WHISPERINGS.

Let's discharge our street sprinkler and have a spell o' weather!
Large numbers of fruit jars arrived for our merchants during the past week.
About two hundred went to Ann Arbor from this place last Saturday to see Jumbo.
The band paraded on several streets last Friday evening, practicing for the fourth.
While workmen were at work on Dr. Shaw's house, they found a Boston paper of 1836.
Mr. Fenn has finished painting Mr. M. Foster's house and it is said to present a fine appearance.

The tin roof is being put on the market building. About as warm a place as you want, isn't it boys?
Large quantities of tile have been hauled from this place during the past week to the farm of M. J. Noyes.
Ed. G. Hoag of the "Bazaar" this week gives a few of the low prices of his goods. Read his "ad" and see for yourself.

Unless some of our worthy readers disappoint us, we will show a splendid "Substantial Encouragement" list next week.
The entertainment at the Baptist church last Wednesday evening, was, owing to the bad weather, not largely attended.

Efforts are being made to have the president re-instate Capt. Spencer as post master at Ypsilanti. It should not be done.
Where woman is held in honor, there the Gods are well pleased; where she receives no honor, all holy acts are void and fruitless.—Orient.

Mr. Geo. Bachman was, as far as heard, the first to enjoy new potatoes of his own growing, in this vicinity. He had some as large as a hen's egg, June 30.
"Crowded out to make room for more interesting matter," the editor remarked as he shoved aside a plate of beans and tackled a strawberry short cake.

Master Harry Morton has not been tardy, nor absent from school in the past two years. Harry is only eleven years old, but will enter the high school department next spring.
We hope the school meeting will be largely attended, and the best men elected. The members whose terms expire are Jas. P. Wood, trustee, and Geo. P. Glazier, moderator.

Messrs. Parker & Babcock have a changed "ad" this week and propose to have another next week. Look out for it, and when in want of goods in their line, call on them.
About 100,000 pounds of wool have been marketed so far of which Kempf Bros. received about one-half. The ruling price is 28 cents, although 30 cents has been paid for considerable.

We had a pleasant chat per telephone with Mr. Baldwin of the Enterprise office last Saturday evening. Mr. B. was in our employ at Saline a year ago, and his voice sounded just as it did then.
Offenders will take notice that the marshal's force has been increased, but our village board should not be censured as it (the extra force) was not appointed by it, in fact had nothing to do about it. Mother and boy both doing well.

Dr. J. H. Vincent, of the famous Chautauqua Assembly says of the Treasury of Song: "I have examined this sumptuous volume with great delight. It is one of the most perfect works I have ever seen. I shall order three copies as prizes for the competitive examinations at Chautauqua.
We'll give our wheat figures in this issue, to enable our cotermporaries to find the ratio when they receive the Crop Report issued by the State. Here they are: Kempf Bros. 11,418 bu. Babcock & Gilbert. 5,270 " John C. Taylor. 5,203 "

Total, for June. 21,891 bu.

Doesn't this speak well for the health in this vicinity? The following is the conversation between two physicians overheard by ye scribe:
First M. D. "We don't intend to lose any patients, do we, doctor?"
Second M. D. "Don't get any to lose!"
Mr. Milo Baldwin while turning the corner at Woods & Knapp's one evening last week, had the misfortune to run into Mr. Gatz's wagon, ruining the off hind wheel. Were the cross-walk extended as it should be, no such annoyances would occur, and would be much more pleasant for foot passengers, too.

We would call the attention of our readers to the "Treasury of Song," noticed in this issue. It is one of the most beautiful books we have ever seen, and should be in every home circle. Mr. P. C. Galvin, of Cleveland, O., is now in town taking orders for this collection of gems. He is a gentleman who comes well recommended and can do our towns-people no better service than by introducing this work.

The News has received a photograph of a skeleton, taken seated in an easy chair, with a newspaper grasped in its bony hand. It is accompanied by a note saying, "The enclosed photo shows the present condition of an editor who attempted to run a country newspaper and subsist on produce, butter, eggs, etc., taken on subscription, and is sent out as a warning to those who aspire to country journalism."

It is of course a great pleasure to us to be able to state that only a few of our many readers have offered to pay in such a way, but on the contrary most of our readers have kindly and willingly paid us the cash, and believe the others will, soon.
A sad accident happened to Bertie, a 7-years-old son of Leij Riggs of Sylvan Centre, last Friday noon. While in the barn with another boy, they went cutting straw with an old fashioned cutter,—the knife working up and down. Bertie was feeding when in some way his right hand went too far and the middle finger and the one each side were severed. The middle and ring fingers were cut back of the first joint, the other lost the greater part of the nail. Mess. Davis and Beckwith immediately put the severed members in place and with the aid of sticking plaster they were kept there until Dr. Palmer could be reached. The little fellow bore all without flinching.

To-day we give the last regular Florida letter. Mr. Ashley went to Florida on business for Jackson men, and at the same time intended to look thoroughly into the future of orange culture as a source of profit. The climate and health on high roll pine lands of South Florida have been coming famous as being unequalled in this country, and Mr. Ashley's letters have shown so clearly that a five or ten-acre lot of good orange land can be made more valuable in a few years than a large farm North, that an association has been formed to purchase land through R. D. Fuller, of whom Mr. Ashley has spoken in his letters, for Michigan people who would like an orange grove and winter home in that delightful country. Mr. Fuller will also oversee the setting out of groves and assume their care for those who have lots any time they wish. This association, the Altamont Real Estate Agency, has agents at Detroit, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, and Jackson, and already many of the best men of Michigan have purchased lots of Mr. Fuller's selection, and will soon have groves started, cottages built, and other improvements made.

A Card.
I wish to say to my many friends who so kindly remembered me in my great distress following my almost fatal accident recently, that I take this opportunity of extending my most sincere and heart-felt thanks, and only pray that none of you may ever suffer as I have since that terrible fall, and hope I may in the future as in the past so live among you that you may ever feel that I am worthy of your kind and charitable acts as would others be in like circumstances. Again we both tender our sincere thanks.
Mr. & Mrs. H. Lighthall.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Art Amateur for July contains pleasing designs of buttercups and apple-blossoms for china painting, a charming pond-lilly design for embroidery, two pages of jewelry designs, a page of monograms, and a page of capital borders for wood-carving. The work of American painters in the Paris Salon is reviewed, and drawings are given of fifteen of the most attractive and important pictures in the exhibition. An admirable and copiously illustrated article on "The Theory and Practice of Pen drawing" is alone worth the price of the number to the many who are interested in this humble but useful art. No one interested in art should fail to examine the July issue of this excellent magazine. Price, 35 cents; per annum, $4. Montague Marks, publisher, 23 Union Square, New York.

St. Nicholas for June will be a memorable number on account of a carefully written and wonderfully illustrated article on the "Brooklyn Bridge." Charles Barnard, who is equally well known as a writer on scientific subjects, and as a story teller for children, and who has watched the growth of the marvelous structure from its beginning, and photographed it from every possible point of view, furnishes the text, and the pictures are by G. W. Edwards and W. Taber. The diagrams are numerous and the description accurate and popular.

J. T. Trowbridge tells how the Turkeys outwitted their persecutors, Maurice Thompson finishes "The Story of Robin Hood," Edward S. Ellis continues "Sweet Away," and there is another "Drummer Boy" paper.

An interesting feature of the number is the appearance of the prize composition on "Robert Burns" and "A Shark in Sight," with the long Roll of Honor of those whose essays were almost, but not quite so good. And there is much besides in the magazine that is timely, entertaining, and amusing.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Daniel Maroney is visiting friends at Flint.

Dr. Speer, of Battle Creek, spent the fourth at this place.
Miss Moore, of the Enterprise office, made friends at this place a short visit last Sunday.

The pleasant countenance of A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor was seen on our streets the fore part of the week.
Mrs. Caroline North, mother of Mrs. H. Lighthall, leaves this week to spend some time with a daughter at Ovid, Mich.

Mrs. McNamara and daughter, of Traverse City, and Mr. J. Sullivan of Williamton, are the guests of post master Crowell.
Mr. F. R. Lattimer notifies us to hereafter send his HERALD to Stockbridge, as he is now "located." Our well-wishes are extended to the firm.

Mr. Reuben Kempf has returned from his eastern trip. While at New York he crossed the new bridge which, he says, must be seen to be appreciated.
On Friday last, Miss Jessie Flagler of this place, closed a very successful term of school in Lyndon, in the Collins district. Her services have been engaged for the fall term.

Mr. S. Seney, who for the past four months has been in the machine shops of Payne & Son, at Corning, N. Y., returned home last week to take charge of the Huber engine Mr. S. Seney is expecting.

Geo. H. Purchase is now at home having closed his studies at the Normal. He is now the possessor of a state certificate which permits him to teach in nearly every school in the state, without being examined by the county examiners.

Watches!

We will convince any person intending to purchase a Watch, that we can offer them decided inducements, that buy of us. First, we have by far the largest variety of Gold and Silver Cases in town; second, we have the most complete assortment of Movements, representing all the principal manufacturers; third, we give a guarantee of such a character, that our customers assume no responsibility whatever when they buy a Watch of us.

We sell none but goods of known reliability, and are willing to take all the chances on them.

trade has grown steadily until now it is larger than ever before, and believe the success we have attained; is entirely owing to the quality of goods we have sold in the past.

Notices in this space will be inserted at ten cents per line.

"Treasury of Song" is destined to have the largest sale of any book ever published. As a useful book it has no equal.
I have examined Treasury of Song and find it contains many excellent pieces of value to the music student as well as for use at home. C. B. Scheffler, Director Albion College Conservatory.

"Treasury of Song" VOCAL AND INSTRUMENTAL.
One of the most delightful works issued in many a day is the "Treasury of Song."

The vocal book comprises 300 choice selections of song from the various departments,—sacred, classical, and humorous. These extend over 550 royal octavo pages, well printed on superior paper, and giving the instrumental accompaniments.

The instrumental book comprises 125 selections from all of the best classical writers, bound in a very flexible and durable manner.
The music in these books if bought in sheet form would cost over $25, and yet it is so low in price that every one can afford it. A specially attractive feature of this work is a series of sketches and portraits of distinguished composers and singers. In all respects the book is unquestionably first-class.

Wood Bros. are still giving 10 per cent. off on Shoes, and 20 per cent. off on all sales of Silver Ware.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

ANOTHER question of great importance will probably come before congress at its next session, as Utah is again making preparations to ask for admission to the sisterhood of states. If Utah ever wants to be admitted as a state polygamy must be done away with, and nothing short of an amendment to the constitution of the United States will ever eradicate that curse.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, whose seventieth birthday was celebrated in Brooklyn a few days ago, is certainly a marvel of vigor, both physically and intellectually, for a man of his advanced years. The career of this man has been one of exceptional prominence, and one well deserved, too, gained as it was by untiring industry in various occupations.

A THOUGHTFUL article by Mr. Clarence Gordon in the July number of The Manhattan urges the importance of the movement initiated by Mr. Geo. Jacob Holyoake for the instruction of immigrants, but proposes a radically different method of accomplishing the desired result.

If reports are true, a bomb more annoying and less destructive of human happiness than one filled with dynamite, has exploded in the palace of the young King of Spain. It seems that when Alfonso married the present Queen, he did not transfer to her the great love he had for the child Queen Mercedes, and that the lavish display of apparent affection he made was all buncombe, intended to deceive both her and the people over whom he ruled.

vows she will never, never go back to Spain. Alfonso is but following in the footsteps of his ancestors, and for that matter of most European sovereigns; and had his queen taken the precaution to read up the pedigree of the husband selected for her she might have known what to expect.

TWELVE hundred children have been gathered out of the slums of London and Liverpool during the last ten years and sent to Canada, with the best results. In three or four cases, it is stated by the manager of this organized emigration scheme, girls of hopelessly corrupt habits were sent, with the effect of injuring the character of the whole enterprise in the opinion of the Canadian farmers.

Our Wealth.

The proud position which the United States holds among the nations of the world is clearly shown by the wonderful fact that one-fifth of the wealth of the seventeen principal countries of the globe is credited to this Republic, which has only just entered upon the second century of its existence.

At Holwood, near Bromley, England, stands a venerable oak tree with a huge gnarled root projecting on one side in the shape of a rude settee. It was while seated on that root that William Pitt and William Wilberforce held together that memorable conversation as a result of which the latter, on May 12, 1789, brought the question of the abolition of the slave trade before the House of Commons.

A NEW LAND.

A City That Threatens the Supremacy of San Francisco-- Wealth in Iron, Coal, Timber and Precious Metals.

Puget Sound Letter in New York Sun. The great city on the Pacific coast is to be Tacoma, the Western terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad. Its present and future rest on certainties.

San Francisco was founded on chance—the chance of finding placer gold in paying site and quantity, and the chance that rock veins of silver and gold would endure. California's placers, except in the mountain-top blue clay channels, have all been found and scooped clean. The Comstock mines, abandoned or unworked, represent the best condition of California's gambling labor in rock mining.

And there is iron ore in Tacoma's appanage. The Wilkeson coal field is already known to hold an eight foot vein of hematite, and the Green River field a twelve feet vein, each containing sixty per cent of metal. Across the Sound, in the Olympian range, is unlimited magnetic ore.

In the waterway from the Pacific ocean to the Tacoma docks there is not a bar, rock, reef, or sand bank. The entrance to Puget Sound is thirteen miles wide and 600 feet deep, and this depth and this roominess are carried from the mouth of the Straits of Fuca to Commencement Bay, which is Tacoma's harbor.

This unrivalled seaport has a competitor in Portland, O., a seaport 100 miles from the sea, up a muddy branch of the Columbia river. There are numerous bars between Portland and the mouth of the Columbia, which compel costly lighterage. The Columbia bar is the worst on the face of the earth.

Her unequalled position and relations, and the two lines of railroad, from the south and the east, will make Tacoma the local metropolis of an area of territory larger than that which includes Chicago, Buffalo, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Louisville and St. Louis, and back to Chicago.

Puget Sound is a ravishingly beautiful archipelago. There is not so lovely a body of water on the earth. Tourists by tens of thousands will go yearly to Tacoma, to sail on this purple sea, through islands evergreen with fig trees, the purple sea buttressed on the west by the snow peaks of the Olympian range, and sentried on the east by the slumbering volcano, Tacoma, 14,500 feet high, a pyramid of eternal ice and snow, which gives back to the entranced beholder the revolving light of day and of the moonlight night in every color and shade known to the prism and to art.

Four thousand people are in this new town. The saw mills at Puget sound cannot supply its increasing population's demand for lumber. They run night and day to meet the impatience of a keen race to "get their stake" before September next and before a flood in real estate values will follow there the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad.

Senecharib Sykes.

Texas Siftings.

"Wall, why don't you eat your vittles?" inquired Mr. Senecharib Sykes, glaring at his eldest son, Oliver, at the breakfast table. "Are you sick, sweened, or financially busted?"

"Oliver is by no means well," suggested Mrs. Sykes, "and I have no doubt but that a change of scene in another climate would be beneficial to him."

"What's the matter with you?" inquired Senecharib.

"I don't know exactly," answered Oliver; "I reckon its some kind of general debility. I should like to go to the watering place."

"Go to some watering place!" whistled Senecharib, dropping a potato from his fork and shoveling a spoonful of salt into his coffee. "Well, why don't yer go out to the horse trough? Want to blow in a couple of thousand dollars, or two hundred head of steers? I've got my opinion of these dished-up watering places. You'd like to go to Hot Springs, wouldn't yer, and mash some widdler woman with her face calcimined, and the six children by her first husband in the back ground, where you never see 'em. Such creatures are always on the lookout for idiotic invalids with wealth. They are thicker than red ants as a picnic. Want to go to Newport, and be snobbed by the aristoc, don't yer? Want to go up to Waukesha, Wisconsin, and drink stagnant pond water flavored with carbonic acid gas? Want to go to Long Branch and rent Gen. Grant's cottage, built with a small kitchen, nineteen smoking rooms, and a dozen dog kennels, don't yer? Think some of going to Saratoga, and get yourself steered onto a bunke game? Want to go to Rye Beach, and suck rye whisky cocktails through a rye straw while the little German band plays 'Coming Thro' the Rye'?"

"Yes, sir, I've got my opinion of all these watering places, and its a low one. You can't steal a side glance at the porter without paying him a dollar, and if you stub your toe its two and a half. They will sell you a cigar for six bits and charge you ten cents for a match. You can't move around on the gallery without fetching away the back breadths of a lady's dress, and you can't saunter into the bar-room without rubbing against a saucer-eyed dude. The outer is made in an iron kettle with a fire under it instead of a churn, and the spring chicken is as springy as an injy rubber teething ring. My advice is to stay away from all such watering places; and if you must recuperate your shattered constitution, why pack yer grip sack, pike for the banks of Newfoundland, and put a coating of har-boiled corns on the palms of your hands, hauling in mackerel and codfishes. That's me, that's your old dad, Senecharib, and he's got the Texas steers to pay the expenses."

There are three flourishing colleges in the city of Winnipeg, Manitoba: St. Boniface, St. John's and Manitoba. They are united under the corporate name of the University of Manitoba. The principle of the university is that each college shall do its own teaching and have full control of its internal affairs; that the university shall fix its curriculum, conduct its own examinations, and confer all degrees (except in theology) for the province. Degrees in theology are conferred by the colleges. Provision is made for admitting other colleges when they apply.

Marriage of Mrs. Clemmer.

A wedding of two prominent newspaper correspondents occurred in Washington on the 19th inst. Mrs. M. Clemmer, who for twenty years written letters for the press, was married to Mr. Edmund Hudson, who is editor of two papers published in Washington and the correspondent of Boston Herald. He is about 15 years younger than the bride, who is 53. Hudson is a native of Boston, of Jewish extraction, and a gentleman of culture and ability. The wedding was a quiet one, only her mother, who lives with her, and Mr. Hudson's mother who lives in Boston, being present. Mrs. Clemmer and her husband set for England the same week of the marriage, and will remain there until they will occupy her house on Cap Hill, which she bought several years ago, and in which she has lived ever since. Both her parents lived with her until her father died eighteen months ago. A curious episode in the history of divorces was that Mrs. Clemmer and her husband, Ames, who were divorced in 1876, was unique because neither of them the time or afterward bore malice, was managed purely as a business transaction and by mutual consent. He retained the divorce at Harper's Ferry West Virginia, where he then resided making certain letters he had from the grounds for procuring it. In speaking of it a year later, to a friend of his he said: "I thought it would make Mary happier to be free, and as I had always studied her happiness, I gave her her freedom." As there were children the matter was the easier arranged. He used regularly to call upon her when he visited Washington at the divorce, and often consulted her. He even discussed with her his proposition to marry another lady before proposing to the lady in question. He now been married several years, and his family now live in the west.

A man who weighs 150 pounds on earth, if transported to Jupiter would shake the ground with a ponderous tremor of 45,000 pounds or twenty-two and half tons! A hickory nut falling from a bough would crash through him like a minnie ball. Water would weigh fifty times as much as quicksilver. A moderate wave would shiver to atoms the strongest iron-clad.

A lawsuit about $200 worth of lumber between two farmers in the province of Quebec has just come to a conclusion. The costs amounted to $7,000, which the defeated party will have to pay. The victorious party was ruined by lawyer's fees.

The electric light was employed for the first time in Buckingham Palace on the night of the first Queen's coronation. The verdict of those present varied according to their costumes. Officers in brilliant uniforms were delighted, and whose toilettes were perfectly new adapted in color to the keen, white light had the double satisfaction of looking well themselves and witnessing the admiration of rivals whom the electric light detected in gowns that had seen better days or were designed to appear only in the soft radiance of wax candles. As a complexion, remarks The London Herald, the less said the better.
Across Bill Travers, the wag of the street, a few days ago. Bill is a scuttler, except when he is William H Vanderbilt happened to pass along, and I think it was that day the poor millionaire was on the street. Travers looked pittingly at the man, and then exclaimed—"S-s-see there g-g-goes Bill V-a-a-a-n-d-e-r-b-i-l-t with his hands in his own p-o-c-k-e-t-s." This was a general laugh.—New York Herald.

DR. PENGELLY:
Dear Sir— I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter's case. I am surprised to see how she has improved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think feels better than she ever did; her nerves are steady, and the distress she suffered in her chest, is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is all that has saved her life. I am not afraid to tell what a wonderful cure your medicine is, and I would like all who suffer to try it. Yours respectfully,
MRS. SARAH RANDOLPH.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE

In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Doss' Patent Gold Watch Cases this WASTE is saved, and SOLIDITY and STRENGTH increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID GOLD is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Since the introduction of spelling matches many words have come prominently into notice—words that were previously comparatively unknown. For instance we find Antiseptic, meaning: preventing and stopping all fermentation and decomposition, and Analgesic: Painkiller. Then there is Antipyretic: cooling down inflammation and fever heat. These three words so often mis-spelled, are three of the cardinal virtues of something that will cure many a bad spell, and that is Salicylic acid, pronounced Sal-i-cyl-i-ca. Warranted to afford immediate relief, and guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia. 614

Judge Harriman is rusticating at his old home in Vermont.

The amount of freight handled in Brooklyn during May, was, according to the Exponent, 1,179,790 lbs.

Mrs. Jennie B. Racer, wife of John J. Racer, the bigamist convicted at the last term of court, has commenced proceedings for divorce at Chicago.—[Register.]

The spring below the new bath house now operates: two No. 4 hydraulic rams, throwing an immense quantity of water wherever needed on the premises.—[Ypsilantian.]

J. J. Parshall of the town of Ann Arbor had forty sheep killed by dogs Wednesday night. The dogs evidently could not wait until Commencement day for their sheep-skins.—[Courier.]

Up to date over 1,200 patients have been treated in the University Hospital since October 1st. During the college year of 1881-82, 1,326 patients came to the Hospital.—[Register.]

The peal of bells was rung out Wednesday afternoon from the tower of the library. They are presented by Jacob J. Hagerman of Milwaukee, Edwin C. Hegeler of LaSalle, Ill., and President Andrew White, of Cornell.—[Courier.]

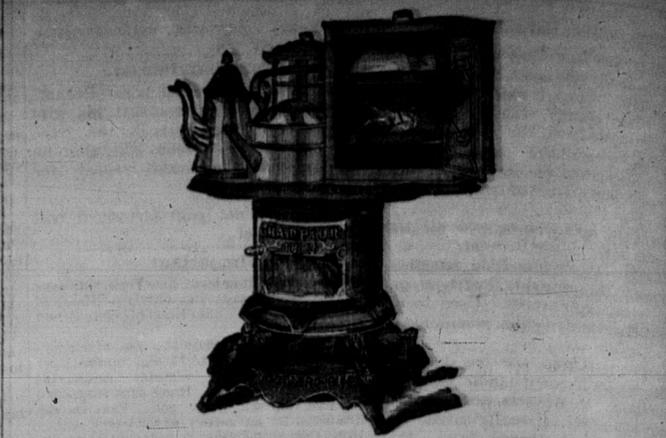

The girls of Brooklyn and vicinity are not noted for flirting at home, but one of them recently made a "mash" at Jackson. It was not only the innocent orange epidermis which lay unsuspectingly on the side-walk that was mashed, but her bustle as well.—[Exponent.]

John Gottlieb Schreck, who has been for 15 years employed as engine wiper in the Michigan Central round house, committed suicide last Wednesday morning, sending a bullet from a 32-calibre revolver thro' his brain. Depression of spirits is the only cause known. He was 62 years old and leaves a wife and one daughter.

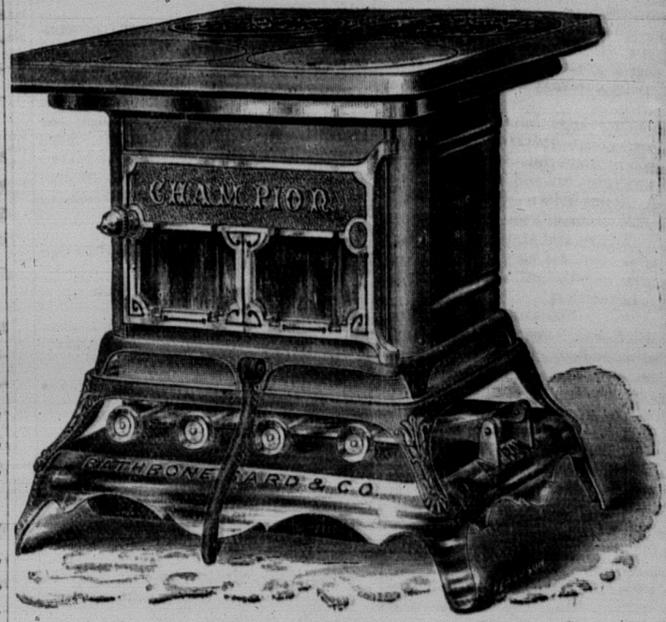

The wool market is still very slow. The quality of the article marketed is not quite as good as usual, and the amount sold up to date is much smaller than the amount reported at the corresponding time last year. Buyers do not care to pay over 28 cents, although 30 cents has been offered for choice clips. The ruling price seems to be about two cents below that of last year.—[Register.]

The wool market has not opened up here to any extent yet, although Jacob Sturm purchased some 15,000 or 16,000 pounds this week at 30c. He cannot offer that price at present however and consequently there are no deliveries. There seems to be a general belief among those who ought to be able to pass good judgment, that prices will be materially better in the fall, if not even sooner.—[Saline Observer.]

An exchange says: "We want people to borrow our paper, and we hope no one will stop reading it because they can't afford to own a copy, so long as they can beg or borrow one, or the use of it. A paper that is borrowed is a good deal like a good wheelbarrow, or a good stump-puller or a good kront-cutter,—it must have some merit or it would not be wanted." And then it boastfully adds: "We know of one woman who borrowed the reading of this paper for three years and a half, and then became converted and joined the church. On a man it had nearly the opposite effect; he has borrowed it so long that he will not rent a house in a neighborhood where this paper is not taken."

J. BACON & CO.

Chelsea and vicinity, and farmers in the community, now is the time to buy your harvesters and binders. Buy early, and you are sure of having a machine! If you buy a McCORMICK HARVESTER and BINDER, you will have a machine that will EXCEL all other binders in the market. It is not a CHEAP made machine; every piece is made to fit to perfection.

We are not obliged to go AWAY from home, for testimonials, as other companies do!

C. H. McCormick has more experience, than any other company in the world!

They have made more improvements, on their binder this year, than any other company in the market!

We have the LIGHTEST harvester and binder, by two hundred pounds, and the LIGHTEST draft.

We have a light, single reaper, called the "daisy."

It has all the improvement, over all other reapers, in the market!

Farmers, before you purchase harvesters and binders, reapers and mowers, call and see the sample machines, one door south of Sherry's, at Foster & Lighthall's old stand.

I have also the "Thomas self dump" rake, and the "Chieftan lock-level" hay rake; and am also agent for the Mudgett hay tedder threshing machines and engines.

Call and see me, before you buy! F. B. WHITAKER.

From the Jackson Star. The most important question to determine, by one in locating land for an orange grove, in case he does not intend to live on it himself, is, who is to take care of it? The question of the price of land for so few acres, is comparatively of no consequence. One could well afford to pay a much higher price for his land, considering the few acres he would need, could he get it in a location where he could get such a man as R. D. Fuller, of Altamont, to take charge of his grove, than he could if he must take his chances on whom he could get to care for it.

their enormous products into the lap of the North, and untold wealth will be piled up by the men who are content to cultivate a small patch of ground in that sunny land, endure for a season, a few annoyances people of the North are not subject to. Market gardening in the Hammock region will probably soon be found to be as profitable as raising oranges, and there is no waiting to do. Many a case did I hear of where men have realized between five hundred and a thousand dollars per acre off from land within a few months after clearing off the wood. But there are drawbacks to Florida as well as to any other country. While we have snow storms in May, they have fleas, in some places all summer, and so thick that one cannot avoid them. And while we only have about three months of actual summer in the year, they have so much summer that it is impossible to dig deep enough into the earth to procure cold water, and I doubt if much of it would be good and healthy to drink, even if cold. The majority of the people there use rain water exclusively, which, strange to say, is very pure and does not taste like rain water north. In fact, it is quite endurable even to a Northern man who is accustomed to the very best of well water.

LIMA ITEMS. Miss Nonie Guerin spent part of last week in Ypsilanti. Nearly every one from this place attend the show at Arbor. Rev. D. W. Giberson started for Wisconsin last Monday to visit a brother. Mr. Adolph Rodell will fill the pulpit during his absence. On account of the stormy weather there was not a very large gathering at the strawberry festival. Those who attended report having a pleasant time. Wm. Arnold of Dexter, had ten sheep killed by the gravel train, Monday night of last week. Three of Dexter's young men are taking a trip to Chicago via the Lakes, returning home by rail from Chicago. Married, etc., W. P. Govier, and Mrs. Adella J. Reeve, both of Dexter. The bashful bridegroom of 25 leads to the alter a blushing bride of 41. We don't know whether this would be winter lingering in the lap of spring, or vice versa. But 'what's the hods as long as you're 'appy.' We wish them a long and prosperous life, and trust that no clouds or rolling pins will ever darken their pathway of life.—[Dexter Leader. One of our Saturday night incidents was a small-sized runaway. A man named Grace, who works for Mr. Nordman, of Lima, with his wife and child, were in town and started home with his horse and buggy; just after starting one of the thill straps broke, letting the buggy run on to the horse's heels. He began to kick, and in the driver's efforts to hold him, he ran up in front of the old Western Hotel and plunged over the railing on the west side of the house, and falling into the road below, freed himself from the buggy, and struck out for home. The woman and child were thrown out before the horse went over the rail. The buggy was damaged somewhat, but none of the occupants was injured in the least.—[Leader.

Refer to all prominent physicians and druggists for the standing of Salicylica. SECRET. THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOTTY PATIENTS. SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout, and Neuralgia, while so many so called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects. It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid. SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all the celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy reports 95 per cent. cures in three days. REMEMBER that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly. Give it a trial. Relief guaranteed or money refunded. Thousands of testimonials sent on application. $1 a Box; 6 boxes for $5. Sent free by mail on receipt of money. Ask your druggist for it, but do not be deluded into taking imitations or substitutes of something recommended as "just as good!" Insist on the genuine with the name of WASHBURN & CO. on each box, which is guaranteed chemically pure under our signature, an indispensable requisite to insure success in the treatment. Dom Pedro, of Brazil—the senior sovereign of the world, by the way, in tenure of office having now reigned more than fifty-two years—is going to visit England again, and keepers of public institutions—museums, libraries, etc.—are praying that a change may have been wrought in his habits since his last visit. He used to make appointments to visit such places at say, 5 or 6 o'clock. The custodians supposed, of course, that he meant that hour in the afternoon, but when the time came they found to their dismay that he meant in the morning; and he was always punctual to the minute.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

"ROBBED OF ITS TERRORS."

"Civil service examination robbed of its terrors," is the heading of an advertisement which appears in some of the papers in Washington just now. The poor fellows who want positions are being fleeced at every turn, and by the time the Commission sits, examinees who reject them they will not have money enough left to take them home. The traps set for them are numerous. One advertiser announces himself as a teacher of large experience in preparing students for competitive examinations, and adds that he can assure those who take lessons from him that they will be successful when they appear before the Civil Service Board. Others are very mysterious about the system to be used, but all of the "teachers" are certain the applicant will pass if they will only come to them for instruction.

INTERNAL REVENUE CONSOLIDATION.

The change in the Internal Revenue districts, which has been talked about so long, has at last been made. The number of districts has been reduced from 136 to 82. Michigan is divided into two districts by a line running north and south, with headquarters at Detroit and Grand Rapids. These two districts will be presided over by James H. Stone and Chas. N. Watkins, respectively.

HILL'S CASE.

The investigation of the charges against Architect Hill is still in progress. The testimony taken makes matters look dark for Hill.

ARTHUR AGREES.

President Arthur and the entire cabinet will support the immigration commissioners in their efforts to keep out pauper immigrants.

A NONKEY STATEMENT.

A statement prepared at the office of the commissioner of internal revenue shows the aggregate receipts during May, 1883, were $346,518 greater than in the same month in 1882. There was an increase of $231,729 from spirits, an increase of $220,827 from tobacco, an increase of $167,968 from beer, a decrease of $84,049 from banks and bankers, and a decrease of $188,752 from miscellaneous. In the taxation of tobacco there was increase of $19,900 on cigars, a decrease of $31,360 on cigarettes, an increase of $17,351 on snuff, an increase of $818,569 on chewing and smoking tobacco, a decrease of $535,792 from dealers in manufactured tobacco, and a decrease of $67,039 from all other sources. The comparative statement of collections of internal revenue during the first 11 months of the fiscal year ending ending June 30, 1882 and 1883, shows the following: Total receipts from spirits in 1882, $64,514,065; in 1883, $68,552,655; increase, $4,038,590. From tobacco, 1882, $43,450,981; 1883, $38,762,078; decrease, $4,688,903. From fermented liquors, 1882, $14,419,544; 1883, $15,051,98; increase, $631,854. From banks and bankers, 1882, $3,888,721; 1883, $3,748,561; decrease, $140,160. Miscellaneous, 1882, $7,334,571; 1883, $7,249,969; decrease, $84,602. Total receipts, 1882, $133,008,009; 1883, $134,664,758; increase, $1,656,749.

THEY WANT ORDER.

Lawlessness has long existed in Garland, Yell and Montgomery counties, Ark., where outlaws have organized a reign of terror. In April Wm. Potter was assassinated and the criminals openly defy arrest. A few Sundays ago an armed party took possession of a neighboring church and drawing arms on the preacher compelled him to read a notice naming the officers and leading citizens to leave the country or be killed. Gov. Berry has issued a proclamation urging the sheriff and other officers of these counties and all good citizens to use every effort to hunt down the desperadoes. He expressed a determination to break up this murderous band.

NIAGARA'S NEW BRIDGE.

The first stone for the American pier of the new Canada Southern bridge at Niagara Falls has been successfully lowered. This stone weighed one and a quarter tons, and was lowered at great speed, in order to test the strength of the derrick used, which proved equal to the great strain. The stone work of this new pier will be 20x40 feet in each pit and 60 feet high.

NO MORE TRADE DOLLARS.

Nearly all business men of New York, including liquor and cigar dealers, have refused to take trade dollars. It is expected that this general action will drive the coin out of the city and country within a very short time. The Mercantile Exchange brought about the change. Bullion dealers are not willing to pay over eighty-five cents for a trade dollar. The movement in New York has extended quite generally throughout the country. There are $35,000,000 of these coins out, which the government will not take except as bullion.

MANY MORMONS.

The steamer Nevada, which arrived in New York a few days ago brought over 700 mormon proselytes, and special arrangements were made with the railroads to forward them direct to Salt Lake City. The mormon missionary work in Europe has been very successful during the past year, and it is expected that about 5,000 will come to this country within the next four months. Mr. Hart, the agent of the Utah emigration society in New York has been furnished an assistant to enable him to attend to the large amount of business that will develop on him during the present summer and the coming fall.

POLITICAL.

NO SENATOR YET.

The vote taken in the New Hampshire legislature on June 27 gave Bingham 116 votes and Rollins 105 with other candidates scattering.

IOWA'S CANDIDATES.

Iowa Republicans met in convention at Des Moines, renominated Governor Sherman and Lieutenant Governor Manning, chose Judge Reed as their candidate for justice of the supreme court and adopted a platform which declares in favor of the home as against the saloon, and of protection to American industries as against ruinous foreign competition.

MINNESOTA'S STORY.

The story of the Republican state convention of Minnesota may be briefly told. It met in St. Paul on the 27th of June. Gov. Hubbard was renominated C. A. Gillman was nominated for lieutenant-governor on the second ballot, Fred von Braunbach for secretary of state by acclamation, Charles Kittleson treasurer, W. J. Hahn attorney general, J. H. Baker railroad commissioner. The platform adopted is commendatory of the acts of the Republican party.

BINGHAM AHEAD.

Wednesday, June 27, Harry Bingham was still ahead in the New Hampshire senatorial contest, receiving 105 votes. Rollins received 99.

A SENSIBLE PROPOSITION.

A proposition, by members of the New Hampshire legislature, made in the interest of harmony in the Republican organization, for the withdrawal of all prominent candidates for the senatorship and the selection of a new man by a caucus or in some other manner as may be agreed on, is finding much favor among prominent outside men in the party.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

WALLACE IN EARNEST.

An American physician has been forbidden to practice his profession in Tripoli because he was not provided with a Turkish diploma. Gen. Wallace on learning of the fact, had the physician come to Constantinople, pass an examination, take a diploma and return to Tripoli. Gen. Wallace addressed a note to the Porte, insisting upon an apology for the treatment of the physician, because hundreds of native doctors in Tripoli are permitted to practice without a diploma.

DARWIN WAS RIGHT.

A Rio Janeiro dispatch says: The existence of a tribe of Indians in Paraguay with tails is asserted on apparently good authority. One of them—a boy seven or eight years old—has been captured and excites much wonder, he having a tail six to eight inches long. The boy is very ugly, but his body is not covered with hair. A brother of the boy, in possession of Colonel Rueda de Roca, has also a tail, and it is said all the tribe are similarly adorned. This tale of a tail is vouched for by Dr. Luiz Pizzarello, an Italian.

AN IRISH AFFRAY.

A fight occurred at Carrigah, Ireland, between two companies of militiamen. Five men were killed. The fight originated in a gambling dispute, during which the Mayo men called the Dublin men "Carey's" and "Invincibles."

CHURCH AND STATE.

Church and state in Prussia, after ten years

IT'S CONSTITUTIONAL.

The supreme court of Ohio has declared the Scott liquor law constitutional. The support of this law was one of the strongest planks in the platform adopted at the Republican state convention, and in effect this decision of the supreme court gives to the platform a judicial approval.

A WAYWARD RABBI.

A Jewish Rabbi is on trial in Dallas, Texas, for adultery. The "holy man" claims that he visited a house of questionable repute only at the request of a mother whose daughter had entered upon a life of sin.

FALLING WATERS.

To the great relief of people living along the Mississippi, the water has commenced to recede. The damage is incalculable. In St. Mary's bottom 20,000 acres of wheat are under a foot of water. Along the Missouri river thousands of acres of land are inundated, and crops washed away.

A DEVIL INCARNATE SENTENCED.

Dr. Isaac T. Hathaway, a Philadelphia abortionist, in whose cellar was found the skulls of so many infants, has been convicted of performing an operation upon a servant girl in April last, and sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and imprisonment for seven years.

TOO MUCH SAND.

Mr. James R. Daves, United States Tea Appraiser of New York, has presented a report to the Collector, showing that 3,100 packages of the cargo of tea shipped to that port from Shanghai on the Flimsy were adulterated, and consequently rejected. The tea was mixed with sand exhausted tea leaves and dirt and paste rolled into pellets. In several instances it was evident to an inexperienced observer when taken and crushed between the fingers that sand was visible. About 500 packages of colored Japan tea of which most was dust, were also rejected after an examination. This was of high color and mixed with mineral substances to increase the weight. These are the first one made since the passage of the new law, March 21. All teas are more or less affected with impurities. In the case of the tea rejected they had impurities exceeding double the percentage allowed. The teas, had they been placed in the market, would have sold for nearly $22,000.

REJECTED.

The "deceased wife's sister" bill was defeated in the House of Lords, by a vote of 145 nays, 140 yeas.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

A desperate attempt was made in the carriage of a railway train running from Calais to Paris to murder and rob Rev. Mr. Witeborne, an English clergyman. The murderer attacked Witeborne with a chisel, stabbing him five times. The assassin tried to make his escape when the train arrived at Amiens, but was captured after a terrific struggle. The wounds of the clergyman are very dangerous. It is not expected he will survive them. The assailant was also an Englishman.

SPAIN SCARED.

Great alarm prevails in Spain over the outbreak of cholera in Egypt. The Sanitary Council has advised that the maximum period of quarantine be imposed on all vessels arriving at Spanish ports from Egypt. The council also requested the Ministry to urge the British Government to comply with the advice of the Constantinople Sanitary Conference.

A FRIGHTENED JUSTICE.

Chief Justice Coleridge, who presided at the trial of the dynamite conspirators, is said to be considerably alarmed at the decree that he must die, which has been promulgated by the "Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood."

Pears and The Pears.

Evansville Argus. "Same!" "Yes, pa."

"There were seven California pears in that closet. Six of them are gone. Do you know anything about it?" "I never took one of them."

"Sure?" "Certain, pa. Wish to die if—"

"You wicked, bad boy; how often have I told you never to use such an expression. Here comes ma; let us see if she knows anything about it."

Mamma says she saw James take at least five of them.

"You little rascal! How dare you tell me you never took one, and here's only this little one with the grub eaten side left?"

"Oh, pa, don't hit me. I said I didn't take one of them—ane—and—and that's the one I didn't take."

Pa relented.

The Forest Wealth of Mexico.

The untold treasures of gold and silver in the mines of Mexico have dazzled the eyes of adventurers for centuries so that the world has been practically blind to the marvelous forest wealth of that country. Of late years, however, the increased demand for beautiful cabinet material has made it profitable to export some of the fine-grained woods which flourish there, and the waning lumber supply of this country has called attention to the value of Mexican timber trees. Our sister republic is to be congratulated on the fact that its Central Government has awakened to an appreciation of its wealth in this particular. The first practical step in what promises to be a comprehensive forest policy has just been taken by the Government in contracting for the planting of two million trees in the famous Valley of Mexico, which was stripped long ago of its forests. These trees are to be planted in four years, at the rate of 500,000 per annum, and the young of each variety—ash, eucalyptus, acacia, ligustrum japonicum, and the rest—are to be maintained for two years by the contractor before he is paid for the planting. It is not probable that the Government is very far in advance of public sentiment in so important a matter, and no doubt private planters will keep abreast of the National authorities in the enterprise. The scheme announced includes the translation of standard treatises on silviculture and the education of certain graduates of the school of agriculture in the science of forestry.

THE FOREST WEALTH OF MEXICO.

It is not to be presumed that a nation will deliberately set about the planting of trees and allow its wealth of standing timber to be recklessly squandered. Lying, as Mexico does, in both the temperate and torrid zones, with a copious rainfall, a great variety of acrocentric growth is insured. But in addition to this, its varied surface, with high table lands and lofty mountain ranges, offers a still greater variety of climatic conditions. Oaks and pines, and even alpine plants flourish on the flanks of the mountains, while trees which furnish the dyes and gums and fruits of the tropics are found at their base. Over one hundred species of trees whose wood is of economical value are known to be indigenous, while trees which grow anywhere in the world could probably be acclimated in some part of the Republic. We know little here of the most valuable Mexican cabinet woods, but they show a tone and texture superior to the finest products of the East, and have been introduced in many of the newer buildings of California with striking effect. If the step just taken by the Federal government is the beginning of a comprehensive system of forest management which looks to the preservation of a constant supply of these choice forest products, the civilized world will reap a substantial advantage and an unfailing source of National wealth will be established.

The fact that so little is known of the products of Mexican forests even at home ought to point out to the authorities the necessity of making a thorough appraisal of their resources. Notwithstanding the immense mineral wealth of Mexico no adequate geological survey of the country has ever been made. Such a survey, which would include a careful examination of the soils and forests as well as of the mines and quarries of the country, giving a correct estimate of the natural wealth of the Republic, would prove an immediately profitable investment. Without doubt many new fields of industry would be discovered by skilled scientific research, and what is perhaps still more important, an authoritative statement of the value and variety of the country's products would stimulate immigration and enterprise. Capital seeks investment in fields which are thoroughly and accurately known. A survey like that which has been undertaken by several of our own states, and an investigation of the quality and quantity of forest products like that just completed by our present Census Bureau, would give the world what it has never yet possessed—an accurate idea of the commercial possibilities of Mexico.

The Story of Some Lost Bonds.

Cleveland Herald. Shortly after the terrible forest fires had devastated Northern Michigan last year an old lady residing in an Eastern state notified the Treasury Department of the loss of some United States four per cent. registered bonds, which she had been keeping in a writing case, but which she thought had afterwards been removed to a place of greater safety; only to disappear altogether. Nothing was missed from her quiet home, and the absolute dropping out of sight of these bonds became a village mystery. In due time duplicates were regularly issued by the Treasury upon a bond of indemnity, and the affair dropped out of sight. Yesterday Secretary Folger received from a lady in Michigan a letter which dispels the mystery.

The Secretary's correspondent was one of the sufferers from the fires, and was the recipient from a relief committee of a box of writing materials, thoughtfully contributed by some benevolent person, and upon reaching the bottom of the box was surprised to find the two bonds. They contained only of the payee, and an advertisement in a Michigan paper failing to elicit a response, the application was made to the Treasury.

What Meerschmum Is

For many years Vienna has been the center for the manufacture of meerschmum pipes in Europe. The material of which they are made, and known as "foam of the sea," consists of hydrosulfate of magnesia, with a certain mixture of glyceric water. It is found chiefly in Asia Minor, in a valley around the little town of Eski Schehr, which has probably been the bed of a dried-up lake, for the sea foam, mixed with rough gravel, is deposited around against the rocks and the red earth.

There is a new French gun twenty-nine feet six inches long, weighing fifty tons, costing $25,000. It is wire-wound, and is expected to put a ball through fifteen inches of armor at a distance of seven and a half miles.

The Forest Wealth of Mexico.

The untold treasures of gold and silver in the mines of Mexico have dazzled the eyes of adventurers for centuries so that the world has been practically blind to the marvelous forest wealth of that country. Of late years, however, the increased demand for beautiful cabinet material has made it profitable to export some of the fine-grained woods which flourish there, and the waning lumber supply of this country has called attention to the value of Mexican timber trees. Our sister republic is to be congratulated on the fact that its Central Government has awakened to an appreciation of its wealth in this particular. The first practical step in what promises to be a comprehensive forest policy has just been taken by the Government in contracting for the planting of two million trees in the famous Valley of Mexico, which was stripped long ago of its forests. These trees are to be planted in four years, at the rate of 500,000 per annum, and the young of each variety—ash, eucalyptus, acacia, ligustrum japonicum, and the rest—are to be maintained for two years by the contractor before he is paid for the planting. It is not probable that the Government is very far in advance of public sentiment in so important a matter, and no doubt private planters will keep abreast of the National authorities in the enterprise. The scheme announced includes the translation of standard treatises on silviculture and the education of certain graduates of the school of agriculture in the science of forestry.

THE FOREST WEALTH OF MEXICO.

It is not to be presumed that a nation will deliberately set about the planting of trees and allow its wealth of standing timber to be recklessly squandered. Lying, as Mexico does, in both the temperate and torrid zones, with a copious rainfall, a great variety of acrocentric growth is insured. But in addition to this, its varied surface, with high table lands and lofty mountain ranges, offers a still greater variety of climatic conditions. Oaks and pines, and even alpine plants flourish on the flanks of the mountains, while trees which furnish the dyes and gums and fruits of the tropics are found at their base. Over one hundred species of trees whose wood is of economical value are known to be indigenous, while trees which grow anywhere in the world could probably be acclimated in some part of the Republic. SINCE MICKEY GOT KILT IN THE WAR.

BY T. H. LESLIE.

"A pension-claim agent! Will, thin, sor, You're the man that I'm wanting to see. I've a claim for a pension that's due me, An' I want you to git it for me. Will, no, sor, I never was wounded, For the fact is, I didn't enlist; Though I would have been off in the army Had I not had a boil on me fist."

"But me b'y, me poor Mickey was kilt, sor! An' whin poets the story shall till, Sure the country will thin be erecting A monument there where he fill! He was not cut into wid a saber, Nor struck wid a big cannon ball, But he lepped from a four-story windy, An' bedad, he got kilt in the fall!"

"It was a rash lep to be making: 'Yis, in faith, thin, he had to, I'm sure, For he h'ard thin asblaming and banging, An' a trying to break in his dure! They were going to capture poor Mickey, An' to kape from their clutches, poor b'y, He had to lep out of the windy, An' indade, it was four-stories high!"

"No, it wan't the fall, sor, that kilt him, It was the stopping so suddint, you see. Whin he got to the bottom it jarred him, An' that kilt him as dead as could be. Oh! he loved the owd flag, did brave Mickey! An' he died for his country, although An' he was not kilt in battle exactly— He was lepping the bounties, you know."

"'Twas the marshal was after him! yis sor! An' in fact, he was right at the dure, Whin he made the lep out of the windy: An' he never lepped bounties no more! So, of course, I'm intitled to pinson; An' the old woman, too, is, because We were both, sor, dipind on Mickey, The darling, brave b'y that he was."

"Av course, you'll not have anny trouble, So go on wid yez now, sor, an' fill Out a lot of thin blank affidavits, An' I'll swear to thin all, so I will. It is swate, yis, to die for wan's country; But bedad, I can't hlp but abhor Thin battles where people git hurtd— Since Mickey got kilt in the war."

THE MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

ADA M. KENNICOT.

"Here you young rascal! drop that this minute!"

The tone was stern enough to enforce obedience of itself, but the speaker added emphasis by seizing the miscreant by the collar and giving him a thorough shaking. It was a small boy, thin and starved-looking, with many patches on his poor clothing and not a few rags that fluttered as he swung in the grasp of the strong, well-dressed youth who held him. But his grimy fingers never loosened their hold of the disputed object, and his only care seemed to be to keep it from injury. His eyes blazed with passion as he screamed:

"Let go of me, Rick Marham. It's no business of yours, and if you make me break it I'll kill you for it some time—see if I don't. Let go, I say!"

It was an odd contest, and the boys gathered round, full of interest, to see what would happen, though, of course, they knew the little fellow could not hold out long.

"Give it to him Rick!" shouted out some, "shake the dirty little beggar out of his boots!"

"Stick to it, Toby," cried others, to keep up the fun. "findin's is havin's, if you can only keep 'em."

"Boys! boys! What is all this disturbance?" inquired Miss Lawrence, the teacher, hurrying to the scene. "Havin' I forbidden fighting times enough?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Markham, "but this isn't a real fight. Toby Driggs stole Ray Burgess's toy balloon, and I was trying to make him give it up, but he won't, and you see I cannot take it away without breaking it."

"Careful, careful," said the teacher, gently; "stole is an ugly word. Do not say it unless you are sure."

"Well, I am sure, Miss Lawrence, for I saw him myself. He watched where Ray laid it when some of the boys called him to play tag, and went and got it and was making off as fast as ever he could when I caught him."

"Charles," said Miss Lawrence, gravely—she never called him by that hateful nickname, Toby—"I thought you were growing to be one of my best boys, and now you pay me in this way for trusting you. You cannot be my friend if you do such things. Now make it as near right as you can. Go and give Ray his balloon at once."

The child's eyes had been fixed upon hers as though he dreaded each word ere it fell, while his face grew whiter and more set. As she ceased a stony defiance settled over it. He moved not one step.

"Charles," she said, after a long pause of wonder at the stubbornness of this boy, who had lately obeyed her every word, and perplexity as to the best course in case he continued obstinate, "are you not going to obey me?"

"No, ma'am," replied the boy, slowly. "I didn't steal it, and I won't give it up to him—not if you kill me."

Miss Lawrence was astounded, though no sign of the fact appeared.

"Very well," she remarked, quietly, looking at her watch, "we have no more time to spend with this affair now. Go into the school-room, all of you, and take your seats. I will attend to it after the session. Charles need have no recitations. He can take the time to think."

The sunbeams stole in through the school-room window, marking, as they moved from desk to desk, the passage of the hours. Pleasant summer hours they were. Bees hummed through them, birds sang, and sleepy windlets swung in leafy branches, but two hearts in that room were too heavy to heed.

Charles Driggs sat stolid and determined, watching the door furtively, and calculating his chances of escape, for to this plan his "thinking" had evidently brought him. But too many eyes were upon him, and, spite of the teachers' efforts to prevent, many fingers were pointed at him and many cruel little tongues whispered, "Thief!"

"Ah! what a wild beast instinct it is—that so common one, to hunt the suspected or unfortunate, either of human or dumb creatures, the very ones that should rouse the Christ-like yearning to shelter them."

Miss Lawrence watched anxiously. She felt that there was something unaccountable in the boy's sudden stubbornness and in the value he seemed to set upon a simple toy. She had found him, at her entrance into the school, idle, willful, and disorderly, as neglected children so often are, but he had been easily won and had tried earnestly and constantly to improve. This outbreak was puzzling, discouraging, like so many of the cases teachers have to deal with. Sometimes they find the key to the mystery; oftener it is entirely out of their reach, and they have to blunder along blindly, doing what circumstances compel, feeling that, after all, it is not the right way, though the only one possible to them.

What a weary afternoon; would it never end? At last the sunlight slipped off threshold. The pupils would soon follow it. For a moment she slackened her watch, while the larger ones, being in spelling-class with their backs to the door, could not see. In that moment Charles slid round. He was almost gone—not quite, though.

Miss Lawrence turned just in time to seize him and throw him, kicking and struggling, into the nearest seat. She was thoroughly angry at this persistent wickedness, and flung the boy down with the feeling that he was entitled to no further consideration from her.

"Sit there!" she exclaimed, "and we will have you fastened like any other thief."

Cruel words they were—regretted as soon as spoken—but the boy did not seem to hear them. His eyes were fixed with a glare of terror upon the balloon, which was slowly shrinking away pierced by some pin-point. As it shriveled up into an unsightly rag he flung himself, with a despairing scream, upon the floor beside it, and lay there moaning and grieving like a dog beside some article once worn by its dead master.

As for Miss Lawrence, she was rather glad of this unlooked-for escape from her difficulty.

"Ray," she said, "I will get you a new balloon, since this one was destroyed partly through my fault. The school is dismissed. Charles will remain."

The boy sat quiet, unheeding the jeers or contemptuous glances of the others as he passed out, and staring blankly straight ahead of him, like one who had just seen a last hope go out. The teacher watched his face, so stony, so unchildlike, long after the last young footstep had pattered out of hearing. At last she said:

"Charles, I did not suppose you cared so much for playthings that you would take those which did not belong to you."

"I don't," answered the boy, doggedly. "Why don't ye let me go now? There ain't nothin' to stay for. You've smashed it, and that's the very worst thing ye could do to me."

"You may go presently; but why do you speak so to me? I did not keep you here for a punishment. You forget that I have the toy to pay for, unless you can help me."

"Well, I can't then," he rejoined, desperately. "I haven't got a penny in the world. If I had or could have earned one do you think I'd a touched his old balloon?"

"But why should you, any way?" urged Miss Lawrence. "It wasn't anything you needed."

"Wasn't it?" he cried, furiously. "I never needed anything so much in all my life, and if there's another to be prigged in this town to-night I'm the fellow that does it, and you may help yourself."

"Why Charles!" exclaimed the astonished lady; "are you crazy? What is the matter? Tell me all about it."

she added, coaxingly, almost terrified by the strange conduct of the boy.

"What's the use?" he muttered, with a sullen, suspicious glance. "You couldn't help, and if you could, you wouldn't. Nobody cares for poor folks like us. What if we do get sick and die? It's no matter. And as for feelin's, who ever thought of our havin' any? Feelin's is for folks that dress in s'ks and satins off o' the money they cheat us out of."

"Charles," observed Mrs. Lawrence, gently, "I am sure I don't know what makes you talk so strangely, but I am very sorry for you, and if you will tell me what all this means I will help you if I can. Isn't that fair?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the boy slowly, after a long, wistful gaze into the troubled face and gentle eyes of his teacher; "I'll tell ye, though, there's nothin' you can do, as I know of. You see, my little brother Len has been sick a long time and gettin' thinner and thinner, till he's just as poor and pale as a ghost. It's mostly the poor food he has and the hard times, the Doctor said, and he finally told mother there wasn't no use of his comin' any longer; so he don't, and poor little Len has got so weak he can't sit up any more, but just has to lie still, all day long, with nothin' to pass the time away or make the pain any easier, only when some of us hold him up to the window a few minutes at a time. He can't bear it long, but it seems to please him. Well, the other day, as I was doin' so, a boy came along with one o' them things, an' it took the poor little fellow's eye so it seemed he must have one. But mother told him she couldn't get it, 'cause she hadn't a bit of money, and then he didn't say another word, but just turned his poor head over on the pillow, when he thought nobody was lookin', and cried all to himself.

"I've been tryin' ever since to get somethin' to do, so I could buy him one, but nobody would give me any work. He was so bad this mornin', mother said she was afraid he wouldn't last but a day or two. He's out of his mind a good deal, and then he talks mostly about the pretty red moon, and says he is going to climb up into the sky and get it. I thought maybe he'd die easier to have it, and when I saw Ray Burgess with one in his hand I made up my mind to get it if I could. It wasn't real downright stealing for me to take it from him; really it wasn't Miss Lawrence. Only just taking a little of what belongs to us—for father spends 'most every cent he earns at Mr. Burgess's drink shop, though mother has begged Mr. Burgess on her knees not to sell to him. We'd be comfortable and decent as anybody if we could only have father's wages; but they all go to help build Mr. Burgess's grand house and put fine clothes on his wife and buy nice things for his children, when our poor Len can't even have one little plaything, and he a-dyin' of slow starvation. That's what mother says it is."

And the boy broke down with a sob at thought of his pet brother's wrongs.

Miss Lawrence had not the heart to argue with him. She was poor herself, but no misery like this had ever crossed her path. You may go, now, Charles," she said; "but let the balloon rest for to-night, and don't give up; your brother may not be so ill as you think."

He departed, a little comforted.

The teacher went straight to the one toy-shop of the village and purchased its last remaining toy balloon. Then a new sign, "Theodore Gray, M. D.," scarcely noticed before, arrested her attention, and soon she was on her way to the house of want, accompanied by a young physician who was not too well-established and successful to attend the poor.

Little Len lay on his bed of suffering—his thin, drawn face so white that he looked already dead, and one felt almost started to see the blue eyes unclose.

Charles sat gazing at him in despair. A fruitless fight against want and misery showed everywhere.

While the doctor examined his patient, Miss Lawrence sought the broken-hearted mother.

"We have come to help you if you will let us, she said, simply.

So the two—poor themselves—set to work to relieve those so much poorer and more unhappy.

Little Len's sunken eyes brightened at sight of the red balloon, and after a supper of warm broth he fell asleep with his hand on the string and the bright globe nestled against his wan cheek.

No; he did not die.

Richard Markham heard the story next day and went to see him. To his credit be it said, he was not ashamed to take Charles by the hand and say:

"Forgive me, lad. I was more to blame than you. I ought to have found out all about it before trying to make a public example of you, when I had never known you to do anything like that before."

"I don't blame you," replied the other. "It was the first time, and it shall be the last. But, of course, there are plenty who won't believe me."

For a while all Richard's spending-money went to the Driggs family. Others, too, in time joined to help them, so that, though always poor and struggling—as how could they be otherwise?—they did not again reach such a depth of want. The father did not reform, for the dram-shop still stood open and his earnings dropped mostly into its till. But work was furnished his family—so they managed to live.

Miss Lawrence has never ceased to practice the "more excellent way," and many lips call down blessings upon her. She does not teach the village school now, but a lady sometimes stands at a window over the new sign—now no longer new—who looks much like her.

I think you will find, too, that the Doctor is soon to take a student who signs himself Charles Driggs.

Took the Risk.

Wall Street News.

When Brigham Young was alive he collected the tenth of the farmer with a persistence that balked at nothing. On one occasion he called before him a subject who has since removed to this state, and said:

"Brother Blank, you have not brought in my wheat this year."

"I didn't raise a single bushel," was the reply.

"Then I'll take it in oats."

"I have none."

"Well, nay will do."

"I have no hay."

"Then bring in potatoes or corn."

"Both crops were a failure, oh, wise Prophet. All I have off my farm are ten bushels of onions, and of course the Lord doesn't eat onions."

"Maybe not," growled the old man, "but you bring me in a bushel and we will take the risk of it."

Mr. Blank said it was that bushel of onions which convinced him that there was something suspicious about old Brigham's inspiration. It was too strong a religion.

Getting Back on Chester.

San Francisco Post.

Considerable pains have been taken in the east to suppress the following incident of the president's visit to the south—why, it is hard to say, as Mr. Arthur is the last person to consider his personal dignity impaired by the relating of a good joke, although the point be directed against himself.

It seems that the president is quite an adept at certain sleight-of-hand tricks, proficiency in some of which he had kept up since boyhood. He boasts his ability to remove a handkerchief or watch from a pocket with as much adroitness as the most light-fingered member of the "swell mob."

Even the members of his cabinet have, time and again, been made victims of their chief's uncontrollable penchant for playing practical jokes, his victims being the more easily mystified, as the exalted position of the perpetrator usually protects him from suspicion.

While at Jacksonville, the presidential party determined to attend a genuine old-fashioned monster darkey camp-meeting, about twenty miles away, near a small village, and to enjoy it better went inoeg. While waiting for a conveyance, at the tavern in said village, the president noticed an extremely fat farmer dozing in a chair in the bar-room and displaying a preponderous watch-chain and bunch of seals from his fob. Mr. Arthur winked at his friends, and watching his opportunity, removed his watch and hid it in the saddle-bags of another traveler, that hung on the wall. Now, it appears that Secretary Chandler had a pretty severe joke played upon him by Arthur, a few days previously, and he here saw a chance to get even. He quietly led each member of the party aside and let them into the conspiracy. When the carryall returned from the camping-grounds, the president was immediately collared by the fat man, who roughly demanded his property.

"What do you mean, fellow?" said our chief magistrate, winking at his staff, who, however, seemed suspiciously indifferent.

"Oh, you can't play smoothy on me!" roared the despoiled granger. "The bar-keeper saw you steal my watch and put it in your pocket. Here constable, do your duty. I want this man searched."

"Very well, then, search me," indignantly said our country's figure-head.

"I thought so," said the policeman, as he fished out the watch from the first pocket he dived into, much to Arthur's astonishment. "I'll just put you in the calaboose, my fine fellow."

"You will, eh?" returned Arthur, with a chuckle. "Here Mr. Frelinghuysen, just tell this gentleman who I am."

"Did you speak to me, my man?" said the secretary of the state, looking at the president, innocently.

"Yes, yes! Hurry up and explain this thing," said Arthur, as the constable began taking out a pair of hand-cuffs.

"Explain what? I don't know you sir." And to the president's amazement his state adviser walked off.

"Great Scott!" cried Arthur. "Say, you, there—Chandler! What does this mean! Tell these people that I am the president—quick!"

"If you are addressing me," said the secretary of the navy, putting on his glasses and taking a benevolent survey of the prisoner, "my name is not Chandler, and I don't think I ever saw you before."

"Great heavens! this is outrageous!" screamed Arthur, fighting desperately to prevent them from putting on the nippers. "This is going to far, I tell you I am the president."

"Don't be rough with the poor man, said Chandler, kindly. "Perhaps he's a little—; what are you president of, my good fellow?"

"I'm president of the United States!" gasped the prisoner, as "you'll pretty soon find out!"

"Tut! tut! tut!" murmured Mr. Chandler pityingly. "Clean gone; clean gone. Fine-looking man, too. Got away from some asylum, likely." And to the unspeakable horror and wrath of our first citizen, he was loaded into a wagon and carried off to the country bastille, while he kept a full hour before a majority of his cabinet voted for release. To the credit of the executive, be it said that, although he was "extradited" in a state of frenzy, and vowing an entire smash of the cabinet slate, he cooled down before he reached Jacksonville again, and concluded to "set 'em up" for his persecutors in true White House style. But he has been out for the joke business ever since.

Some birds and animals of Norway do not appear to be as discriminating as they are in this country. It is said that the wood-peckers of that country drill holes in the telegraph poles in search of the insect which they think is making the humming noise they hear. The bears also uproot the poles in search of the honey which they think is indicated by the humming of the bees, as they suppose.

The Calcutta Exhibition which will open on December 5th of this year will be notable for the wonderful collection of precious stones which are to be shown. The great majority of the native princes of India have promised to lend their finest jewels, and among these are some of the costliest in the world. The collection will be especially rich in diamonds and pearls.

A MALARIAL VICTIM.

The Trying Experience of a Prominent Minister in the Tropics and at the North.

TO THE EDITOR:

The following circumstances, drawn from my personal experience, are so important and really remarkable that I have felt called upon to make them public. Their truth can be amply verified:

In 1875 I moved from Canton, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., to Florida, which state I intended to make my future residence. I purchased a home on the banks of the St. John's river and settled down, as I thought, for life. The summer following the first winter I was conscious of most peculiar sensations which seemed to be the accompaniment of a change of climate. I felt a sinking at the pit of the stomach accompanied by occasional dizziness and nausea. My head ached. My limbs pained me and I had an oppressive sense of weariness. I had a thirst for acids and my appetite was weak and uncertain. My digestion was impaired and my food did not assimilate. At first I imagined it was the effort of nature to become acclimated and so I thought little of it. But my troubles increased until I became restless and feverish and the physicians informed me I was suffering from malarial fever. This continued in spite of all the best physicians could do and I kept growing steadily worse. In the year 1880 my physicians informed me a change of climate was absolutely necessary—that I could not survive another summer in the south. I determined to return north, but not to the extreme portion, so I took up my residence at Upper Sandusky in Central Ohio. The change did not work the desired cure and I again consulted physicians. I found they were unable to effect a permanent cure, and when the extreme warm weather of summer came on I grew so much worse that I gave up all hope. At that time I was suffering terribly. How badly, only those can appreciate who have contracted malarial disease in tropical regions. It seemed as if death would be a relief greater than any other blessing. But notwithstanding all this, I am happy to state that I am to-day perfectly well and healthy man. How I came to recover so remarkably can be understood from the following card voluntarily published by me in the Sandusky, O. Republican, entitled:

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE
EDITORS REPUBLICAN: During my recent visit to Upper Sandusky, so many inquiries were made relative to what medicine, or course of treatment had brought such a marked change in my system, I feel it to be due to the proprietors and to the public to state that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure accomplished for me what other medicines and physicians had failed to do. The malarial poison which had worked its way so thoroughly through my system during my five years residence in Florida had brought me to the verge of the grave, and physicians had pronounced my case incurable; but that is not to be wondered at, as it was undoubtedly one of the worst on record. Hough Brothers, of your city, called my attention to the medicine referred to, and induced me to try a few bottles. So marked was the change after four week trial that I continued its use, and now, after three months, the cure is complete. This is not written for the benefit of Warner & Co., but for the public, and especially for any person troubled with malarial or bilious attacks.

Such is the statement I made, without solicitation, after my recovery, and such I stand by at the present moment. I am convinced that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is all it is claimed to be, and as such deserves the great favor it has received. A remedy which can cure the severest case of tropical malaria of five years' standing certainly cannot fail to cure those minor malarial troubles which are so prevalent and yet so serious.

No More Sunday Bathing.

The N. Y. Tribune tells the following amusing story about some young men who put before godliness what usually comes next to it:

A tall young man went bathing in the Mohawk River at Schenectady last Sunday with several other Sabbath-breakers, in spite of previous protests against their selection of such a conspicuous place for their ablutions. While they were in the water a Mr. Van Voast appeared upon the bank and carried off an armful of their clothing. All of the bathers, however, had enough apparel left to get home without undue exposure except the tall young man, whose only remaining garment was a collar and a pair of shoes. But as luck would have it he found near the river an empty barrel, out of which he knocked the heads and into which he stepped, and thus apparel he made his way home across the fields, painfully holding up the barrel as he walked, but dropping and sinking into it whenever anyone appeared in sight. Before he reached the paternal mansion half the dogs in town had detected his predicament and united to form a howling escort. It is thought that Mr. Van Voast's method of abolishing Sunday bathing will be successful.

The Connecticut Superior Court, at its recent term in Hartford, granted forty-four divorces.

Waterloo Gleanings.

Mr. Warren Ellsworth (well known in North Waterloo and Lyndon), was killed by the cars in Leslie last Friday. Cause unknown but am told it was Mr. E's own fault.]

Mrs. Parmelia Collins of North Lyndon died at her residence on Tuesday of last week. Mrs. Collins has been a great sufferer by illness for a long time. She leaves a family of six children—three boys and three girls.

B. Garner, and Austin Rowe have returned from Ypsilanti to spend vacation. By the way Austin takes hold of farm labor we should judge he had not forgotten how to work. Wish we had more such young men.

A certain young man told me the Sentinel need not worry about his getting a girl for the fourth, that he was only bashful but has two girls now to celebrate with and that he is not going to Stockbridge either, but will go to Pinckney if it takes the last cent.

I have been informed that M. O. Walker will carry the mail between Francisco and Henrietta via Munith and Waterloo, in the place of Mr. Keeler. This arrangement will give us four mails per week as heretofore. I understand Mr. K. gives Mr. W. $20 to take the job off his hands.

Miss Jessie Flagler closed a very successful term of school in the Collins district last Friday. A number of parents and friends were present to witness the "last day" exercises which were very good. Miss Flagler has given such good satisfaction that her services have been engaged for the fall term.

Announcement!

I would call the attention of the public of Chelsea and vicinity to the fact that I have on hand a splendid lot of double and single harness, also a fine assortment of horse nets & skirms of every description, a new lot of whips, curry combs, brushes, harness oil, &c., all of which I will sell CHEAP for cash.

In the future I intend to make a specialty of cheap single harnesses at from $10 to $15, fitted with my own patent gig tree, which please call and see before buying.

Thanking the public for past patronage. I hope to receive a share in the future by making good and reliable goods, and selling as cheap as possible. Yours,
