Through the kindness of Mrs. M. VanTyne, mother of A. A. VanTyne of this place, we have had the pleasure of looking over a copy of the Greenfield (Mass) Gazette, printed in 1800. On it is written, "Solomon Arms, your turn next," having reference to the fact that it was his turn to get the mail from the office. It is printed very plainly on sage-green paper.

We had a pleasant call from Mr. John S. Hathaway, who has charge of an iron company's store at Iron Mountain, Mich. The company last year employed 1,300 men, but this year is only working 900. Some of the men are working 800 feet below the surface, and like it better than working in the open air. This mine is the second largest in the upper peninsula, and is only two miles from the one where several men lost their lives a few weeks ago. Mr. Hathaway promises to send us some samples of ore during the summer.

We have made arrangements by which we will be enabled to give our readers Florida letters for a time instead of New York or Washington letters. These letters are very interesting, and become doubly so when we consider that they are written by Mr. B. S. Ashly of Jackson, and were intended for, and printed in, the Jackson Star, a very estimable paper. All acquainted with Mr. Ashly, know him to be a clear headed, far-seeing gentleman. He makes it plain to the reader what the country of southern Florida is,—not a sickly, swampy, and uninhabited region,—but one of the healthiest and pleasant places to spend from four to eight months of the year. We will publish two letters each week for the first two weeks, to enable our readers to follow him closely in his favorite topic—orange and lemon culture.

LITERARY NOTES.

St. Nicholas for June is crowded with pictures, and appropriately ushers in the summer with an interesting article, by I. N. Ford, on the Tribune "Fresh-air Fund" through which so many thousand poor city children have been enabled to taste the pleasures of a two weeks' vacation in the country. Humor and pathos are delightfully blended in the account of this work.

The frontispiece is a charming picture by Miss L. B. Humphry. There is a Decoration day poem; and Harry M. Kieffer's popular "Drummer Boy" sketches are revived in this number.

Among the rest of the contents are contributions and drawings by Maurice Thompson, Malcolm Douglas, J. G. Francis, R. B. Birch and many others.

The Art Amateur for June contains the usual profusion of charming designs for china painting, including pansies for a plaque, cherry blossoms for a panel, honey suckle for a vase and columbine for a desert plate. Some South Kensington borders and a quaint chasuble ornament are provided for needleworkers; there are over twenty monograms, about forty designs for jewelers' use, and a page for capital borders from the Cincinnati School of Design to accompany the second lesson in "Wood Carving for Amateurs." Specially attractive articles are those on "Etretat," with eight pleasing illustrations by Henry Bacon, and on "John La Farge, artist and decorator," with illustrations of his work in mural painting and stained glass, the latter from the Vanderbilt houses. Other topics are interestingly treated. Price, 35 cents; per annum, $1. Montague Marks, publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

A Card.

Mr. P. Hathaway and family hereby tender their sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our great bereavement. Also to brother Gay, who, by his tender sympathy and advice, helped us all to feel "that it is well." We are also truly grateful for the many beautiful floral tributes of love we received, although a trifle themselves, they speak so much of sympathy and respect for the recipients.

Miss Luella Stratton, of Vicksburg, was seriously injured by a horse kicking her in the jaw. She was teaching school northwest of town and boarding at Mr. Barbell's. They were bathing some of the young horses on the fresh grass when Miss Stratton went to the barn after one. As it came out a cold followed and the horse she was leading whirled and kicked, striking her in the jaw with such force as to render her insensible for several hours. Dr. Doolittle was sent for and found the jaw broken in two places, and the left side of her mouth cut open about an inch. A farmer's wife in Erie, Monroe county, being much troubled with "rats" stealing her pigs and calves, set a spring trap for the offenders and caught—the hired man. His screams brought the family, and when asked what he was doing there, he answered in a trembling voice: "I got my finger into the wrong pig this time." "Good for you," said the old lady, "you had no business to heat all my pie all de time." He was pardoned.

It has just been dug up at Ottawa Lake, Monroe county, and presented to Fred Avery, the veteran conductor, who took the first engine on that road into Chicago.

All of the neighbors within a radius of four miles, who are 50 years old or over were invited to be present and partake of the feast prepared in honor of this aged couple.

The bill revising the charter of St. Joseph, which passed the House April 5, came up for final discussion in the Senate the other day. It was discovered to contain a vague sort of local option clause. Some efforts were made to strike out the clause, but they were futile. The Senate thought the House well pleased with local option, inasmuch as not one representative was recorded against the passage of the bill. Consequently it was thought proper for the Senate to accept the bill just as it came from the House, and it accordingly passed.

The reception given by United States Senator and Mrs. T. W. The growing wheat through the sandy and more rolling portions of Clinton, Ionia and Eaton counties gives promise of an average yield, while in the level and unprotected clay beds of the same counties the crop is very spotted and unsatisfactory. But that which seems to cast a gloomy discouragement over the farmers at the present time is the cold, wet season, which has prevented them from preparing their ground for corn, oats and vegetables. Clover and grass, as a general thing, have an unusual healthy growth. The buds and blossoms on the trees give evidence of an abundant fruit crop this fall. However, vegetation is a week or ten days behind ordinary seasons.

The reunion of the Loomis Battery at Coldwater was a great success. Quite a number of their support in the field from the Thi-

Hale, an old and truthful farmer of Bingham Township, Clinton Co., has in his possession a rifle ball which he found imbedded in a white oak tree which he was cutting up on his farm about two years since. The tree was 3 1/2 feet in diameter at the butt, and the ball was found within eight inches of the heart or center, and from a mathematical calculation it was found that the ball had been deposited in the tree by the explosion of a rifle about 163 years ago. Mr. Hale and his friends are now anxious to know who pulled the trigger of that rifle.

The last business day of the legislature is June 6.

The marriage license bill was discussed at great length in the House a few days ago, and the discussion was of such a character that it is doubtful if the bill is ever heard of again. The idea of such a law is preposterous, and Michigan has never experienced the need of one since it became state.

The House has passed the bill amending the laws so that religious societies may legally receive and hold bequests exceeding $100,000, the limit now fixed by law; also the bill appropriating $25,000 for freestone capital. The bill prohibiting the depositing of sawdust in the streams, which has agitated the members of the wooden regions all winter, was killed, getting only 21 yeas to 37 nays.

There is every indication that the internal revenue district of the upper peninsula will be attached to the Wisconsin district.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

RAUM'S SUCCESSOR. Walter Evans of Louisville, Ky., has been appointed Commissioner of internal revenue, vice Green B. Raum, resigned. Evans is a prominent lawyer of Louisville, and an active partisan.

A DIVORCE CASE. Col. Thomas F. Barr, Judge Advocate of the United States Army, has been sent to Philadelphia by the Secretary of War to take note of the judicial proceedings now pending in that city in the alleged fraudulent divorce recently obtained there by Col. A. H. Nickerson, U. S. A., and the latter's subsequent re-marriage. No other action has yet been taken by the War Department, but it is thought in many circles that the proceedings in Philadelphia will lead to an official investigation, and that when Col. Barr returns and makes a report upon the case, a court-martial will be ordered to try Col. Nickerson on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

FOR CANADIAN VESSEL OWNERS. The treasury department has decided that Canadian vessels may carry passengers between American ports without the payment of tonnage dues. This is looked upon as a great concession on the part of the United States, as the laws of Canada do not extend a similar privilege to vessels of this country.

A COUNTERFEITER ARRESTED. Wm. C. Phelan, one of the most notorious counterfeiters in this country, has been arrested in Montreal. When arrested he had $10,000 in bonds in his possession.

NO MORE PAUPERS WANTED. The Treasury Department has been advised that a party of pauper Mormons from Switzerland is en route to New York on the steamship Nevada. Instructions have been sent to the Collector of Customs at New York to co-operate with the Commissioners of Immigration to prevent the landing of the Mormons referred to, provided they are paupers within the meaning of the Immigration act.

IN HONOR OF QUEEN VIC. The usual festivities in honor of Queen Victoria's birthday, were held in Washington at the British legation. Unfortunately the president was absent in New York, and but one member of the cabinet was in the city, consequently the attendance was smaller than on any previous occasion.

A PAYING ESTABLISHMENT. Patent Commissioner Marble estimates that the receipts of the Patent Office for the current year will be $1,300,000, or $300,000 more than last year. As July 1 the force in the office will be reduced by twenty-one clerks. This reduction will not affect the examining divisions, but will, it is stated, retard work in the copying divisions.

NO POOR TEA WANTED. The Treasury Department has been informed that attempts may be made to violate the act to prevent the importation of adulterated and spurious teas by means of importation from Canada. The attention of customs officers upon the frontiers is especially invited to the matter, and in case of doubt they are instructed not to deliver teas imported into their districts until proper samples have been sent to the nearest United States officer appointed under the provisions of the act, and his report thereon is received.

LOOK OUT FOR FRAUDS. For some time past it has been known that fish were sent from Canada into the states, in direct violation of the treaty to that effect. Collectors and others are cautioned against admitting fish intended for other use than immediate consumption. Detroit, Mich., and Sandusky, O., are especially mentioned as point where fish are received from Canada.

MUST EARN WHAT THEY GET. The commissioner of Indian affairs has issued a circular to Indian agents of non-trading agencies, ordering them to discontinue the supply of coffee, sugar and tobacco, except as compensation for labor performed. It is believed this course will keep the Indians on their respective reservations.

LOSES WON'T RESIGN. Lieut. Col. Igles telegraphed to the Adjutant-General withdrawing his resignation, saying he prefers being tried by court-martial. The defense Col. Igles is charged with is duplicating his pay accounts.

DAMAGE IN DAKOTA. A dispatch from Deadwood, Dakota, says a storm badly damaged all the towns up the gulch, sweeping Bonington entirely away, obliterating half of Spearfish and nearly wiping out Crook City. Deadwood is at the junction of Whitecloud and Deadwood gulches, and Whitecloud stream runs through the center of the city. Numerous gulches emptied their accumulation of water from the mountains into these two main gulches, and gave a volume of water that rushed down Whitecloud stream, cutting a channel through the city 100 yards wide, and carrying everything but the most substantial buildings before it. The loss of property in Deadwood alone is estimated at $700,000. Deadwood has a population of 25,000. The main residence portions of the city are from 100 to 300 feet above the gulch, and the main business portion above the danger line. The portion destroyed was occupied by cheap tenement houses, second-class hotels, laundries, small traders, sporting houses, livery stables, etc. Some of the buildings were built over the stream, which at its ordinary stage is but a few feet wide. It locally was avoided, however, by the shrewd interlards, for the danger was recognized. In this case timely warning was given by means of the telephone system existing in the hills, and the most valuable articles removed. Golden Gate, Anchor City, Central City, South Bend and Crook City are heavy losers. Several of the mills in Deadwood Gulch were destroyed and the damage to mines by floods cannot be replaced for several weeks. All roads are impassable and trains were forced to suspend on the Hills railroad because it was impossible to get wood to the station. It is not possible to state the loss of life, but a number are known to have perished.

DEATH OF BISHOP PECK. Bishop Jesse T. Peck, D. D., died recently of pneumonia in Syracuse, N. Y., in the 73d year of his age. Bishop Peck was licensed to preach in 1829, and in 1831 he united with the Methodist church. He continued in pastoral work for several years, but at length gave up the pastor's work, and entered upon his duties as principal of the Governor Wesleyan Seminary. Four years later he became pastor of a church in Washington, D. C. He held pastorates in Washington and New York, when he was transferred to California, and for eight years he served churches in several of the larger cities of that state, and for a time acted as president of the board of trustees of the University of the Pacific, and also as president of the California Bible Society. He returned to the east and resumed pastoral charge of the church at Peekskill and also at Albany, and later at Syracuse. He was sent to the latter city to aid in establishing Syracuse University, and held the position of president of the board of trustees of that institution until 1872, when he was chosen to the bishopric. Bishop Peck was a voluminous writer, and as a pulpit and platform speaker he was most eloquent and powerful. He has been in ill health for several months, and recently pneumonia set in, which proved fatal. Until the last moment of his life his mind was unclouded.

A CLEVELAND SENSATION. For years Miss Julia Renchere has been one of the society belles of Cleveland; young, handsome, well educated and respectably connected, she had hosts of friends and admirers.

Among her suitors was Charles W. Seymour, the son of wealthy parents, and a young man of high standing in society. They were engaged to be married, but Miss Renchere was taken fatally ill and a few hours before her death, and while she could scarcely speak above a whisper, the marriage ceremony was performed in the presence of weeping relatives. Three days after her marriage she was buried with more than usual impressive ceremonies, but soon circumstances attending her last illness awakened suspicion, and the coroner ordered the body disinterred for postmortem examination. The autopsy showed that Mrs. Seymour died from the effects of an abortion, and her husband and Mrs. S. D. Webster, a midwife, are under arrest for causing her death. This unexpected sequel to the death-bed marriage has created a great sensation.

ANN ELIZA'S VENTURE. A dispatch from Lodi, Ohio, says that Mrs. Ann Eliza Young, nineteenth wife of Brigham Young, was married in that city to Moses R. Denning of Marquette, Mich. Mr. Denning was born in Maine and is 50 years of age. Mrs. Young was born in Nauvoo, Ill., in 1844. At the age of 19 she married Mr. Dee, a Mormon. Two sons were born to them. After two years of married life Mrs. Dee secured a divorce from her husband. On April 7, 1898, she married Brigham Young. A few years afterwards she renounced Mormonism and took to the stage, delivering lectures in nearly every city in the United States.

SHIVERING SOUTHERNERS. On the night of May 23, snow fell in Virginia a foot deep, on the line of the Richmond & Allegheny railroad, between Lynchburg and Clifton Forge. The weather was very cold, and an incalculable amount of damage was done to growing crops.

SIZE BIG BRIDGE. The great bridge which towers above the highest masts of the greatest vessels that enter New York harbor, and connects the metropolis with Brooklyn, is finished at last after many years of travail, after numerous scandals in the contracts, and at an expense more than double the original estimates. This bridge, the greatest triumph of modern engineering, was "opened" to the public on the 24th of May. That day was generally observed as a holiday in New York and Brooklyn. All public buildings were beautifully draped and illuminated. All the dignitaries of the nation were there to witness this important event. President Arthur made a speech, referring to the inception of the idea that such a bridge could be done, the obstacles that science had overcome in its construction and completion. A brilliant reception followed in the evening, attended by over 15,000 people. And now after 15 years of labor and at an expense of nearly $16,000,000 a bridge connects the two cities.

A SMALL-POX SCARE. A few days ago a Miss Young of Illinois, a pupil in Miss Baur's music school at Cincinnati, died of small-pox. The remains were exposed to view both at Cincinnati and at her home in Robinson, Ill. As a result there have been several cases of small-pox both at the school and at her home, some of them fatal. Great indignation is felt at the action of her friends.

DON'T WANT THE BOYS. The employees of several large establishments in Cincinnati struck for the exclusion of boys from the shops. One or two firms have acceded to the demands of the strikers.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION. The large stern-wheel steamer Pilot exploded at Lakeville, Cal., a few days ago. Eight persons were killed, and a number wounded. Ten others were drowned in efforts to save themselves. The explosion is attributed to defective boilers.

POISONED. Miss Mary Kelly, employed in the millinery department of a Milwaukee dry goods store, died a few days ago from inhaling arsenic-laden hydrogen emanating from green velvet which she handled. The physician who attended her, says it was a clear case of arsenical poisoning. She was sick just three weeks.

ALL SQUARE. S. W. Packard of Chicago, attorney for holders of Yankton county, Dakota, bonds, announces the adjustment of the indebtedness. The United States supreme court in 1876 gave judgment for $300,000 principal and $100,000 accrued interest against Yankton county, growing out of certain railroad bonds voted by the county. The debt was repudiated by the territorial legislature and the fact was urged against the entry of Dakota into the Union when a measure to that end was pending in congress. On February 23 last a refunding act was passed by the Dakota legislature which was ratified by a vote of Yankton county April 25, and the transaction is now closed by the issue and distribution of new bonds covering principal and accrued interest.

DISCREDITED. The reports that have been received within the past few days to the effect that Gen. Crook and his entire command had been massacred, is not believed in military circles. Officers of Gen. Sherman's staff say there has been nothing upon which to base belief in the report, but if such a thing as defeat and death does occur it will be through the duplicity of his Indian allies.

THE LAST THING IN PAPER. A paper steambot for a Pittsburg company has just been completed by a Lansingburg, N. Y., firm. It is 30 feet long, will seat 25 persons, and has a carrying capacity of three tons. The sheathing is a solid body of paper three-eighths of an inch thick. A bullet from a distance of four feet neither penetrated nor made an abrasion in it.

SHORT IN ACCOUNTS. John W. Woodhull, Grand Secretary of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Wisconsin, and holding two other prominent positions in the order has resigned his positions. Cause, short $6,000 in his accounts.

CRIME. A BRUTAL FATHER'S WORK. Susie Hawkins, daughter of Chas. T. Hawkins of Lawrenceburg, Ind., died from the effects of morphia taken with suicidal intent. An inquest was held, which developed the fact that since last October Hawkins has been keeping a mistress in the house along with his wife, and has abused and beaten the family so often that Susie left in October, went to Cincinnati and got work. She returned to her home sick, sought refuge and rest in her father's house, and was brutally beaten and driven into the street by him. For this reason she suicided. The citizens tarred and feathered Hawkins, drove him from town and ordered his mistress leave.

AN INHUMAN MOTHER. A horrible murder was committed at McFarland, Lunenburg Co., Virginia, the victim being a child, Alice Bolling, who was brained by its mother. After committing the deed the mother buried the child, which was subsequently found, the skull crushed frightfully. The mother confessed her guilt, but assigned no cause for the crime.

A BOLD ROBBERY. The United States express company's money carrier, of Cleveland, Ohio, Alexander Granger, received sundry packages of money and other valuables from an east bound Lake Shore train at the union depot and put them in a buggy standing outside. Somebody from the locomotive called to him, and no one being in sight he stepped a little way from the vehicle to ascertain who called. Returning he drove to the express company's main office and there discovered that two bags similar to the company's pouches, but filled with brown paper, had been substituted for two containing money. It is supposed the robbery had been carefully planned by experts and executed at the moment Granger's attention was diverted. The missing pouches are said to contain in the neighborhood of $15,000 in 30 packages of remittances from railway stations on the Lake Shore road between Chicago and Toledo to headquarters. The amount cannot be definitely known for some days. Much of the remittances are thought to be in bank checks and certificates of deposit.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS. CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL. It is authoritatively stated that the Governor-Generalship of Canada has been offered to the Marquis of Lansdowne, and that he has accepted and will sail for Canada in October.

A QUESTION OF RELIGIOUS BELIEF. Some Bolivian frontier custom officials have confiscated some boxes of Bibles sent by a missionary society, which did not bear the proper Pontifical warrant. Panama papers want to know who made these men the censors of religion, and what their qualifications for the office are? The law does not prohibit the importation of books.

WHAT THE CIRCULAR DID. The readiness with which subscriptions to the Parnell fund come in is something remarkable. The only effect of the pope's interference has been to increase the subscription.

PARNELL PRAISED. At a meeting held in Cork in support of Parnell's testimonial, two hundred and fifty pounds were subscribed and a resolution adopted approving Parnell's action and thanking the Philadelphia Convention for the support of Parnell.

BLOW FOR BLOW. The war cloud that has been hanging over China and France for several months in regard to the Tonquin question, has at last broken, and France and China have come to blows over the vexed question. Captain Riviere, commander of the French forces in Tonquin was killed while making a sortie from Ft. Hanoi, and Capt. De Villars was mortally wounded.

THE WAY THEY SETTLE IT. Respecting the settlement of the disputes between the Dominion Government and the Province of British Columbia, the Dominion Government has agreed to give a money grant to the province amounting to $1,000,000, which $750,000 is to indemnify the province for the loss sustained in carrying out the terms of the confederation to delay the building of the Canada Pacific Railway, and $250,000 is set off of the construction of the Esquimaux Dry-dock.

The reward for the detection of the Phoenix park murderers will be distributed among the informers, all of whom so desiring will be sent abroad forthwith by the government.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

HOW KATE CAUGHT HIM.

BY ADA CARLETON STODDARD.

"You're sure you won't be afraid, Katy?"

"Oh no, father!"

"But Tilly is so deaf," added Mr. Dillingham, pausing with his foot on the carriage step.

"Shan't I stop and ask Aunt Priscilla to let one of the girls come up?"

"No indeed, father; I won't be a bit frightened."

"Well, there's nothing to hurt you, and I shall be back with your mother some time to-night if it's a possible thing."

"Good-by, daughter."

Mr. Dillingham seated himself in the vehicle, touched the old gray lightly and drove away.

Kate stood in the door and watched her father off. She was just thirteen years of age, and she didn't feel a bit afraid, when the carriage was out of sight she bounded off the door-step and across the road to the barn, whence she presently returned with her apron full of eggs.

"Tilly," she screamed, going into the kitchen—"oh, Tilly, let me make a sponge-cake, all myself, for dinner to-morrow. I've found some eggs, and I want to make a sponge-cake."

"Oh yes," said Tilly, quite with the air of one who can hear as well as another one, but who likes to play sometimes at being deaf, "make half a dozen sponge-cakes if you want to, dearie."

So Katy beat the eggs, whites and yolks separately, for ten minutes; she put in the sugar and beat five minutes more, exactly by rule, and when all was done, and the cake browned to delicious perfection in the big oven, the short November afternoon was already half-way through.

"I'm going to put my cake in the preserve closet, Tilly."

Katy didn't offer any objection, and Katy carried her sponge-cake through the pantry into the little dark closet beyond. There were rows upon rows of preserve jars, and above them on the upper shelf Katy caught a white gleam from the silver—the ewer and sugar bowl and cake basket and tea-pot, besides a quantity of spoons that had belonged to her great-grandmother. They were very heavy and all of pure silver; and suddenly, as Katy stood gazing up at them, she remembered, with a little shiver of dread, the face of a tramp who had looked in at the door the day before while Tilly was cleaning the silver at the table. He asked for a drink of water, and when he had got it he went away; but it seemed to Katy at this minute that he looked at the silver a great deal longer and sharper than was at all necessary. What if he should come back? He wasn't a vicious-looking tramp; indeed, Tilly had thought and said what a pity it was that he should be a tramp at all—such a bright one he had and such a pretty way of speaking, too.

"You can't tell much by looks," said Katy, wisely, to herself. "I believe mother would almost rather lose the farm than that silver. Anyway I'll put on the padlock before I go to bed. I suppose it's foolish, though."

Perhaps that was the reason she forgot all about it. She sat at the window a long time, busy with her knitting and with thinking of how glad she would be to see her mother again. Two weeks is so long a time; and Mrs. Dillingham had been a day more than that with a sick sister in Wakefield, almost twenty miles from home. The clouds had shut down heavy and gray, and it would be dark early.

But by the time Katy was ready for bed she had forgotten all about the padlock, though she was really a little nervous and frightened, and wished more than once that Tilly's cot bed in the little room over the kitchen would hold her with Tilly. But she felt better when she had gone upstairs into her own cozy chamber, and had fastened the door; and pretty soon after saying her prayer she crept into bed and fell fast asleep.

When she awoke the clouds had cleared away and the moon was shining full at her window. She awoke suddenly, with thoughts of the silver in her mind, and presently she heard the chiming of the old clock ring through the house like a bell—twelve.

"I declare," said she to herself then, sitting upright in bed, "I didn't think to lock that closet door. But it's safe enough—mother never thinks of locking it."

She lay down and tried to go to sleep again, but it was a bit of use, though she counted more than two hundred sleep-jumps before she gave up.

She couldn't help thinking of how badly her mother would feel should that silver ever have been stolen. It seemed to her that there were strange noises all about the house; and once a sound as of a window being moved softly up set her heart to thumping in a very lively way.

"What a goose I am!" she said at length, aloud, and jumping out of bed as she spoke. "It's nothing but a rat. But I'll go down and lock that door. I can't get to sleep till I do."

She slipped into a wrapper, laughing at herself all the while, and went softly down stairs—so softly that she could scarcely hear the sound of her own foot on the stairs.

She unlocked the padlock and key, which were seldom used, from a nail in the kitchen, and went bravely into the pantry. The moon shining in at the window lighted her way, but it was surely not the moonlight which shone in that dreadful preserve closet, streaming out at the door which stood wide open.

Katy's heart stood still with horror! There in the closet, on the wide lower shelf, was a lighted lamp, and beside it glistened the heavy old-fashioned cake dish that had belonged to Katy's great-grandmother, and before it stood—Katy was sure—the tramp.

She could hardly keep from screaming, and her hands shook as with ague; but with one quick dart she slammed the closet door, put the heavy hasp in place, and sprung the padlock. There was a startled exclamation from her prisoner as she did so. It was all Katy heard before she fled from the pantry to the outer door, unlocked it and sped away through the moonlight night toward Aunt Priscilla's, a mile distant.

"He can't hurt Tilly," she panted, "and she won't wake up, and he—can't get out. But maybe he'll burn the house up. Oh, why can't father come! and what makes it so far to Aunt Priscilla's!"

She didn't get to Aunt Priscilla's just at that moment came the sound of carriage wheels, and before Katy had time to do more than recognize the old gray she heard a startled cry from her mother.

"Why, Katy! child alive, what brings you here?"

Then poor little Katy, how she trembled when her father picked her up and placed her in the carriage; and how, almost sobbing with the fear and excitement of it, she told her story; and how, by the time they reached home, she was as nearly in hysterics as it is possible for a well-ordered little girl, with no nerves to speak of, to be.

"There, there, dear! And in your wrapper, too!" said her mother, anxiously. "You might have put on a shawl, Katy. You'll catch your death."

"You must have dreamed it all, daughter," said her father. But he lost no time in entering the house, and he provided himself with a huge pistol, which hadn't been discharged for a dozen years, before he unlocked the closet door and began to open it cautiously. Then Katy and her mother, waiting by the kitchen door, heard an exclamation of surprise.

"Aha! you'd better come out, sir, and give yourself up peaceably."

"With the greatest pleasure." It was a laughing voice, and it was a laughing, remarkably good-looking face that presently showed itself over Mr. Dillingham's shoulder in the pantry doorway.

Katy's mother took an eager step forward. "I believe—it is Frank!" she cried. "Why, Frank, Frank Sawyer, where did you fall from?"

The minute Katy saw her mother half crying on the young man's shoulder, with her arms around his neck, she knew that this was the uncle she never remembered to have seen, who had been abroad for years. Poor little Katy once more how astonished and ashamed she was. To think that she had locked her mother's only brother up in the preserve closet for a thief! How dreadful it was! Katy, with burning cheeks, drew back in the shadow of the open door.

"But how—I declare," laughed Mrs. Dillingham. "I don't much blame Katy."

"It goes without telling," said Katy's uncle, laughing too. "I came on the ten-o'clock train, and made up my mind to walk over from the station. When I got here I knocked at the door, but nobody woke up, so I just made my way in through the window. I was hungrier than a cannibal, and thought I'd get something to eat without waking anybody up. I was after preserves—you know I've a sweet tooth—when I saw grandmother's silver, and I was taking a look at it for the sake of old times, when—presto! I found myself a prisoner."

"It was Katy," said Mrs. Dillingham, laughing until she cried. "Katy—why, what are you hiding for, child? Come here." And Katy reluctantly obeyed.

"Now how was it, daughter?" asked her father, when this new strange uncle had shaken hands with Katy, and kissed her half a dozen times on each cheek.

So Katy told the story over again, this time with a good many laughing interruptions.

"And you were kind of a burglar," she said, slyly glancing up, "because you were after the preserves, you know."

"I got in through a window, too, Katy. And I ate a whole sponge-cake while I was locked up."

"It was mine," said Katy, laughing again.

Mr. Dillingham sat down, and took his daughter on his knee. "Well," said he, "you'd have done just the same if he'd been a genuine tramp, as he ought to have been, poking around folks' houses in that fashion. I'm proud of you, Katy—did."

"So am I," said Uncle Frank Sawyer, and he rolled up his eyes in a comical way at Katy.

"And so am I," said her mother, and she kissed Katy.

"Dear me!" cried Mrs. Blossom, as she laid down the paper, "it does seem to me as if those state militia fellows are always in trouble. Here's an account of a recent inspection where the company turned out 53 men. Too bad, ain't it?"

An Excellent Remedy for the Lungs.

 Whilst there are hundreds of remedies before the people for every known ill that flesh is heir to, but few are of any account whatever. Those of value as a remedy meet with ready sale, and among those of real worth is ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, which has been before the people for many years, each year its name as a remedy for consumption, coughs, colds, &c., becoming more widespread as its virtues are extolled among the people. Unsolicited Evidence for the Merits of Allen's Lung Balsam.

From Rev. G. R. Darrow, a Well-known Minister.

MESSRS. J. N. HARRIS & CO. GENTLEMEN:—My daughter, who has been afflicted the past two years with chronic bronchial affection, is receiving such decided benefit from taking your LUNG BALSAM—having taken but one bottle—that I am prompted to express to you my gratification at the result. Her long-continued, dry cough, with its occasional wheezing, whistling sound, peculiar to the breathing, has disappeared, and my hope is that continuing to use the LUNG BALSAM a while longer a permanent and radical cure will be effected. I can recommend its use to others.

Yours Respectfully, G. R. DARROW.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE

In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Doss' Patent Gold Watch Cases this WASTE is saved, and SOLIDITY and STRENGTH increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID GOLD is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler.

LIMA ITEMS.

Mrs. A. Mitchell, of Detroit, is visiting at George Mitchell's.

The Literary society will meet this week Saturday evening.

The remains of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell were taken up on Monday, and placed in the Clements burying grounds.

I wish to correct an error in last week's issue, in stating that Mrs. Milton Whitaker had had a stroke of paralysis. I was so informed by several persons, but there is no truth in it. Mrs. Whitaker is and has been well.

Fredonia.

There have been several small additions to our population this spring.

Rev. D. W. Shafer and wife will visit Monroe county this week, if Mrs. Shafer's health will permit.

Several horses about here have had an attack of the inflammation of the lungs and a serious epidemic was feared, but fortunately escaped.

The mumps have invaded some portions of our town and they spare neither old nor young this time.

Through the influence of the potent pills of Dr. Champlin, Mr. J. G. Kæbee is rapidly recovering from a serious illness. The Dr. seems to have excellent success in the treatment of lung diseases.

Your excellent paper is finding its way into our midst. Many of us living nearer Manchester than Chelsea, find ourselves drawn to the latter by its superior marketing and trading advantages, and we find it to our advantage to keep posted through your paper.

Waterloo Gleanings.

Miss Emma Marsh has gone to Stockbridge, and will be found with Mrs. Bowdish.

John G. Holzapfel has sold his house and lot on Section 4, town 2 south, to Earias Lutz for $475.

Minnie Beeman is recovering as fast as can be expected for one so feeble. Dr. Suyland is the attending physician.

There are some farmers who have not finished planting yet, and some are planting the second time in the same field. There is quite an inquiry for seed corn.

A certain Lyndonite some weeks ago offered to wager $5 that he could go with any girl in Lyndon or Waterloo. If anyone had taken the wager, they would have been a V ahead.

A certain man of this township whilst climbing over a fence, lost his balance, but his clothes caught in a knot, making a great rent in the slack of his pants, and as his coat was "picked one year too soon," and having no pins, 'tis said that he would walk side ways whenever he passed a residence on his way home.

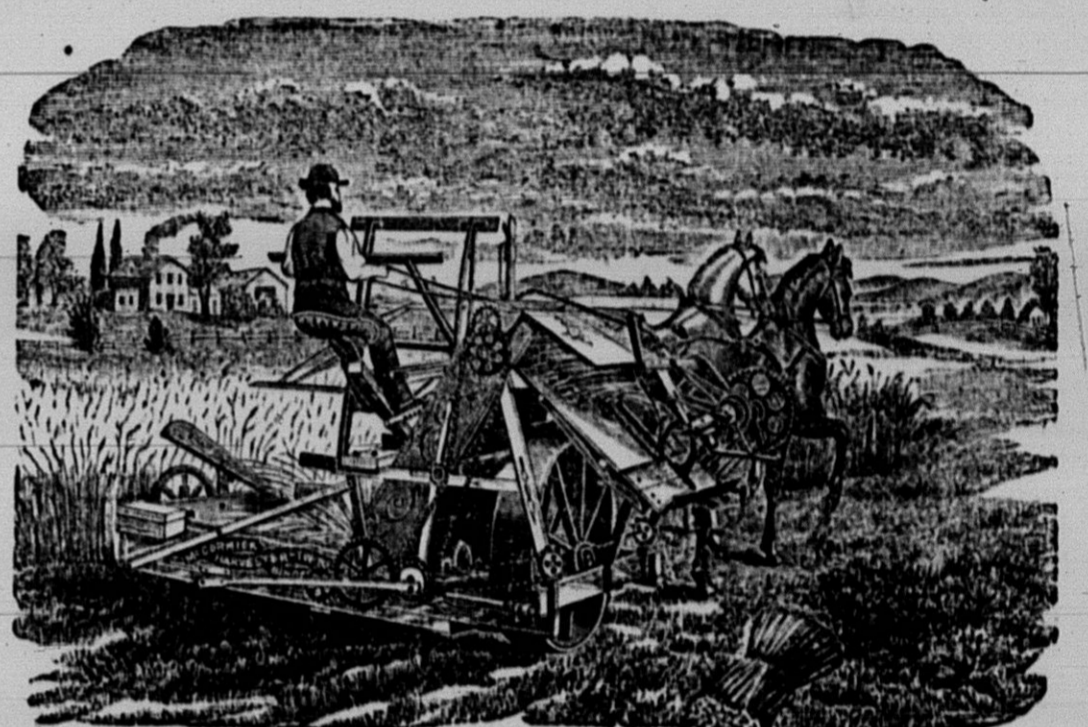

The board of review are at work making some changes in valuation but none are very material. They find it very difficult to place a value on property they have never seen, especially personal. The supervisor told me he had to guess at a great deal of it, that being the case, the board has this advantage—they can have the last guess.

Florida Letter.

the Jackson Star.

SANFORD, Florida, April 25, '83.
There are a great many people in Jacksonville and doubtless most of them are readers of the Star, who are taking a good interest in Florida. I was aware of this before I thought of coming here, and had no idea of the magnitude of the movement until I arrived here. The influx of people into Jacksonville is but an eddy in the great ocean—although several thousands of Florida lands are already being taken up by Jacksonville men. As we approach the great distributing point for Florida, the train became more and more filled with people from different parts of the north, all bound for the same point. After our train passed Macon, Ga., I learned that every through passenger train for south Florida, with the exception of the purchasing land. Among them was a prominent business man from Lansing, another from Springfield, Ill., and from nearly every northern state. From them I learned that there is a movement all over the north in the direction of the orange growing belt of Florida. That I am here I find that every day from the north, brings men in search of a new home. This movement has already created a wonderful change in some parts of the state. There are flourishing towns to where two years ago was a perfect wilderness. And in these locations where the land has been struck, land which five years ago has been, and was bought for 25 cents an acre, is now actually selling as high as two hundred, and two hundred and fifty dollars an acre. The peninsula of Florida was almost an unbroken wilderness five years ago; and it is the peninsula that is valuable for the growing of citrus family, although some species of citrus will not flourish there, and is only fit for home south of the 29th degree latitude. Jacksonville to this place, by way of the St. Johns river; which is the route that is taken at present, it is two hundred miles. The river banks are lined on one side with an absolute jungle of mangrove and other trees peculiar to the tropics, most of which are perfect strangers to us here, and all, save the palm, covered with Florida moss, and I have not found yet, who can tell me why this moss will not grow on the palm, but that I am certain. In addition to the moss, which is so abundant, it wears the eye, the shores and are covered with birds of beautiful plumage, notably the white crane, with its long wings, and the heron, and the so full of fish that one can see almost constantly leaping out of the water, while the hideous alligator is frequently seen sunning himself on the bank, and the water, not being shallow, disputing the right of way to the steamers. All in all, I have as yet not seen anything here that I like very much, except that it is delicious to pick oranges from the tree, as we do in California. But this I am convinced of, whether it is good for anything or not, is that the people in here from the north are buying all the land they can get, and are going to bring the price of land all over this region, for it is a fact, and there is the best opportunity for fortunes to be made here in a few years, in the land business, and as to the rest, anything worthy of the attention of readers, I will inform you.

ANOTHER PICTURE.

ORLANDO, Orange Co., Fla., April 27, 1883.
I am writing you from Sanford, my impression of south Florida having undergone a change. Until I had got entirely out of St. Johns river, I saw nothing but mangrove and scenery. But here, in the very centre of the orange belt, the citrus family is "at home" around. Near this point is located the Speer orange grove, consisting of one and half acres; but the income from it in the past seven successive years has been over $6,000 per annum, and the owner has refused $65,000. The grove is well cared for which makes it a fine grove. Another fine grove situated about five miles north of Orlando, of ten acres, is considered worth $100,000, and is well cared for. About ten acres of land is as much as any one man can manage, and all that is necessary to make it profitable. As a rule, people own five or six acres of land, cultivate it with oranges and lemon trees, and they are as well situated as any one need to be. The land is all the more cultivated ed people. Yesterday and the day before I took a drive over the country adjacent to Orlando. It was an eye-opener to me. The very gentlemanly Mr. Mills, of the firm of Sinclair & Mills, seems to be acquainted with everybody living around here, and he insisted upon showing me the domestic side of the picture as well as the general appearance of the country. I found the pine woods all dotted through with the most beautiful cottages that wealth and taste can construct, and all new. In one, on the bank of a most beautiful lake, called lake Underhill, I was introduced to the proprietor, Col. Church, a retired British army officer, who is building for himself and his most excellent lady, a perfect eden. At all events he has started a tree of the "forbidden fruit," as well as the bamboo, fig, orange, lemon, lime, guava, pineapple, banana, and a thousand and one tropical fruits, the names of which are unfamiliar to me. Col. Church is in such a position that he can choose the spot on earth most desirable to live, and there live and enjoy life, and after traveling the world over, he found this favored region, and there, surrounded by thousands of acres of orange and lemon trees, he is building an ideal home. Within hailing distance of Col. Church's residence, and on every side but one are cottages, vying with his own in loveliness, all new, built right in the pine woods, with only clearings around them of five or ten acres, and owned by the finest class of people who ever went into a new country as pioneers. One family for instance, from Hartford, Conn., and from Lexington, Ky., with two sons at home who are graduates of college; another one from Boston with the aesthetic ideas of that most aesthetic city. Within sight of Col. Church's place is the great Stebbins grove, which is 160 acres in a square, all set to orange trees, and well cultivated. I have been informed that it is the largest private grove at present in the state, and until it gets to bearing, will cost the owner a mint of money, but when it does, its value can hardly be estimated.

As I have said before, this is a very new country. Three years ago there was a great quantity of government land to be had right here where are now prosperous villages. One man, and a Michigan man by the way, told me this morning that two years ago he purchased forty acres of land for $35 a few miles south of this place, which he is now selling off at the rate of about $500 an acre. Land is selling here at all prices. Men who have ready cash to invest have the finest field for operation here that the country affords. But it will not last long. In twelve months from this date the price of land around this place will probably be doubled. And yet there are plenty of men willing to sell. Why should they not? They are men who have been on the ground some time, who by selling make four or five hundred per cent. on their investment, and who have been looking the country over very carefully, who know where the new lines of railroad are going (and there are railroads being built in all directions through south Florida), who can take the avails of a few acres here, and buy up thousands of acres of wild land, and in a few years sell it off at a great profit.

J. M. Dremann, of Worcester, Mass., who came down on the same train with me, yesterday purchased a fine tract of land near that of Col. Church and the great Stebbins grove. He says that this is the finest place either to live or to invest money in, that he ever saw. He has a home now gone home to get his family, and proposes to plant a small colony of Worcester friends on his tract. This section of country is to me the most attractive of any around Orlando. It is just about two miles from town and only four or five from the healthiest part of Florida; and unlike the country around "Winter Park," the soil is very rich for this country, and the roads much harder and better for driving. We drove over a most beautiful tract of high, rolling pine land, which is in sight of the great Stebbins grove, and is surrounded on all sides by cultivated places, which has thus far been held out of the market and I believe is the only tract of wild land which has not been sold to actual settlers, in this region. If some enterprising Jacksonville man who had the means, would purchase this tract, and cut it up into five or ten acre farms, and clear up and set out to orange, lemon, and lime trees, an acre or two on each tract, and then sell these lots to such of the Jacksonville people who do, or would, spend their winter south, it would be both a profit to him, and a source of furnishing the Jacksonville people with a winter resort here, which would be far pleasanter than living at hotels, and they would acquire possessions here which in time would become very valuable. For of this I am certain—five acres of land in Orange county, properly cared for and planted to tropical fruits, will make a man rich.

PARKER & BABCOCK.

Among the very cordial people of this prosperous town, I have met a brother of Mr. Claffin, an old resident of Jacksonville. Mr. Liliman, of Albion, who came here a year ago, bought some land, I believe 180 acres in all, and could now take twice what he paid in additional to all improvements. His land would now sell quick at $100 an acre, and some of it for a great deal more, all of which he bought at $50.

Among my most pleasant acquaintances here is Mahlon Gore, the very stirring editor of the Orange County Reporter, published here, and one of the best papers in the state. The paper has been enlarged very frequently, and is in every way abreast of the times, and one wanting to learn all about Florida, cannot do better than subscribe for this paper. Mr. Gore is a former Michigan man and acquainted with a number of Jacksonville people.

I shall now visit the orange groves of Mr. R. D. Fuller, at Altamont, in the western part of this county, of whose success in the orange culture I have heard much. If I see anything more that I think your readers will care to learn, you shall hear of it. Yours truly, B. S. A.

Since the introduction of spelling matches, many words have come prominently to notice—words that were previously comparatively unknown. For instance we find Antiseptic, meaning: preventing and stopping all fermentation and decomposition, and Analgesic: Painkiller. Then there is Antipyretic: cooling down inflammation and fever heat. These three words so often mis-spelled, are three of the cardinal virtues of something that will cure many a bad spell, and that is Salicylica, pronounced Sal-i-cyl-i-ca. Warranted to afford immediate relief, and guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia. 614

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.
SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.
It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.
SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all the celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A GENTLEMAN in Cleveland has conceived the idea of establishing a bank which will loan small sums of money at a moderate rate of interest, and thus do away with pawnshops. "The idea is," he says, "to receive pledges, which the borrower may redeem at an amount of interest not to exceed 2 per cent per month. In some cases we would only take 1 per cent, and sometimes, if the case should warrant it, we would make the loan a benevolent one and take no interest whatever. In some instances we would take the ordinary 6 per cent per annum interest. We would, of course, use our judgment in these matters; but our invariable rule will be never to charge any more than 2 per cent per month. Another great benefit to the poor is our determination to balance our books at the close of every year, and if we find that our profits exceed 8 per cent per annum, we intend to invest the excess in coal and distribute it among the worthy poor of the city."

AN editorial in the June Century discusses "The Outlook for Statesmen in America" and speaks as follows of the retirement from political leadership of the "self-made man" as distinguished from the cultivated man: "Once in a while the instincts of the self-made man (as distinguished from the college-man) are fine enough to lead to broad views, but in general his horizon is narrow and bordered by prejudices; he speaks well of the bridge that has carried him over, but of no other. Such a man is apt to regard legislation as the science of applied selfishness, and to legislate for but one type (himself) or for his other self—the party. But, even if we consider legislation on a merely selfish plane, the fact remains that laws must be made for a wide diversity of selfishness, and this requires not so much ideas as the capacity for dealing with ideas. The more successful the self-educated man has been,—whether in railroads, or silver mining, or sheep-raising,—the more likely he is to be incapacitated for the broad work of the legislator. Indeed, to do his constituents justice, he is usually chosen, not for his knowledge of tariff principles or of constitutional distinctions, but in outright advocacy of some interest for which he is certain to stand up and be counted, on every occasion. This was well enough in war times, when there was one overmastering interest. But with the inauguration of President Garfield the war spirit expended the last of its momentum, and the country once more recovered the civic temper and turned to economic questions pure and simple. The result is inevitable that the current of progress will sweep past this type of public man and leave him in a shallow bayou of his own. He will have his uses, but his days of leadership are numbered."

A FEW days ago the announcement was made that several prominent English capitalists were about to form an organization for the purpose of building a canal to run parallel with the Suez canal. The scheme was thought to be chimerical, but that there is something in it, is shown by the fact that that persevering little Frenchman, DeLesseps, is about to form a company for the same purpose. The motto of that irrepressible Frenchman can be summed up in one word—excavate. After giving to the world the first Suez canal, beginning a scheme to link the Atlantic and Pacific, telling us that that the Sahara shall no longer be a burning waste, but can be made to furnish vapors and cooling winds, his last scheme is to dig another ditch to run parallel with the first, if for no other reason than to get a head of the English. While this man has already overcome obstacles that would have baffled many another man, of all his mighty schemes that of turning the Sahara into a sea, seems to us the greatest. The project is not a new one, but the obstacles presented were so monstrous that they admitted of no serious thought. But DeLesseps says: "Give me one hundred machines equal to the power of one hundred thousand men and it shall be done." The man has met with all sorts of opposition, but when one sees the mountains tunneled, continents joined, the ocean almost clasping hands, it is best to ponder well before we say the project is impossible, especially when DeLesseps is the engineer.

AMERICA could copy with profit the example of the English in disposing of capital offenders. When a British court sentences a criminal to be executed at a certain time, all records go to prove that he will be hanged on that day. There is no interference on the part of relatives and friends to secure a commutation of his sentence, nor is the question ever asked: "Do you believe they will ever hang him?" The decree has gone forth, and in this respect English law is as unchangeable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. Again, the hanging is done thoroughly, and there is none of that bungling management which has cast opprobrium upon several executions in America. In England the drop system is used, and the rope is never too long, or improperly stretched, making it necessary to hoist the condemned man in order to kill him. In other respects Great Britain is far ahead of us in dealing out swift and humane justice, and we would do well to consider whether in our zeal for reform in hanging as well as by hanging, we have not made a mistake.

THE general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of Manchester, England, has been making a tour of the western towns of the United States for the purpose of perfecting two novel immigration plans. The first is to provide homes with western farmers for young men over 17 years of age, who are to be taken from the large class of young men in English cities, whose only chance of employment is a clerkship. A custom prevails in Great Britain of apprenticing thousands of youths to five years in the mercantile business, for which they are paid the sum of $500. They are not always retained at the end of their apprenticeship, for their places are filled by other apprentices. Thus it is that thousands of really deserving young men are thrown upon the world with nothing to do, for the clerk market is always overcrowded. Many of them come to America, and it is the object of the Y. M. C. A. of Manchester to find homes for them, and place them, so far as possible, beyond the reach of evil-doers. The second plan of this society, of which Mr. W. H. Newett is secretary, contemplates a similar arrangement for young girls, who are willing to go into service. Neither the young men nor young women will be sent to this country unless they are perfectly willing, and are duly vouched for by the societies in England. This new field of charity is worthy the support of all who are interested in the welfare and safety of the young.

THE publication of cheap editions of the works of standard authors, which was regarded by the churls as an experiment, and a dangerous one; at that, has proved to be just the reverse. The publication of cheap editions may have done some harm, but we believe the good it has accomplished has more than over-balanced the harm. There are thousands upon thousands of persons whose means would not admit of the purchase of many books of fiction, history, biography, travels, and ecclesiastical literature, and had this state of affairs continued the mental growth of the rising generation would have been hopelessly dwarfed. But the universality with which the cheap editions have been adopted, precludes the possibility of this deplorable condition of affairs. For a very small sum, the works of Scott, Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot and all of the better writers of fiction can be placed in our homes; and since the introduction of the cheap edition, the youth of the trades people as well as the children of the millionaire can become familiar with the works of biographers, historians, and all of the better class of literature that tends to lift men's souls to higher thought and nobler action. The enormous sales of these cheap editions show how well they have been received and that publishers must continue to provide them for the masses.

A FEW weeks ago, a committee was appointed to visit the manufactories and workshops of Chicago, with a view, presumably, to better the condition of those who worked in them. As one of the results of their investigations, they found that in one cigar shop where girls were employed, that young girls were obliged to work from six o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock at night for the miserable pittance of three dollars per week; and if, for any reason, they were late at work, a deduction was made from their wages, at the rate of one cent a minute. There may be more dastardly acts recorded, but it is doubtful. If men are imposed upon in this way, they can resort to the strike if necessary, to secure fair treatment. But to these children there is no such way of escape, for even if they were to resort to that despicable measure, the strike, it would only be to "fly to evils they know not of." Many of the girls who work in these shops have no other means of support; and aside from earning their own bread, too frequently are they compelled to assist in furnishing the larder in their miserable homes. Here is a field for the philanthropist to work; not with the unfortunate children who are obliged to work in these places, and in whose lives few rays of sunshine have ever fallen; but with such heartless employers, who are too frequently found in many of our large cities. Wealth thus gotten can never bring them happiness, for with every pleasure purchased with their ill-gotten gains, must come the thought of the little ones so patiently toiling, and suffering. This oppression of the working-class would not be so noticeable in a country ruled by a monarch, but in America, where every man is king, it stands out as a dark shadow on the fair landscape of our prosperity.

The Monster Prison of Europe.

London Daily News.

THE largest prison in Europe is the House of Detention, which has just been completed at Berlin. This enormous edifice comprises six separate buildings, to which have been transferred all the prisoners awaiting trial who have hitherto been confined in the various prisons of Berlin. The prison for men consists of a ground floor and four other stories, with 732 separate cells, dormitories for 195 prisoners, besides forty rooms for turnkeys and sleeping accommodations for 118 attendants. Each of the 732 cells has a window ten feet high. There are six cells in the basement for prisoners who are refractory to discipline, and in the basement are also to be found the kitchens, the bath rooms, and the heating apparatus of the prison. The internal part of the prison is constructed of iron, and is so built that all the corridors look out upon a central hall, which commands a view of every cell. The prison for men, which is separated from the rest of the building by a wall sixteen feet high, also contains a chapel and four large exercise grounds. The prison for women contains only 110 cells and fifteen large dormitories, the latter of which are divided into sections, each containing a bed, which can be locked up every night after its occupant has retired to rest.

A Faithful Goose.

There lately died in Stuttgart a goose whose martial fame has extended over all the German Empire. "This eccentric animal," writes a Berlin correspondent, "when still a gosling, abandoned its flock, dismissed all recollection of its infancy, repudiated the conventional views and habits of geese, and boldly marching into the barracks of a Uhlan regiment stationed itself one fine day next to the sentry-box. Touched by this predilection for their corps, the Uhlans erected a shed for the goose, and for twenty-three years neither threats nor persuasion have been able to separate the martial bird from its adopted regiment for any length of time. It has at different times changed quarters with the corps from Esslingen to Ulm, thence to Ludwigsburg, and finally to Stuttgart. When an inquiry for seed corn.

ROBIN'S NEST.

MRS. ROBERT J. BURDETTE.

Knew three robins who lived in a nest,
Not very long ago;
Where the summer winds that blow in the west
Rocked it to and fro.
Springing and singing among the leaves,
Watching the busy world gathering sheaves,
Noting the pattern of life and weaves,
As the shadows came and go.

First there was one all alone; that was me,
Not very long ago;
Then came another, so strong and free,
Whistling sweet and low;
A robin with great, soft, melting eyes,
Dawned into my life like a glad surprise,
Singing of love in a robin wise,
"Little one, yes or no?"

Oh, how the katydids, chorusing in,
Not very long ago,
Sang to the stars with their musical din,
Over my joy, you know,
Called till the moon came over the hill,
And touched all the night with a silvery thrill,
Our love crowned nest with its beauty to fill,
While the katydids sang so low.

We built up a nest with loving care,
Not very long ago;
Out in the West, I'll tell you where,
By the beautiful river's flow,
That laugh up north in the little blue lakes,
And sing as its winding path it takes,
To the shore where the gulf's green billow breaks
And the salt tides come and go.

Blue was the river and bluer the skies,
Not very long ago;
When I flew to our nest where the three hills
rise,
By the river's murmuring flow;
The lights on the hills sang "Home" as I sped,
And the river sang "Home" in its pebbly bed,
And the starlight gleamed in the skies overhead
And danced in the river below.

One day while winging our happy flight,
Not very long ago;
My glad day shaded to dusky night,
"Dear love," I called "must I go?"
Like little moonbeams that brighten the midnight tide
His strong love hedged me on every side,
And my tired wings shall in his strength abide
And the summer breezes blow.

One April morn, through the soft white mist,
Not very long ago;
Golden sunbeams lightly kissed—
(My story is old, I know,
I've "brun birdie" that cooed in our nest,
Pressed to my heart his fluttering breast,
The love in my life was therefore blest—
Sweet was his song, and low.

My robin flies and my robin sings,
Fluttering to and fro;
And my heart is full of love he brings,
And the song that he sings to show
That love in the soul grows never a-cold,
And the heart is young while the head is old,
And the tale in the morning is never told
Though the long years come and go.

Flashes my robin—"The sun looks west,
Though the clouds drift to and fro;
I answered him, "God knoweth best, Whither our feet should go."
We swing in our nest when the June skies smile,
And we wing our way by "still waters" awhile,
With the path through "green pastures" leads over a stile
To a garden, quiet and low.

THE GIRL SOLDIER.

BY HUGONOT.

Condino was the furthestmost village Tyrol conquered by Garibaldi at the time of my arrival there in July, 1866.
On the night of my arrival the fort Ampezzo had fallen. The battle of the Bridge of Cimego had yet to be won.
The defeat of Biscecco had yet to be sustained.

I went at once to the principal inn,
I found it occupied by the colonel in command, the sign boarding, taken down. The inn had ceased to be a house of call for travelers, and had become a fortress.

I showed my credentials. I showed special pass I had from Garibaldi entitled me to move freely within the area of the Italian military operations.
There was no use. I had to retreat. These difficulties had made me cross, and I was tired and hungry.

I fared no better at the other inn.
The rooms were all full, even the corridors.

A boy accosted me—a boy twelve years of age, apparently a peasant's child.

"If you please, patron," he inquired, holding his cap, "did you want a bedroom? You were asking for a bedroom, and my mother has such beautiful ones! One of them is the kitchen, it is very beautiful."

He led me to a small house which looked like a ruin or the remains of a fortification; but it was still used as a dwelling. A light shone in one of the windows, and the door was ajar. The boy pushed it open, and we found ourselves in a sort of ante room (which led out to be the kitchen), and in presence of an old woman, who was sitting over the fire.

The boy ran toward her—
"Un foresto, Mina!" cried the child in Italian; then, turning toward me, and saying in good Italian, "S'accomme-signore."

The Tyrolean speak two languages, or rather they are beginning to discover that their own language is inferior.

The old dame eyed me critically, and uttered something in the boy's ear.
I had nodded in token of assent, and put up my ten fingers. "Paghera un so franco!" he exclaimed, in a cheerful tone, meaning that I would pay ten sous (five pence). The crone said: "Basta!" ("it will do") she aimed, with a pleased look, and led me to draw near the fire.

For four persons—four glasses, plates, four knives and forks to boot. Our party, therefore, was incomplete. I began to be alarmed lest my should be delayed.

This was by no means the case.
The old dame poured out the polenta, and took our seats at the table without the absence of person, the muttering a short prayer in Latin.

I looked at her with increased interest, and fancied I saw in her a trace of former dignity and refinement. Her hair was as white as snow; her lackluster eyes were round and large; her highly above the common.

Nevertheless this ancient dame became more human as the night advanced. The wine, bad as it was, had its effect, and the fire made the room cheerful. The child, too, did justice to the meal. "Corporal John," he exclaimed, "drinks no wine. I suppose he does not like it. He is so shy! But why do you not wear a soldier's dress, too? If you can fight you ought to wear a sword or a gun; but, perhaps you are going to have one sent to you?"

The old dame mumbled to herself.
The child seemed amused. "What a funny old woman, is she not?" But these were spoken in a subdued voice.
Supper being over my young friend began to make inquiries about the absent person—an absence which I had noticed. The empty chair, the clean plate and glass, seemed to attract his attention for the first time.

"Do you think there is any fighting going on?" he inquired with a look of anxiety.

"I hope not—I think not!" I replied.
The hag made the sign of the cross.
"I think not, too!" added the boy, with tears in his eyes. Then after a moments pause he asked whether I thought Corporal John would go away without bidding him good-by.

"But who is Corporal John?" I inquired.
"Hardly had I spoken these words than the door flew open. The boy started from his seat and rushed into the arms of a handsome young soldier who at that instant made his appearance.

I never saw a finer figure of a youth; brave and modest at the same time, with large lustrous eyes as "black as death," and a pale thoughtful face, shaded but not concealed by the peak of his cap—his red shirt and purple trousers giving him a boyish look.

He bowed politely, but without raising his cap, and entered the room with that easy dignity which is a result of military education, starting, however, at my fixed look, and allowing the boy to take possession of his gun. He appeared to be about to speak, but restrained himself, and took his seat at the table without honoring me with further notice—answering the child in monosyllables, and seeming at once preoccupied and hungry.

But it was easy to see that my presence troubled him, and for some reason or other he was angry with the boy. I fancied, too, that I had seen him before.

The crone drew near the fire, and with her distaff under her arm began spinning hemp as white as her own hair. The crone's name was Metick (the Tyrolean for Domenica), the child's Checco.

The soldier glanced at me from time to time, his eyes flashing a sort of defiance.

Checco offered him some ham and began pouring wine into a tumbler.

"I am sure you will like this," observed the boy, with a wheedling look.
"Will you have some fruit?"

"No," answered the soldier, curtly.
"And no wine?"

"No, my dear."

"You are cross to-night, corporal!"

"What have I done?"

The soldier did not reply, and the boy withdrew in silence. I remained face to face with the soldier.

"I have seen you before!" he exclaimed, suddenly, his face flushing up with excitement.

"That is quite true."

"Then you remember me?"

"Perfectly."

"Ah!" exclaimed the soldier, and became once more absorbed in his plate.

I endeavored to renew the conversation, but in vain. The young man remained silent, or as much so as he possibly could without being rude. I referred to the circumstance of our former meeting, but failed to discover any reason for his singular behavior. At last he rose, and wishing me good night in a friendly tone, left the room accompanied by the boy, who appeared to act as valet de chambre.

Next morning I found the child seated at the foot of my bed. He had been crying. His eyes were red as fire.

"What is the matter?" I inquired.

"Corporal John has gone."

"But he will come back again, will he not?"

"Oh, never, never, never!" cried the child, breaking out into passionate sobs.
The Austrians will kill her. They will put her to death!"

"What do you mean, my poor boy?"

"Corporal John is a girl!"

Such was the end of my adventure in the peasant's hut.

Let me add that the boy's statement was correct. There were a great number of Italian girls in Garibaldi's army —some to fight and some to serve in hospitals.

Probably the largest mass of rock that has ever been transported, not excepting even the blocks in the Egyptian Pyramids, was that from which was cut the pedestal of the statue of Peter the Great, in St. Petersburg. It was a block of granite weighing 3,000,000 pounds, or about 1,500 tons, and was found isolated on marshy ground, about four miles from the Neva. Its shape was that of an irregular prism, about twenty-four feet high, forty seven feet long,
and thirty feet broad in its largest dimensions.

Mr. A. Bronson Alcott's health is so ness, and the animation and wit of a practiced conversationalist.

Prof. Sattler, of Munich, has just concluded a series of very careful computations by which he finds this is the year of our Lord 1888 instead of 1883.

It is said that ex-Mayor Hutchinson of Rochester, N. Y., bears so striking a resemblance to the third Napoleon, that the sight of him caused Eugenie to faint.

George W. Peck, who has leaped into a certain order of fame by his bad boy stories, is said to receive a larger yearly income from his writings than Em-

The Duke of Edinburgh is responsible for the latest English craze—mule-riding. He introduced the fashion by himself riding one of the particularly fine mules which he obtained in Egypt.

Oliver Wendell Holmes says his real poems are the trees he has planted. He asks: "What are these maples, beeches and birches but odes, idyls and madrig-als? And these solemn pines, firs and spruces but holy hymns?"

Sir John Macdonald has presented to the Canadian Parliament a new franchise bill, which gives suffrage to unmarried women and widows on the same without petition on the part of women.

Her Imperial Majesty of Austria is a poet as well as a fearless rider and hunter. And now she has had a printing office set up in her palace, and is learning to set type and manage a press, in order that she may print her own poems.

Johnson C. Whittaker, the colored cadet, who acquired notoriety three years ago in connection with a charge of having mutilated his ears white at West Point, is now filling a professor's chair in the Avery Institute, at Charleston, S. C.

The oldest living graduate of the Military Academy at West Point is General Joshua Baker, now of Louisiana. During the war he was on General Jackson's staff. He was graduated from West Point in 1818, when only twenty-four years of age and is still hale and hearty.

Miss Elie D. Putnam, of Flint, Mich., has just secured an autograph of Victor Hugo, in response to a letter which she wrote him asking for it. It is on a heavy card, and, in trembling lines and with many an ink-spatter, runs as follows: "To love is to act. Victor Hugo."

Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson, the novelist, is now about fifty years old,
and looks pale and faded; but her eyes are bright and her face constantly wears a smile. She lives in a flower-embroidered cottage on Spring Hill Road, Mobile, and devotes most of her time to caring for her husband, who is a confirmed invalid.

Queen Victoria has ordered a large brass, bearing a eulogistic inscription, in memory of John Brown, which is to be placed on the walls of the Prince Consort's Mausoleum at Frogmore. A bust and a statue are also in preparation, and at Cathric an elaborate monument is to be placed over the grave, and a "cairn" on one of the adjacent hills.

A Pittsburg clergyman thinks that Shakespeare was a great man but overrated. He contends that the principal characters of Macbeth are to be found in the Book of Kings in the Bible, and remarks that Dr. Halsey, in his lecture on Shakespeare at Princeton College, stated that Shakespeare's regular practice was to study the Bible seven hours a day.

Persons sitting quietly in various places of amusement in London have lately been astonished at seeing a young gentleman sitting near them suddenly illuminated in a mysterious manner. A moment's inspection has revealed in his button-hole a tiny incandescent lamp which is supplied with electricity by an accumulator carried in his breast-pocket. This unique application of electricity to the freaks of fashion suggests a new field for the ambition of "dudes."

RHEUMATISM.

Its Cause and Cure.

Time overflows the illusions of opinion, but establishes the decisions of nature. How striking the fact that, in all ages, the most important discoveries have, upon their introduction, been violently opposed. How great the storm of opposition raised against Harvey because he first asserted that the blood circulated through the arteries and veins. How severe the abuse of Jenner for declaring that by vaccination the dread horror of small-pox might be averted. Space is lacking to show the vast number of theories, once violently assailed and opposed, which are now acknowledged facts, even among savants.
And why this hostility among all classes
to the reception of the good and true?
It is because they do not obey the divine injunction—"Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

These thoughts are suggested by the discovery of a specific for the cure of rheumatism.

This painful and dangerous disease, (which takes its name from the Greek word rheuma, a flux,) is a blood disease, in which inflammation of the fibrous tissues is the most marked characteristic. The internal organs are often the seat of rheumatic affections, particularly the brain and heart. Of the latter organ it may be said that pericarditis (which is an inflammation of the conical membranous sack inclosing the heart and causing adhesions of the membrane to its external walls,) is always caused by rheumatism. And it has been accurately determined by a very large number of post-mortem examinations, that of all who die at adult age, one in twenty-three exhibit traces of recent or old attacks of this disorder.

Rheumatism is either acute or chronic
—the latter, however, being a consequence of the former. These types are again divided into fibrous or diffused rheumatism, and synovial rheumatism, etc.

Acute rheumatism is characterized by feverish symptoms, redness, heat, swelling, and intense pain in or around one or more of the larger joints, generally attacking several simultaneously or in succession. It shows a disposition to shift from joint to joint; or to some of the internal fibrous tissues—especially the pericardium—rheumatism being, as already stated, the cause of pericarditis.
The joints are very painful, and pain increases with motion, so the patient assumes and maintains a fixed position, either sitting or lying, from which he dare not stir. Acute rheumatism is of two varieties; in the most severe the inflammation commences near the joint but not in it, and attacks the tendons, ligaments and muscles. This is fibrous or diffused rheumatism.

In the other variety, the synovial membrane about the joint becomes affected, and excessive quantities of synovial fluid (or joint water) is poured into the joint, distending the membrane and causing it to bulge out around the knees and other joints. This is synovial rheumatism or rheumatic gout, a connecting link between gout and rheumatism, and partakes and exhibits the nature of both.

A variety which is intermediate between the acute and chronic, where there is slight fever, and several joints are affected without intense inflammation in any of them, is sub acute rheumatism.

But rheumatism has traveled so extensively in almost every part of the United States, and taken up its abode with so many families, and remained so long and laughed at the combined skill of the physicians so successfully employed to remove it from the system of the unfortunate sufferers, that people generally have become familiar with the symptoms which it manifests.

Rheumatism is caused by aggregations in the blood of lactic and lithic acids, which are generated by indigestion, causing fermentation of the contents of the stomach, the use of hard and impure water as a beverage, etc.
In health these acids are thrown off in insensible perspiration through the pores, or excreted through the urinary ducts and alimentary canal. But let the liver become torpid, or the kidneys begin to degenerate, and this natural elimination of these acid-crystals ceases, and nature must be assisted in its efforts to remove them.

The only known exciting cause of rheumatism is exposure to cold, or cold combined with damp. Sleeping in damp sheets, or in a room with damp walls, wearing wet clothes, etc., are instances of the kind of exposure which induces the disease. The excreting power of the skin becomes checked and the pores closed by the action of cold, and these acids and other effete matters accumulate in the blood, coagulate, and poison the springs of life.

Whatever will reduce these accumulations and direct them out of the system will permanently relieve and cure.

Rheumatic Syrup is not only a perfect solvent, reducing and removing these effete and poisonous matters, but it is an alterative which never fails to purify and invigorate the blood, rendering a recurrence of this painful and much to be dreaded disease, impossible.

Rheumatic Syrup is a diuretic and detergent remedy, which will arrest Bright's disease, Gravel, Diabetes, and all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.
As an alterative it eradicates Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, etc. As a stomachic it cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastric Inflammation, and kindred affections. As an Anti-rheumatic, Acute, Chronic, Subacute, Sciatica, Muscular and Articular Rheumatism and Neuralgia, yield readily to its benign influence. As a Blood Corrector it is a valuable Female Regulator, and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Prolapsus Uteri, Painful and Suppressed Menstruation, etc.

If you are troubled with any of the foregoing diseases do not delay until you try Rheumatic Syrup, the Despair of Medical Science and the Curative Wonder of the Present Age.

We do not claim for Rheumatic Syrup that it is an entirely new remedy. It is, indeed, a happy combination of those agents which, in the experience of the medical profession through a long series of years, have proven the most valuable remedies which materia medica affords, in the class of affections which it is designed to reach. It is worthy of a trial.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y., July 13, '82.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

Gents—I make the following statement for the benefit of those who suffer with that terrible disease—rheumatism.
I have been troubled, more or less for twelve years, and at times could hardly use my arms. It was in my arms and shoulders principally. I took but one bottle of your Syrup and it stopped the pain and took the soreness out, so I am feeling well. I cheerfully recommend your Syrup to any suffering from Rheumatism.
G. W. WARFIELD.

NOT A HUMBUG.

Colonel Richard Forgham, of Lyons, N. Y., says that by the use of a few bottles of Rheumatic Syrup he was completely cured of a very severe attack of rheumatism, which confined him to his room for months. He also says that he had no faith in patent medicines, but has changed his mind since using Rheumatic Syrup.

A PURIFIER OF THE BLOOD.

SANANNAH, March 3, 1882.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

Gents—I have been a great sufferer till within a few months, for ten years, with that worst of all diseases—rheumatism. At times I have been wholly unable to attend to my business, and for eight weeks was confined to my chair, my only relief from pain being while some one of my family rubbed my limbs.
At the same time was covered with scrofula. I had tried every treatment and every kind of medicine recommended, to no purpose, and was completely discouraged. Having heard a friend praise the Rheumatic Syrup, as a last resort, I procured a bottle, but with little hopes of receiving benefit. After taking two bottles, to my surprise, and need I say delight, I experienced a decided relief. Continuing its use, after taking four bottles I find myself perfectly cured, and to-day am as well as ever in my life. Of the frightful sores which covered my body, only the scars remain to testify to the efficiency of the Rheumatic Syrup. As a blood purifier and a rheumatic cure, it has no equal.

Gentlemen—I have been troubled with rheumatism in my ankles and feet for over one year. Have tried several remedies, but found nothing to relieve me or stop pain. Have been so I could hardly get about the house without suffering great pain, I commenced taking Rheumatic Syrup. In less than two weeks all pain had left me, and to-day I am as well as ever. It is a sure cure for rheumatism.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES OF SALT

RHEUM CURED BY RHEUMATIC SYRUP.

Rheumatic Syrup Co.:

WOLCOTT, N. Y., May 27, 1882

Gents—I take this opportunity to express my thanks for what your Syrup is doing for me. I have been troubled with rheumatism and salt rheum over forty years. Salt rheum has been nearly all over my body, but for the last few years has settled in my right arm, my arm being broken out the entire length of it. I have used nearly every remedy
I could hear of for rheumatism and salt rheum, but found nothing to relieve me from pain; have been so I could not lie in bed at night. I commenced taking Rheumatic Syrup; have taken two bottles; it has stopped all pain; I can now get my regular sleep; the salt rheum has nearly all disappeared; in fact, I am feeling better this Spring, since I commenced taking your Syrup than I have for years before. The Rheumatic Syrup is truly a great blood purifier and a sure cure for rheumatism, for I have improved every day since I commenced its use until now I am a well man.
