Indians do, because doctors would have the whole business in their hands, and the directories are big enough now.—Peck's Sun.

Uncle Sam's Men.

Uncle Sam's letter-carriers are a hard-working set of men, and are liable to contract rheumatism because of the constant exposure to which they are subjected. Calling at the postoffice the reporter had a pleasant conversation with Mr. J. H. Mat-ter, one of the most popular and clever letter-carriers in Indianapolis. Mr. Mat-ter said that, while in the army during the civil war, he sprained one of his ankles, which was always worse in the spring during the period of the rapid changes in the weather. He did not find much relief from the several remedies he applied. But two years ago he hit upon St. Jacobs Oil, and experienced wonderful relief from its use. Several applications of the Great German Remedy relieved him entirely. The reporter talked with others among the letter-carriers and found that the Great German Remedy was popular in the post-office. They use it for sore feet, rheumatism, etc., and praise it highly.—Indianapolis (Ind.) News.

There is no end to improvements in Chelsea this year, you can look all over and you see a change here and a change there. Our village "dads" are laying a large sewer in front of the Chelsea House on Main street, and putting in eight inch hard tile. Keep on with the good work.

We are having frost mostly every evening for the past week. Mr. Hatch and several others who have strawberry patches have suffered more or less.

Decoration day next (Tuesday) May 30. It is to be hoped that Chelsea will hold that sacred day, by planting beautiful flowers and evergreens over the graves of their dear departed ones.

It is said that nothing opens the eyes of men so readily as their interest. If this be true, all interested in home decoration will be glad to know that J. Bacon & Co has a stock of The Sherwin-Williams Paints.

CARD OF THANKS.—I wish to return my sincere thanks to my many friends who so kindly aided in caring for me during my late sickness, and to those who ever stood ready to assist, I pay them my kindest regard for their many kind words said to me and my family through so many days of suffering and care, and to my physician Dr. Shaw, I could but pay the highest compliment.

HIRSH LIGHTHALL.

LEMONG TREES.—It is surprising that more persons do not grow these in pots and tubs as room ornaments. A comparatively young plant will grow from twenty-five to fifty lemons a year and usually they are much better than those we buy. We saw a test recently, where one was taken from a tree which yielded double the quantity of juice to a first-class store fruit.

The thumb, in China, is regarded as a better means of identification than the face itself. Celestial vagabonds are not photographed for a rogues' gallery, as in this country, but their thumbs are smeared with lamp-black and pressed down upon a piece of paper, thus furnishing a rude impression, which is carefully kept in the police records. A face may be altered, say the Chinese; but a thumb never changes.

The Michigan Central is continually seeking for improvements in its train service, and the passenger equipment of the road is not excelled by any line in the country. The latest addition made to the rolling stock is a line of new smoking cars, fitted up with easy spring chairs covered with fine leather and built after new and greatly improved designs furnished by the master car builder, Mr. Robert Miller, of Detroit, who has no superior in his line. The cars contain no patent heaters, and are finished on the inside with unique and handsome designs. They are also mounted on 42-inch pair wheels. These new smoking cars, new day coaches and new wagner drawing room cars, of which the day express trains are made up, make about the finest trains of cars that are run anywhere.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.—When a great burly-looking hulk of a man comes to your door, and insolently demands food, drive him away with the first weapon you can lay hold of. Scold him with hot water, shoot him in the legs with a revolver, club him with a billet of wood; do anything to make him understand that there is no use hanging about the premises. Nine-tenths of these tramps ought to be inmates of prisons, and the other tenth must expect to suffer for the company they keep by being starved with them. If you happen to have a good dog that knows how to bite, or the man of the house is haply at home, set either of them to the task of bouncing the tramp, and in a short time the members of this vagabond order will walk out of their way to avoid troubling you.

HOW TO MAKE AN EOLIAN HARP.—Wax a piece of buttonhole twist about two and a half feet long; tie each end strongly to a small peg and thrust the pegs down the crevice between the two sashes of your southern or western window, stretching the silk as tight as possible. It will surprise you with the sweetness and variety of the tones the wind will bring from it. Having done this you may be moved to go further and prepare a more elaborate Eolian harp. Take some "quarter-inch" wood and make a box the length of your window-frame, four or five inches deep and six or seven wide. Bore a few small holes in a circle near what will be the upper side of the back of the box when placed in the window with the open side of the box in front. To the upper side of the box fasten two bridges like violin bridges, one at each end, and stretch over them several strings of fine catgut, contriving a series of screw pins to aid in the tight tuning necessary, and allow of their being tuned to one note. Then raise your sash on the windy side of the house, and the sound passing through the holes and over the strings will in its rising and falling make very sweet music.

A $20.00 Bible Reward.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer ten valuable rewards to their Monthly for June, among which is the following: We will give $20.00 in gold to the person telling us which is the middle verse in the Bible by June 10th, 1882. Should two or more correct answers be received the reward will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner June 15th, 1882. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer for which they will receive the July Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published. This may be worth $20.00 to you; cut it out. Address—RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Penna.

How to KEEP EMPLOYMENT.—It is one thing to secure employment, and quite another to keep it. Why is it so many young men can not keep a place? Our reply is, first, because they are never ready to throw in an extra half-hour when it would be an accommodation; they do not try to make themselves useful and indispensable; they constantly watch the clock to see when the working hour is up, and leave at the instant, no matter what state work may be in; and they are not careful and do not try to save for their employer. Boys, remember, even if your employer does not mention anything to you, he watches your little acts of kindness and will reward you for them. If you are careless and indifferent, you will surely be the first to receive notice, when business becomes a little slack, that your services are no longer needed.

The Planets.

From olden time the planets have been objects of great interest to observing men. Their wanderings (The word planet means wandering.) Among the stars and their changes of position with regard to each other attracted attention in the very infancy of our race. One of them, an object of peculiar interest, is very likely to make its appearance in the west before the close of the present week, if the western sky should be free from clouds after sun-set. It will be the planet Mercury, seldom visible in this latitude, on account of its nearness to the sun and the relation of its orbit to the orbit of the earth. Copernicus is said to have lamented on his dying bed that he had never seen it. It will make its appearance very near the horizon, probably nearly under or somewhat to the right of the planet Venus, now so brilliant in the west; each succeeding evening a little higher, until it reaches its greatest eastern elongation, and when at its greatest brilliancy, from May 28th to June 1st, will fairly rival Venus in splendor. The writer, though always on the lookout for it, saw it last about 20 years ago. We hope a clear sky may favor us, and that all the citizens of Chelsea, particularly the students of the High School, may obtain a good view of the wonder.

SOLDIERS, ATTENTION!—Milo B. Stevens & Co., the well-known War Claim Attorneys, will be represented at Ann Arbor, Friday and Saturday, June 2, and 3rd, by their special agent, Frank I. Darling. Soldiers and others interested in claims for pension, increase of pension, or other claims, it is hoped will give him a call. Mr. Darling will be at the office of the County Clerk.

ELECTRICITY.—The probability that nearly every large town or city will soon be supplied with large quantities of electricity for lighting purposes, has given rise to considerable interest in the plan of making use of the same supply for producing power for light household work. Several small motors have been devised to meet the expected demand. The first of these little machines was constructed about three years ago by M. Marcel Deprez, and was found to work effectively. A second apparatus of this kind has for some time been used by M. Trouve, an electro-magnet being used in place of the permanent steel magnet of Deprez. This motor drives a sewing machine very readily, although it is of very small size. Trouve's little electric canoe at the Paris electrical exhibition was propelled by some of these engines, and M. Tissandier has suggested their use for balloon steering. The last and best motor is that of Mr. Griseom, the American electrician. One of these powerful little machines four and-a-half inches long, and weighing little more than two pounds, will run a sewing machine very rapidly with a small expenditure of electric energy. The lack of labor-saving conveniences in the household has often been deplored, but the introduction of electricity seems to offer source of power which may serve in many ways to lighten the toil of the weary housewife.
