MICHIGAN NEWS.

Our Banks.

Michigan has 93 National banks, with an ac gregate capital of $9,794,600; a surplus fund of $2,179,846.24, and undivided profits of $1,177,532.46. Their outstanding circulation is $3,711,495; they hold as individual deposits, $16,151,036.52. The loans and discounts are $21,... 445,300.13, and their circulation is secured by $4,183,000 bonds deposited at Washington. The real estate held by the banks is valued at $375,600.89. During the past year these banks have divided $949,250 among their stockholders. The corporate existence of the following will expire during the time from now to January 1, 1886; First National, Paw Paw; Coldwater National, Coldwater; Lowell National, Lowell; Michigan National, Kalamazoo; Second National, University of National Parts o al, Hillsdale; National Exchange, Albion; First National, Marshall; People's National, Jack-son; American National, Detroit; First Nation-al, Flint; First National, St. Johns; First National, Monroe: Second National, Pontiae; First National, Owosso. The corporate existence of eight banks in the state, representing a capital of $725,000, has already been extended.

For Hotel Keepers.

The Senate has passed, after a very vigorous discussion, Senator Shoemaker's bill for the protection of hotel keepers. It is as follows, the clause enclosed below in brackets being struck out:

SECTION 1. The people of the state of Michigan enact, That every guest who shall, at any hotel or inn, order or cause to be furnished any food or accommodation, with the intent to defraud the owner or keeper of such hotel or inn-out of the value of such food or accommodation, and every guest who shall obtain credit at any hotel or inn by the use of any false pretense or device [or by depositing at such hotel or inn any baggage of value less than the amount of such credit, or of the bill of such person incurred,] and any guest who, after obtaining accommodation at any hotel or inn, shall abscond from such hotel or inn, and shall surreptitiously remove his baggage or property therefrom, with intent to defraud the owner or keeper thereof, shall upon conviction be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding 30 days, or by a fine not exceeding $100, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the

The bill as above is now pending in the House.

Alger's Advice.

Gov. Alger recently sent a communication to both Houses of the legislature, calling attention to the pardoning board recommendation in his message with a statement that upon investigation he has changed his views on the question. He now recommends that a board of four be appointed, to consist of two men from each of the dominant political parties, with sufficient compen-sation to secure able talent, to act as an advisory board, whose duty it shall be to investigate the cases of such prison convicts as may apply and report to the executive such recommendations as seem best as to pardons, commutations or non-action, the recommendation to be acted upon by the executive as his judg-ment directs. "It is," says the governor, "a notorious fact that the sentences of criminals from different circuits in the state for the same offense are widely different and frequently so from the same court. There are in Jackson one for eight years for stealing a horse and wagon which he claims he took for a labor debt, and the other for ten years for stealing $100,000. These sentences should be investigated and the circumstances surrounding them before and after the sentence. The work is so arduous that the executive cannot attend to it, and besides two lawyers ought to be on the board. The governor recommends that Senate bill 32 be amended to accord with this plan, which is in operation in Massachusetts.

Supreme Court Judges' Opinions.

The opinions of the Justices of the supreme court, in the tax case appealed from the Wayne circuit court, have just been filed. The question of the validity of the tax law was first raised in a case from the Marquette circuit. The law was held constitutional by that court, and the decision was sustained by the supreme court by an equal division. The law was held unconstitutional by Judge Chambers of the Wayne circuit, and there being no change in the opinions of the Judges of the supreme court, the decision of Judge Chambers was sustained. was sustained.

In the opinion, just filed, Chief Justice Cooley does not treat the question at large. He says that he assumed, unwarrantably, it seems, that the original judgment, though rendered by a divided court, would be accepted by the circuit judges as law and followed by the supreme court as a precedent made by the circuit judges as law and followed by the supreme court as a precedent until it should be overruled by a majority of the court. He thinks that if a decision, because not made by an equal number, may be disre-garded by a Circuit Judge, we have and can have, no settled law for the state, and that this state of affairs would so much resemble a judicial scandal that he would yield his opinion if such yielding would be essential to prevent such a consequence. He, however, reiterates his conviction that the first judgment should be abided by, and does not concur in much that Justice Sherwood says on the constitutional question, for the reason that he thinks it is distinctly opposed to the current of authority. He thinks that on constitutional questions the court is drifting to the position "that those statutes are constitutional which suit us and those are void which do not." Justice Champlin concurred with Chief Justice.

In his opinion, sustaining that of Judge Chambers, and controlling the disposition of the case, Justice Campbell again emphasizes the doctrine that courts cannot become executive agencies. He again expresses his conviction that the proceeding is not due process of law, either executive or judicial. He reviews the legal history of the state with reference to its bearing upon the right of commissioners to intervene in the actual work of legislation. He declares that under the constitution the door is not left open "to the introduction into the actual work of legislation, or a participation by persons not membersand not selected by any constituency for that purpose, and still less for admitting advocates on one side with important authority in the direction of business, without making provision for having the other side represented or de-fended by any one." (This refers to the terms under which the Tax Commission, which participated in passing the law, was appointed. The members had a voice, though not a vote, in each House of the Legislature when the question was under consideration.) Justice Campbell affirms the decree dismissing the proceed-

Justice Sherwood, in an opinion concurring with Justice Campbell. proceedings authorized Tax law, is not only a clear viola-tion of the provisions of our constitutions, both state and national, but of the elementary principles upon which these provisions are founded. He insists that there is not due process of law in the proceeding. He is, furthermore, of the opinion that the presence of the tax com-missioners in the legislature was a usurpation of legislative functions. He repudiates the suggestions of counsel for the maintenance of tax laws, "that it is the duty of the members of the court who do not believe the law to be constitutional to unite in a decision that it is, where the members of the court are equally divided upon the question, on the ground that they have doubts or should have doubts, when in fact they have none."

Justice Sherwood concludes his opinion as follows: "The objectionable features of the law and the illegal manner of its enactment have been generally and pretty fully described and pointed out. With these eliminations and such other needful changes as will readily suggest themselves to the legislature, I apprehend no difficulty will occur in the enactment of a general tax law which will meet the requirements of the constitution and the necessities of our people without depriving any citizen of his just and legal rights.

Mr. Greeley had left his circus days long way behind, and found the perormances in the ring anything but enlivening. He sat bolt upright in the front now of the pit, and kept his eyes fixed on the entry by which he expected that Miss Chester would make her appearance on the fiery barebacked steed. He had looked eagerly for her name on the programme, but found it not; and was tain to console himself with the suggestion that probably she played her part under another name. Presently he had an uncomfortable sensation that e was being stared at; and, looking up, he saw Mr. Wylie gazing down on him from the gallery. Mr. Wylie's expression indicated a puzzled state of mind, and the eye which had not its visual power obliterated by Mr. Wylie's hat appeared to be fascinated by Mr. Greeley's new clothes. This made Mr. Greeley more uncomfortable still. The performance proceeded but no Miss Ches. ormance proceeded, but no Miss Chester appeared on any steed, fiery, bare-backed, or otherwise. There were many young ladies with brief skirts and flowing hair, who piroquetted on prancing steeds, and leaped through loops, and slapped the face of the clown, and said "Hoop-la" when the ringmaster cracked his whip; but among them was not Miss Rose Chester. Mr. Greeley began to be awarry and to wish directly began to be aweary and to wish the were in bed. The hoof of the fiery steeds threw up sawdust in his eyes and the clown leveled his best joke directly at him. The performance was over, and Miss Chester had not appear-

Sad and dispirited, Mr. Greeley left his seat and followed the crowd out of he circus. "Can she be ill?" he asked himself. "Can anything have happened to her? She was still in the house when I left it."

"It's the cruel stepmother," thought
Mr. Greeley, and wild notions of a rescue crossed his mind. But Miss Cheser passed on following the lady in black. They reached the cab, the driver mounted to his seat, and the horse dashed away into the darkness at the rate of two miles and a half an hour.

Mr. Greeley, in a state of the utmost agitation, hastened to the house. "Mrs. Dunning. Mrs. Dunning!" he gasped, "what is all this?"

"Oh, sir! Oh, Mr. Greeley!" wailed the landlady, "she've been and played on us, a young hussy; been and deceived us, sir, you and me and Mr. Wylie and all of us!"

"Played on us! deceived us! Who has done this? What do you mean, Mrs. Dunning?"

"That young woman, sir; that Miss Chester. Cruel stepmother, indeed! It's a 'oax, sir, a blessed 'oax, every bit of it. Why, that lady in black, that's her ma. "Sir," answered Mrs. Dunning sol-Yes, sir, they hacts close again emnly, "there ain't no circus, and there ain't no Mr. Butler. Bare-back 'oss, emnly, "there ain't no circus, and there indeed! "I shouldn't wonder if her ma would manage that little business for her, sir," replied Mrs. Dunning with much satisfaction.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wylie, standing outside his door, had overheard this col-

"Have I been on the point of breaking with Sam Greeley, on account of a chit of 15?" Mr. Wylie indignantly asked himself. Then he went downstairs with his hat in his hand.

Mr. Greeley heard him, and met him "Will!"

"We have been, Will, a couple of—"
"Old fools, Sam; downright old fools!"
By this time the downright old fools were clasping hands, and looking at one another a little shame-facedly and very affectionately. "We're both in the same boat, Will," said Mr. Greeley; "but you know I did say from the first that woman was—"

"So you did, Sam; and so she is, especially when she's a girl of 15."

Very shortly after this there stood on the table a capacious bowl, from which a gentle steam went up, and an odor of a sweet savor pervaded the room. Later still, Mr. Greeley brought out his flute, and Mr. Wylie sang two or three dozen of the songs of his youth.

The bowl was getting low when Mr. Greeley said: "There is a little thing by Longfellow, Will, which I think would be appropriate to the occasion. I don't know that it has been set to music, but I dare say we could sing it between us."
"I know it," said Mr. Wylie; "lead on, Sam, and I'll follow."

And the two old fellows lifted up their voices and sang:

I know a maiden, fair to see-Take care!
She can both false and friendly be—Beware! beware!
Trust her not, she is fooling thee!

Then Mr. Greeley insisted on accompanying Mr. Wylie to his bed-chamber, a kindly office which, thanks to the excellence of the rum punch, was not wholly superfluous.—Tinsley's Magazine.

Then she sentfor a clergyman, and while the subject was under the influence of the drug, the two were declared man and wife. When the man recovered his sensesheexpressed surprise and some disgust at what had occurred, owing to the fact, not before known to the fair dentist, that he already possessed a wife.

MY SISTER SUSETTA.

"I am going, Addie, so it is useless to argue the point," my sister says, as she stands on tiptoe to pluck a rose that is almost out of her reach, her loose sleeve falling back from her beautifully molded arm with its dimpled elbow.

Susetta is so pretty that everybody falls in love with her-men, women and children; but she has her faultswho has not ?- and her obstinacy makes me sigh.

She is affianced to one of the best young men that ever drew breath; but they quarrel so often that I frequently wonder if their engagement will ever end in marriage. Trevor Chudleigh is awfully fond of her; but she does lead him such a dance!

Now, if I only had a lover like Trevor, how differently I would behave. Alas! I am not a beauty, and although "handsome is as handsome does" is. a very good saying, young men, as a rule, preter pretty faces to plain ones.

Trevor is away, worse luck ! and before he went begged Susetta not to attend those awful races. It wasn't much to ask, I think; but Susetta says he is a tyrant, and if she doesn't get some enjoyment out of life before she is married, she never will afterward.

She is going with those Fieldwicks, too, and Trevor always says Mrs. Fieldwick is fast.

She certainly does paint and powder openly, as indifferent to criticism on that point as Lady Morgan; but she's an amiable woman for all that. Still, if I were Susetta, I should not seek her society, knowing Trevor's dislike to her.

But poor Susetta is so fond of pleasure. It is a perfect mania with her. She always wants to be amusing herself, and hates quiet as much as I love it. I often wonder how Trevor and Susetta will get on if they ever do marry, for he is so grave and studious and she so giddy and flighty. He said to me one day-how well I remember his words:

"Addie, I wish your sister resembled you in your fondness for home. She always wants to be gadding about. I never knew such a restless creature in my life"

"You must bear with her," I answered. "She is so young and pretty, Trevor, and we have made such a pet of her. She does not know what it is to be denied anything she wants."

"I know you always stand up for her," he observed with a smile; "you are a good girl, Addie."

This was before he went away to London on business. He has been gone about a week, and Susetta has had a letter from him every morning. Happy Susetta! What more can she want since she has his love? It would not be much of a sacrifice to stay away from the races.

Susetta looks lovely in her blue dress, coquettish hat and blue vail, and it isn't likely, she tells me, that she is going to stick at home while other people are enjoying themselves. "If old Trevor"-he is eight-andtwenty-"doesn't like it he can do the other thing," she says, with a laugh. "Why don't you marry him yourself, you little prude?" "Because he never asked me," is my quiet reply; "but if a good man loved me, I would never trifle with his feelings, Susetta.'

"You are perfection, and I am not," says my pretty sister. "Good-by, Ad-

And she hurries out of the house, for a smart four-in-hand has just drawn up to the door, and going to the window I watch Susetta as she is helped up to the top and takes her place beside Mrs. Fieldwick, whose red and white is laid on extra thick, I fancy to-day.

Then I sit down on the sofa and cry a little for Trevor, but more for myself. Oh, if he had loved me, how eagerly I would have obeyed his slightest wish! But he does not love me-so what is the use in indulging such thoughts? They are foolish and Mother and our one servant are not very observant, but the fear that they may notice that I have been weeping makes me dry my eyes; but not before I have made myself ugher than ever. Perfection, Susetta called me. Y.s, 1 am a perfect freight.

I look at my self in the mirror. What do I see? A small pale race, light eyes, and sandy hair. An en-

Alma Tadema says a woman with a beautiful figure seldom has a beautiful face, and my figure is undeniably fense, and I answer gently: Oh, you naughty, naughty girl, to and deceive me like that! I'm when the conquest of the Chinese was when the conquest of the Chinese was proposed to him: "No; there are too mired her pretty features.

There is a double knock at our front door, and our servant being busy, I open it.

"A telegram, miss," says the boy who stands there. It is for Susetta, and I open it without hesitation, for Susetta and I have no secrets from each other.

calmly: "My dear, it is no business of ours; Susetta must manage her own affairs. She would go to the races, and your sister and Trevor must settle the matter between them.'

Mother is a little bit vexed with Susetta, for Trevor is a very good man, and she might have stopped at home for once just to please him.

"If she had only known he was coming back to-day," I say, regretfully, "she would not have gone in that case, and all would have been well."

"Don't you bother your dear little head over Susetta's affairs," returns mother, kissing me. "You'll have enough to do if you trouble yourself about her. -There never was such an obstinate, self-willed girl."

"But she loves Trevor," I say, earnestly.
"I doubt it," returns mother, shaking her head. "If she cared for him she would be ready to make a greater sacrifice than stopping away from the races for his sake.

"But she is so pretty, mother, and so fond of pleasure."

"All the worse for Trevor," retorts mother, who is deeply vexed. "But since you are so staunch in her defense, I'll leave you to make excuses for her. My head aches, and I am going to lie down."

"But, oh, mother! what can I say to him?" I cry in dismay.

"Just what you please," returns mother. "If I were to see him, I should tell him what I think of Susetta's behavior, and you would object to that. I know."

"Oh, mother! don't be hard on our petted darling!" I say, and mother's face relaxes, and I see a smile lurking at the corners of her mouth; but she won't wait to see Trevor, neverthe-

He will look so bright and eager when he comes into the room, and I shall see such blank disappointment on his face as he looks in vain for Susetta-Susetta, who is enjoying herself at the races in company with those objectionable Fieldwicks.

I go to the piano, but rise from the music stool in a very few minutes, and take up a book, then, throwing it down, begin to walk restlessly to and fro, for I can settle to nothing.

"Was she not pleased to get my telegram?" he continues. "She was far from home when it came," I say, trying to appear at my ease, "so I opened it."

"Quite right, sister Addie," returns Trevor, looking a little disappointed, but still speaking cheerfully. "But where is Susetta?"

"She is spending the day with some friends," I answered, with a foolish desire to put off telling the truth as long as possible. Trevor's handsome face darkens, and his eyes flash ominously, as he "Adeline, she has never gone to the races?-she would not do that after what I have said. But you don't answer me. She has gone, then?" Lam still silent, and Trevor begins to pace up and down the room in a state of the greatest agitation. He is terribly put out, and makes no attempt to hide it from me. "And I shortened my stay in London, and hurried back for this," he says, bitterly, coming to a standstill before my chair. Addie, I am beginning to wonder whether Susetta is worthy of all the love I have lavished upon her." "You must not speak like that of my sister. She is foolish, I know; but there is not a better girl in the whole

He gives me a quick glance as I finish speaking, and sighs impa-

"I sympathize with you both. Ah! if you would only take 'Bear and forbear' for your motto!"

"Have I not borne enough already?" demanded Trevor, with another sigh. "Addie!" he cries, suddenly, and the blood rushes to his face, "she has not gone with the Fieldwicks. She has! Then, by Heaven! I will never forgive

"Hush, Trevor!" I say, soothingly. "You will be sorry for talking like this when your anger is over. After ...il, she has not done anything desperately wrong."

"Would you have done it, Addie?" I hesitate for a moment, scarcely knowing what reply to make; but I must say something in my sister's dea faint smile. "Then men are fools," exclaims | Chicago.

To my dismay, it is from Trevor, to Trevor, forgetting that his remark is say that he will be with Susetta that scarcely complimentary, and he, at afternoon. Of course she will not be here to receive him. What will he think!

I tell mother the news, and she says,

I tell mother the news, and she says, good, as well as beautiful."

"The man who is wise will not marry at all." I observe, laughingly. "He that takes a wife takes trouble and care." But Trevor is not in the humor to laugh at anything. He hates the idea of Susetta associating with the Fieldwicks, and is deeply wounded that she should have gone to the races, in defiance of his wishes. Trevor and I are in the garden when the four-in-hand dashes up to the gate, and I notice with horror that Mr.

Fieldwick shows evident signs of having had too much champagne. He wears a false nose, and presents a wholly comical appearance. At any other time I should find it impossible not to laugh, but now I can feel nothing but dismay. Susetta is helped down by a young man with light hair, and stands at the gate as the coach bowls along the road. She has not seen Trevor yet. When she does, her cheeks lose a little of their rich bloom, and a halffrightened, half-defiant look comes into her eyes. "You here, Trevor," she says, holding out her hand.

"You did not expect to see me," he observes, coldly.

"If I had, I should have stopped at home," she answers, and then I slip indoors and leave them alone. Presently Susetta joins me, but without Trevor. They had quarreled, it seemed, and parted in anger. "Susetta," I say entreatingly, "you have not sent him away?" "He has gone, my dear," she answers, and begins to sing, but I fancy her voice trembles a little. "Oh, Susetta," I say, "pray, think of what you are doing! He loves you

"He says he never wants to see my face again," she answers, and then continues her song.

It is growing dark, but I fancy I can see a figure lingering near the gate. Can it be Trevor?

"Susetta," I say, "do you know Trevor is going to leave England?" It is an awful fib, for he had never said so; but it is what I imagine he will do if his estrangement with Susetta continues, and I cannot bear to see these two people, who love each other, spoiling their lives from sheer Presently I hear Trevor knocking obstinacy and ill-temper. I love them so dearly that I would fain see them "Going to leave England because I went to the races, I suppose you mean," says Susetta. "Well, let him go-I don't care!" "If you don't care, why are you crying?" I ask, hoping she is crying; for I am not sure of it, and the assertion is only a bold venture on my part.

"I am not crying," returns my sis-ter, in a choking voice. "If Trevor loves me so little that he can leave me forever because I committed an act of folly, he isn't worth crying about. Perhaps if he had known how my conscience had pricked me all day, and how I had resolved never to go out with those horrid people again, he wouldn't have been so hard on me."

"It is too late now." I say, watching.
Trevor's shadow. "After all, dear, he was too exacting, you'll find some one more kind and considerate, and learn to forget him."

"Never!" replies my sister, indignantly. "If you had ever been in love, you would know that such a thing is impossible. You have no feeling, Ad-"Darling!" This expression does not come from me, but from Trevor, who, leaping through the window, clasps Susetta in his arms. I am about to retire from the room, when Trevor, still holding my sister in his embrace, takes my hand and lifts it to his lips. "Addie," he says, "I shall never forget the service you have done me.' "Was it a plot between you?" asks Susetta, struggling to free herself.

Trevor stoutly demes this, and so do I, and Susetta appears satisfied. But in her own mind I fancy she still has her doubts. I know one thing, she is always very grateful to me for what I did that night. If she knew all, perhaps she would be more grateful still. - Alfred Crayon.

The Size of the Udder. The size of the milk vessel is by no means an indication of the quantity of milk it will contain. I remember, as a youngster, being tremendously deceived in this respect. I sent a long distance to purchase an Alderney that had an udder so large as to interfere with her walking. She was by no means a deep milker, and her udder was mainly meat. Whereas a small vessel, with tiny teats, will oftentimes go on milking until the pail runs over. Recent experience has put me in possession of a secret which I will mention for the good of your readers. I have lately bought several cows that had "lost quarters." An intelligent cow-man that I met one day called my attention to the fact that he had succeeded in recovering the flow of these choked teats. The mode he adopted was this: Just as the milk was beginning to spring in the udder, before Susetta and I. She is so fond of calving, he kept gently drawing at pleasure, and I have ever been a home the disordered teat, until gradually he got a few pea-shaped bits of hard coagulation; then a sort of pith like the inside of a rush followed, softer continually, until at last the fluid came. The country newspaper is the most useful of all the agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon villages and inland cities. Without the aid of local newspapers, towns are, as a rule, thriftless and dead. It is common for small great men to speak with contempt of the local newspapers, but the village newspaper makes more great men out of less material-more bricks without straw-than any other factor in politics, and it is the one ladder on which men climb to local distinction as the beginning of wider fame. The advent of the local newspaper has always dated the increased thrift of the community. The local newspaper is the life of the locality, and the measure of its support, as a rule measures the advancement of the people. -Philadelphia Times.

According to the British excise returns for 1884, Great Btritain's drink bill last year reached a sum total of $631,747,280, an increase of $4,359,905 over the year previous. The largest item was for beer, the sum spent for that beverage being $372,418,100. A correspondent of the London Times sees in this vast outlay of the people's money for drink a reason for the prevailing depression in trade and the distress of the working classes in spite of the fact that food has been cheap, money abundant and wages good. The conclusion is a very sensible and reasonable one. It explains the condition of affairs in America as well as in England. The till of the rum-seller is draining the country of money, men and morels, and, giving nothing out in return but rags, misery and crime.—N. Y. ObserH. S. HOLMES

AND WHAT THE INQUIRIES AND INVESTIGA-TIONS DEVEOPED.

Cursed with that yague and indefinite something, called maleria, and living in Daily New Era, resolved to investigate its curative powers, of which he had heard so much. He writes as follows: "Calling on James H. Marshall, Esq., at present and for twelve years past, postmaster of the city, I asked, 'what do you know about Mishler's herb bitters?' 'I know" was the answer 'that it is the most palatable bitters I have ever taken, and as a tonic it has no equal.' "

That was encouraging, and the next person I met was Wm. A. Morton, Esq, of the Lancaster Intelligencer. I addressed the same inquiry to him, and quick as a flash came the answer, "I have used Mishler's herb bitters, off and on, for ten years, and have found it of great benefit. On one occasion, suffering from severe prostration it was the only thing to give me relief."

Stepping into the office of Hon. D. P. Rosenmiller, mayor of Lancaster, I repeated my query. It is the best tonic I- have ever known, and I regard it as an infallible cure for malaria" smilingly answered his Honor.

But why multiply this home testimony? Address whom I might-preachers, lawyers, bankers, druggists, merchants-all who had any knowledge of the bitters, and the testimony was overwhelmingly in its favor. Suffice to say that, although a skeptic on the subject of curing maleria, I became convinced that there was one preperation, and one only, that would cure CO. it, and its name is Mishler's herb bitters.

The brim has usually a puff of velvet coming over its edge, and the only other trimming needed is a cockade bow of loops and forked ends of velvet ribbon. Sometimes wool lace the color of the felt is gathered along the brim, or else forms a rosette on the left

> A narrow standing linen collar or a frill of muslin or lace is worn around the neck by young girls. White mull and velvet ribbon bows are used to fasten this, but most girls prefer a simple breastpin that is convenient to wear with any dress. Earrings are now seldom seen on girls in their teens, and many of the rising generation refuse altogether to have holes bored in their ears. The simplest arrangement of the hair is adopted by school-girls, such as hanging braids, or else a braided knot low on the nape of the neck, while the front may be brushed back smoothly from the forehead if it is low, or cut in a bang that may cover part of a high forehead, and perhaps result in inducing the hair to grow lower down. Crimping the hair on pins is always injurious, but especially when it is growing fast in youth; plaiting the back hair in many small braids at night is the safer way of making it light and fluffy. Stocking are chosen to match the dress in color, or else black stockings are worn with any dress. Buttoned gaiters for misses are now made with the low English heels that are becoming popular along with other wholesome English fashions. Calf-skin of light quality is used this winter both for ladies' and for young girls' above. For more dressy show girls' shoes. For more dress patent-leathers with colored cloth tops are chosen, and black French kid boots or slippers are worn with light wool or muslin dresses. Tan-colored gloves of either dressed or undressed kid are furnished in misses' sizes, and are appro-priate with any dress.—Harper's Ba-

RUINED BY A BLUNDER.

The Unfortunate Dr. Burchard of "Rum Romanism and Rebellion" Notoriety. New York Sun.

The utterer of the "rum, Romanism and rebellion" phrase, who is calculated to have influenced votes enough to turn the scale in the pivotal state of New York, is the loser of a pastorate as the consequence of his blunder. I met the Rev. Dr. Burchard recently. He is a very tall and benign old man. It is likely that his parental sort of urbanity has been acquired as President of the Rutgers Institute, a once fashionable but now disregarded school for girls; but he is a decidedly venerable figure, as he dignifiedly walks down Fifth avenue, and there really ought to be . full stop put to the ridicule to which he has been subjected. He has had an awful punishment for his folly. Republicans hate him and Democrats despise him. His acquaintances dropped away from him, and even some of his intimate friends grew cool. His congregation in the Murray Hill Presbyterian Church was already small at the time of his famous speech to Mr. Blaine, but after that it dwindled slowly and steadily until, a few days ago, the Trustees informed him that either the doors would have to be closed or a new paster hired. This was the final, crushing blow to the poor old man. The presbytery has discussed the question, and their decision/that he must retire has already been telegraphed to you. He is to get a sort of pension of $500 a year as long as he lives, but this will come from the presbytery, not from his disloyal congregation. I felt like asking Dr. Burchard what he thought of his sad position, but the breach of politeness would have yielded no information for publication. for he uniformly refuses to speak on the subject. It is said that he wrote to Blaine, after the election, deploring the damage which his speech had done, and begging quite petifully for forgiveness; but the reply, though granting the request, tacitly admitted the affirmation of the offense, and beside, was brief, formal and almost curt in its terms.

"And has the idea been entertained of going to the new President for aid in the form of a congenial office?" I in-

"O, no," was the positive reply. "The doctor may be open to the occusation of extreme foolishness, but he still has a keen sense of the proprieties and wouldn't take anything from the present administration-even in the unlikely event of an offer. All he desires is, I think, to drop into obscurity. In only one instance have I wan of his making the slightest prode on adverse criticism as to the bad power judgment shown in his fatal address, and that was when, the other day, he read of Boil Ingersoll saying, in an interview, that he was an idiotic blunderer. 'I am not much of a lion, perhaps,' the doctor then remarked, 'but I feel like one when this infidel ass kicks me."

The Chinese Giant to Get Married.

St. Louis Sunday Sayings. "I understand you are to be married, Chang. How is it?"

A slight smile passed over Chang's face-it took quite a while to get over it—and a blush was just perceptible.

"Yes, I am to be married, though I expect to go home to China first."

"Who is the lady?" "I would rather not tell her name. She lives in Kansas City. She is rich and is worth over $200,000. I am worth about $150,000, and I think we will not be in need when our marriage is consummated. The lady is large in stature. She is six feet six inches in height, and her dress makes her look much larger. She is an American lady and lives with her parents. She first saw me on exhibition and talked to me a long while. The next day I was sitting in a parlor in a hotel, playing on the piano. I can play nicely on the piano, and would like you to hear me. Well, I was playing on the piano when I heard the lady enter the room. I turned and saw her. She looked rather timid at first, and I said, 'Come in, lady, I will not charge you fifty cents to hear and see me.' She laughed and acted more at ease. I played many pieces, which seemed to please her not a little. Finally I got up and placed one hand on her shoulder, said she was a nice big woman and I would like to have her for my wife. She laughed and ran merrily out of the room. A week later I received a letter from her father asking me if I really wanted his daughter in marriage, and asking me what I intended to do if married. I said I wanted his daughter, and would become a tea merchant. The engagement was then made.

ENGLAND CONCEDES

Russia's Demands, and Proposes to Arbitrate.

POREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF.

There is a slight relaxation in the tension of the relations of Russia and England, Russia appears to be disposed to entertain England's latest proposals—to submit to the arbitration of one of the crowned heads of Europe the of one of the crowned heads of Europe the question whether the convention of Mar ch 17 was broken by Russia. It is believed that the king of Denmark will be selected as arbitrator in the event of mediation being accepted. The London Standard says: "We are able to state upon unquestionable authority that the English proposal to Russia is for the submittal to arbitration of one of the crowned heads of Furores of the simple question whether a not Europe of the simple question whether or not the convention of March 17 was broken by Russia. This proposal is now under considera-tion by the Russian government."

The czar has sent an ultimatum to Great Britain demanding that the latter shall accept Russia's proposed boundary line between Turkestan and Afghanistan. If Great Britain refuses to accept this boundary Russia will proceed to occupy Herat, Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, announced in the house of commons April 28, that the govern-ment had received definite and reliable information to the effect that the Russians were now in full advance to Herat. He also announced that the report of the occupation of Maruchak had been confirmed. This point is 20 miles south of Penjdeh, on the Murghab river. The Standard, which published the report, stated that the ameer attached more import, stated that the ameer attached more imports a few statements. portance to Maruchak than to Penjdeh. The announcements created a profound sensation, and much bitterness was expressed by the members. Gladstone's speech on the loan of $55,000,000, made in the House April 28, was very war-like in its tone, and dispels any lingerng idea that England will make any conces-

A St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News says that another engagement was fought on the Afghan frontier, and that of the 1,700 Russians who engaged in the battle nearly all were slain.

If there has been a battle the presumption is that it was brought on by the Russians pushing further toward Herat. Or it is possible that the Afghans, incited by the British officers may have made a desperate effort to retrieve the disaster at Penjdeh, and overwhelmed and crushed the Russians there by the weight of uperior numbers.

The Sunday closing movement is being agitated in Germany. Turkey declares she will close the Dardanelles in case of war. The British income tax has been advanced to ight pence on the pound.

It is understood the immediate withdrawal f British troops from the Soudan has been decided upon.

Arrangements are now in progress to induce the pope to grant an audience to the Prince of Wales during the latter's visit to Rome.

A dispatch from Gen. Briere de l'Isle states that the Chinese generals refuse to evacuate Tonquin or to retire from the positions which they have captured. The insurrection in Panama has been peacably settled through the efforts of the consular corps and the American naval officers.

The insurgents have surrendered and withdrawn from the city. Government troops are now in control.

The hostile Arabs are again becoming troublesome to the British. Scouting parties of these Arabs now make constant attempts to destroy the sections of the Suakim-Berber Railway already constructed, and they cut the telegraph wires wherever they can. Every night now El Mahdi's men fire upon and into the British forts. the British forts.

The American Marines have occupied The American Marines have occupied Panama, and all American property is carefully guarded. One rebel was killed before the American succeeded in restoring order. The following telegram from Admiral Jouett has been received at the Navy Department: "It was absolutely necessary to occupy Panama to protect transit and American property. The safety of Panama and American interests are secured by this move. Your instructions were published in the Panama papers. No misunderstanding will result. Government officials will arrive soon, when everything will be turnwill arrive soon, when everything will be turned over to them and we will withdraw."

GENERAL NEWS.

THE PENSION BUSINESS.

A statement prepared at the pension office A statement prepared at the pension office shows that the business of the office during the month just ended has exceeded that of any previous month. From this statement it appears that 5,370 "original" pension certificates have been issued during the month of April, 1885, against 3,734 during the same month last year, and that the total number of pension certificates issued was 8,199, being 1,866 in excess of the number for April, 1884.

PRUSSIAN FRAUDS.

The commissioner of pensions has directed the suspension at the Philadelphia agency of 102 pensions which have been drawn, although the pensioners are dead. In some cases, the commissioner says, the persons in whose names the pensions were drawn have been dead since 1871. He has also directed the suspension at the same agency of pensions to seven widows who remarried in 1881, but who have continued to draw their pensions ever since. The commissioner has asked the Attorney General to bring suit against the pension agent for the moneys so unlawfully disbursed

A FIENDISH DEED.

A German named Adolph Hess, with his wife and child, lived three miles from Concordia, Ohio. Hess, who was addicted to drink, went home drunk the other night, took an ax and severed the head of his child from the body. The head was found on the floor. Hess then beat his wife on the head until life was extinct. The room bore evidence of a dreadful struggle; the floor was smeared with blood; chairs were broken and bloody; finger marks stained the wall. The woman's body, almost nude and horribly bruised and gashed, lay in a corner.

After his bloody work Hess hung himself to a

Shortly before the express train on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago road should have reached Bloomington a man, having the appearance of a tramp, entered the express car from the smoking car, armed with a heavy hickory stick. In the express car were George K. Davis, the express messenger, and Peter Webber the baggageman. The tramp struck Webber on the head felling him, while Davis ran for his revolver. Before he could reach it the man hit him also, and then, taking away the revolver, shot him in the head. He then made the baggageman open the safe and take out the money. The tramp then pulled the bell-cord and stopped the train, but first fired at Webber, the bullet striking him in the forehead. Webber succeeded in reaching the smoker and gave the alarm, but the solitary train robber disappeared in the darkness. The alarm was not given until the train reached Bloomington, when a search began. The amount stolen exceeds $1,200. Webber died the next day about noon, and Davis can not recover. A DARING ROBBERY. APPAIRS IN PANAMA. Advices from Panama state that the whole

Advices from Panama state that the whole republic continues in a state of disorder. Every effort is again being made to render Colon inhabitable. Immense orders for lumber, houses, etc., have gone forward to the United States. A large number of war vessels of different nationalities are in Aspinwall and Panama, and with their men, combined with those already on shore, can easily repress any effort to create further disorder. Near Neiva a battle has taken place between 3,500 rebels under Gen. Hurtado and a large force of Nunez's troops, commanded by tween 3,500 rebels under Gen. Hurtado and a large force of Nunez's troops, commanded by Casabianca. The latter was defeated and wounded. Numerous other engagements are reported but no authentic particulars are at hand. A letter from Carthagena says: "The rebels are said to have received lately a reinforcement of 500 troops and a quantity of rifles and ammunition, and propose, from last accounts, to commence operations against the city." A system of signals has been arranged with the commander of the Powhattan, whereby he could land upon short notice some of his men to protect, if necessary, the American consulate and American citizens and their inconsulate and American citizens and their in-terests, and if desired, to also help out of way the non-combatants.

SOME POSTAL PIGURES.

Third Assistant Postmaster-General has made a report of the effect during the first year of the reduction of letter postage from three cents to two. He says that the actual revenue for the year ended September 30, 1884 (the first year during which the reduced rate prevailed), was $42,184,809, or $7,467,899 less than the estimated revenue upon a three cent rate, and the loss by the reduction of the rate to two cents was $523,100 less than the estimated loss. The immediate falling off in the issue of postal cards was 18.06 per cent., amounting to 83,034,-287 cards. Crediting the extra revenue on letters from the loss on postal cards with $830,-342 of the beneficial results of two-cent postage would leave $1,967,592 to be divided between the benefits growing out of the increased number of letters and the substitution of sealed circulars for open ones. He thinks the actual loss in revenue even less than this. In conclusion, Mr. Hazen says: "I will only add that the results of two-cent postage have more than realized the most sanguine expectations of its warmest advocates." He thinks that when the law making the single rate weight limit one ounce instead of a half ounce goes into effect it will add to the revenues by inducing persons sending light packages to send them under seal instead of parcel rates.

BLOWN TO PRAGMENTS.

A terrible catastrophe occurred in Galveston, Texas, at half past 7 o'clock on the morning of May 3. One of the boilers at the Tre-mont Hotel exploded, instantly killing a number of persons and wounding several others, doing great damage to the hotel and neighboring property. The concussion from the explosion was appalling. The Tremont House is a large five-story brick structure, 130 feet frontage on Tremont street and about the same depth on Church street. The holler house was situated Tremont street and about the same depth on Church street. The boiler house was situated at the northwest corner of the building and was a small one-story brick structure attached to the main building. The explosion shook the great building with such terrible force that the guests thought a tremendous earthquake had occurred and ran panic-stricken about the ballways. about the hallways.

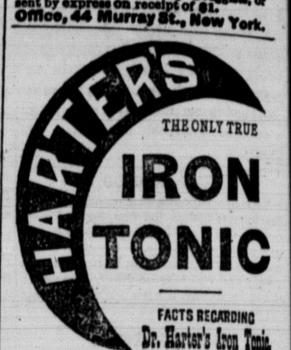

A TENEMENT HOUSE HORROR.

Eight persons were killed and fourteen injured just before 1 o'clock the other morning by an outbreak of fire in a crowded tenement on First avenue, near Thirty-eight street, in New York. The building is a new tenement house York. The building is a new tenement house standing alone next to a coal yard on the east side of the avenue. The ground floor is occupied on the north of the entrance by a restaurant kept by John Humphries, in the rear of which the fire broke out, and on the south side by John Burger, a saloonkeeper. The other four floors above are occupied by seven families, one suite of apartments being untenanted. There was but one dark and narrow hallway through the building for the use of the forty inmates. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Koerner, who lives on the fifth floor. She smelt the smoke and immediately roused her son Jacob. She immediately rushed into the hall and shouted at the top of her voice. The whole house was the top of her voice. The whole house was full of smoke, which was surging up in great black billows from the basement. Down stairs in the rear there was a bright light, which showed where the flames were cutting off the retreat. At the sound of the woman's voice pearly overshody in the house swrang cut of retreat. At the sound of the woman's voice nearly everybody in the house sprang out of bed, but they, were all sleeping at the time. It did not take long for them to realize their danger, and without waiting to put on their clothing, there was a mad rush of half-naked men, women and children, 'shrieking and crying, for the street. The steep flights of narrow stairs were blocked by the crowd. Men cursed and swore as they tried to push the women and little ones out of their way in that desperate struggle for life. At the bottom of the stairs they fell over one another, and a pile of human beings was formed in the twinkling of an eye. Several women lost their senses and rushed to the windows, whence they threw an eye. Several women lost their senses and rushed to the windows, whence they threw themselves to the ground, and one despairing mother, Mrs. Katrina Lemburger, 30 years old, threw her four children out of a window, and then wildly flung herself after them. As soon as the fremen arrived they have become as the firemen arrived they began to pour streams into the rear of the house and the flames were soon under control.

PLEADING FOR PEACE.

Alfred H. Love, president of the Pennsylvania peace society, acting under the authority of the universal peace union, recently transmitted the following letter to his majesty the czar of Russia. "To the Emperor Alexander of Russia: Honored and respected sir—Permit the members of the universal peace union to come very near you in sympathy and prayer. mit the members of the universal peace union to come very near you in sympathy and prayer, and to implore you to withhold the declaration of war in the impending troubles in the Afghanistan. Whatever rights your great empire may be entitled to will be more justly and promptly determined by calm and peaceful conference with your opponents, and, in case you cannot agree satisfactorily, we beg you to submit your differences to kind and impartial arbitration. We are mindful of your power. submit your differences to kind and impartial arbitration. We are mindful of your power, influence and great friendship, towards our nation. We have before addressed your imperial majesty in sympathy for the loss of your illustrious father, and in behalf of principles which would secure prosperity throughout your borders, and we claim to be your friends. Therefore we appeal to you again. Do not go to war! Hold back your great army and navy, save life and treasure, and thus advance the cause of an enlightened civilization, and the highest honor will be yours."

A Hen's Infatuation for a Cow.

Patrick Doyle has a cow on his dairy farm near Middleton, N. Y., whose life is made miserable by a hen's singular attachment for her. For over a year the hen has been an inseparable compan-ion of the cow, and spends all of the time, when not on her nest or joining the other chickens when they are fed, perched on the cow's back. There she roosts at night, whether the cow may be in the barn, the barn-yard, or the pasture. The cow does not approve of this close companionship, and is always trying to shake the hen off her back or whisk her off with her tail. The hen is always prepared for these attempts, and when the cow lowers her head and shakes her shoulders the hen trots shakes her shoulders the hen trots advised him to try it. along her back beyond the effects of &Mr. Southard's experience, resulting the shaking. The hen will then scramble to and fro on the cow's back to maintain her position, but the result of this manœuvre on the part of the cow is, nine times out of ten, to force its unwelcome companion to fly off. The cow is no sooner at rest then the hen steals up and mounts again to her perch. This amusing scene is witnessed almost daily by people who go to the farm for the purpose.

Another Annecdote of Gen. Grant.

Capt. D. W. C. Lewis of West Chester tells the following little anecdote of Gen. Grant as showing his capacity for organization and accomplishing things: Arlington were to be decorated and Gen. Grant, then general of the army, was present with his staff by invitation.

It was the first time that the ceremony In 1868 the graves of the soldiers at of decorating graves had been tried and there was no plan as to how it should delightful experience it was to be without be done. ### Frezen Kindness,

Dr. Holland: The world is full of kindness that never was spoken, and that is not much better than no kindness at all. The fuel in the stove makes the room warm, but there are great piles of fallen trees lying on rocks and on tops of hills where nobody can get them; these do not make anybody warm. You might freeze to death for want of wood in plain sight and put up a sign of "Small-pox; beof these fallen trees if you had no ware!" to protect them. During his means of getting the wood home and absence the health officer had them making a fire of it. Just so in a family; love is what makes the parents and children, the brothers and sisters happy. But if they take care never to say a word about it; if they keep it a profound secret as if it were a crime, they will not be much happier than if there house will seem cool even in summer; medicines that neither heal nor help and if you live there you will envy the dog when any one calls him poor

A HELPLESS MAN HELPED.

At Greencastle, Indiana, an hour's ride from Indianapolis, lives Mr. D. L. Southard, a gentleman, well known throughout Indiana. Among other honorable positions which he holds is that of Trustee of the De Pauw University. Mr. Southard is a brother-in-law of Bishop Bowman, of the Methodist Enisconal Church Methodist Episcopal Church.

For many years Mr. Southard was a martyr to rheumatism in its most afflic-

Said Mr. Southard: "I had for years been suffering with rheumatic pains. pain was sharp and constant. I was unable to dress myself, or even to put on my stockings. My wife had to lift me and turn me in bed. Bishop Bowman brought me a bottle of Athlophoros. I hardly dared to hope for any benefit from it, for I had taken so many medicines.

"I began to take the Athlophoros first as directed. At that time I was suffering frightful pain. In a few hours there was a remarkable change. I broke out into a profuse perspiration, and had a strange feeling of relief. In a few hours more all my pain was gone. I could stretch my legs and move my joints as I had not been able to for a long time. It seemed wonderful, after all my experience, that any medicine could have such effects. I feared that this was of such power that it would putting an end to me the Athlophoros only

"I gave a letter to the Athlophoros concern, which was published. It brought me a great many inquiries by mail from various parts of the country. I wish I could show you some of those letters, but and it soon made her well. The wife of Prof. Gobin, of the University, was suffering with rheumatism, and Athlophoros cured her, as well as a good many others.

"At times I would have return of my rheumatism, but nothing like that I formerly had & Each attack was lighter. Each time I fought it with Athlophoros, and got the better of it. Now I have for a year enjoyed good health and freedom from pains. I took in all ten or twelve bottles of the medicine, and if I were again to be attacked by rheumatism would take more.

Bishop Bowman, on being asked "was the relief which Mr. Southard experienced more than you had expected?" replied: "Certainly it was, for I had not expected anything. I brought him the Athlophoros because I had seen that it had done so much good to Mr. Keely and others in Indianapolis o It seemed a last resort, for Mr. Southand's case was such a severe one that I had little or no hope of even giving him relief. But seeing the completeness of his cure I have recommended the medicine to others. I have not had occasion to use it myself, for I have not had rheumatism and am in excellent health. Of all those to whom I have recommended it I have heard of only one instance in which decided benefit was not gained. I consider Athlophoros a wonderful medicine."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your drug-gist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one doller per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else out order at once from us, as directed.
