A very pleasant gathering took place at the residence of C. H. Wines, south of here, last Saturday. About thirty invited guests, among them several sons of Mr. Wines were in attendance, celebrating Mr. C. H. Wines' 60th birthday. May Mr. Wines live to see many more such happy gatherings, is our sincere wish.

Nothing has aroused this community so much for some time, as did the murder which occurred near Jackson last week. Several at this place were well acquainted with Mr. Crouch, one of the murdered men. Up to this writing no arrests of great consequence have been made. Many hereaway think the murderer or murderers should never see the inside walls of the state's prison.

Our readers will remember that H. Lighthall had a severe fall from the derrick of a windmill which he was splicing, on Mr. Scott's farm, south-west of Grass Lake, some months since. During the wind storm of last week, the said derrick took a "tumble" and consequently Mr. L. has a contract of putting up an entire new mill. When Mr. Lighthall puts one up from the ground, it always stands.

Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the Christmas Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. It again becomes our sad duty to record the death of another beloved child—Lulu, 11 years and six days old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hepler, who died of diphtheria Monday evening, at 10 o'clock. Lulu was taken sick on her birthday, last week Tuesday, with what was supposed to be scarlet fever, three other children in the family have suffered from it. Friday last her case was considered worse, and fears were entertained by the parents for her recovery. She was a bright, active child, beloved by all who met her, and her untimely death leaves a void in the family not easily filled. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the whole community. The remains were taken to Ann Arbor Tuesday, by undertaker Staffan. The other children in the family are getting along nicely.

During the past week we have had a little experience which we never expected to have. A few weeks ago we were handed a personal item as we were about to take the train for home. On our return the item was not found, and as the names were strange, we did not remember them. The Sunday following we found the item in a pass book and brought it with us to the office intending to go and see the party and find out if its insertion in last week's issue would do. Being very busy it was neglected, and imagine our surprise when we received a card Thursday noon, requesting us to drop his name from our list. We would ask this favor of all; if you hand us an item, and you do not see it in our next issue, please call our attention to the matter at once, as all items of interest are very welcome, and we have so many little things to look after.

In Memoriam.

Michael Lehman, whose death was announced in last week's HERALD, was born at Fuenf broun, Wurtemberg, Germany, on the 20th day of January, 1828, and died at his home in Sylvan, on the 16th day of November, '83. In 1850 he was married Eva Maria Heselchwerdt, who survives him. In the same year he also came to this country leaving his native country without a dollar, and enabled to cross the Atlantic only with the means furnished by his wife, she having a small legacy from her father. Arrived at New York city he sought and found employment and earned sufficient means to bring him to Detroit, a friend paying his fare to Ann Arbor. He first settled in the township of Freedom, as a day laborer, and afterwards lived in Sylvan, Lima, and Waterloo, the greater part of the time in Sylvan. Although he was one of the most industrious and saving of men, his life in this country was a constant struggle with poverty, owing to the large family he had to support. He was of a generous disposition and always ready to share his limited means with his friends, and the varied tramp that ever came to his door was not turned away without being first fed and sheltered. He never was a member of any society except the Lutheran church and his evenings were passed in communion with his family. His care for his wife and children was his entire aim, and was always ready to wear poor clothing if only his family was provided for. His trials were severe, yet he never made a complaint in the hearing of his family. For thirty years, when in need, he was in the habit of applying to his friend, C. H. Kempf, and only through aid thus obtained, was the wolf often kept from the door. He was the father of fourteen children, twelve of whom survive him, and with their mother mourn the loss of one of the best of fathers and faithful of husbands. May his children vie with each other in honoring his widow, that she may feel as little as possible the great loss she has sustained.

The family of the deceased hereby extend their heartfelt thanks to the many friends who aided them in their hour of affliction and accompanied the remains to the last resting place, and especially to the choir of the German Lutheran church society, of Chelsea.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held at the M. E. church to day at 10:30. Rev. E. A. Gay officiating.

A SUCCESSTHON BACHELOR.

ROBERT BRIDGES, IN LEVE.

"So, Arthur, you say your not married—Susceptible by that you are!
The rest of us, while you have married,
Have patronized Hymen's gay car;
Ten years since we left the old college—
They tell me you're rising to fame;
Yo, with all your accession of knowledge,
Your affections remain just the same."

"Old fellow, I'll make explanation:
I'm tired of this lone bachelor life,
And really desire to find reputation
A full substitute for a wife.
Now, gentle affection is one thing—
A sensation I often enjoy—But an insupportable something Is lacking in that, my dear boy."

"There's Nell, whom I take to the opera—Fine figure, blue eyes and light hair—She's equally nice for a hop, or a break Tete-a-tete on the front stair; There's Hattie, so very artistic,
Gentle Jane, and the gay Eleanor, Learned Prudence, who's quite athletic—
And all the rest of a score—"

"All charming—and really I loved them;
Would wed any one—for a time;
Yet, if married life did not improve them,
Would long for a happier clime.
Each is true for the mood or occasion;
But for ever—the risk is too great,
I repel matrimonial invasion And remain in my bachelor estate."

"What of Belle—bright country born maid—
The sweetheart of old college days!
Even now boy fancy is laden With dreams of her lovable ways;
All the rest are but toys of the dance, sir;
Dear Belle, a companion for life;
Your hand—now I'll whisper my answer—
She has promised to be my true wife."

THE HAUNTED POOL.

BY DAVID KER.

The Continent.

The sun was setting over the Ganges one bright summer evening in 1871.
The day had been a hot one, even for India, and it was an unspeakable relief to every one when the scorching sun began to decline at last, and the lengthening shadows of the tall palms along the river bank told that night was at hand.

And now the Hindu inhabitants of the neighboring village, who had been lying motionless all the afternoon under the shade of their re-thatched roofs, or of the vast overhanging banyan trees around them, came trooping down to the water in a body.

Instantly the whole bank of the great river—so lovely and silent all through the long, burning day—became all alive with noise and bustle. Children paddled in the broad, still pools, or chased each other in and out of the tall, feathery bamboo clump that grew along the bank. Women filled their earthen pitchers from the stream, or washed their threadbare clothes. Men began to scour their brass lotahs (drinking vessels), or to kindle fires for the cooking of their evening meals; while a little farther down the stream, a group of young girls, wading out into the shallow water, fell to splashing each other with might and main, amid shouts of merry laughter.

To any one unaccustomed to the ways of India, it would have seemed strange enough to see, upon the wrists and ankles of nearly all the girls, and many of their mothers likewise, heavy bangles of solid silver, which any Western lady might have been proud to wear. But the Hindu peasants, to whom savings banks are utterly unknown, have no way of keeping their money safe except by carrying it about with them in this fashion—a somewhat hazardous plan, it must be owned, in a country swarming with the most expert and daring thieves in the world.

Suddenly one of the girls, who had ventured a little farther out into the stream than the rest, disappeared under the water with a piercing shriek, as if drawn down by some overpowering force. A few bubbles that rose sullenly to the surface were the only token of her fate, while her terrified companions turned and rushed back to the shore as fast as possible, screaming:
"A crocodile! a crocodile!"

Several days passed before any of the village women dared to approach the scene of this terrible mischance. At length one, bolder than the rest, ventured in again, and the others, seeing that no harm came of her daring, began to follow her example. More than a week passed without any accident, and everything was beginning to go on as usual, when, one evening, a second girl disappeared in precisely the same manner as the first.

The terror was now universal, and all the best hunters of the village set themselves with one accord to get rid of this destroying crocodiles. Bait was laid, traps set, men posted along the bank with loaded guns to keep watch for the monster; but look for him as they might, nothing was to be seen of him.

Several days later the wife of one of the villagers was washing her white wrapper on the bank of the river, when it slipped from her hands and floated slowly out into the wide, still pool formed by the bend of the stream. The woman at once waded after it, and had just succeeded in clutching it, when she was seen by those on the bank to give a sudden start, throw her arms convulsively into the air and disappear under the water just as the other two had done before.

About three days after this last cas-tastrophe, Mr. Henry Sparks, the British Commissioner for the District of Jungle wallah, was at work in his office amid a perfect mound of papers, halting every now and then to wipe his streaming face (which, despite the enormous pookah, or swinging fan, worked by his native servant outside with a cord passed through a hole in the wall, looked very much like a half melted snowball), when he was suddenly disturbed by a knock at the door.

"Come in!" cried he snappishly, expecting the entrance of some Hindu farmer or peasant with a complaint as long and unintelligible as an Assyrian inscription. But at the first glimpse of the person who entered his face cleared at once.

The visitor was a tall native, with the handsome features and stately bearing of a Mahratta. His figure, nearly six feet in height, was so gaunt and sinewy that it seemed to be made of pin-wire, and his piercing black eyes looked out from beneath the folds of his white turban with the quick, keen, watchful glance of a practical hunter.

In truth, Ismail, the Mahratta, was well used to tracking other game beside deer or tigers. Over and above his occupations as scout, hunter and government courier, he was in constant request as a detective, and, for tracking down either a wild beast or a criminal, he had no equal in Bengal.

Gliding into the room as noiselessly as a shadow, he made a low salaam, and said in his own language:

"May the humblest of his servants speak to the Sahib?" (master.)

There was nothing particularly humble, it must be admitted, in the speaker's bearing; on the contrary, he held himself erect, and looked the Commissioner full in the face with the air of a man who knew his own value, and had something to tell which he felt to be worth hearing; but Mr. Sparks, with whom Ismail was an old acquaintance, appeared to understand these signs perfectly, and said:

"What has Ismail to tell? I am listening."

"I have been at the village of Ramganj," answered the Mahratta, laying a slight stress upon the last word.

"Ramganj!" echoed Mr. Sparks.
"Ah, to be sure; the place where that crocodile's been eating up so many people."

"Are you quite sure, Sahib?" asked the Hindu, keenly watching the effect of his words, "that it was a crocodile that did it?"

The Englishman started, and looked fixedly at Ismail's immovable face.

"That's how I heard the story told," rejoined he. "If it wasn't a crocodile what was it?"

"Did the Commissioner, Sahib," inquired Ismail, "ever hear of a crocodile being so nice in his eating as to devour none but women, and only such women as had plenty of silver bangles on?"

Again Mr. Sparks gave a slight start, and the sparkle of his eye showed that he was beginning to guess the riddle, but he took care to make no interruption, seeing that Ismail wished to have the pleasure of telling the whole story himself.

"I went to the village," continued Ismail, and talked with the people.
Then I dived into the river (my lord knows that I can find my way through water as well as through thickets), and at the bottom I came upon a noosed rope.

The Commissioner nodded with the air of a man who understood the whole affair perfectly, but still he said nothing.

"The Sahib understands how it was done, proceeded the Hindu. "When any woman worth robbing went into the water, the noose tangled her feet, and the robber, hidden among the bushes on the opposite bank, dragged her down and drowned her, and then plundered the corpse at his leisure."

"I see," said Mr. Sparks. "Well, Ismail, you know there's a Government reward of a thousand rupees ($500) for every murderer brought to justice; see what you can make of the case."

The Mahratta's black eyes flashed fire, for $500 is more to a Hindu than $5,000 to a white man, and such a chance did not come to him every day.
He went out without a word, but Mr.
Sparks felt satisfied that there would be news of the criminal before long.

Ismail plunged at once into the surrounding jungle and traversed it at apace which few men could have kept up over such ground and in such a climate, till he came in sight of Kamganj, but instead of entering the village he struck down a by-path to the river, swam across, went slowly up the opposite side till he came to two bamboo clumps close together, and groping in the water beside them, pulled up a rope.

His next was to hunt out a big stone, upon the sharp edge of which he sawed the cord to and fro till it held only by one strand. One slash of his long, sharp knife would have done the work much quicker, but Ismail doubtless had his reasons for what he did. Then placing the stone in the shallow water, with the sharp side uppermost, and the rope lying right across it, he vanished into the thicket.

An hour had passed since his disappearance, and night had already set in, when a dark figure came creeping up to the same spot, and pulled at the half severed cord, which instantly parted in his hand.

The man started, and held up the broken ends to the light of the rising moon, but finding them rough and moored, as if by constant rubbing, and trayed as if by constant rubbing, and feeling the sharp edged stone lying just underneath, he appeared satisfied that it must have been an accident, and knelt down to knot the cord together again.

So engrossed was the villian with his treacherous work that he never lifted his head to look around him, but even had he been less preoccupied he would scarcely have heard the noiseless foot-fall of one who had been tracking the tiger and the antelope through their native jungles ever since he was ten years old. The rogue was still quite unsuspicious of harm, when a tall, shadowy figure rose behind him as suddenly as if it had started up through the earth, and a tremendous blow from a heavy bamboo club, falling upon his bowed head like a thunderbolt, felled him senseless to the earth.

That very night the crestfallen robber was sent off to the nearest British station, escorted by a strong guard of native policemen, to be tried and executed, as he deserved, while Ismail received from the hands of the Commissioner himself, together with a warm commendation of his shrewdness, the thousand rupees which he had so well earned.

A Temperance Man's Endurance.

Mr. Keeble, the noted temperance advocate, has become quite a lion among the temperance and church people. He recently completed in London, Eng-one of the greatest feats of physical endurance on record. Its accomplishment was undertaken for the purpose of proving to the world that the physical system of a sound man, who never uses alcohol, is capable of sustaining greater and more protracted fatigue than is the system of an equally sound man accustomed to its use, even in moderation. Mr. Keeble had, in most of his temperance lectures, insisted on this point, and generally challenged his opponents to undertake a test with him.
Being a man of fine physique, his challenges were not accepted. He then determined to exemplify in his own powers of endurance the virtues of temperance, by a feat of endurance in walking, choosing that because he had no experience, either as a professional or amateur pedestrian, and regarding walking as the completest form of physical exertion. He undertook to walk 1,000 miles within 445 hours, and to average during the entire period two and one quarter miles per hour. No person but himself believed he would ever succeed, but he said he would, because he meant to in the interest of religion and humanity. He finished his thousandth mile in the allotted time, and ended apparently fresh, and certainly in excellent spirits and health. A dispute arose at the completion of the next to the last mile, growing out of the decimal difficulty in adjusting the time in the last mile to the total distance to be covered, and Mr. Keeble continued walking until the dispute was settled. It was referred to sporting judges, who happened to be at the time in another part of the city and before the decision, which was in favor of the pedestrian, was delivered, Keeble had walked 456 hours and covered a total of 1,025 miles, finishing in good condition. An admirer of Mr.
Keeble has offered to back him against any other pedestrian in the world in an attempt to walk 2,500 miles in 1,000 hours, and make two and a quarter miles in each and every hour.

Old Age a Matter of Temperament.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Sun, takes exception to the idea that a man is necessarily old at the age of 70; and the exception is well taken. Three score and ten is merely a ripe manhood for one who unites a cheerful spirit with vigor of body and mind. There are many septuagenarians better entitled to be called young men than some at 45 or 50. Old age, properly so called, does not supervene in any case where all the faculties have been preserved by judicious exercise and a careful observance of the laws of health. Until the vital powers begin to decay, until the spirits lose their exuberance, until the step falters and interest in surrounding things shows signs of failing, a man can not with propriety be called old. The lamented Peter Cooper at eighty would have scorned the aspersions. David Bridley Field in his seventy-ninth year retains the vigor and freshness of middle life. Charles O'Connor at about the same age defied the efforts of half a dozen doctors to kill him, and the veteran Samuel J. Tilden, still preserves the playful disposition, even if he does not possess the physical elasticity of the lamb. No, old age is not so much a matter of years as of temperament and feeling—of mental and bodily condition.

A Remarkable Family.

Mortimer Dancher, aged 121 years, died at the residence of his son in Berlyn, Lesueur County, Minn. a short time ago. Mr. Dancher was the last surviving brother of a remarkable family, which for downright longevity surpasses anything in the records of modern times. Not only this, but in another county Mr. Dancher's mother died in the 101st year, his eldest brother at the age of 108 years, his second at the age of 117 years, 7 months and twenty days, and himself soon after at the age of 121 years.

The father was the shortest-lived of the family, having died at the age of eighty. The combined ages of the three brothers reached 346 years; including the mother, 446 years, and taking in the father, 526 years. Mr. Dane-cher has been a remarkably healthy and active man, never having been really ill in his life. Lately, however, he has been confined through sheer old age, but was never more or less to his bed, but was never ill-even got up and dressed himself a few days before his death. The gentleman came from the County Clare, Ireland, and could speak nothing outside the Celtic tongue of his ancestors. Mr.
Dancheer possessed the full use of all his faculties till the very last.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Low Ground for Orchards.—It is claimed that experience has shown pretty conclusively that the healthiest and best bearing orchards are those on low ground, where the blue clay comes near the surface. By low lands it is not meant that on which water stands in wet times, but comparatively low land that needs drainage.

Turkeys for Thanksgiving Dinners.— Before killing the turkeys, and, in fact, any kind of poultry for the market, they should be kept away from filth and shut up in an enclosure for some time. The food should be rich and clean, with pure water or sweet milk.
This is especially needed before Thanksgiving day, when there is so great demand for turkeys. It is known that the flesh of fowls is flavored by whatever it eats, and care should be taken that the food should be the sweetest possible.

Transplanting in November.

According to the Germantown Telegraph, trees of any kind can be transplanted in November or December with perfect safety when there is no frost in the ground, care being taken to hill up the earth from six to ten inches around the stem. It further says: "Large trees can be transplanted from one place to another with more certainty of growing, late in the fall, when the frost will admit of it, than at any other time. In all cases of transplanting—it may not be out of place to mention here—be sure to retain, in digging up trees, whether large or small, the rootlets, and when setting again spread them and all the others out as carefully as possible, which will be following their natural position, and shovel among them the finest soil, and then mingle it among the roots with the hands, and then firmly press down with the boot when the hole is filled up."

Domestic Recipes.

Indian Suet Pudding.—One-half pound suet, chopped fine; one cup mollasses, one pint milk, one egg, meal to make a very thin batter, teaspoonful ground cloves, teaspoonful ground cinnamon, one teaspoonful salt, a little nutmeg, a few currents or chopped raisins. Boil or steam three hours.
Serve with sauce.

Sago.—Sago, prepared like custard and then baked with apples or other fresh or canned fruit is a nice dish for a convalescent.

Dutch Sauce.—Thicken a little drawn butter with the yolks of two eggs; take care the yolks do not curdle. Add a little lemon-juice the last thing, some grated nutmeg, and a little pepper and salt. About a teaspoonful of lemon-juice to two yolks of eggs.

Cake Fritters.—Cut any kind of plain cake in neat slices, drop each slice in very hot lard, and fry until they are a delicate brown. Place on a platter with a teaspoonful of sour jelly on each slice. Serve hot for dessert.

Turkey Soup.—Boil all the bones of roasted turkey, with the remnants of the dressing and gravy. When cold, remove the fat, add a teaspoonful of grated onion, one teaspoonful of grated carrot, one teaspoonful of cold boiled turnip, two tablespoonfuls of Italian paste, salt and pepper as you please.

Potato Sandwiches.—These may be made from any kind of cold fresh meat, but preferably of beef. Fry slices of beef, rather thinly cut, in butter; they must be gently done, and not too dry. Cover one side of each slice with mashed potatoes, free from lumps, a quarter of an inch in thickness, egg and bread-crumbs over; then proceed in the same way with the other side. With a sharp knife trim them into pieces of equal size and shape, square or three-cornered. Fry them in hot fat a light brown color and serve.

Vanilla Jumbles.—One cup of butter, two of sugar, three eggs, one spoonful of vanilla, and flour enough to roll out.
Roll as thin as the blade of a knife and cut with an oval cutter. Bake on tin sheets in a quick oven until a dark brown. These jumbles will keep for a year if put in a tin box and in a dry place.

Useful Hints.

Fire in chimneys may be checked, if not arrested, by throwing salt on the fire below. Stopping the chimney at the top with a broad board, or wet hay, arrests the current of air and helps to extinguish it.

Rats and Mice.—If a mouse or rat makes entrance into any part of the dwelling, saturate a rag with cayenne pepper in solution, and stuff it into the hole, which can then be repaired with wood or mortar. Neither rat nor mouse will eat this rag, which should be large enough to fill the hole completely.

To prevent the fading of calico during washing, use no soap, but instead, very thick starch tied a cloth. Wash on a clear day; hang out as quickly as possible, and allow them to be in the sun only to dry. Few calicos are worth this trouble, to be sure, but it is an excellent method with delicate cambrie and lawns.

A strengthening drink, for a very feeble invalid is made as follows: Beat the yolk of one egg with a heaping teaspoonful of sugar, and add a dessertspoonful of brandy. Beat the white to a stiff froth and stir it into the yolk.
Pour the whole into a tumbler and fill up with fresh milk.

The best way to clean marble is to take one-quarter pint of soap lees, one-half pint of turpentine, and sufficient pipe clay and bullocks' gall to make a thick paste. Apply it to the marble with a soft brush, and after a day or two, when quite dry, rub it off with a soft rag. A simple and quicker method is to take two parts of soda, one of pumice stone and one of finely-powdered chalk. Rub this well over the marble, and the stains will be removed, then wash it with soap and water and a beautiful bright polish will be produced.

The rubber rings used to assist in keeping the air from fruit cans sometimes become so dry and brittle as to be almost useless. They can be restored to a normal condition, usually, by letting them lie in water in which you have put a little ammonia. Mix in this proportion: One part ammonia and two parts water. Sometimes they do not need to lie in this more than five minutes, but frequently a half-hour is needed to restore their elasticity.

Inexpensive but pleasing lavender water is made by mixing the following ingredients together: Three ounces of the essence of bergamot, six drachms of the tincture of musk, one drachm of the oil of cloves, four drachms of the English oil of lavender, twelve ounces of rose water and seven and one-half pints of alcohol. A smaller quantity can be made, but these proportions must be preserved.

A Popular Novelist.

Literary World.

The story of how E. P. Roe found his right place in the world, as a writer of religious novels, would make an interesting illustration for one of Samuel Smiles's pleasant books. He was an army chaplain during the war, and afterward became pastor of the little church at Highland Falls, near West Point. A new church was needed, and to build it the pastor himself went plucky to work to raise the money.
The summer visitors at the Point did their share, but there remained a gap, to fill which Mr. Roe began to lecture about the country on the facts of his army life, but without any notion that he was a writer of fiction. Meanwhile the Chicago fire occurred, and under a strong spell of a desire to visit the scene, though without special purpose in view, he made a "forced march" by railroad, and reached there while the ruins were still smoking. In his study there are some curious relics of the fire in the shape of china, which he found in the ruins, on which the intense heat had burned in a smoky iridescence. Out of this journey there gradually developed "Barriers Burned Away," his first work of fiction. It was published in 1872, and at once had an enormous sale. Up to this fall he had published nine novels—missing only two years, when he issued, instead of a novel, his "Success with Small Fruits"—and their sales aggregated 346,000 copies. The tenth novel, "His Sombre Rivals," utilizes his experiences of the way and the season's sale of this and the previous books promises to bring the total up to 400,000 copies—an extraordinary result for little over ten years of literary work. At the usual return of 10 per cent., this would come to $60,000, but this, which represents very nearly the high-water mark of successful authorship is, after all, little in comparison with the returns of successful business men.
Mr. Roe's method of work has been peculiar. He writes his MS. in a huge ledger or hand-book, and usually finishes a novel under tremendous pressure, sometimes shutting himself up in a room in a New York hotel, and driving away on a diet of beefsteak and coffee, allowing himself only the recreation of an evening of good music, till his book is finished. This method occasionally results in a visible careles-ness of construction, which his readers however, easily forgive. Besides writing novels, Mr. Roe has been very successful as a grower of small fruits, and does one of the largest businesses of the country in strawberry-plants. His present residence and fruit-farm is at Cornwall, on the side of old Storm King. He is now finishing a story of a novel kind; the plan of which was suggested to him by the editor of Harper's Magazine, and which will begin in the forth-coming Christmas number of that periodical, and run, in company with William Black's "Judith Shakespeare," for a year. The title is "Nature's Serial Story," and the life (and love-making) of a country home is followed month by month through the year, with careful study of the out-door phases of nature, of plant and animal life. Mr.
W. H. Gibson is associated with Mr.
Roe in this work, and has been making studies for lavish illustration in the neighborhood of Storm King, where the scene of the story is realistically placed. His pictures will be supplemented by figure illustrations from Mr.
Frederick Dielman, who drew "A Girl I Know" in the mammoth Harper's Christmas of last year. Mr. Roe's books have also had considerable sales in England, sometimes with, oftener without, profit to him; but his American returns alone would have made him, had it not been for his having some of the misfortunes of others, the owner of what for an author might be called a considerable fortune. But his own satisfaction seems to be rather in the good the stories have been to others, in their thousand-pulpit power, than in the returns they have brought to himself.

Farmers should make calculation to devote a few days before winter sets in to prepare shrubs to resist the cold. Surface water should be drained away, most small fruits should be mulched, gape vines laid down in sections, and other work done before cold weather makes its appearance.

On turning the body over it was easily recognized as that of young Babbitt. An inquest was held and the Dexter Leader was informed the verdict was: "Came to his death through criminal negligence of his mother and brother."

O. Gorton lost a valuable horse in Stockbridge, last week.

H. Marsh goes to Ocamos this week to visit his daughter, Mrs. Pales.
J. McMikel (just from Dakota), will spend the winter with H. Leek.

Mrs. Ellsworth, nee Minnie Beeman, will make Stockbridge her home.

Prof. L. G. Gorton and wife, of Detroit, made the former's parents and other friends a short call last Saturday and Sunday.

I have been informed that L. F. Hubbard will not return home this winter as has been stated by some not acquainted with the facts.

Burt Hubbard has returned from Dakota and seems pleased to get back (like many others), and enjoy a comfortable home. He reports the weather ten below zero this fall. He is looking hale and hearty and much improved for his summer's stay in the west. It may prove beneficial to young men to go west where land is cheap and get a farm for a home and settle on it, but it seems strange that men who have worked hard and now have good farms with nice comfortable homes should sell out and go where churches and schools are few, and society limited.

Montgomery brothers, Al. Stephens and Lester Walters went north last week Monday to spend the winter in the woods, but returned on Friday.

Mr. Geo. English and Miss Frankie Cooley, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, Thursday afternoon, Nov. 22. They left on the evening train for Iowa.

Remarkable Escape.

John Kulm, of Lafayette, Ind., had a very narrow escape from death. This is his own story: "One year ago I was in the last stages of consumption. Our best physicians gave me up. I finally got so low that I could not live twenty-four hours. My friends then purchased a bottle of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, which benefited me. I continued until I took 9 bottles. I am now in perfect health having used no other medicine."

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

GRANGERS IN COUNCIL.
The annual convention of the national grange opened in Washington on the 21st of November. Twenty-seven states were represented by masters of state granges. William Saunders, of the agricultural department, first master of the national grange, delivered an address. Master J. J. Woodman of Michigan, delivered the annual address, reviewing the purposes of the order. He asserted that the grange organization was in a more prosperous condition now than for many years, and its ranks were rapidly filling up.

The President has finally pardoned Sergeant Mason, who attempted to shoot Guitau.

NEWS NOTES.

CHARLIE MCCOMAS' DEATH.
A Mexican named Ray Lopez, who has a brother among the Apache Indians, furnishes what purports to be an account of the death of Charlie McComas. Lopez says his brother told him that Charlie is dead, and gave the account of his death as the Indians who captured and killed him gave it to him. He said that after Judge and Mrs. McComas were killed the Indians took Charlie and started for Old Mexico, and that Charlie cried and continued to cry until finally, as the Indians expressed it, "the brat made so much fuss I smashed his head with a stone." This account Lopez obtained from the very Indian who committed the crime, and he believes it to be true in every particular.

AN EX-MOLLIN MAGUIRE.

The Rochester, N. Y. Post Express publishes a letter from a man who says he knew O'Donnell, who was tried in London for the killing of Carey. He says O'Donnell was one of the chiefs of the Mollin Maguires, of Pennsylvania, and that in conjunction with Dan Kelly, Jim Carroll and "Red shirt," was in several "jobs." Three of his confederates were hanged, O'Donnell, who formerly called himself Thomas Moran, is the only one left.

NOT ENOUGH WATER IN HER BOILER.

The other afternoon a loud report like the discharge of a 20 pounder was heard in Kincardine, and while the citizens were conjecturing the cause, word was received that the big Erie Belle, owned by Odette & Wherry of Windsor, which had arrived in port to take off the beach the schooner Carter, had blown up, and that all hands were lost. On going to the scene of the disaster it was found that the boiler had exploded and the vessel herself was lost, but fortunately the lives of eight of the crew of twelve had been saved. What caused the accident will never be known. It is supposed that the pump which supplied the boiler had become choked in some manner, and that the trouble was not noticed by the chief engineer who was in charge. The water got low, and when the pumps did force some into the boiler it had the same effect as sparks on gunpowder. The names of the crew on the tug when the explosion happened were as follows: Captain, John Tobin; mate, Wm. Tobin; first engineer, Wm. Osgood; second engineer, Frank Eikenhurst; firemen, Wm. Johnson and Wm. Sayles; watchman, Daniel Finlayson; deck hands, Henry Peacock, Frank Conroy, Isaac Drenshaw, Lewis Smith, and a cook, name unknown, formerly employed on the tug Hatchett. The following lost their lives: Wm. Osgood of Lorain, Ohio; Frank Eikenhurst of St. Louis, Mo.; Engineer Wm. Sayles of Kincardine lifeboat was manned and the crew, who were struggling in the water, were picked up.

THE VERDICT.

of the coroner's jury in the Wisconsin capitol disaster holds the contractor guilty of gross negligence is causing a certain pier to be properly repaired and the supervising architect and consulting architect in contributing by their neglect to the falling of the building.

The quiet little burg of Sandwich, Ont., was startled the other evening by the report that there had been an escape of prisoners from the county jail. Investigation confirmed the report, and revealed the fact that Greenwood, one of the condemned murderers of Maher, of Detroit, Luke Phipps, the man who murdered his wife on a ferry boat a few months ago, and another prisoner had escaped. They sawed the bars in the ward, and scaled a 14-foot wall, and made their way to the river where they secured a boat and rowed directly to Springwells, where they were seen in a saloon and recognized. They shortly after went to Detroit, which was the last seen of them. Their escape was well planned, but not executed with out outside assistance, and to discover who aided them, and to return the convicts to prison, Sheriff McEwan and his assistants will devote their time unceasingly. A large reward is offered by the Canadian authorities. The escaped prisoners were supplied with revolvers and knives with which they threatened the lives of their fellow prisoners if they raised an alarm.

COSTLY NEGLIGENCE.

In the suit of Mary O'Connor against Samuel J. Keely, a manufacturer of Manayunk, near Philadelphia, to recover damages for personal injuries, plaintiff got a verdict of $10,000. The girl was employed in defendant's mill, and during a fire a year ago, in the absence of a fire escape, jumped from the window to save her life. She now uses crutches. It was shown that the Board of Fire Escapes notified the owner of the building to erect an escape.

A DEAD DEFAULTER.

A. B. Johnson, of Utica, N. Y., who suicided a few weeks ago was a defaulter to the extent of $300,000 to the McDonnell estate of Rochester, N. Y. The knowledge of his guilt and its consequences compelled him to take his own life.

ILLEGALLY IMPRISONED.—PARDONED.

In 1873, Berland Boland, aged 15, of Boston, attempted to tap a till, in a store, but was discovered by one of the employees, whom Boland stabbed in the arm, cutting an artery, which resulted in his death. Boland was convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to state prison. It has just been discovered by friends that the statutes provide that no person under 16 shall be sent to state prison, and that the boy should have been charged with manslaughter. The pardon is the result.

THE LAST OF A BAD LOT.

Andy Taylor, the last of the three notorious Taylor brothers, was hanged at London, Tenn., the other day. He was the last survivor of the Taylor brothers who murdered two sheriffs and captured a railroad train with 100 passengers on board, compelling the engineer to run the train 30 miles at a dangerous rate of speed. The crimes of these men are the most daring recorded in the annals of crime. He went to the scaffold cursing God and died like a brute.

AGGIE'S AGONY.

A San Francisco dispatch says: The grand jury indicted Miss Hill, claiming to be the wife of Senator Sharon, and Wm. M. Nelson, her attorney, for forgery, perjury and conspiracy. Both were admitted to bail.

THEIR JUST DESERTS.

The trial in Howard county, Arkansas, of the colored rioters, indicted for murdering Wyatt several months ago, ended in sentencing three men to be hanged and twenty-nine to terms of imprisonment ranging from five to eighteen years.

A REPUTATION WORTH $150,000.

Rev. John Wilder, colored, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has prepared papers in a suit for conspiracy and defamation of character against Rev. Drs. Milligan, Swan and Wilson, ministers of the R-form Presbyterian church, asking $150,000 damages, and alleging that defen-ants by conspiring to declare him a monomaniac injured his reputation so he could not pursue his profession and gain a living.

CRIME.

THE MURDERER'S FATE.

Jacob Nelling, the murderer of Ada Atkinson, was taken from the jail at Fowler, Ind., the other night, placed in a carriage, and driven to a spot about a quarter of a mile from the scene of his horrible crime. After being moved from the vehicle five minutes in which he must die. He was given five minutes in which to make a confession, but he stolidly refused to do so, saying that as he had already acknowledged committing the murder, it was unnecessary to repeat the former story. A rope was quickly thrown over a limb of a large oak tree, and the doomed man escorted beneath it. Another attempt to make him recite the story of the murder was rewarded by a snarl from the defendant man. Two men then stepped forward and placed the noose around the old man's neck. In doing this the collar which he wore was torn off. Fifty hardy farmers then grasped the rope and the body of Jacob Nelling swayed in the night air.

LYNCHING TOO GOOD FOR HIM.

Davis Johnson, living at Pekin, Ind., was arrested at Louisville, Ky., the other morning charged with an attempted outrage on Sallie Nadie, aged 9 years. Johnson had sold a cow to the parties with whom the child lived, and being left alone in the house with her last evening while the change in payment for the cow was being sought, made a criminal assault. When arrested he was leaving for home. He denied the crime, though the proof was strong against him. The child is seriously injured.

BANK CASHIER SHOT.

At Rushville, Ind., Edward Payne, cashier of the Rushville national bank, was awakened by a noise in the kitchen and started down stairs and met a burglar coming up, who ordered him back, threatening to shoot. Payne hurried a vessel at him whereupon the burglar fired a shot which took effect in Payne's right lung. He now lies in a critical condition. The burglar is at large and unknown.

AN AGED COUPLE BUTCHERED.

A special from Hickman, Ky., gives an account of a horrible double murder, the victims being Hillsman King and wife, an old and respected couple. Their son Arthur visited the house and found his mother dead in a pool of blood. He gave an alarm, and the neighbors found the father in the barn covered with stunks and partly eaten by rats. A German peddler is suspected. The house was robbed of $3,000.

ROBBED BY COWBOYS.

Information from Denver is to the effect that a mail and express train on the Southern Pacific was robbed by cowboys at Cane station, near Cummings, A. T., near New Mexico line. The train was wrecked by spreading the rails. The engineer was killed, and several of the passengers injured, none seriously. The robbers secured about $700.

HE HAD A "SUDDEN FIT."

Owen F. Plunkett, a cigarmaker employed in a factory at 22 Bowers, New York, was shot dead by a dissolute fellow named John Scullin. Scullin worked at a bench near the murdered man on the top floor of the building. Between the two was another workman. Without any known cause Scullin drew a revolver and fired at the other workman. The ball missed its mark, and Scullin recoiled the weapon and fired at Plunkett, who fell dead. Scullin was arrested, and when taken to prison said he brought a revolver to shoot himself, and a sudden fit came on him to shoot somebody, when he shot Plunkett.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE.

Report has been received of the frightful massacre at Toka of Mouriell and his force. The Egyptians lost eleven officers and 142 men, besides six Turks and several Greeks. They also lost one gun and 300 rifles. About 340 remained their ship. The Egyptians during the fight formed a hollow square, when a small number of the enemy locked their shields together and rushed through the Egyptian line. An immediate panic among the Egyptians resulted. It is doubtful if the black troops can be spared from Massowah, which is in the same critical position as Suakin. The British gunboat Ranger has been ordered from Aden to Suakin.

POOLE'S PUNISHMENT.

Joseph Poole was convicted of the murder of John Kenny, and sentenced to death. In his address to the court, the doomed man admitted that he was a Fenian, called for three cheers for the Irish Republic, and cursed England.

SUNK AT SEA.

The American ship Thomas Dana, from Liverpool for New York, landed at Fayal on the 8th inst., twenty-one men being part of the crew, and passengers of the French brig Rocaborg, from St. Pierre Miquelon for St. Malo, sunk by collision October 30. The remainder of the crew and passengers, eighty-eight, perished.

HONORS FOR LOWELL.

James Russell Lowell, United States minister to Great Britain, is elected rector of the University of St. Andrews, over Gibson, conservative member of Parliament for Dublin University.

HICKS PASHA VANQUISHED.

A Cairo dispatch says the army of Hicks Pasha has been destroyed by the forces of El Mehdi, the false prophet. The intelligence of the disaster was brought to Khartoum by a Coptic official. The fighting is said to have continued from the 3d to the 5th instant and to have resulted in the complete annihilation of the Egyptian troops. It is stated that a European artist was the only person who escaped. The forces of El Mehdi comprised, it is estimated, 300,000 men, and included derwishes, Bedouins, mulattos and regulars. The battle occurred near Elobelid. El Mehdi first sent forward his derwishes, declaring they would vanquish the enemy by divine aid. Subsequently his regulars joined in the attack and the engagement became general. The army of Hicks Pasha, which early in the battle was divided into two bodies, was subsequently reunited and formed into a square, which the forces of the false prophet broke after three days of desperate fighting. On receipt of the alarming news a council of ministers was immediately held and it was decided to concentrate at Khartoum what Egyptian troops remain at Duen, Goba and other places in the Sudan. The force under Hicks Pasha was 25,000. He had with him 10 British officers. O'Donnell, of the London Daily News, and an artist connected with a German illustrated paper accompanied his army. It is understood Sir Evelyn Baring advised the Egyptian government to abandon the Sudan and establish a strong frontier line from Khartoum, in the north of the Sennar province, to Suakin on the Red Sea. It is reported that the recent orders for the evacuation of Egypt by British troops has been countermanded.

An Aged Cigarette Smoker.

December Century.

The old chapel is still standing in a fair state of preservation, used for the daily services of the San Gabriel parish; and there are in its neighborhood a few crumbling adobe hovels left, the only remains of the once splendid and opulent mission. In one of these lives a Mexican woman, eighty-two years old, who for more than half a century has washed and mended the priest's laces, repaired the robes, and remodeled the vestments of San Gabriel. She is worth crossing the continent to see: all white from head to foot, as if bleached by some strange gramarye; white hair, white skin, blue eyes faded to nearly white; white cotton clothes, ragged and not over clean, yet not a trace of color in them; a white linen handkerchief delicately embroidered by herself, always tied loosely around her throat. She sits on a low box, leaning against the wall, with three white pillows at her back, her feet on a cushion on the ground; in front of her, another low box, on this a lace-maker's pillow, with knotted fringe on it; at her left hand a battered copper caldron holding hot coals to warm her fingers and to light her cigarettes. A match she will never use; and she has seldom been without a cigarette in her mouth since she was six years old.

Sheep should have airy, well-lighted sheds, with plenty of sunshine, and protected from snow. One great advantage of keeping sheep is to convert straw into manure. Hence much litter is usually strewn in sheep, unless they have hard places to lie upon, because their feet and legs get so hot. A few platforms, like old doors, which can be shifted about every few days by turning over, will be greatly enjoyed, and will promote both health and comfort.

Push fattening hogs forward as rapidly as possible. Keep them warm and cleanly. Charcoal broken fine and mixed with cooked feed, is an excellent regulator and tonic, aiding digestion, and promoting fattening to such an extent that it is hard to believe it does not serve as food.

AROUND THE FIRESIDE.

GRANDMOTHER'S WAITING

EBEN E. HENFORD.

Grandmother's face is wrinkled,
And her eyes have grown so dim
That she cannot read her Bible, Nor follow through the hymn.
And her hands are often idle,
For knitting tires them so.
But her brain is always busy With thoughts of Heaven, I know.
Grandmother's waiting, waiting,
To hear God's summons given,
And dreaming of her dear ones
Gone o'er the hills to Heaven.

I think, sometimes, as I watch her,
That she sees them, for a smile Breaks over her face, as she whispers "Yes, dear, in a little while."
Only a little more waiting This side of Paradise,
And grandmother will be young again
With her dear ones in the skies.
Grandmother's waiting, waiting,
To hear God's summons given,
Gone o'er the hills to Heaven.

Intelligence and energy and conscientiousness, all united, can never evolve true justice, if sympathy be absent from the heart. This is not merely abstract and impractical idea. It lies at the root of moral education and self-culture for it declares that just conduct depends upon right feelings, and cannot be developed without them.

Make a Beginning.—Remember in all things that if you do not begin you will never come to an end. The first weed pulled up in the garden, the first seed in the ground, the first dollar put in the savings-bank, and the first mile traveled on a journey are all-important things; they make a beginning, and hold out a hope, a promise, a pledge, an assurance that you are in earnest in what you have undertaken. How many a poor, idle hesitating outcast is now creeping and crawling on his way through the world who might have held up his head and prospered if, instead of putting off his resolution of industry and amendment, he had only made a beginning!

As our intellectual food makes our minds what they are, coarse or refined, barbaric or cultured, disciplined or wild and riotous, so our spiritual companionship makes our spirits what they are.

Nothing teaches patience like a garden. All have to wait for the fruits of the earth. You may go round and watch the opening bud from day to day; but it takes its own time and you cannot urge it on faster. If forced, it is only torn to pieces. All the best results of a garden

LITERARY NOTES.

A portrait of Peter Cooper, engraved on wood by Thomas Johnson, from a photograph taken a few months before his death is the frontispiece of the December number of the Century. Mrs. Susan N. Carter who is at the head of the Woman's Art School of the Cooper Institute, contributes an anecdotal paper which throws much light on Mr. Cooper's ideas and his generous aims in promoting the education of young women for skilled occupations. Other biographical in the same number, are Miss Anna Bicknell's character sketch of the "The pretenders to the Throne of France," illustrated by portraits; and Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer's critical essay on "George Fuller," with engravings of three of his best pictures.

An entertaining paper on Devonshire, entitled the "Fairest county in England," by Francis George Heath, is the opening illustrated article, and contains nine charming sketches by Harry Fenn. In a profusely illustrated paper on Los Angeles entitled, "Echoes from the City of the Angels," H. H. closes her series of picturesque articles on Southern California. Professor J. Rendal Harris, of Johns Hopkins University, writes of "The Original Documents of the New Testament," and gives an interesting illustrated account of a discovery which the author believes that he has made with regard to the text of the Bible and other ancient manuscripts. In fiction, the December Century is uncommonly generous as well as interesting.
