How a Lansing Editor Figures It.

The Lansing Republican figures up the state alue as follows: The face of the returns for seventy-seven punties in the office of secretary of state, with additional returns collected from our exchanges, for all the counties excepting Alcona, Crawford and Isle Royal, give Judge Cooley 139,210, and A. B. Morse 166,812. Full returns will send Morse's majority slightly above 28,-000. Whitman ran about 3,000 ahead of Field, his brother regent on the Fusion ticket, while Draper is 1,000 ahead of McAlvey on the Republican ticket. The Fusion majority on re-rents is not far from 15,000. The total vote or prohibition regents will reach 15,000.

That Minority Bill.

. The following is the full text of the minority representation bill which now awaits the governor's signature:

SEC. 1. THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MICH-IGAN ENACT. That in all elections for directors of any corporation organized under any general law of this state, other than municipal, every stockholder shall have a right to vote in person or by proxy, the number of shares of stock owned by him for as many persons as there may be directors to be elected; or to cumulate said shares and give one candidate as many votes as will equal the number of directors multiplied by the number of shares of his stock; or to distribute them on the same his stock; or to distribute them on the same principle among as many candidates as he shall think fit. All such corporations shall elect their directors annually, and the entire number of directors shall be ballotted for at one and the same time and not separately. Those opposed to the bill are very confident the United States Supreme Court will decide that the measure is unconstitutional.

VILLAINOUS FUNK.

Otto Funk of Chicago, otherwise John Talbot, a young man who a few months ago confessed to having placed an infernal machine among a lot of books stolen from the public library, was arrested a few nights ago charged with having in preparation another dynamite plot. He confessed that he had a plan partly completed whereby he intended to blow up his sweetheart, Miss Jennie Gibson, by means of an infernal machine placed in a "death trap" under a pathway she takes each day to her class at the Chicago University. An examina-tion of the grounds was made and a trench forty feet long found already dug. This was to be 240 feet long and to contain a wire connecting explosives with the pit in which Funk said he would hide and explode his machine at the proper time.

THE VIRGINIA BOND CASES.

The United States supreme court has rendered an important decision in a group of cases known as the Virginia coupon tax cases, in-volving the validity of recent legislation of that state with referenced to the payment of state taxes in coupons of state bonds. The decision was against the state in favor of the bond holders on all material points. The court holds that all legislation of the state which attempts to evade the obligation under which it rests to receive coupons of its bonds in payment of state taxes is unconstitutional and void because it imparts the obligation of a contract, that the taxpayer, having once made a due tender of coupons in payment of his taxes, is under no obligation to pay such taxes in money, but may rest securely upon his right to have the coupons received when offered, and that tax collectors who attempt thereafter to forcibly collect such taxes by levying on the taxpayer's property is not shielded by the legislation of the state, but makes the attempts at his personal peril. The court holds, further-more, that a suit brought against a tax collector for seizure of taxpayer's property after due tender of coupons, is not a suit against the state, but is a suit against an individual trespassor acting without legal authority of the state. The opinion was delivered by Justice Mathews. The Chief Justice, and Justices Bradley, Miller and Gray dissented, Justice Bradley delivered a dissenting opinion. The fundamental ground of the dissenting opinion, as set forth by Justice Bradley, is "that all proceedings on those coupons are virtually suits against the state of Virginia to compela

But Mr. Greeley was neither pleased nor satisfied, He said very gravely:
"What does this mean, William? A man at your time of life does not have his hat ironed for nothing."
"I had mine ironed for sixpence," murmured Mr. Wylie.

he said tremblingly. "They have a lan-guage; perhaps you know it. They speak from the heart—to the heart—of the heart.

He had learned a verse of poetry for the occasion; but often when the heart is fullest the memory is most treacher-ous; and so it was with Mr. Wylie.

Miss Chester, partially laden with Mr. Greeley's strawberries, took Mr. Wylie's flowers with a modest, smiling "Thank you! Oh, how pretty! Will you not take one for yourself, and—and wear it?" And she plucked a mossrose from the bouquet, and gave it to dith, as she plied her needle in and out him.

Mr. Wylie carried it to his nose, tast ed its color, and was seized with a vio-lent fit of trembling.

With the quick, tender instinct of a woman, Miss Chester imagined a thorn or a surreptitious bee, and ventured on a timid inquiry.

"No, Miss Chester," answered Mr. Wylie; "but there is another kind of thorn, and there are bees in the-"

"Bonnet?" suggested Miss Chester, with a sweet smile.

"Ha, hal very good indeed, Miss Ches-ter! In the bonnet, eh? Yes, some of us, I fear, are afflicted with a bee in the bonnet." And Mr. Wylie threw a significant glance in the direction of Mr. Greeley's apartments. "Will you take a strawberry?" said

Miss Chester; but was sorry the next moment, for the expression on Mr. Wylie's countenance was at though she had invited him to take a dose of arsenic.

"But won't you go and put your rose in water? or it will fade," she said, anxious to cover the mistake which she perceived that she had made.

"Ah! will it ever fade?" replied Mr. Wylie, feeling that his poetry was returning to him.

"Oh, yes, indeed it will, ever so quickly!" said Miss Chester; "and so will mine, if I don't see to them at once." And she ran away up-stairs to her room. An hour or so later, when Mrs. Dunning was occupied with Mr. Greeley's tea-table, she made a singular disclos-

AN OTSTER STORY.

A Yew Words About the Capacity of Oyster Eaters.

The month of March is here, a month in which the oyster, in this latitude, is supposed to don its most appetizing qualities, and tempt the epicure to even more than his ordinary indulgence. Exactly how many of them it is possible for him to swallow at a sitting we won't pretend to say. Capacities vary in different individuals, and as the epicure is, of course, an individual, no definite number can be fixed upon as his rule. Speaking of capacity in the oyster line, the following story from the Caterer will bear repeating:

Not a great many years ago a some-what celebrated European prima donna visited this country and, with her maid, took up her quarters at one of the fashionable hotels of New York. Hearing coldly, when she met him on the stairs the American oysters praised so highly, one evening, and asked him when he she determined, on her return to the hotel after one of her operatic performances, to give them a trial. - Ringing for the waiter, she gave her order.

"Bring oysters for one."

"How many will you have, Madame?" sked the waiter.

"How many? Well, I am very hune gry and might possibly get through with a thousand, but a hundred will answer my present purpose. You may bring me a hundred to commence with." And taking up a newspaper she commenced scanning its contents, first giving a passing glance at the surprised expression that crossed the man's face as he left the room, After a delay, which to the hungry prima donna seemed needlessly long, a knock came at the door. "Come in," and half a dozen waiters entered, in single file, each bearing a tray half-filled with plates containing Saddlerocks on the half-shell, quarters of lemons, crackers, etc. The secret of the servant's surprised look as he left the room after receiving the order, was now plain to the lady. Her ignorance of the dimensions of the American oyster had been the cause of her perpetrating a practical joke at her own expense, a joke which she was now rather anxious to keep to herself. Quietly dismissing the servants with "Yes, those will do, you may go," she commenced and ended her feast, wondering how she was to dispose of the dozens of great oysters that still lay on the shells untouched. A moment of doubt, and she raised the window; then taking up the oysters one by one with her fork, she scattered them out through the window in all directions, continuing the operation until the hundred shells all lay empty. upon the plates. Then ringing the bell for the servants; she sat down at the table, and picked up her paper. The look of astonishment upon the faces of the servants when they entered and saw the empty shells fully compensated the lady for the mistake she had made in Ler estimate of the American ovsters.

It is my opinion that it is nothing under the sun, but a little misunderstand ing that will be all right in the course of a few weeks; we had best not interfere -yet a while at least," says Miss Meriof the table cover she was embroidering in crewels.

"But he looks so woefully depressed my heart aches for him, and as for Lilian, she mopes when he isn't by, and when he is, she is entirely too gay and high spirited to be natural, by far, I don't see how the matter 1s to be 'righted' if one or the other of them don't apologize or 'explain," and Miss Moseby's voice, as well as hands, tremble, as she slipped one and took up two' of the stitches on the bead purse she was crocheting.

The conversation was held in a sitting-room off a large parlor in a fashionable boarding-house, and the speakers. Miss Meridith and Miss Moseby, were maiden aunts of the two unfortunates mentioned as being victims of a 'misunderstanding.' The affair in question was one of those erratic courses into which the stream of true love so often runs.

Ralph Meridith had met and fallen desperately in love with Lilian Mosebey that winter, while dwelling under the same roof. He was a student attend-

"If no gay teams prance past our door We'll inward turn our thoughts the more; If each serves each, Love's retinue Will make the service light and true. All space and life will crowded be With one sweet guest, felicity; And narrow street will stretch away To hilltops whence the bright dawns stray. A MISUNDERSTANDING.

has he had his hat ironed? then, must observe him narrowly. But why should I? Surely the girl has eyes. Surely a hat that has been restored for the sum of sixpence, which carries the evidence of restoration on its front, could not blind her to manifold person-al defects."

Nevertheless, Mr. Greeley was ill at He revolved the situation in his ease. mind; he slept on it; and next morning, for the first time in seven years, went out without visiting his friend. In the middle of the day, Mr. Greeley took to himself an hour for luncheon, spending it generally in an ancient chop and coffee house near Cornhill, where he partook of a small steak and a halfpint of Burton, with the newspaper propped against the pepper-bottle, in front of him, and the head waiter at his elbow expounding the virtues of the steak, or explaining many knotty problems in politics and political economy. But on the day following the affair of Mr. Wylie's hat, Mr. Greeley, having swallowed hastily threepennyworth of bread and cheese-a species of passover, which he ate, like a child of Israel, with his loins girded, his shoes on his feet, and his staff (or umbrella) in his hand-took a twopenny 'bus to Oxford street, and was down at the establishment of a well-known tailoring firm, where, in the window, was a display of ready-made garments; which offered the combined advantages of a large patten and a small price.

His eyes was particularly taken by a set of garments ticketed to the effect that "This kind of thing is in great re-quest for honeymoons." He stood irresolute before it for a few minutes; then his brow clouded, and muttering. "He's had his hat ironed, has he?" Mr. Greeley made a dive into the shop.

Returning home in the evening, he spied his friend making a purchase of flowers at the florist's. It was a corner shop, with doors opening into two streets; and Mr. Greeley went into the door opposite to that by which Mr. Wylie had entered, and bought a basket of strawberries. Their eyes met across the counter, but they would not recognize each other.

It chanced that Miss Chester came up the street immediately behind them, and the three proceeded in indian file toward Mrs. Dunning's-Mr. Wylie in the van, with an immense and brilliant bouquet of flowers, the declining sun imparting a new glory to his hat; Mr. Greeley coming next, with his straw-berries, and Miss Chester, all unconscious of the rent her prettiness had made in an ancient friendship, bringing up the rear.

GLEANINGS.

Mrs. Cobb, of Dawson, has a perfectly sound squash 150 years old. She was once offered $5 for one seed of it, but she refused to cut it.

One of the curious things disclosed by the publication of 'Inomas Jefferson's diary is that he paid in one year $100 for washing and $1,658.94 for wine.

Almost complete returns have been compiled, showing 3,377 murders in the United States in 1884, against 1,494 in 1873. Of suicides there were 1,884, against 910 the previous year.

Mrs. Daniel Eply, of Logan County, Ky., is said to sleep two and three days and nights without waking, after which she remains awake for a like period. She is 80 years of age and bed-ridden.

The deepest gold mine in the world, says the Alta California, is the Eureka, in California, which is down 2,290 feet, or 500 feet below the level of the sea. The deepest silver mine is the Mexican, on the Comstock, which is down 3,300 feet.

ing lectures at one of the colleges in the city, prepartory to taking his degree, and notwithstanding he had conjugated the verb in more than one language, many times before, he now for the first time understood what it meant when he said: 'Te amo.'

He was a reserved, diffident, gentle sort of a fellow, unused to girls and their coquetries, and Lilian Moseby, who was a born flirt, although a really true hearted girl, not only charmed, but puzzled him as well, with the ever-varying shades of character she assumed at times. Lil had scores of admirers before, and her twenty years counted twice his twenty-four, in point of experience with the opposite sex. She had never had just such a lover before, however, and as a 'rara avis' counts double in a girl's estimation of the 'game of bags'-or the scalps she adds as trophies to her belt of fascinations -Lil felt not a little exultation in knowing that she was the only girl to whom Mr. Merideth had ever been known to pay his diffident, yet devoted attentions.

The affair had progressed favorably for several weeks; the two aunts nodding their heads and smiling at the young people's evident attraction for one another, and congratulating themselves that a match after their maiden hearts was being made, without any strong efforts on their parts. All went Miss Julia Gautior, who has taken smoothly enough until the evening of the first premium in the department of the 'Lady Washington Reception,' a litportrait-painting at the New Orleans tle sociable gotten up by the boarders fair, is a resident of St. Paul, Minn., in the house to celebrate Washington's and the subject of her successful pict- Birthday. Miss Lilian, the lieutenant quickly discovered, had in these years, sometherefore that he should, after a manner of men, take particular pains to outdo all other admirers at the shrine of her loveliness, and manage to completely monopolize her the greatest part of the evening himself. His name was soon upon her card for all the waltzes, and

"Why, I was engaged to be married to Lieutenant Rich's father when I was a very young girl; w . too. had a misunderstanding, which a word might have righted; we too, were both too proud to speak of it-and he went West and married-and I am still Miss Moseby."

There was rustling of newspaper in the adjoining room, and as Miss Moseby ended her recital, Ralph Meridita walked into the little sitting-room ; pale to the lips.

"I beg your pardon," said he, in a low, tremulous voice, "but Miss Moseby, I could not help overhearing your words just now, were you engaged to Lieutenant Rich's father?"

"Yes, why do you ask? replied Miss Moseby, looking surprised enough at the question.

And your niece, Lillian. is she engaged to the lieutenant?" said an eager voice.

"No, certainly not; Lilian, is engaged to nobody; are you crazy?"

"No, but I have been almost crazy and quite a fool. Miss Moseby, Auntie tell me, you are a woman, and I am a foolish boy; does a woman know when a man is in love with her, without his telling her?"

The two women looked at one another. -should they reveal to this man the crets of their sex?

Miss Moseby broke the silence. "It she is not in love with the man she does, but there is that tender humilite about a woman's affection, but wien her own heart be tone ied, sie wonders that the man she loves, can think of such as shelp

"Thank you," he said, and in an instant left the room.

The two women looked at one another again, nod ed their heads, took up their work and went up to their rooms together.

That same evening, after the two maiden ladies had gone to church, Lilian Moseby was not a little startled and surprised to see Ralp's Meridith wall into their private parlor, as of old She was sitting mader the gasignt making paper flowers, lilies for the Easter decorations. Congressional Mediocrity.

Carp's Washington Letter.

Congressmen are each paid salaries of $5,000 a year. There are 325 of them, and about twenty-five out of that number are worth their salaries. The best could not make more than half that by the sale of their talents to the world in any capacity, and if some of them were forced to live by the sweat of their brows outside of politics I imagine that many of them would go on a low diet, and not from choice either. Look over the men of your acquaintance. How many of them are worth $5,000 a year outside of their capital?

Pick out 325 men from any part of the Union-men whose brain and muscle alon > is worth $5,000 a year in the market-and I will show you that they are of a far higher grade than those making up this body. How did they get here? In various ways. Some bought their seats, it is charged, and some held them through their friendship with great corporations. Some got them by drinking at barrooms to cultivate the slums, and some hypocritically slid into them by praving in the churches at the same time. Others hold their places by the favor of certain district rings and the mainspring which runs the successful machinery of others is the sending out of seeds and the Government documents to 'their farming constituents. A few of them are really great men, but these I can count on my fingers. A few more are noble and upright, and now and then you will find one who does, because it is for

R. S. Aimstrong wishes to make an assertion which he can back with a positive guarantee. It is all about Acker's blood ness. elixir. He claims for it superior merits over all other remedies of its kind, and guarantees for it a positive and sure cure for rheumatism, syphillis and all blood disorders. It frees the skin from spots and and leaves the complexion clear. Ask him about it.

A looker on about town would like to know from which adjoining town the young men came who were earnestly engaged in a game of base ball last Sabbath afternoon. Would it be too much to ask for if we, the people, should request the willage "dads" to appoint an extra marshal for the Sabbath day. It is too bad that the young men of the town be demoralized by Sabbath breakers from unknown places?

The British government has asked for a cred-it of $55,000,000 for the army and navy account. Of this $55,000,000 the sum of $22,500,000 is for. war purposes in the Soudan and $32,500,000 for other naval and military preparations.

The situation between England and Russia April 27, may be briefly told as follows: Gen. Obrutscheff, who has great influence over the ezar, believes that war is inevitable. War preparations at Moscow and Constadt continue unabated. Meanwhile negotiations between England and Russia continue.

Another dynamite explosion occurred in London April 23d, when the admirality offices were badly shaken. Mr. Swainson, solicitor of the admirality, was fatally injured. The police are inclined to think the explosion was caused by the same gang of dynamiters that caused the explosion in the tower and parliament buildings.

Mr. Gladstone, in presenting the govern-ment request for the vote of credit, said; "The government feel that it is necessary to hold all the resources of the empire, including the forces in the Soudan, available for instant use wherever required. The credit does not in-clude any provision for further offensive operations or military preparations for an early march on Khartoum.

Advices from Tirpul state that the attack on Penjdeh by the Russians was absolutely unprovoked. Gen. Komaroff had pushed 3,000 troops evidently walled to deal a telling blow to the Afghans. The attitude of the Afghans was studiously moderate, and there is no color to the protense that their movements were ever irritating. They allowed Russians to inspect their arrangements at Pul-I-Khisti. The following is the basis of the compromise between Russia and Great Britain: Russia consents to an immediate meeting between Zelenoi and Sir Peter Lumsden at Pul-I-Khatun, Russia and England having agreed to limit the zone to be debated to the territory between the Lessar line on the south and a line from Ak-Teppe to Pul-I-Khatun on the north, excluding Pul-I-Khatun and including Penjdeh. Russia renews her assurance that no further Russia renews her assurance that no further advance will be made, provided the Afghans do not attempt to regain their former positions. The commission are instructed to find a practi-cable frontier north of Meruchak and to the south of Pul-I-Khatun, restoring Zulficar and Absolution to the south of the Akrobat to Afghanistan. Penjdeh is to be ceded to Russia and a friendly agreement is to be made with the Ameer.

For the Cook. Boring WHEAT BREAD .--- After various exeriments with this bread we have found the test way of making to be this: Mix the bread soft-about the consistency of pound cake; when it is light, pour it into the baking tins, and when it has risen sufficiently, bake. No moulding is required or permissible. To a quart of the flour allow a tablespoonful of sugar and mix the dough with milk and water in equal parts, adding sait to taste. This bread is very much improved by being toasted over a quick fire just before it is eaten.

PARM, FIELD AND FIBESIDE.

MINNIE'S WEDDING CAKE -GOLD AND SILVEB CARE -One-and-one-half cup sifted flour, onehalf cup of builter, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of sweetmilk, one-and-one-half teaspoon-ful of baking-powder, whites of four eggs, vanilla for fisvoring. Beat the butter and sugar to a cream, then add flour and milk, then fisvoring, and, lastly, the whites of eggs. For Gold Cake, substitute the yelks for whites, and lemon for vanil'a flavoring.

TIN-WARE FOR THE HOUSEHOLD. -- Wash boiler, dish pan, half a dozen milk-pans (even if there is no milk), basins of various sizes; tin pails, with and without covers; tin cups and dippers, two of each; pint molds, for rice and bianc-mange; long-handled skimmer, meas-nres, broad and low to be easily cleaned; bread pane, round cake tins, long pie tins, coffee-pot and tea-steeper, steamer, large and small graters for horse-radish and nutnieg; egg beater, cake turner and cutter; apple corer, flour dredge, canisters for tea and coffee, crumb tray and dust pan.

FRIENDLY LOAVES .- Beat half a dozen mealy potatoes with a quarter pound of grated ham, two eggs, a little butter and a little cream tak ing care not to make it too moist; form it into balls of small loaves, and fry them a nice light brown; they should be fried in butter. Pile them on a napkin and serve with a garnish of fried parsley.

MINCED PORK .-- Put cold lean pork in chop ping bowl and chop till fine; then put in a pan and cover with water; add pepper, salt and a mite of sage, to taste. While cooking, toast some thin slices of bread, lay upon a platter, butter, and cut into two inch squares. Put some boiling water on the toast and let it stand about two minutes, then spread the meat on the toast and serve hot.

Farm Notes.

Mrs. J. G. Kingsbury potted from the garden last fall a plant of morning glory and took it to the sitting-room. The result is noted by the Indiana Farmer: "It soon put out a vinebut instead of being allowed to climb this was pinched off. Soon after buds began to form around the stem, and these have been unfold-ing into pretty blossoms all the winter thus far, and bid fair to continue until spring. The flowers are smaller than when grown out doors in summer, but are equally bright colored and continue open all day.

The following recipe for salting beef for summer has been proved during many years by the editor of the Germantown Telegraph: "For 100 lb, take four quarts Liverpool fine salt, four ounces saltpeter and four pounds brown sugar. Mix intimately, and when the meat is packed which should be closely, sprinkle the mixture evenly over the layers. Keep the meat closely pressed together by weight. The sugar and salt, with the juices of the meat, make all the brine that is necessary."

So good soil, in some small flower to get are then transplanting ones are recommended in order to get around disturbing the roots when transplanting the young plants, as operation which this plant illy bears. After the seedlings are up they should be thinned down to about three in each pot. These may then be grown on until the pot seems small for the roots, when the plants can be tapped out of the pots, setting them in-to the window-box, all without harm.

Roosters.

Fannie Field says in the Prairie Farmer as to roosters: "Do not overdo the rooster business. Too many roosters in one flock are as bad as not enough; in fact, too much receter is worse than not enough, for in the latter case more of the eggs will be fertile, but in the former, the hens are so worried by the everlasting attention of the majos of the flock that lasting attention of the males of the flock that they become disgusted and dodge them alto-gether. For the non-sitting breeds and the Dominiques, Wyandots and Plymonth Rocks, allow one each to every fifteen or twenty hens when on free range; when confined to yards allow one each to every dozen hens. For the Asiatic breeds, allow one each to every twelve or fifteen hens when on free range; one to every ten or twelve hens when confined in small yards. When one has only a pair or two of thoroughbred fowls, put a few common small yards. When one has only a pair of the of thoroughbred fowls, put a few common hens that lay eggs of a different color in the yard with them. Whenever practicable it is better to keep the male birds away from the hens, out of sight and hearing, until about two weeks before the eggs are wanted for sitting."

Row to Cure Beef.

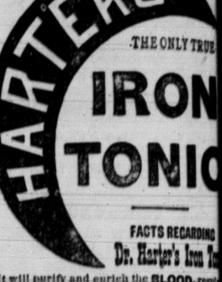

Our rule, which we have followed for years, is as follows: For every one hundred pounds of meat, take four quarts of fine salt, four pounds of brown sugar and four ounces of saltpeter; a little saleratus is sometimes added. Mix all intimately, and when ready for putting down the meat, put a thin layer upon the bot-tom of the barrel; then pack a layer of meat and sprinkle thoroughly with the mixture; and so on until it is all packed. With the juices of the meat, it makes sufficient brine. The meat should be closely pressed together by a good weight. In packing, we always pack the meat for drying in the same barrel, placing it on top and when it has remained four or five weeks, or sometimes more, take it out for drying. We or sometimes more, take it out for drying. We never lost any beef by using the above method and by frequently stirring the brine formed, especially in warm weather, it is kept in good condition as long as the meet will last, and our dried beef, we believe, is as good as need be.-New Hampshire Farmer.

THE healing power of earthquakes is a subject for discussion in the Span. medical press. The statement is maa. that in the recent shake-up at Malaga most of the patients forgot their diseases and took to the open air. This is a great injury to the native stock, of which by far the larger part of our cattle is made up. What would be thought if we were to close all our common schools, and encourage only colleges and universities? It would be about the same thing in principal as ignoring the claims of the owners of breeding stock not-pure bred."

household duties, the chances are she will have enough self respect to behave when playtime comes; but if she should still be a little "wild" the honest toil she has done will confer upon her some degree of right to have her own way, iil-judged though it may be. The wild girl usu-ally aspires to prominence in some social circle or other, and her manners and conduct are in greater or less degree designed to attract the following of men. She should remember that followers are not always admirers, and that the most sincere admiration a man ever feels for a woman in a drawing-room is when he looks upon her and says in his own conscious-ness, "She is a perfect lady."-American Queen.

Every Room Should have Sunlight.

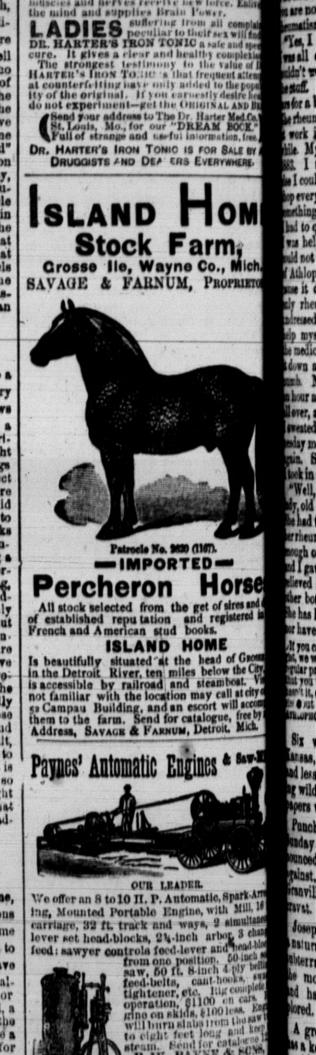

No articles of furniture should be put into a room that will not stand sunlight, for every room in a idwelling should have the windows so arranged that sometime during the day a flood of sunlight will force itself into the aparinood of sunight will force itself into the apari-ment. The importance of admitting the light of the sun freely to all parts of our dwellings cannot be to highly estimated. Indeed, perfect health is nearly as much dependent on pure sunlight as it is on pure air. Sunlight should never be excluded except when so bright as to be uncomfortable to the eyes, and daily walks should be taken in bright sunshing. A sunshould be taken in bright sunshine. A sunbath is of more importance in preserving a healthful condition of the body than is generally understood. A sun-bath costs nothing and that is a misfortune, for people are delud-ed with the ides that those things only can be good and useful that cost money. But remember that pure waer, fresh air, and sun-lit homes kept free from damoness will secure you from many heavy bills of doctors and give you health and vigor that no money can procure. It is a well established fact that the people who live much in the sun are usually stronger and more healthy than those whose occupations deprive them of sunlight; and certainly there is nothing strange in the result, since the same law applies with equal force to nearly every animate thing in nature. It is quite easy to arrange an isolated dwelling so that every room may be filled with sunlight sometime in the day, and it is possible that many town houses could be so built as to admit more light than they now receive.

Methods of Feeding Poultry

From the Country Gentleman.

There is much written, from time to time. about feeding fowls, and a variety of opinions exist on the subject. Observation teaches me that for one who has other things to attend to beside his poultry, the best method is to leave a supply of small grain (mixed) and shells alweys before his flock, and to give, twice or thrice a week, from September to April, a small ration of meat, and, when snow is on the ground, a little cabbage or onions, say twice a week. Remember, I now write neither for fanciers nor poultry farmers, but for farmers and other poultry keepers who can not give all their time to the hens. I have found that

"Cholera Sold Here."

The National Temperance Advocate calls attention to some facts with regard to the dread disease which individuals of intemperate habits and corporations which have power to curtail intemperate habits will do well to consider at once:.

The National Board of Health, in anticipation of the approach of cholera the present season, sends forth a warning and appeals to Congress for an appropriationof half a million. State and local health boards are preparing for action to promote cleanliness and to improve general sanitary conditions, Whatever may thus be done to lessen the liability to spread of the contagion will, of course, be well.

The experience of last year in French and Italian cities again demonstrated what former cholera visitations have unmistakably shown, that intemperance is a great predisposing cause of cholere infection. In Paris and in Rome the patrons of the wine shops were conspicuous as cholera victims. In this city, during the cholera visitation of 1882, it is recorded that of two hundred and four cases in the Park Hospital only six were temperate, and all of these recovered, while one hundred and twenty-two of the others died. In Montreal the same year, of one thousand per-
