A Fluby Statement: The Jackson Citisen of March 28 says:

W. Marks of Petoskey, of the State Fish Commission, was in the city yesterday, on his way home, after planting 10,000 brook trout at Tekonsha at the request of Hon. A.

D. Eldred, and also 10,000 at Union City, ordered by Hubbard & Wilkins. The trout were placed in Cold River and Tanbark Creek, which are fed by springs and contain all the requisites for the successful culture of brook trout. Mr. arks also has two orders from Jackson County for 40,000 brook trout and will bring them next week, the first order ever made by Jackson for this species of fish. Mr. Marks says the fish are as free as water to all counties in the state where the conditions are favorable for their culture. He is an enthusiast on the subject and knows more about the nature, habits and tricks of fish than some whole families. To the Citizens' representative he cheerfully described the location and progress of the sh atchery at Paris, near Big Rapids. This, he says, is the season for planting brook trout. He delivered two large orders at Youlanti and Ann Arbor this week, beside hose mentioned at Union City and Tekonha. It is no sinecure job to distribute fish through the country successfully, that is juvenile and baby fish, for they are as much rouble to the manager as a first class opera singer. They must have constant attentionneither too warm nor too cold and fresh water every hour. The little fish are shipped in twelve or fifteen gallon cans and carried free by the railroads in their express cars. Supt. W. G. Marks intends to hatch 45, 000,000 wall-eyed pike at once for distribu-tion among the inlands lakes, and Jackson County can have as many of them as they want. Our lakes are well adapted to that variety of pike. On March 24 the Fish Commission received 50,000 eggs of landlocked salmon from Maine, a gift from the United States Fish Commission.

These eggs will be hatched and the fish ready for delivery by May 1. They will then be placed in the inland takes. The commis-sion will also have 350,000 lake trout ready for delivery in April, to be placed in the inland lakes of the state,

Last year the commission planted 45,000, 000 white fish and expect to increase the number to 60,000,000 the present year. At this rate it seems probable that our fishermen will not run short of bites in the gears

Arbor Day Proclamation. To the People of Michigan:

In compliance with a concurrent resolution passed by the Legislature of the State of Michigan, approved March 16, 1881, and reiterated by the Legislature of 1886, requesting the Governor "to call the attention of the people of the State to the importance of planting trees for ornament, protection and shade, by naming a day upon which this work shall be given especial prominence, to be known and designated as 'Arbor Day'."

which custom prevails in many of the states.

Therefore I, Russell A. Alger, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate Saturday, the 11th day of April, A. D. 1885, as Arbor Day, and earnestly recommend that on that date we plant trees by the roadside, by our farm houses, in our fields, parks, vil-lages and cities, around our school houses, and in the cemeteries where sleep our beloved dead. Let us plant for use as well as for beauty. We may not live to enjoy the full fruits of this work, but our children and our children's children will receive the benefits of our labor.

In testimony whereof, I have caused the great seal of the state to be hereunto affixed, at Lansing, this 25th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five. RUSSELL A. ALGER,

By the Governor: H. A. CONANT,

Secretary of State.

Shall a Physician Tell the Truth or Not? Nice Point in Ethics

A Sensible Health Official.

BALTIMORE, MD.-A decided stir has been caused here over the question as to the right of a physician to certify to the merits of a remedy not in the modern pharmacopæia. Dr. James A Steuart, one of the most eminent physicians in the South and Heafth Commisjener of this city, had analyzed a newly discovered article, and certified officially not only to its its efficacy but to the fact that it replaced old time preparations of a similar character which analysis had proved, were adultrated and poisonous. The Medical and Chirurgi cal Faculty, of which he is a member. held that he had violated the code of medical ethics, and much public interest was aroused because of the confidence felt both in his professional standing and official integrity.

It was argued that to thus place a limitation on the acts of a physician, and especially of a health officer, was opposed to the spirit of the age; that such reasoning might have teen logical enough when it was to the interest of rulers or societies to invest themselves with a supernatural halo, but now when thought should be free and untrammeled, such things savored of barbarism. It was the duty of a physician, especially of a health officer. to condemn publicly any remedy which he knew to be injurious, but it was not right to say that he should be debarred from testifying to the merits of anything which he knew to be good. If this were so, the world would not receive the benefit of half the discoveries made in art or science. Thus the people argued, while the faculty threatened expulsion and talked of time-honored customs, ethics, professional cour-

But the matter soon assumed a new and surprising phase. A few days afterwards a certificate appeared in the daily papers bearing the autograph signatures of Gov. McLane, Attorney General Roberts, Mayor Latrobe, City Postmaster Adreon, chiefs of state and municipal departments. Judges and Clerks of Courts, Federal officials and Congressmen, emphatically endorsing the action of the Hearth Commissioner, and concurring in his opinion as to the efficacy of the remedy, asserting that they did so from personal experience with it and practical tests and observations.

There could be no gainsaying such evidence as this, but, as if to cap the climax, shortly afterwards there appeared another certificate with autograph signatures of leading practicing physicians from all parts of the state, including the physicians of all the leading hospitals, the physician to the City Fire Department, the Port physician, vaccine physician and resident physicians of infirmaries, all endorsing the discovery and stating that it had been tested by them in hospitals and private practice for weeks with wonderful curative effect, and that analysis had shown no trace of opiates or poisons, prevalent in other cough mixtures. They further stated that they had been induced to take this step in view of the many hurtful preparations which contained narcotics and poisons and of the dangers consequent on their use. The remedy in question is Red Star Cough Cure. Such a conclusive answer as this to the narrow arguments of the few, arrayed public sentiment on the side of the Health Commissioner, and it is significant that Dr. Steuart has since been appointed to office by the Mayor for a third term, and has had his appointment unanimously confirmed by the City Council.

Owing to the high professional reputation of the gentlemen who endorsed his action, as well as to the enviable standing of the owners of the remedy, The Charles A. Vogeler Company of this city, wide-spread interest has already been created in the subject, not only here, but in Philadelphia, Wash ington and other neighboring cities. The feeling is generally expressed by professional men that Red Star Cough Cure, on account of its freedom from narcotics and poisons, inaugurates a most desirable new departure in medicine. This is the pronounced opinion of authorities like Dr. Fawcett, who has been for thirty-three years resident physician of the Union Protestant Infirmary, in this city, and Prof. John J. Caldwell, M. D., member of medical societies of Baltimore, New York and Brooklyn, and with a long experience in civil and military hospitals. Both of these gen-tlemen, together with no less than fifty other practicing physicians of Mary-land, have publicly put themselves on record as to the evil of narcotic medicines, and the consequent value and importance of the new discovery referred to. It is conceded that public opinion has completely vindicated Dr. Steuart in his action, and that in his whole course he was actuated simply by an earnest desire to benefit the community at large.

Quite puzzled was I by the vision,
But gently to wake her I spoke,
When at the first word the sweet damsel
With one little gasp straight awoke.
What brought you here, fair rittle angel?"
She answered with voice like a bell:
I tum tos I've dot a sick mamma.
And I want oo' to please pray her well."

"Who told you?" began I; she stopped me;
"pon't nebody tell me at all;
"pon't nebody tell me at all;

And 'sides, sir, I isn't so small;
And 'sides, sir, I isn't so small;
Yes been here before with my mamma—
We tummed when you ringed the big bell—
And every time I'se heard you prayin'
And every time I'se heard you prayin'
For lots o' sick folks to dit well."

Together we knelt on the stairway
As humbly I asked the Great Power As humbly I asked the Great Power
As humbly I asked the Great Power
To give back her health to her mother
And banish bereavement's dark hour.
Isnished the simple petition,
And paused for a moment—and then
A sweet little voice at my elbow
Lisped softly a gentle "Amen!"

Hand in hand we turned our steps homeward The little maid's tongue knew no rest; She prattled and mimicked and caroled— She practiced and imministed and caroled—
The shadow was gone from her breast:
And lo! when we reached the fair dwelling—
The nest of my golden haired waif—
We found that the dearly loved mother
Was past the dread crisis—was safe.

They listened, amszed at my story,
And wept at their darling's strange quest,
While the srms of the pale loving mother
Drew the brave little head to her breast.
With eves that were brimming and grateful They thanked me again and again;
Yet I know in my heart that the blessing.
Was won by the gentie "Amen!"

The Laborer and His Hire.

"Do you think that father could be persuaded to buy me a guitar and let me take a term or two of lessons?" asked Clars, the eldest daughter of the Petersons, raising her eyes, as she spoke, from the algebra she was apparently studying. "I do want to learn to play so much, and a guitar is not such a very expensive instrument," she added.

"That is true," was the mother's reply, "but it was only yesterday that your father told me how dull his business had been for the past few months, so I am afraid he would hardly consent been heavier since I hurt my hand -

"Well, when school is out, let me take Jane's place and let father give me the money he pays her. I couldn't do the washing. but after the price of that is deducted, there will still be a dollar a week which I might as well have. What do you say, mother? May I?" asked Clara, eagerly. "I could pay for my guitar and a few lessons besides, during the vacation."

"I do not doubt you could get along very well with the work," returned Mrs. Peterson. "I'll speak to your father about it."

"It would be so nice to feel that I am earning something for myself ! " was Clara's comment, as she gathered slate, up her book and think I should like it better than teaching school. When I got my certificate this spring I thought it would be an easy matter to step right into a place to do something, but I didn't know that for every school there were as many applicants as there are pupils, and when that source failed I was quite in despair; but if I can take Jaue's place and earn money it will be the very thing," and the young girl's face brightened at the thought. Mr. Peterson did not manifest any particular interest in the plan when it was broached to him, but as he was never enthusiastic about anything, his wife was obliged to be content. "Clara's heart is set on a guitar, James," said she. "She can just as well do the bousework this summer as not, and have the money to spend as she pleases. is hers just as much as if she were stranger who was working for us."

"And don't she get pay in clothes and board? It's her duty, as it is the duty of every boy or girl, to work," was her husband's reply. "That is all true, James, but still it inspires a better feeling in children, beide cultivating business habits in them, to let them feel that they are earning beg or coax for a dime. There is something degrading in that," said the lady, a little tinge of red mounting to ber cheek as if the remembrance of some experience of that kind had left an un leasant feeling in her own heart.

"Anybody would think that we were going to have a party every day," said little Alice, as she gazed admiringly at the bright easter and clean, shining cruets freshly filled each morning.

"We are having the poetry of house-keeping; that is all," replied Mrs.

"The prose got too awfully prosy, didn't it, mother? said Rob, laughingly. "I can stand prose, on a pinch, as well as any other boy but the way Jane used to slap the dishes and eatables on the table was a caution! Half the time with no spoons in the spoonholder and egg sticking between the fork prongs ugh! here was prose for a fact."

"Do you know the reason she was so careless?" interrupted Clara savagely.
"It was because nothing here belonged to her. If she had owned the dishes she would have been careful. When she has a house of her own it will be suit you exactly," replied Mr. Peterson. different-she won't whack and bang as she does now."

"When I used to see her washing up the teathings I always felt like singing, 'The Ox broke in to the China Shop,'" said Bob. "Por thing! her fingers were too thick to handle nice dishes."

Mrs. Peterson uttered a little sigh as the door closed after her daughter.

"Six dollars for a guitar! Why, you and Clara must think I'm made of money" was the impatient comment of the husband, as Mrs. Peterson read him the advertisement and told him of Clara's wishes. "I haven't any money to spend for such triffles!"

"But James, when Jane was here you paid her regularly every month, and oftener, if she needed it, without demurring to it, and I'm sure Clara has rendered us really more effective service," persisted the mother.

"Nothing more than her duty." was the careless response. Then sinking into his arm chair, he began a perusal of the morning paper, and in two min-

"Of course he could, but he ain't doing the buying of these clothes, as I was explaining to this lady a minute ago. He says John hain't any need of a dress-up suit; but, la! the boy says he can't respect himself if he is forced to wear his old rags all the time, and it's true; the clothes a farmer works in ain't fit to wear for any other purpose; so when I found Stillman was so stubborn and it was having such a bad effect upon John. I concluded to take the matter in hand myself. Why, the boy had built up so on these clothes, when his father refused so positive, poor John actually lost his appetite. He worked right along, but it was in a sort of joyless, heartbreakin' way. I tell you, it pays in an economical pint o' view to have people around you that are hopeful and cheerheard the conversation from the dining- ful. London's Gift to Michigan.

There has just been received at the Michigan State Library "London's Roll of Fame," a magnificent quarto, the gift of the Corporation of the city of London. The book contains the complimentary notes and addresses from the city of London on presentation of the honary freedom of that city and other occasions to royal person ages, statesmen, patriots, warriors, Arctic explorers, discoverers, philanthropists and scientific men, with their replies and acknowledgements, from 1757 to 1884. There is in connection with the main records of the volume, a historical introduction, covering the period named, in all of which the city of London has played an honorable part. In that part of the introduction which refers to the Revolutionary war it appears that the Common Council of London cordially seconded the great En glish statesman, the Earl of Chatham, and Mr. Burke in proposing to the government of that day reconciliation with the American colonies, but the council's remonstrance and petition only brought severe reprimands from the King. In September 1775, the common council received from the American congress a letter gatefully acknowledging their repeated efforts with the King and Parliament on behalf of the colonies, whereupon the wise and kindly-hearted brethren in London again petitioned the King to suspend hostilities, but without success. The great city has always been inclined to acknowledge the ties of friendship with America, and we may take it that the book just received at the state library, being one of the very few copies sent to this country, is a token of good will to Michigan. The city has also delighted to honor in a formal way, by the presentation of its freedom, Andrew Stevenson, United States minister to the Court of 1862, and Gen. Grant in 1877, as distinguished Americans. Stevenson was given the freedom of the city in a gold box of the value of 100 guineas. He declined both because in his capacity of representative of the United States government he could not receive presents from foreign powers. One other instance of the declination of the gold box is recorded—that of Baron Grantley, speaker of the house of commons in 1777. It appears to be an incident that occurs only once in half a century

Gen. Grant, in his reply to the address of the Lord Mayor on the occasion of the presentation to him in the noble old Guild Hall of London, said, "I believe this honor is intended quite as much for the country which I have had the opportunity of serving in different capacities as for my seif, and I am glad that this is so, because I want to see the happiest relations existing not only between the United States and Great Britain but also between the United States and all other nations. Although a soldier by education and profession, I have never felt any sort of fondness for war and I have never advocated it except as a means for peace. I hope that we shall always settle our differences in all future negotiations as amicably as we did in a recent instance. I believe that settlement has had a happy effect on both countries and that from month to month and year to year the tie of common civilization and common blood is getting stronger between the two countries.

A disease that has appeared to buffle medical science is that known by the designation of "Bright's disease of the kidneys." A powerful enemy of this dread destroyer has appeared in Mishler's Herb Bitters. George Rusler, of Hinkletown, Pa. writes: "I was cured of Bright s disease by the use of your great household remedy. I was previously attended by Doctors Winter, Rutter and Martin. Mishler's Herb Bitters wrought the happy change in my case.

Ladies who have long suffered from disorders common to their sex, and failed to obtain relief by the heroic old school methods of knife, caustics and supports, should try the modern common sense me thods of Dr. Foote, of 120 Lexington Ave. N. Y. City' and follow the example of the hady who wrote Jan. 6, 1883: "It is simply wenderful that after a miserable illness of nearly five years, in which time I exhausted the skill of four physicians you should cure me in six months. I give you permission to print these lines in the hope that they may lead other sufferers to place their cases in your hands. "Only ten cents!" When you see that information displayed on a placard, shut your eyes and leave, or ten-cent piece is doomed.

The big hole in your pocket is not made by your valuable possessions, but by those thousand little things that "cost nothing," and are neither useful nor ornamental, but almost always absurd, and usually fragile to a degree; "catch-pennies" to which the smiling salesman draws your atten-tion, with the remark: "Only ten cents!" or "Only a quarter!" "Every lady who has been in this morning has bought one," he states. And that is a fact which "every lady" who has bought one regrets.

The little portmonnaie made of imitation leather, and frail silk, from which the catch falls in an hour, was dear at a quarter. The penwiper was "so cunning," but when you got it home the chicken that adorned it was in the bottom of your bag, and the stitches that held it together were not. That was ten cents lost. The comb, at five cents, eurled up as it lay on the dressing table near the register, and snapped when you straightened it out. What it was made of you'll never Then there was a lace pin at half a dollar. Why, it looked like an emerald evenings. The play is very interesting in heavy gold setting—for one day! and the company have their parts perfect. There is nothing left of it now. Just a few things of that sort bought every time you go out, will "mount up" to a tremendous sum in time, and are the reason why you can never get those necessary but expensive things which keep just a little ahead of you forever.

You can never get a set of real silver spoons! Can't you? Well, every time you are tempted with a ten-cent gimcrack, put that ten-cent piece away, and see if you can't.

I really think I'll try doing that myself some day. It sounds so easy, but it is very, very hard to do-the hardest thing in the world to women prone to go into big "establishments" and linger beside shop windows which tempt them. And there is something pleasant in spending, and taking home bundles of nothings. Who has not boxes of little "bargains," never yet of any usenever to be of any? It is almost as natural for a woman to buy such things as it is to talk baby-talk, and so make the little one's first utterances ungrammatical, Still, when we look back on the holidays, we will admit that a little more thought, and black of laughter and song. Soon after pencil work in our shopping-book, and less snapping at bright-colored baits displayed in shop windows, and more thought of what would be nice afterwards, would have made our holiday spending-money look less like that fairy owner's cash box than it does now; and we may each and all buy a savings' box, and so become millionaires before next New Year's, like saving people in story books.—New York Ledger.

THE BUSTLE AND CLOCK.

One Instance Where That Hideous Monstrosity Proved Available, if Not Useful. An amusing story reaches us from Paris. She was, however, taken before the Judge d'Instruction, to whom she resumed her torrent of indignant denial with the extraordinary volubility peculiar to the daughters of Gaul. Her indignation was at its height when lo! twelve o'clock rang forth in clear tones from Bowels it is worth more than its weight in torrent of indignant denial with the exthe region of madame's dress improver. gold. Prof. Blackie, in the course of some remarks about songs, recently made at Manchester, Eng., said: "The mixing of music with words-words that stir the soul and instruct the mind-is the most intellectual of all possible enter-tainments." This suggests that the song-makers of America should exercise greater care in the composition of the words. Many songs have had a brief season of favor in the theaters, which, had the sentiment been as wellexpressed in the words as in the music, might have become as thoroughly suggestive of the American nationality as hae" of Scotland .- Current.

Chronicles of the Sylvan Reading Read March 26 1885 at W. H. Davidson's.

And it came to pass in those days that Charles the First issued a decree unto the people of the land, saying: All ye that would increase in wisdom and understanding assemble your selves together in the twelfth month and the third day of the month, at my house of habitation.

So it came to pass on the third day of the twelfth month, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundre and eighty-four, that they gathered themselves unto Charles the us in accordance with thy decree.

And he spake unto them saying Hear me my brethren and my people as for me I had in my mind the establishing of a society, not only for our enjoyment but for our mutual improvement, furthemore let each one speak his mind concerning this matter for it is not for one but for all. And they agreed with one accord to assemble together on a certain evening of each week for the purpose of having a Reading Circle. Now when they had made an end of all these sayings they chose rulers to rule over the people for the space of one month, and Samantha the daughter of Dennis, who is the son Abi, was appointed chief captain of the assembly, and Fanny, the wife of Cnarles the First, and Lucia, the wife of Romain, who is the son of Stephen, and who is the daughter of Samuel, were chosen to appoint unto each one his portion. And over the host for the second month was Frederick the son of the high priest, and the third captain for the third month was William the son of Orphelia who is the daugh ter of Jacob. And the fourth captain for the fourth month was Morgan the son of Fanny. And these ruled wisely and well and the circle increased in number, weekly until the people from all the country round about were drawn thereto, then arose some of the people and said, after improving our minds let us make merry, and soon was heard the noise arose one of the assembly and said: My bretheren these things ought not so to be, and a voice of murmering was heard among the people, but soon after these things it came to pass that peace and harmony were restored and all things were done decently and in order. And be hold a great storm arose in the land and the snow decended and the winds came and the roads were filled and difficulties arose but the interest in our society abated not for only once did the circle forsake the assembling of itself together from house to house, as was their wont. Now the acts of the Sylvan Reading Circle first and last behold they are recorded in the book of Emma the scribe from which can be gleaned Sylvan Reading Circle live in the future and may it continue to be as

They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood is the most complete ever shown in The blood, if pure, makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minuits. But if it becomes weak or vititated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisened by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure, health of the system will follow. Take GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS and no others. Sold by R. S. Armstrong and Glazier, DePuy & Co.

SAYS the Lewiston, Maine, Journal: The clergymen of Portland have united in a request that the newspapers of that city suppress the details of criminal reports. The Christian Mirror says the Apostle Paul said of the heathenish vices prevalent in his day, "It is a shame even to speak of the things that are done of them in secret." The Mirror "hopes that the plea will reach not only the details of crime, but all that grossness in language and style which has sometimes been erroneously mistaken for smartness." Half-Breeds and Indians in the Northwest on the War Path.

Exciting Scenes.

The ecitement in the Northwest continues unabated. Riet's forces have been greatly augmented. He has 1.500 half-breeds and is being joined by Chief Beardy. The In-dians are rising in many places and it is believed it will be general

News from the Northwest on the 1st inst., is most alarming: Everyone now acknowledges that Indians have risen and there is no telling pow where the trouble will end. Those who understand the Indians, say when once fighting is begun, war will be prolonged for months. All the residents in say when once fighting is begun, war will be prolonged for months. All the residents in the town and the settlers and their families in the neighborhood have moved to the barracks. Several hundred Indians came from Poundmaker's reserve yesterday morning, raiding farmers' houses on the way, and are now in possession of the Industrial school, helping themselves to what they want. They profess peace, but their conduct belies their words. An attack on the police at Duck Lake was made by the rebels while Crosier was talking to bearers of a flag of truce Three police and ten Prince Albert volunteers were killed and many wounded. Forty-one rebels are known to be killed. The Indians who are all on the south side of Battle River want the Indian agent to go and see them, want the Indian agent to go and see them, but he will only consent to a conference on the middle ground. The Crees and Stonles, of the Eagle Hills, refuse to join the disturbance. The Indians are now parading up and down the streets singing war songs and acting as if they owned the country. Hundreds are painted in fantastic colors and are engaged in plundering houses, all of which have been vacated.

The women and children in the barracks are in a terrible state of fear, momentarily expecting an attack by Indians. Every preparation is made for a siege. Large quantities of provisions have been stored in the barracks. Most of the men are armed, and there is a strong palisade around the barracks. It is hoped the whites can hold out till the relief which has been telegraphed Later this evening Mr. Wrigley, Hudson Bay Commissioner, received a dispatch from their agent at Battleford stating that the Indians near that place have killed two government farm instructors on their reserves No information is given as to which tribe of Indians committed the deed or who the in-structors are. It is thought Poundmaker's band committed the outrage.

The Attempt to Save Niagara.

'Topics of the Time," in the Century.

A natural phenomenon of the proportions of Niagara constitute a public trust. The people cannot escape responsibility for its care and preservation, even if they would. The experiment of private ownership and management of the lands about the Falls has been fully tried, under circumstances more favorable than can ever exist in the future, and has failed completely. The existing state of things is one which no intelligent person can defend. The demoralization is natural and inevitable; competition between the owners of "rival points of view," naturaly develops a tendency to the employment of tawdry, sensational attractions. The increasing ugliness everywhere; the destruction of all vernal beauty and freshness; the crowding of unsightly structures for manufactures of various kinds around the very brink of the Falls; the incessant hounding of travelers, and the enormous exactions 88,876 18; less cash items available for re- of which they are the victims, -all these evils are inseparable from the or fruitless than to find fault with individuals because the results of the system are disagreeable and mischievous.

The only practicable remedy is own-ership by the state, and suitable permanent guardianship over these lands, with such provision for the safety, convenience, and comfort of myriads of visitors as can be supplied only by a competent directory clothed with the ommended by the commissioners appointed by Governor (now president) Cleveland in the spring of 1883. These commissioners have selected about narrow strip of land on the "American shore," running from the upper suspension bridge to Port Day, and including Prospect park. The various preme court has confirmed the appraisement, which fixes the value of Alvin Allen of Wolcott, near Vt., while the lands in question at $1,433,429.50. be promoted by the passage of the bill ry of Niagara from destruction.
