occupied by Frank Glazier.

Washtenaw county has one hundred and sixty-six school districts.

Several young sparrows have been caught during the past week.

Wool will soon come in. How many buyers will there be in Chelsea?

the east line of Oak Grove cemetery.

Plaques have become so fashionable,
that several stores have them on sale.

Hard to beat:—Postmaster Crowell, and urday, and the merchants did a large business.

at this place has not, as yet, been injured
by lightning.

nesday from 10 o'clock A. M., till 5 o'clock
P. M. It's decoration day.

The storm of last week Monday, was probably the most destructive one that ever visited southern Michigan.

Judge Tatum delivered a forcible temperance lecture to a large audience, in the Town Hall, last Sunday evening.

J. P. Miller, who lives a few miles south has a 7-acre corn field that lies in three sections, viz: 13, 23 and 24. Next!

Wood Bro's have contracted for a clip
of washed wool at 30 cents per pound,
which will probably be the ruling price.

The Ann Arbor Register only (?) clipped eleven items of the HERALD of May 10th.
That's right brother, we're glad you read us.

Mr. Tim. McKune's large maple tree that we spoke of several weeks ago, is budding, and promises to live and still grow larger.

We don't know whether to feel complimented or not. One of our readers told us he liked the HERALD as well as he did the—Free Press!

The old Morris Sullivan "Mirror of Ireland" troupe, will present the play, "Shiel Agar," at the Town hall next Saturday evening, May 26th.

Guess our boss auctioneer—Geo. E.
Davis,—has got another trade, at least we saw him with a ten-cent brush, and a box of paint. How is it?

The Ypsilanti Commercial is now an all printed-at-home paper. We shall not be surprised if we see it use "patent insides"
again within two months.

Oak Grove cemetery has received its spring burning.

The ladies of the Baptist church have bought a new carpet.

The school yard has received its first

Praise is due our business men for the pains they take to keep their gutters clean.

Richard Hale spent a few days with his parents in Dansville the fore part of the week.

Glazier, DePuy & Co., and H. S. Holmes

know it pays to advertise.

sea will be well represented.

Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Whitaker, of Lima, will please accept our sincere thanks for a basket of very nice Golden Russet apples.

Judge Tatum organized a council of Royal Templars at this place last Saturday evening. We will mention the officers in our next issue.

U. H. Townsend certainly takes the "cake" on large, and early tomato plants.
He has some in his shoe shop that are over seven inches high.

The Dexter Leader now has a power paper cutter too. We congratulate you upon your new acquisition, and hope it will be as profitable and convenient to you as the one we have, has been to us.

The same teachers with but one exception, who are now teaching in the Union school, will teach there the coming year.
Miss VanTyne, of Charlotte, who formerly taught here, will fill the vacancy.

A rain storm, accompanied by severe thunder and lightning, visited this section last Saturday morning. The rain must have done considerable damage to plowed ground, as it fell in torrents for about half an hour.

The troupe which gives the entertainment in the Town hall next Saturday evening, have visited this place on two other occasions, and played two nights each time. The last time they were here, was about four years ago.

We are informed that the gutter around the McKune block will be laid as soon as arrangements can be made to do the work. This will be a great help to the parties who occupy the stores, and an honor to the owner of the block.

L. D. Loomis, the grocer, seems to take the lead in grocers' machinery, for, besides the coffee roaster, he has one of the finest dried beef cutters to be had. Ladies who want this kind of meat will not be obliged to sharpen the knife if they buy there.

The Rev. Joseph Cook will lecture in the University hall, at Ann Arbor, on Tuesday evening, May 29th, on "The Religious signs of the times." He lectures under the auspices of the Students' Christian Association. Admission, fifty cents.

The city of Charlotte is making an effort to have its charter so amended, as to make the property owner liable to the city for damages awarded parties against the city for injuries sustained by defective sidewalks. If every village or city's charter had a clause of this nature, there would be fewer poor sidewalks.

The Mayor, in behalf of the city officers, has challenged the County Clerk, in behalf of the county officers, to a match game of base ball. The challenge has been accepted, and the game will be played Saturday, the 26th of May.—[Register. As the Mayor is also a county officer, we wonder what his position will be!]

Chas. Wunder, the baker, has sold his building in the Chelsea House block, to Isaac Taylor, and about July first he will remove to more convenient quarters, but as yet has not decided where. The store recently occupied by Thos. Krick, would be a good location, and if it could be bought at a reasonable figure, he would probably purchase it.

Through the kindness of Dr. Champlin (who, by the way, is having good success in the treatment of lung affections), we were enabled a few days ago to view the acquaintance of Mr. Schulz, whose son Henry, aged 19, is quite sick, brought on by over work while attending college in Detroit.

Lydia Pinkham is dead.

The Ypsilanti Commercial has reached an important era, number 1000. The present editor and publisher sat up at the birth of number one.

A one-horse-wagon load went through this village last Thursday that consisted of eight kegs of beer, two boxes of beer, and four bags of grain. How is the proportion?

We think that farmers in the vicinity of North Lake, have reason to be proud of their farms, and the new Grange Hall also.
Several coats of paint would add greatly to the appearance of the latter.

Memorial-services will be held in the Town Hall next Sunday, May 27th, at 3 o'clock P. M., by the Rev. H. C. Northrup.
All know of Mr. Northrup's ability, and no doubt a large congregation will be present.

H. S. Holmes has a changed ad. this week that will be of special interest to farmers wives. It is about crockery, and as haying and harvesting time will soon be here, it will be to your interest to take advantage of the bargains he offers.

In another column will be found the ad.
of S. Seney & Sons, which should be read carefully by all who intend to buy machinery this season. They have the agency of several of the best makes of Engines, Sep-erators, Boilers etc., and can no doubt make it an object for you to call on, or write to them.

E. E. Shaver, the artist, a few days since showed us some very nice stereoscopic views of some of the prominent buildings in this village, among which we saw two of the school house, the Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches, and some private residences. Mr. Shaver is prepared to take views, and sell them at reasonable figures.

MR. EDITOR:—I see by your paper that Mr. Riggs, of the Wales Riggs farm will take boys over ten years of age and give them a good schooling, and also clothe them. As I frequently see boys with caps on, marked "Wales Riggs Farm," I should like to know where that noted place of learning is, and whether it is expressly for orphans?

The new spring bonnets! Great Augustus!
Poke in front and poke behind.
"Peek-a-boo!" bang up and bust us!
Old Dame Fashion's went it blind.

Was anything half so homely
In worlds above or worlds below?
Put it on, oh! maiden comely;
Gracious! goodness what a show.

Bang the front up! yank the strings tight!
Warp the sides like an old umbrella;
Sit on the back till you get the shape right,
There, now! don't that look like—sin?
—[Yonkers Gazette.

Strawberry shipments reached a climax last night, the total shipment being 50,000 pounds. This stupendous quantity is altogether unprecedented, and completely filled two cars, and one-half of a third. The berries were shipped to Cincinnati, New York and Philadelphia. A few went to Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Warren Dewees, the affable and industrious agent of the express company, worked like a beaver.

The above we clip from the Chatanooga Daily Citizen, of May 15th, handed us by Thomas S. Sears, to whom it was sent by Mr. Luther James, who is at present traveling in the south, for pleasure.

Study Your Own Interests.

In purchasing any article, there are things to be considered, which, if done in a proper manner, will result to the pur-chaser's own interest.

First, determine where you can find the best selection of goods you contemplate buying, second, take into consideration the responsibility of your respective dealers, and third, the reputation they may have
for handling reliable goods.

When you have done this, the problem is solved and you may rest assured your money will be better invested than if you allowed some dealer with a small stock to force upon you an article that you are not more than half pleased with, because it was all he had.

The force of this argument can be appreciated when it is taken into consideration that the dealer with the small stock,
must of necessity have the smallest trade.
His goods remain in his store longer, getting out of style and old. He buys fewer goods, consequently can not demand of the manufacturer the liberal terms obtained by the larger dealer, and from necessity is compelled to ask a larger price.

While these rules may apply to the purchase of all kinds of merchandise, there is no time when it will work more advantageously than in the selection of jewelry, silver and plated ware, for it is in these goods that the customer is looking for something to gratify a personal taste and he is more certain to find in a large stock JUST WHAT he wants, than in a small assortment.

It should therefore need no argument to convince our readers that they can serve their own interests best by patronizing Glazier DePuy & Co., at the Bank Drug Store when in need of jewelry or silver ware, watches, clocks etc.

Two new milch cows for sale.

Geo. E. Davis.

Wood Yard.

I have a large assortment of wood, which I will sell cheap for cash, only!

In explanation of the Tinham bill, which passed the house by a vote of 50 to 5, it may be said that it so amends act 53 of 1877 as to permit the collection of annual fees of $1 from male teachers and of 50 cents from female teachers who have not paid their fees on applying for certificates; and teachers who attend regular institutes and close their schools for the purpose shall not forfeit any portion of their wages on that account.

Eugene Angell's private bank at Lansing has closed its doors owing to a "run" occasioned by rumors that it was mixed up in the alleged shortage of $8,000 in the accounts of retiring City Treasurer E. B. Wood. Those supposed to know will say nothing, and rumors are so many and varied that nothing can positively be learned, save that Angell will probably resume. Wood has gone to Chicago, as his friends claim, temporarily.

The bill of Representative Howell, designed to prevent all persons not graduates of medical colleges, or physicians in reputable practice for at least five years in some county in this state, from acting as physicians or surgeons, has passed the House.

An important case was argued in the United States court at Grand Rapids, a few days ago by E. W. Meddaugh, A. B. Maynard, J. P. Whittemore and W. P. Wells of Detroit in the suit of Morris Richter vs. the Union Trust company of New York and the heirs of the late Dr. Ayer, the medicine man of Lowell, Mass. The suit involves the title to 200,000 acres of land in the upper peninsula. The case was submitted.

A conference of free traders under the auspices of the American Free Trade League is to be held at the Detroit Opera House, Detroit, beginning Thursday, May 31. As announced by the committee, the object of this conference is to "consider the best ways and means to convert the wicked," and all benighted ones, wandering on the treacherous sea of protection, will be guided into the safe harbor of "free trade" by such beacon lights as Henry Ward Beecher, DeWitt Talmage, and others. Hon. David A. Wells of Connecticut, will preside. The conference is to be entirely non-partisan, and it is expected that delegates will be present from every state and territory.

The legislature will adjourn June 9. The bill appropriating $75,000 for the Ionia House of Correction was taken up again a few days ago, and so much of the amount as was intended for current expenses was struck out. There was left but $7,500 for certain repairs and improvements, and with this amendment the bill passed. It was discovered by Senator Phelps that the law relating to the House of Correction passed in 1881, authorized the trustees to draw from the State Treasury such amounts for current expenses as might be needed, not exceeding $2,000 at any one time. This enactment is thought ample to cover any demands which the institution may be called upon to meet.

The head engineer of the Fruitport blast furnace at Grand Haven has his left hand torn from his arm while fastening the stuffing box to the engine. His name is James Flinger. His recovery is doubtful.

Gov. Bagole has voted the bill concerning cooperative, benevolent and beneficiary associations greatly to the disappointment of the friends of the measure. The bill was claimed to be a measure for regulating these societies, but under this bill the governor thinks more abuses would arise than now exist.

The college Y. M. C. A. at Hillsdale keeps files of religious and other papers on tables in the depot waiting rooms. Joseph Cook said, while there the other day, that it was the only provision of its kind he had seen the world over.

Branch county and municipal officers of Coldwater have gotten seriously by the ears. The sheriff had possession of a stolen horse awaiting what he supposed was the owner, when the city marshal and a policeman thought they had found the owner and in the absence of the sheriff took the horse away. The sheriff returned and forcibly took possession of the horse and started the rightful owner home with it, when the other officers immediately replevined it. Hot words ensued and the parties almost came to blows. A lawsuit will be entered to find out who is entitled to the reward.

Wood, the ex-treasurer of Lansing, has returned, and claims that he is all square with the city, having put up security for the certificates of deposit which were issued in his name by the bank.

Last winter the Grand Rapids common council passed an ordinance allowing boys to slide down hill on one specified city street. The boys slid down and ran against a valuable horse owned by the Rev. S. Buford, on December 14, and now the Rev. S. Buford asks the city to pay for the injury done to the horse, which was considerable, a long coaster loaded with boys striking his fore legs and disabling the animal. Mr. Buford's lawyer quotes to the common council the following extract from a decision by the supreme court of another state: "When a corporation in the attempted exercise of the power conferred upon it by law exceeds the authority so given and licenses the unlawful and dangerous use of a street for any purpose and an injury result therefrom without negligence on the part of the person injured, the municipality is liable to respond in damages to such injury." This question having never been covered by a decision of the supreme court of this state, the city attorney does not, in the absence of such decision, feel like advising the city to allow the claim. It is quite probable that a case will be made of this and taken to the supreme court for adjudication.

Miss Luella Stratton, of Vicksburg, was seriously injured by a horse kicking her in the jaw. She was teaching school northwest of town and boarding at Mr. Barlett's. They were baiting some of the young horses on the fresh grass when Miss Stratton went to the barn after one. As it came out a colt followed and the horse she was leading whirled and kicked, striking her in the jaw with such force as to render her insensible for several hours. Dr. Doolittle was sent for and found the jaw broken in two places, and the left side of her mouth cut open about an inch. He bound it up, but says she will have to take nourishment through a tube for two months.

Heavy Storm in Michigan.

From all over the state come reports of the terrible rain and wind storm which passed over the state on the 19th inst. At Mason, the roof on the Darrow block was blown off, frightening teams and causing three to run away. One horse was probably ruined by being severely cut by a piece of tin. The store house of the Mason Buffalo Robe Company was blown to atoms. There was but one man in the building at the time, who fortunately escaped. Fences were all blown down. Several orchards were damaged to quite an extent, and a large amount of timber was blown down. Several persons were slightly injured. The main force of the storm seemed to pass over the city. At Charlotte its course was in a northeasterly direction. It was nearly a quarter of a mile in width. The Arcade block, owned by A. H. Munson and D. P. Sagendorph, the finest block in that section, had its roof raised, and part of it blown across the street and otherwise damaged to the amount of $400. Mr. Hood's new dwelling in the western part of the city was moved six feet. The railing around the roof of P. Van Zile's brick house was torn off. The steeple which was being built on the new Universalist church was blown down and several wooden buildings destroyed. This was the worst storm that ever passed through there. Many people took refuge in cellars. No one was seriously injured. At Easton Rapids a severe wind storm, accompanied by rain and hail, blew the roof of the central school building partially off, and blew down chimneys in the first ward, building sheds on the fair grounds, signs, sheds and barns.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WHAT CONSTITUTES MINERAL LAND.
The Secretary of the Interior has decided that the mineral character of a township is determined by the character of the greater portion of it; that where a township has been reserved as mineral in character it raises the presumption that a tract situated therein which had been filed for as agricultural is mineral in character, and this presumption the agricultural claimant must overcome by affirmative proof.

THE FREEDMAN'S BANK.
The commissioner of the Freedman's Savings Bank and Trust Company has declared a final dividend of seven per cent. in favor of the creditors of said company.

REFERRED.
The Secretary of the Interior has referred to the Court of Claims for adjudication the claim of the Chickasaw Indians pertaining to the disputed disbursements made by the United States from the funds of said Indians and of certain alleged wrongful payments made from the trust funds of orphan and incompetent Chickasaws. The Secretary of the Interior also referred to the court of claims of loyal Creek Indians for losses alleged to have been sustained by them during the rebellion.

SHIPPING WHISKEY.
The Acting Secretary of the Treasury had a consultation recently with Clay, Collector of Customs at Newport News, Va., in regard to the exportation of bonded whiskey from that port to Bermuda. The Collector said the business was increasing to such an extent that additional help was absolutely necessary. Five thousand barrels of whiskey were now at that port waiting shipment, and he is informed that certain exporters, for whom a New York firm is acting as agent, expect to ship whiskey to Bermuda at the rate of 5,000 to 10,000 barrels a month. The first shipment will probably be made in a week or two. The vessel which has been engaged for the trade reached Newport News a few days ago. Under the regulations of the department of the treasury, the vessel must be gauged either alongside or on board the vessel in which it is to be shipped. Clay said his present force could only gauge about sixty or seventy barrels a day, and could not begin the work until the exporting vessel arrived. The Acting Secretary informed him that a force of gaugers from Richmond would be sent to his assistance.

A GOOD SHOWING.
Broadstuffs exported in April, 1888, were valued at $12,465,318; corresponding month last year, $9,908,159; exported for the ten months ending April 30 last, $179,733,948; same period last year, $157,619,737.

VACANCIES IN THE ARMY.
There are 60 vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant in the army, which will be filled by 49 graduates of West Point next month, four non-commissioned officers of the army who have passed the necessary examination, and four appointees. For the latter honor over 200 applicants are on the file in the war department. From the list the secretary of war has selected 10 names, which have been referred to the president, who will order that they contest by competitive examination for the four vacancies.

GRISHAM'S ORDER.
An order issued by Postmaster-General Grisham to supersede from October 1, 1883, section 26 of the regulations of 1879, directs that contractors must secure the permission of the Postmaster-General before making a sub-contract on any route. Applications to sublets must be made separately for each route and sub-contracts must be filed in the office of the Second Assistant Postmaster-General and specify the rate to be paid per annum under it in case the service shall be changed.

NEWS NOTES.
ON THE WAR PATH.
Information has been received from Helena, Montana, that the Cree Indians on preparing for a general war. The Cree seek revenge for the horses stolen from them from time to time.

Ex-Gov. Israel Washburn of Maine, died in Philadelphia, whether he had gone for his health, a few days ago. Israel Washburn, Jr., LL. D., was born at The Norlands, Livermore, Me., June 6, 1813. He received a classical education, mostly from private tutors, and studied for the bar, to which he was admitted October, 1834. He settled in December of that year at Orono, Penobscot county, where he soon had a large practice, which continued till his election to Congress in 1859. He was again elected to the four succeeding congresses. During the anxious and exciting period just preceding the civil war he took a prominent part in the discussions in congress, being one of the first, boldest and most influential in opposing the pretensions of the slave power and in arousing the anti-slavery sentiment of the country to its duty. In 1890 he was elected governor of Maine, and re-elected in 1891, his term of office covering the most laborious and responsible period of the civil war. Declining another election, he was in 1893 appointed collector of customs for the port of Portland. He was president of the board of trustees of Tufts college, Mass., and was elected president of the college in 1875, a position which he failed to accept. He was a member of several historical and genealogical societies, and in 1874 published "Notes Historical, Descriptive, and Personal of Livermore, Me." Many of his addresses and speeches on important subjects have been published and widely circulated, and he has contributed liberally to the periodical literature of the country.

WANTON WINDS.
Another of those fearful wind storms so common in the west passed over Missouri on Sunday the 13th inst. At Kansas City the loss is estimated at $300,000. About 50 buildings were blown down, and over 300 damaged. The path of the storm did not touch the business portion of the city, and the stores destroyed were those scattered throughout the residence portion. Three persons were killed, and thirty injured, some fatally. At other places in the state the storm was severe, the town of Orlin go being almost entirely destroyed, six lives lost, and thirty-three persons wounded; while at Mason five persons lost their lives and a number of others were severely injured. Telegraph wires were blown down, and railroad communication cut off because of timbers being blown across the track.

CHOCTAW TALK.

By a treaty of 1896 between the Federal Government and Confederate Indians the Choctaws and Chickasaws agreed to emancipate and give the usual rights to colored people in their dominion in two years, for which the United States was to give them $300,000, and if they failed to adopt them in that time the money was to be used to remove and settle the darkies elsewhere. The Choctaws failed to adopt them, and the government to move them, and there have been there ever since without either citizenship, rights or title to the land they work. For the purpose of bringing this about a council of Choctaws was held recently, and measures adopted looking to the speedy consummation of this plan.

A LAND MARK GONE.

The Ten Eyck Mansion, Whitehall road, near Albany, N. Y., was destroyed by fire recently. It was built 170 years ago by Gen. Bradstreet who made the house the headquarters of the Tories during the Revolution.

WANT PROTECTION.

The Pekin government has decided to establish a consulate at Chicago to consist of one American and one Chinese, who will protect the rights of the subjects of the Celestial Empire. The Chinese in Chicago claim that the authorities have raided their resorts indiscriminately, thus punishing the innocent for deeds of which they were not guilty.

THOMPSON TRIUMPHANT.

The trial of Phil. Thompson at Harrodsburg, Ky., for the murder of Davis, ended in the acquittal of the defendant. When the jury came in with the verdict the defendant sat between Col. Jacob and his father. When the court asked the jury if they had agreed on a verdict the foreman responded "We have," and being asked what it was, slowly said: "We, the jury, find Phil B. Thompson, the defendant, not guilty as charged in the indictment." Then came a shout and men rushed forward to congratulate the defendant. During the confusion the voice of Phil. Thompson, Sr. was heard saying: "Thank God, Kentucky wives can now be protected." The court discharged the jury and adjourned the court.

DAKOTA'S CAPITAL.

The bids opened by the commissioners on the location of Dakota's capital, at Canton, D. T., recently were as follows: Aberdeen, $100,000 and 160 acres of land; Canton, the same; Frankfort, the same; Huron, the same; Pierre, $100,000 and 250 acres of land; Bismarck, $100,000 and 320 acres of land; Mitchell, $100,000 and 160 acres of land; Redfield, $100,000 and 240 acres of land; Ordway, $100,000 and 320 acres, and 160 acres for depot purposes. Odessa gives $200,000 and 160 acres of land. Steele sent a check for $100,000 and a deed for 160 acres of land. An informal bid from Washington was received, and a bid of $1,000,000 from Sioux. Gentlemen from various localities made addresses in behalf of their respective towns. The commission adjourned without making the award.

OVERWORKED CHILDREN.

An investigation into the management of some of the Chicago cigar shops, reveals the fact that young girls are obliged to work from 6 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening, for the begrudging sum of three dollars per week.

KENTUCKY'S CANDIDATES.

The Democratic state convention of Kentucky nominated for governor Hon. J. Proctor Knott, and Capt. James K. Hindman for lieutenant-governor.

A CHICAGO MISSIONARY.

Mr. J. H. Saunders of Chicago, a member of the United States treasury cattle commission, has gone to Europe on a special governmental mission. It is understood his trip has particular reference to restrictions now imposed upon our export cattle trade with Great Britain and to our pork trade with Germany and other European countries. He is also under instructions to examine into and report upon the dangers from contagious and infectious diseases to which our live stock is exposed by further importations from European countries; to visit and report upon the international live stock show, to be held in June next at Hamburg, and to make a general survey of the live stock interests of Europe, as compared with our own, under direction of the commissioner of agriculture.

BEYOND THE REACH OF LAW.

Chas. F. Kring, whose remarkable success in fighting the law and escaping punishment for the murder of Dora Bremner, in St. Louis, Mo., eight years ago, has been written up and published time and time again, and who was released from prison on bail about three weeks since under a decision of the United States Supreme Court, has since died at St. John's Hospital in St. Louis of internal hemorrhages.

CHINESE CHASTISEMENT.

Chinese laborers on the railway near Lytton, B. C., beat their foreman and three other white men with shovels. At night an armed band of whites proceeded to the Chinese camp, burned it, beat and shut the inmates, killing one man and injuring several others. It is said that the white laborers along the line of railway are organizing to resist the aggression of the Chinese.

STEAMER DISASTER.

The steamer Granite State took fire when below Goodspeed landing, 80 miles below Hartford, Conn., on the Connecticut river. The fire started in the forward part and spread with fearful rapidity. The engineer struck with his post and headed the boat toward the dock, although his clothing and hair were on fire. A ferry boat came alongside and the passengers made a wild rush for their lives. But five lives were lost, as follows: Mrs. C. L. Maine, of New Haven, on a bridal trip; jumped to the water and drowned. Her husband jumped with her, caught the paddle wheel and was saved. The second cook (colored), Wm. Jackson, a young German unknown, and a fleshy man unknown, were also lost. Several others are missing. The books were destroyed and the vessel burned below the water's edge. Nine valuable pacing horses were burned to death. The vessel was loaded with kerosene.

CAR SHOPS BURNED.

The cabinet, upholstering and paint shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, contained in one building 400x175 feet, located on the meadows between Jersey City and Newark, N. J., were totally burned. The shops contained three Pullman coaches, one of which was saved badly scorched, eighteen passenger coaches, Eastlake design, three locomotives, six tenders and a vast quantity of paints, cushions plush and other car fittings. The watchman got freight engine 449, but was unable to save engine 537, and a large locomotive owned by the New York, West Shore & Buffalo Railway Company. The loss is estimated as follows: On the building $80,000; two Pullman coaches, $52,000; two locomotives, $24,000; eighteen passenger coaches, $14,400; six tenders, $2,000; total, $132,000. To the above must be added material and fittings, the value of which will not fall short of $100,000; total, $232,000. The company has a large reserve for meeting fire losses. Nearly five hundred men are thrown out of work. The company will rebuild at once.

A FAMILIAR FACE GONE.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, whose face is so familiar to newspaper readers, and whose name has become a household word all over the country, died at her home in Lynn, Mass., recently.

AN OLD SOLDIER GONE.

Martin Talele, aged 90, died at Lock Haven, Pa., recently. He served in Napoleon's war. It is believed he is the last of the One hundred and forty-ninth regiment. In 1880 he received a gold medal from the last of the companions of Napoleon while in exile on Helena. The medal is dated St. Helena, May 5, 1821.

Wicked Winds.

A cyclone passed over Racine, Wis., May 18, passing through the extreme northwestern portion of the city, demolishing 180 houses and barns, and causing a loss of life of about twenty. Besides 100 more or less seriously injured. The day was ushered in bright and cool, with a fresh wind blowing from the southeast. Towards noon the sky was overcast and about 4 o'clock a sharp electric storm prevailed, although but little rain fell. The sun again came out for about an hour. During the afternoon the temperature rose about twenty degrees and about 6 o'clock, when heavy masses of clouds which again gathered in the west, portended a storm, the air was oppressively warm. The cyclone was announced by a break in the clouds, which took on a whirling motion and struck the earth with a noise which might be compared with the roar and rumble of a thousand and railroad trains thundering over a bridge. The path of the storm is little over half a mile long and perhaps a quarter of a mile wide. All brick and frame buildings alike collapsed, and their sites are marked only by heaps of formless debris. Many occupants of houses escaped by seeking cellars and other places of comparative safety, but the cyclone came with such lightning quickness that many were killed before reaching the cellars. In only a few cases were houses moved from their foundations. Those in the center of the storm-path simply exploded and fell in ruins. It is reported some light articles, such as wagons, were swept into the air upon the waters of Lake Michigan, the cyclone, as it moved, from the city sent a grand spectacle, such as is seen but once in a lifetime. The whirling columns of air seemed monster wreaths of smoke as they whirled over the waters expanse, bearing with them spiral columns of water. No ship that encountered this monster of the air could by any possible escape destruction. Channing, Harvard and Belvidere, Ill., were also visited on the same day. In all these places considerable property was destroyed, and several lives lost.

LATHS.

The cyclone that devastated the beautiful city of Racine, Wis., was the most terrible ever witnessed in that section, and the scene of desolation and misery at that place is beyond description. The list of the dead will reach about 25, and 100 are more or less injured. The loss to property and farm stock cannot be told, for much has been destroyed that money can never replace. The cyclone visited other points in Wisconsin, and also Duluth, Minn., and Morgan county, Illinois, killing a number of people and destroying thousands of dollars worth of property. It is a pitiful sight in all these places to see the homeless ones, whose little all has been taken from them.

CRIME.

LYNCH LAW.

D. C. Hutchins, who murdered William H. Lyon at the ferry landing in Bossier Parish, opposite Shreveport, La., while being conveyed to Bellevue jail was taken from the guards by a crowd of 75 or 100 men and hanged in the woods. As soon as Hutchins saw the masked men coming he pulled a huge dirk-knife from his pocket and stabbed himself three times near the heart. After hanging him the following placards were pinned to the body: "There is a point where forbearance ceases to be a virtue.—Citizens." "Fettermans (both of you) never return; if you do you will follow this desperado and thief." The two Fettermans keep stores on the opposite side of the river and are in some way mixed up with Hutchins and the murder.

A PRACEMAKER'S BLESSING.

At Ashland, Mo., while a man named Hull was quarrelling with his wife about whipping one of their children, a lady neighbor interfered in the interest of peace, which so exasperated Hull that he struck her on the head with a brick, killing her instantly. The murderer fled and has not been captured.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

THE MANOMAN'S HOPE.

Joe Brady, the first "Invincible" convicted of participation in the Phoenix Park murders, was hanged on the 14th inst. in Dublin. An immense throng assembled outside the jail, but only officials witnessed the execution. Masses were said in all the Catholic churches in Ireland on that day, for the repose of the soul of the doomed man. Contrary to the expectation of many, Brady made no statement on the scaffold.

FRIGHTENED TRADESMEN.

The tradesmen of Dublin are greatly excited over a circular which has been sent them. The title of the document is "An analysis of the special jurors on eighteen trials under the crimes act." With the circular was a slip of paper with these words: "Woe to you if you have any of the goods of these jurors, for you and likewise they, will have the blood and suffering of innocent people on your heads. By Hook or Crook."

THE COST OF ORDER.

The canal company at Panama have been warned that they must pay the expense of keeping between 2,000 and 3,000 men on the isthmus to maintain order. The Minister of the Treasury estimates that the cost thus imposed on the company during the fourteen years contract for the completion of the canal will amount to $7,000,000, and might even reach $10,000,000 or $13,000,000.

A PEACE TREATY.

A treaty of peace between Chili and Peru has been confirmed.

A COMPLIMENT.

For variety and completeness of illustration, the American exhibit at the international fisheries exhibition, is said to be unsurpassed.

FITZGERALD'S FATE.

Ann Arborites are in a quandary as to the year of their great fire.

A Pinckney firm is shipping butter to Dakota, and has orders for all it can get.

Mrs. David Mandt of near Bridgewater, has a plate that she has used for nearly forty years.

It seems rather early in the season to cut corn, but last Thursday Dr. Chase cut George Crane's corn, taking with it the whole little toe on the left foot.—[Leader.

A late decision of the post-office department is to the effect that a letter after being sent, can be re-called by the sender upon his making application to the postmaster, who has authority to recall by telegraph.

J. D. Allison, of Pittsfield, has succeeded in raising two perfect and well developed chickens from one egg—a large double yolked one—this season, and has the chickens on hand, alive and well, to convince all doubters.—[Saline Observer.

The new flight of stairs leading from the clerk's office to the floor above, in the court house, is in place, and insurance companies are now willing to take risks on the lives of men who are obliged to come down from the court-room that way.—[Register.

A. G. Peters, of Scio, sheared his flock of sheep last week. The best yearling buck sheared 17½ pounds, and weighed before shearing 120 pounds. The balance of his stock of yearlings sheared from 14 to 16 pounds. One two-year-old buck sheared 22½ pounds.—[Dexter Leader.

Ninety-four, nearly one-half of the villages of the state may now have local option if they wish it, and through their council suppress saloons for the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors. Brooklyn, Grass Lake, Saline, Clinton, and even Manchester has the right but she won't use it.—[Enterprise.

No tidings have been received from the two little boys, Edward, aged 11, and Louis, aged 9, sons of Charles L. Lutz, harness maker. They left home on Saturday April 28th. The older boy ran away once before, going to an uncle in Freedom. A step-mother probably explains the situation.—[Argus.

An exchange says: If people would purchase green coffee and brown it in their houses, there would be fewer cases of diphtheria, scarlet and typhoid fever. The aroma arising from the browning berry is one of the best agents for disinfecting dwellings of impure air. It is easier to buy coffee already browned than to prepare it, but the preparation once a week saves health and doctor bills. The doors should be left open and let the aroma pervade every room."

On Friday last, Mrs. Geo. N. Hammond sent us a half a dozen eggs, laid by one hen inside of three days, which we have never seen beaten for size. Two that we measured, weighed 3½ ounces each, and measured 8x6¼ inches in their circumferences. Each of the others weighed within half an ounce of the largest, and measured in proportion. The only noticeable feature about them was the thinness of the shell, as the one we broke was single yolked and natural every way.—[Ypsilantian.

In the issue of May 7, '82, of the Michigan State Journal, a file of which is in the possession of the Pioneer Society, appears a notice of the apportionment of primary school money for that year. The total amount for the state is given at $15,489, a sum less than that which Washtenaw county alone receives this year. The amount apportioned to our county was $1,808, of which Ann Arbor town received but $24.72. The number of scholars in the township at that time was nearly

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE

In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Ross' Patent Gold Watch Cases this waste is saved, and SOLIDITY and STRENGTH increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID GOLD is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth, by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler.

Mr. J. H. Hubbard was appointed (in the will) as administrator of the Mrs. Marsh estate, and D. Finch and O. Gorham were appointed appraisers by the Probate Judge, and they appeared Saturday afternoon and appraised the property which consisted of real estate and household goods.

LITERARY NOTES.

Several of the pictorial features of the June Century are of uncommon interest, like the frontispiece portrait of Tennyson after Woolner's bust, and the other full-length pictures in the profusely illustrated paper by Edwin W. Gosse on "Living English Sculptors." Also Severn's sketch of Keats in his last illness, accompanied by a sonnet by Miss Edith M. Thomas, and a portrait of the artist-friend Severn of descriptive interest, beside, are the sixties or seventeen cuts which reinforce H. H.'s concluding paper in her history of the ruin of the Franciscan Missions in California, and the illustrations with Geo. W. Cable's account of the commercial growth of New Orleans since 1814, under the title, "The Great South Gate."

Mr. Howells, in the sixth part of "A Woman's Reason," assists the hero and heroine to make up their quarrel, and introduces a shipwreck, perhaps to show that "moving accidents by flood and field" are not incompatible with his views of novel writing.

There are many other very interesting articles, but for lack of space we can not mention them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

ANOTHER mountain summit is to be conquered by steam the coming summer, provided Secretary Teller permits the construction of a cable tramway up Pike's Peak—a government reservation. The line will start from Manitou, and it is supposed that the summit, 14,200 feet away, can thus be reached in three hours. A stock company has been formed to carry out the project with a capital of $200,000, of which one-half has been subscribed, and it is said that work will begin as soon as permission is received.

WHATEVER motive may be at the bottom of Butler's remarkable zeal, or whatever phase of the question politicians may choose to consider, one thing is certain: the stir created by Benjamin in his "reform" is a new experience for the old Bay State. From present indications his reform is not to end with Tewksbury almshouse, for after he is through with the nastiness developed at the Tewksbury "tannery," the Industrial School for Girls and the State Insane Asylum will be shown up. It may be a question whether these searching examinations are to enhance his own glory or to promote the interests of the people, but so far the "charity" of Massachusetts has been shown to be naught but a "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal."

THE supply of salmon in the Columbia river, Oregon, is becoming so rapidly depleted as to seriously threaten the fishing and canning industries of that section and deprive lovers of salmon of their favorite fish. In fact, unless some action is taken toward increasing the supply of fish, the destruction of all the canneries is inevitable. Of course the only way this is possible is by prohibiting fishing for salmon for a certain period, or by "planting" three or four million young salmon each year, and of the two plans, the latter seems the wiser course to pursue. The people of Oregon are unwilling to go to the expense of this, and so long as it is the proprietors of the canneries who derive the most profit from this industry, it would seem that they ought to be willing to bear the expense, which would be, but trifling to each of the forty canneries engaged in that business. The salmon catch this year will be unprecedentedly light, and it would be the part of wisdom to begin the work of replenishing the rapidly diminishing supply at once.

A BILL regulating the control of insane asylums, which has been pending in the Pennsylvania legislature, has at last passed both houses and been signed by the Governor. The bill is most humane in its provisions, placing, as it does, a safe-guard over those who, though sane, are sometimes confined in asylums, even in this enlightened land, and also over those who are rightfully confined there, but improperly treated. The bill provides that all places where the insane are kept for a compensation shall be subject to a board of charities, and be governed by rules and regulations adopted by that board. Books are to be kept, and everything about these institutions are to be open for inspections not only by officials but by the friends of the patients confined in them. The measure was hotly contested in its passage, and bitterly fought by superintendents, whose power has hitherto been almost absolute. Violations of any of the provisions of the bill are to be punished as misdemeanors, and the whole bill commends itself to reformers every state.

DR. MARY HOWARD, an American woman doctor, is creating quite a stir in social life in China. She attended the mother of Prince Li, Hung Chang, and although she did not save her life, she showed so much skill that she was called in to treat the wife of the great minister. From all parts of North China letters from the wives of mandarins and high officials letters are pouring in on her to come to them or to send other wise women from America. Eastern women of rank die with obscure diseases rather than submit to operations performed by male surgeons. An American physician who spent some time in Turkey was called in to prescribe for the wife of the Bey ill with typhoid fever. The patient was wholly covered with a sheet in which one hole was cut large enough for him to put his fingers in to feel her pulse, and another through which she thrust her tongue. Dr. Howard has been loaded not only with fees by her grateful patients, but jewelry, furniture and priceless curiosities enough to stock a bric-a-brac warehouse. Go East, young woman, go East!

THE most extraordinary and interesting subject brought before a Vienna clinic for many years was that of a little girl living in the city, Kleinmuller by name, and eighteen months old. The Vienna Neue Freie Presse reports the case with such evident fidelity that its truth must be accepted. The girl had shown for several days an utter aversion to food, and her mother finally took her to the general clinic for examination. The professors, perceiving that it was no common disorder, and ascertaining from the mother that the child on the night of March 13 had awakened suddenly with a loud scream from sleep, and continued in great pain for fourteen hours thereafter, determined to employ the gastroscope and explore her stomach with the aid of electricity. Not to enter into rather unpleasant details, they soon found the cause of disturbance, and extracted a mouse, minus the tail, which was subsequently removed. The only possible conclusion is that the mouse ran into the open mouth of the sleeping child, and down her gullet. Her immediate recovery was confidently expected.

SUNDAY, May 27th, is the day set apart for the Czar of Russia to clasp on his crown. Never in the history of Russia were such extreme precautions taken to prevent trouble as at the present time, and if these precautions avail anything there can be no doubt of a successful termination of the ceremonies. Moscow has for several days been under police and military guard. All cellars and store-houses are carefully searched for explosives, and the stranger must give a pretty clear account of himself before he is allowed to proceed. The magnificence of the coronation, as learned from the dispatches, will surpass anything ever witnessed, even in the long list of lavish autocrats of the old world. For what does it matter to his imperial majesty that the millions of roubles necessary to pay for this display are cruelly wrung from a poverty-stricken people? That in order to clear the way for this display, scores of lives have been sacrificed, and hundreds of others have been forced to leave home and all that was dear to them, and wear their lives out in far-off Siberia, the rights of manhood denied them, and sent forth branded as exiles.

OCCASIONALLY in the last ten years attention has been called by the Eastern press to the steady decadence of farming in New England and the falling off in the value of farming land, especially in Vermont and Massachusetts. But the real state of things is probably not fully understood by the public elsewhere. It is surprising to read in the Providence Journal that a farm of 160 acres with a comfortable house and barn is offered for sale in one of the towns of western Massachusetts for $800, and that this is by no means extraordinary or accidental, but a fair indication of the governing price of such property. The simple fact seems to be that, except in special cases, the rocky soil of New England requires a greater amount of labor every year and gives less and less returns. The profits of farming are below those of any other pursuits and still decreasing. Rural New Englanders have little advantage over Western farmers in the markets owing to the low rates of transportation. This man who wants to sell his farm for $800 can go to the Northwest, buy a quarter section of fertile land and realize more money than from his old place, with half the labor and expense.

About Peter Cooper.

The following account of what the life of the late venerable Peter Cooper covered, is furnished by "Gath," the New York correspondent. It shows that Mr. Cooper witnessed in his life more than any other man living in the present generation, and his life covered a remarkable period in the history of the country. Every one of the remaining body servants of Washington could hardly furnish such a record: "He had seen the whole epoch of steam in this country, and was nearly a man when Robert Fulton set the first steam-boat going on the North river, and was quite a man when Fulton's steam ferry began to operate to Brooklyn and New Jersey. He had seen all the convulsions of transportation, from Livingstone, Clinton, Fulton and Stephenson to Thomas Scott, Vanderbilt, Gould and Huntington. He had seen the majority of the American States arise and be born and takes names and enter the Union. He had lived in the administration of every American President. Vermont entered the Union the year he was born. He was a year old when Kentucky was admitted. He probably could read when Tennessee came into the Union. He was 11 years old when Ohio was admitted, and 21 when Louisiana came in. He was a married man when Indiana presented herself, and 27 years old when Illinois appeared."

How Much of the Doctrine of Evolution Beecher Believes.

"Many men, who believe in churches, say that it is a matter of grave doubt whether all natural phenomena cannot be accounted for by secondary causes. They read the works of Darwin, Spencer, Huxley, Tyndall and others. These writers have a clear style, and their utterances are frank and manly, not in the little sugared cooky style of religious discussion. I admire these writers. I have read them for years and years. Forty years ago I was inoculated with the doctrine of evolution. I found it in the Bible, and after scientific men accepted it I gladly accepted it. I hold it to-day more strongly than ever. I believe it will give Christianity more power than it has ever had, and more volume. But I do not accept all the grand principles of writers on evolution. The age is much indebted to Herbert Spencer for his study and presentation of the whole history of creation. On certain deep and subtle principles I differ with him, and not more in anything than in regard to agnosticism. I do think God is knowable, with proper limitations. If things in this world are evolved from foregoing elements, where did the force come from? Or the elements themselves? If a type can be traced back to the lowest form, where did that first form come from? Did natural law produce itself? Is nothing more powerful than something?"

"It is not the same to ask where God came from. All material phenomena have causes, but in the region above matter the law is not the same. The law of cause and effect is in our cognition, and we must think that a creative force caused material things to be as they are. Much difficulty has arisen from the overpositiveness of theology. Its teachers overleap the bonds of the Scriptures. They have been supremely egotistical in their knowledge. Theology is voyaging from the icebergs of the north to the warmer waters of the south. The sacred Scriptures are modest as compared to theology. They present God as unknown and unknowable. No man can bound God. Such knowledge is not possible to him. The scope and grandeur of God cannot be grasped by the limited faculties of man. The animal development is first bodily and then cerebral. The eye of an eagle is far beyond the eye of the man, but his mind is far lower. The lion is far stronger than man but does not know as much. But man as an animal is first developed. In brain development there are both inferior and superior developments. The lower animals can only be trained in a very narrow limit. The dog cannot be taught anything about powder or the bird just shot. A horse is sagacious, but ask him what he would do in a time of dynamite revolution and he would say, 'neigh,' and canter off to the wilderness."

"There is an impassable gulf between the lower animals and man. In the human family there are grades, and the inferior in man or other animals cannot understand the superior. It is the same as to man and the power above him. He cannot understand. If we are told God is infinite we can only know that he is, but we cannot know what infinite is. Some men we find with the power of knowing and seeing things far beyond ordinary power. This power gives just a faint and remote conception of God's power. All the powers of men must be with a far wider scope in God Himself, with wonderful radiance of taste, love and grace. It gives such a magnitudinous idea of God that no man can grasp it as cognizable. In any large sense God is unknowable. No man can sail round Him. It is not to be expected that men should know Him as they know each other. All of the problems of the mind cannot be wrought down to the tests of the senses. By obedience to God, He may become personally known as far as our faculties admit. We are going toward the full and perfect knowledge, in the light, glory, honor and love of the world beyond, where we will be forever with the Lord."

In a sermon on "Pain as an Educator," Mr. Beecher said that pain and sorrow were God's ministers, school-masters and police. They were vital to aid in evolving men. Men must be drawn up and thrust up. The former was done by joy and the latter by pain. Other animals than men suffer little. Their nervous systems were of a low grade, and there was no need of suffering to educate them. The calf needed no instruction to become an ox or a bull of Bashan; he knew it all at first. But a baby has to learn. As the faculty of pleasure increases, so the susceptibility to pain increased. The process of human education went on to old age. Pain was a good thing that was perpetually lifting men; it was not punishment, but education.

There are said to be 100 practicing young lawyers in New Haven, Conn., whose income does not average $15 per week.

A BELL-BUYER'S SECRETS.

Distinguished Hotel Guests and Their Peculiarities.

From the Chicago News.

"Front, take the gentleman's card to parlor." A bell-boy, with hair the shade of shucks in the fall, went on the gallop with the silver plate, at the mandate of the diamond-decked clerk, of the Palmer. "A bell-boy in a hotel," said the clerk "has some chance to get a start if he understands his business. You ask that kid, on whom you have spent your sympathy, how much he makes. If he could be induced to tell the truth he will give you a good story."

It required a retainer to induce the chuck-haired youth to recover from his embarrassment, and then he wanted to begin by saying where he was born, and shed a tear over the early trials of his people. When he had passed all the mile-stones, he came down to the story. Sometimes he made as much as $12 a week on the outside. Ten dollars was a cold weather week, and no bell-boy who couldn't make that much in a first-class hotel in seven days, outside of his pittance of a salary, never rose to be a floor-walker or a steward.

"What's the name of that old man from down east—that fellow who was vice-president, or something of that sort, for half an hour down in Washington one day?" The boy recognized the name of Senator Bayard. "It seems to me," he resumed, "that he is a pretty old one to be so far away from home just for a frolic. He must want something mighty bad." The listener sought to soothe the apparent unjust opinion of the urchin by remarking that Senator Bayard might be President some day. "It'll be a cold day when he is," the boy replied with promptness. "He hasn't spent a cent since he's been here. There hasn't been a ring of his bell since he went into his room. I've made a dozen trips there to-night with cards and things and I never got a glimpse of him. I never heard nothing from him but once. Then he came to the key-hole and said he didn't want to be annoyed any more, if he was he would get up and go to another tavern."

"Yes," resumed the boy, or, more properly man, for what had been at first a boy had developed into maturity. "I've waited on a good many big ones, and had chances to study 'em so that I can size up a man almost by the way he rings. The daisy men to wait upon are Mr. Ingersoll—I never would call him Bob—and Jere Black. I remember one time I made a run on Jere Black's room, and he says, 'How much did I give you on the first run?' 'Fifty cents,' 'Well,' says he, 'here's a $150.' He seemed as if he meant it when he gave it, and I put that in the bank just as I got it from him, and it's there yet. Mr. Ingersoll treats me more as I was brought up to believe Christians act than heathens. He always shakes hands with me, and talks with me, just as though I was necessary to him. 'Pon my soul, it always makes me feel mean to take any change from him. I am always winner at the rate of two and a half a day when he comes where I am. I wish they would put Black for President and Mr. Ingersoll for Vice President. They'd ketch 'every hotel vote in the country.'"

The boy went on another run, and when he returned he seemed to have been attacked somewhere on the road with "dyspepsia." It makes me sick to have to go on a run for a woman's ring," he began. "They never want anything except something from a drug store, or a magazine, and when you bring 'em back the change they look it over, and count it, and look at it, as if they wanted to say, 'how much did you steal?' There's one woman—I should say lady—who is an exception—that's Mrs. Logan, wife of the Senator. She beats him all hollow. She never rings when she is in a hotel unless she wants something, and every ring she gives is worth a half case. I would vote for Senator Logan if he was running for President, on account of his wife, Miss Logan."

"Who is worth the most to you, a Democrat, or a Republican?" "Democrat, especially when they room together. I remember one night when Mr. Watterson, a newspaper editor in Kentucky, and Mayor Harrison and Mr. Tom. Hoynes and somebody else had a room together. My, what a galus time they had. I bought one of Mr. Watterson's papers a few days after that, and the meanest thing I ever read was in his paper, written from here, about Mr. Mayor Harrison. I never heard of our Mayor gamblin', but I've always had a sneaking notion he "called" the Kentuckian that night."

"You were here when the last Republican national convention met?" "Oh, my!" Then he covered himself and remarked in a reviving tone, "It always makes me have the heart disease to think of that time. I think if I had been a delegate to that convention, knowin' what I saw and havin' a gift of gab, I could have made my reputation in one speech. Talk about a picnic! Why it was a circus with picnics for side-shows and a brass band for every act. Why, I saw Don Cameron and Mr. Arthur have a quarrel which I thought would result in a fight, and I saw Mr. Conklin make them make up and shake. Do you remember that fellow from Texas who said he wanted everything he could get—I forget his name. Well, I heard him tell Mr. Foster of Ohio one night that if he ever hinted somthin'—I don't know what it was—he'd mop up the sidewalk with him. But it came near ruinin' Potte Palmer. I don't wonder at his being a Democrat. The nicest man I can across here durin' them stormy times to think he was any better than anybody else, and he never met me that I didn't get a quarter, no matter whether he wanted anything or not. What was the name of that little man who wanted Mr. Blaine to beat Mr. Grant—Frye—yes, I think I could have been hired to tell him something on night that he asked me. What a circus that was. I never expect another if I was to live until my body got as big as David Davis."

"Actors are liberal," he said. "They want a heap, but they are willing to pay for it. Miss Abbott is an awfully nice little one, and throws silver dollars over the transoms when you take her up apollinaris. But if ever Catherine Lewis comes to this house while I'm here, I am going to ask for a vacation. Never mind askin' me anything. But there's a woman would break up any hotel on earth, if she stayed at it long enough. It don't require a very fly bell boy to tell a new married couple. Some times they try hide it by doublin' the hush money, but it is no use. What becomes of us when we grow up? Generally get to be a night clerk if we are honest, and then a day clerk, and when a day clerk gets a solid sit in a first-class hotel, he's good for about anything that happens to strike him. There's nothin' too good for a hotel clerk if he can throw sand in the drop's eyes. What I have said is straight, and the bar-keeper knows it. When I get through a runnin' calls my ambition is to be the main take of the gin mill."

Not Left Out.

There were five of 'em on the corner. One said that his wife was cleaning house and had every room upset.

The second observed that he had just left six painters at work on his house.

The third said he was tearing out partitions and building on a wing.

The fourth smiled sadly, and added that he was going to have four ceilings whitewashed, three rooms re-papered, a chimney torn out, and his hall widened.

"Gentlemen," said the fifth man as he drew a long breath, "I don't want to be looked upon as one who is trying to crawl out of his fair share of this world's misery, and I therefore take this opportunity of informing you that in order to buy new carpets and a parlor suite I have been obliged to mortgage my house, and shall probably lose it."

At the re-union of the Army of the Potomac, held in Washington on the 16th and 17th of May, George Alfred Townsend delivered the following poem, the reading of which was frequently interrupted by storms of applause.

Brave soldiers, reassembled by the river of your fame,
Who saw the Virgin City bathed in Washington's clear name,
Which of all your past commanders doth this day your memory haunt,
McDowell, Burnside, Hooker, Meade, McClellan, Halleck, Grant!

There is one little mentioned when your proud reunions come,
And the thoughtful love of country dies upon the sounding drum;
Let me call him in your muster, let me wake him in your grief,
Captain by the constitution, Abram Lincoln was your chief.

Nearest to his person, ye were his defense and shield.
Alone of your commanders died upon the battlefield.
All your generals were his children leaning on him, child-like-willed,
And they all were filial mourners 'round the mighty tomb he filled.

Under as the harp of David, his soft answers now become,
Where under the cares of kingdoms rose and fell some Absalom;
His humor glides his memory like a light within a tent,
In the sunken sun that lingers on the lofty monument.

Let the slave that saw the sunrise with his face toward the west,
As it flashed as yet 'twas hidden on a slender steeple's crest;
While Victory turned her from him ere the dawn in welcome came,
His pen emancipation glittered like an altar flame.

Waiting for the doomed deserter, feeling for the drafted squire,
Over the empty northern hearthstone and the southern home afar;
They kept him grim as Moloch, all the future bakes to free,
And eternal peace to garner for the millions yet to be.

Not a soldier of the classics, he could see through Lear's pretense,
Master of the greatest science, military common sense.
As he watched your marches, comrades, hither, thither, wayward years
His map the roads you followed you can trace them by his tears.

When the people clamored, in the front the generals misused;
In his inner councils harbored critic and antagonist,
Yet he ruled them by an instinct like the queens among the bees,
With a health of soul that honeyed Publicans and Pharisees.

What of faith we look behind us for a chief of higher tone,
While the voice that drowned the trumpets were the echo of our own.
Over thus, my old companions, genius has us by the hand,
Falling in the tempest with us, every crier to command.

As the bugle blown at evening by some homesick son of art,
Lincoln's words unearthly quiver in the universal heart.
As an echo left of malice, scarce of triumph in the strain,
When summer thunder murmurs in pathetic showers of rain.

Can forever concentrated here he lived where duties be,
Crying on the climate or the toll's monotony.
For his darling boy he buried and the night in vigil kept,
His Lord within the garden while his tired disciples slept.

For his call for men went ringing round the world like a bell,
And the races of creation came the proud revolt to quell.
Waiting in the last reaction of the rock of human rights,
His grief and mournful grew his features in the flash of battle lights.

Like Moses on the mountain looked he on the realm he won,
And the slaves in burning Richmond knelt and thought him Washington
As an evanescent bravo snatched him from the chaos of things
To become a saint of nature in the pantheon of kings.

And as the golden chevrons, vanished is the pole of war,
In heaven his moral glory lingers like the morning star.
For the freemen's zone of cotton his white spirit seems to be,
And the insects in the harvest beat his army's revolve.

General him spotted or greedy, women vain and honor spent,
His faith in human nature lived without change or argument.
This country which could raise him barefoot to the monarch's height,
Let me mock her of his mother, though her name she could not write!

Like wells of humble childhood, cool the spring beside the hut,
And more as poor as Lincoln see the door he has not shut.
His wealth has made its canker every poor white's cabin through,
The great republic wither or the infidel withude.

And round your great commander, lay aside your little fears;
Lincoln carries freedom's car along a hundred red years.
When next the call for soldiers rolls along the golden belt,
To see a mightier common rise and march, prevail and melt.

A Sincere Prayer.
Drawing School Tidings.

One of God's little ones," a colored boy of the south, prayed thus:
Now Fadder, it is one more time have permitted your unworthy ser, to be knee-bent, body-bowed in capacity for a prayer-meeting, bow heart beneath my knees, and my way down in some lonesome vale where prayer and supplication are needed at this present time. Now bless all the sisters! dat is kneebent body-bowed with me this evening. Bless de one dat called on your worthy servant to pray.
Now, my Fadder and my God, ever your white missionary sister dat from a foreign country, and has set out to expound de word to us evening. Ever go with her and by her; feed her when sho is hungry.

Now my Fadder and strong-armed God, bless my pastor whose head is blooming for the grave; rough-shod him with the gospel of peace; don't let him git no ways weary nor discouraged by the way, tell him 'tis de Fadder's good pleasure to give him the kingdom, by and by." Oh, my Fadder and Daniel's God, how long, how long will you keep your unworthy servant praying for her companion?

Oh, oh oh my Fadder, bless my companion this evening, turn him all the way round; turn his back towards hell, and his face towards de star-pole in de kingdom; call him by his name; tell him if he don't repent, his soul will be damned. They Wanted Harmony.

Carl Pretzel.

A discontented couple had for months been devising schemes in order that happiness might once more perch on the center table of their home.

The husband loved his children and his home, and his wife. The wife loved her husband, the babies and her home, nevertheless, they quarreled constantly.

At last the husband said that he would comply with any request the wife might make for the sake of harmony.

"Agreed," said the wife. "You want harmony and so do I; give me fifteen dollars."

"Am I compelled to buy the commodity we seek?" asked the husband.

"Yes; a part of it," replied the lady.

"All right; I will pay that amount, that our purpose may be accomplished. But you will have no objection to explain what use you intend to make of the money," said the husband.

"None in the least. But those 'Langtry bangs' are so lovely, and I can obtain them for fifteen dollars, and I will be so good to you. Now give me greenbacks, and you'll have harmony and I will have hair-money, too."

A Thrifty Man.

Arkansas Traveler.

"I cannot give my consent to your marriage with my daughter," said a father to an ardent lover.

"On what grounds do you base your objections?"

"On the grounds that you are a poor man, have no trade or profession, and are by no means capable of supporting a wife."

"Oh, that's all, eh! Look here," and he took out several papers showing that he owed four or five hundred dollars. "Don't this prove that I am a thrifty man; what more can you ask?"

"I can ask for nothing more. You have shown your ability. Take my daughter."

"I am thankful," said the young man. "I have only one more request."

"That the marriage shall take place immediately?"

"No; that you will lend me enough money to buy me a suit of clothes and pay the preacher. Let me see how much will be necessary. I can stand the preacher off. Let me have fifty dollars and your daughter shall be my wife."

The Most Wonderful Thing.

Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A correspondent asked a Zuni Chief who came East last fall:

"What of all you saw in your journey impressed you most with the superiority of the white men over the Indians?"

The father of the Zunis turned his eyes toward me, and answer slowly:

"The ease with which they can get water. The white man takes the river into the walls of his house. By turning a little iron stick he can get that which we pray for all our lives!"

This was the mind of the Zuni, the inhabitant of the barren, rainless land, the triumph of civilization.

I asked him if he wanted to go back to the States, and he said:

"Yes, I grow strong with anxiety that I may grow again."

What He Wanted to Find Out.

A firm hired a new bookkeeper the other day, and on the second morning he failed to put in an appearance until 10 o'clock. Then he came to the office in such a condition that the senior partner felt called upon to say:

"Sir, you are drunk!"

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Do you suppose I want a drunken bookkeeper?"

"I doan' know, sir—I doan' know. Thas what I called fr' this morning—to find out wheezzer you want me to keep sober all 'er time or drunk all 'er week! Perfectly willin' to 'blige shir—perfectly willin'!"

Mr. and Mrs. Spoopendyke.

Brooklyn Eagle.

"Say, my dear," whispered Mr. Spoopendyke, closing the door carefully and approaching his wife with a broad grin on his visage. "Say, my dear, Specklewottle's down stairs in the parlor. He has come to take dinner with us!"

"Great gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, dropping her work and bustling up to the glass to arrange her hair. "What did he come to-day for? Don't he know it's wash day?"

"He came for dinner!" retorted Mr. Spoopendyke, turning pale around the lips. "What'd ye s'pose he came for, to be washed? What's wash day got to do with it? Think the man can be soaked in a tub and hung over the clothes line with a measley wooden pin astride the small of his back? Well, he didn't, he came for grub, and you want to hustle around and get it pretty lively for him, or I'll begin to serve up things myself before long!"

"But, my dear," remonstrated Mr. Spoopendyke, "there nothing in the house! The clothes—"

"Then serve up the clothes!" roared Mr. Spoopendyke, who had utterly forgotten the day of the week when he invited his friend, and now wanted his wife to get out of the scrape somehow, and at the same time not let him down with Specklewottle. "Set put the clothes on a platter and jest 'em before him!"

"You don't imagine he would want to eat the clothes, do you?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, innocently.

"Just try him!" yelled Mr. Spoopendyke, enraged at the idea of being taken literally. "Just try him and sling in some of the natural grace you always put on at the table! 'Mr. Specklewottle, have some of this fricaseed petti-coat!'" and Mr. Spoopendyke held out the legs of his trousers as a woman holds her skirts and waltzed around the room. "Mr. Specklewottle, have a little of this poached night shirt? Now, Mr. Specklewottle, do try one of those fried socks, and a slice of the pillow sham! Dear Mr. Specklewottle, please let me help you to a piece of this shirt and a pair of stuffed cuffs! I made them myself, and though they are not as good as— that's the way to do it!" continued Mr. Spoopendyke, suddenly concluding his remarks with a war whoop, and presenting himself before his wife all out of breath. "Think you've got that bill of fare all right? See your way to a successful dinner party now?"

"There's some cold shad, down stairs, and I think there is a raw ham in the cellar," ruminated Mrs. Spoopendyke, regarding her husband with a startled look of inquiry, as if asking if he thought Specklewottle would mind the meat being raw and the fish a trifle cold."

"That's what he wants!" howled Mr. Spoopendyke. "Bring forth the shad that froze to death in the house of Spoopendyke! Produce the ham with a crumpled horn that milked the shad that froze to death in the house of Spoopendyke! Develop the measley banquet and let joy be unconfined! Ain't you got any more sense than a bung-hole? Think I'm going to bring the aristocracy here to fatten on dead fish and live hogs? How long are you going to let that man sit down stairs in a state of starvation? Where's that roast beef I brought home the other day?"

"I think we ate that all up the day it came home," sighed Mrs. Spoopendyke.

"Do you mean that roast with the queer little sticks in it?"

"The same," replied Mr. Spoopendyke, nerving himself for another ordeal.

"Did we eat the sticks? Am I to understand that there is not one little dogasted stick left of all that affluent luxuriousness? Lift the impenetrable veil of obscurity off the secluded bower of the shrinking sticks," he yelled, as it dawned on him that Specklewottle was in the parlor waiting to be fed, and that the social problem was no nearer solution than when he started. Let us unravel the mystery that hangs like a pall over the fate of the unhappy sticks, that they may come forth and fructify Specklewottle," and in the excess of his emotion Mr. Spoopendyke, gasped for breath, and resting his hands on his knees, looked as if he were inviting his wife to a little game of leapfrog.

"There's some lettuce in the house, and I bought some strawberries to-day, and I could cook the steak I had saved over for breakfast," murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, coming out triumphantly at the end, woman like. "And I will put on my new wine colored satin, and we will give him a nice supper."

"Going to put that wine colored satin on the shad or the ham?" howled Mr. Spoopendyke, who had a man's idea that a dinner is not a dinner until it is roasted. "Think I brought that man here at six o'clock in the afternoon to take breakfast? Got some kind of a notion that cold fish, raw ham, wormy lettuce, green strawberries and a fried oow are going to satisfy the cravings of a man who has just won a bet of a dinner on—," but here Mr. Spoopendyke stopped short. The last revelation was unintentional.

"Was it a bet, dear?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, opening her eyes in astonishment. "If I had known that and you had given me time, I would have had a nice supper for you. I really think—"

"That settles it," squealed Mr. Spoopendyke, mad at himself for what he had divulged and angrier still as he must explain to Specklewottle how he was fixed. "When you commence to think the free list is entirely suspended. Some day when I catch you thinking, I'm going to drive a spigot in your head and advertise science on tap; book science a dine extra; free lunch from 11 to 1.”

And with this prospectus Mr. Spoonendyke dashed down stairs and explained to Mr. Specklewottle that, owing to Mrs. Specklewottle having a severe headache, they had better postpone the dinner or go to a restaurant.

“I don’t care,” murmured Mrs.
Spoonendyke, drawing a paper of candies from an upper bureau drawer. “I don’t care; it must have been a very important thing they bet on, when cold had warmed over and a nice beefsteak isn’t good enough to pay it. Anyway, he’ll be glad of it for breakfast, and the next time he brings a man here to dinner he’ll pick out some other day than Mouday. Though I suppose that Mr.
Specklewottle will go home and tell his wife that we don’t have anything to eat here from one week’s end to the other.
Anyhow, she owes me a call, and I hear that the dressmaker disappointed her all last week, so she won’t pay much attention to what he does say.” And Mrs. Spoonendyke went down to her supper of strawberries and lettuce, while her husband took it out with Specklewottle in filets of beef and yellow Cluquot.

Importance of Roots, Herbs and Barks for the Cure of Chronic Diseases.

If the same amount of time in research and experiments had been expended on the vegetable kingdom as have been on the mineral for the cure of human ills, there would be much less disease and suffering in our land to-day;
for there are herbs provided by our Heavenly Father, to cure all diseases, if we but seek them out and test their virtues; and when properly combined, there is no disease but will yield to their curative powers. The discoveries of each succeeding day convince us of the importance of attending more strictly to the use of herbs, roots, barks, &c., for the treatment of all diseases. The most uninviting and noxious weeds frequently give relief in almost hopeless cases.

But, experiments on this subject have been too much neglected. Many of our best and most experienced physicians have within the last few years, largely changed their mode of treatment and are now using roots, herbs, etc., instead of minerals, such as mercury, arsenic, zinc and lead, which have done more to injure and break down the human system, all over the land, than any and all other causes. The patient calls his physician and relies on him to cure and bring him through a protracted illness;
but, how frequently it is that the patient feels the injurious effects of the poisonous medicine in his or her system all through their remaining days.

We have known many cases, which have come under our own personal observation, where the patient has been covered with Salt Rheum, or Scrofulous Sores, and, where outward applications were used to heal these sores, and when healed over were pronounced cured; but, soon made their appearance on another part of the body in a much more aggravating and sickening form.
It is very foolish and absurd to teach,
or believe that such diseases as Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism, or Neuralgia, all of which are caused by diseased and impure blood, can be cured by any other treatment than that which will first cleanse the blood of its impurities.

If those who suffer from these diseases would think for a moment as to what was the direct cause of Scrofula or Salt Rheum, they could readily understand why it is that outward applications work more injury than good.
In Salt Rheum, the blood and fluids seem to be impregnated with a fiery element, which, when discharged through the pores upon the surface of the body, inflames and burns, until in his efforts for relief, the patient tears the skin with his nails, and not until the blood flows, does sufficient relief come to cause him to desist. Then the patient will grasp at anything he may see advertised, and there are scores of people who are eager to make money even at the expense of the poor sufferer, and who advertise that these, the worst of all diseases, can be cured by applying salves, or by bathing. The latter, we admit, is very necessary, for it helps greatly in opening the pores and largely prevents the extreme inflammation arising from this acrid discharge. But, we challenge the world to produce a single case where a permanent cure has ever been effected by any treatment, other than that of purifying the blood, and to do this, all know that we must begin at the primary cause or root of this terrible disease, viz: the Liver and Kidneys, for, by the derangement of these, the most important organs of the body, the poisonous or effete matter, which should pass off with the insensible perspiration outwardly, or the waste matter of the system inwardly, is sucked up with all its impurities and enters into and circulates in the blood until the whole system is impregnated with uric or lithic acid, and it soon shows itself on the skin in small watery blisters, discharging an acrid fluid, causing heat, inflammation and intense itching. Nothing short of a Remedy that will restore the Liver and Kidneys to healthy action and that will nourish and strengthen the debilitated system and thus supply the veins with pure and rich blood, can be of any avail.

Rheumatic Syrup has proven itself to be the safest and most effective remedy to regulate the liver and kidneys, and for expelling all impurities from the blood yet offered to the human family.
It is a compound of fruits, herbs, roots and barks, entirely free from all mineral or poisons of any kind, and acts direct on the liver, kidneys and blood, building up the debilitated system, leaning the patient free from the injurious effects in after years, such as is experienced after the use of mercury, arsenic, and other mineral substances. Whenever it has been used for any derangement of the liver, kidneys, or digestive organs, or for skin and blood diseases, its effects have been so marked and the improvement so plain that it was unnecessary to ask the patients if they were being benefitted by its use, for the life-like expression of the eye, the color on the cheek, the elastic step, the clear voice all told you that Rheumatic Syrup was doing its work, and that the title of "The Greatest Blood Purifier Known" rightfully belonged to it.

If you are a sufferer from Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Rheumatism, or Neuralgia, or if your blood is thin and unhealthy, rely on Rheumatic Syrup and be cured by its use.

Druggists sell it. Send for a circular of testimonials from those who have been cured of diseases so extraordinary that they desire to let their fellow-sufferers know of their superior merit. Manufactured by the Rheumatic Syrup Co., Rochester, N. Y.

For mice-gnawed trees, a correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph recommends covering the wounds with grafting wax at once, then pile earth and pack it around high above the place to keep covered, as it will settle and wash down some. This, if done early, will save thousands of trees that have been injured by mice and rabbits. Make wax of one pound of beeswax to four pounds resin and a half pint of linseed oil. If too soft add more resin; if too hard, more oil. The wounds must not be neglected till they are hard and dry.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf from an old book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A faint vertical crease is visible near the right edge, and the binding edge on the left shows some stitching or staples. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light beige.

Although Solomon told us nearly 3,000 years ago, that "there is no new thing under the sun," it is a well established fact that some startling discoveries have recently been made in the sun.

Men have always had some vague idea of its heating power, but of its other mighty agencies and influences they were ignorant.

It is a subject as fascinating as it is instructive, and it is worthy of our earnest attention, especially when so an admirable work as "The Celestial Symbol Interpreted," (advertised in another column, published by J. C. McCurdy & Co., Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis,) is within the reach of every one.

The learned author not only acquaints us with, and makes plain the newest scientific discoveries, but he also teaches, at every step, some great moral truth.

Let us be accused of undue enthusiasm in speaking of this book, we take the liberty of quoting the opinion of the able and critical N. Y. Observer: "This work has been carefully examined by eminent, learned and orthodox divines, who unite in testifying to its great beauty, usefulness and truth. To some, the analogies may appear strained, yet they are not more so than the figurative language of the Bible fairly warrants, and the illustrations are fitted to exalt our conceptions of the glory of God in nature, and especially as it is seen in the brightest of all His works. The reader finds the evidences of God's power and goodness constantly reflected from the sun in these pages, and is led from admiration up to adoration which becomes the creature contemplating his divine maker."

Town Hall, Saturday, May 26.

The new Irish play, "Shield Agar," written by the well known dramatic author, Scott Marble, Esq., was presented at the opera house here last night to a good-sized audience by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Morris Sullivan and company, gave excellent satisfaction, judging by the hearty applause and frequent encores. The chief roles of "Shield Agar" and "Jengie" Mernaun, give Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan an excellent opportunity to display their specialties in the way of Irish songs and dances for which they have become celebrated all over the country. They are well supported by the other characters of the play, particularly Mr. Wildman as "Fananough" and Miss Julia Sullivan as the Widdow Mernaun. The plot of the play is interesting and there are many exciting scenes and striking tableaux. The scenery all new, and painted expressly for their play is the finest we have ever seen on our stage, and added greatly to the interest of the entertainment. The ruined castle scene of the second act is especially good and produces a fine effect. The orchestra of eight pieces also added to the pleasure of the evening by rendering some excellent music between the acts and accompanying the songs of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan. This is the third presentation of the play by the Sullivan company, but it worked off smoothly, and it is safe to predict that it is destined to take a front rank among the plays of its class now before the public. It will be repeated to-night and we advise everybody to go and hear it.—[South Bend Tribune.
