Two Interesting Public Reports—The Comptroller's Statement of the Condition of the National Banks—Comptroller Coleman's Work in the Agricultural Department.

THE NATIONAL BANKS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency shows why prominent men who inspire the utmost confidence, become criminals, and seek foreign asylums. The professional criminal, the devoted father, the most honored man, after filling positions of trust for years, fall. We see this daily, and have found no solution to the mystery.

If the medical profession gave this matter their attention, would it not be better than wasting their time grinding over their "isms," or worse still, declaiming against improvements that benefit mankind, but to not happen to come from their highly-respected schools? They are being taught by the scientists that they are but little further advanced in their studies than they were years ago, while a wonderful advancement of benefit to suffering humanity, has been made by scientific methods, but the profession has not been able to profit from it.

A few days ago, the medical profession proclaimed to the world that bright's disease was incurable. They are unable to explain in the slightest degree its causes. It is only within two or three years that it has become known that such a disease is only an advanced kidney trouble, which was treated by the use of the remedy known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as of course, the disease would not exist, and when corrected, the disease ceases.

For years this has been the key-note of the remedy known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and from the best obtainable information, the fame of the remedy comes from outside the medical code. Nevertheless, the popularity of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills continues to increase, regardless of its place of birth. The liberal branches of the medical profession are fast recognizing its merits, and we expect that within a few years, perhaps, the medical halls and conventions. Perhaps its proprietors and perfecter may never see it, but the time will surely come, as it has come with other valuable remedies, that the discoverer of this valuable remedy may receive some honorable title for the benefit he has conferred upon mankind.

As I want, said the opera-singer, "in notes of the nightingale, large notes for high notes," Harper's Bazar.

Don't Give up the Ship. You have been told that consumption is incurable; that when the lungs are attacked by this terrible malady, the sufferer is past all help, and the end is a mere question of time. You have been told that the only relief is to be found in the use of the medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as of course, the disease would not exist, and when corrected, the disease ceases.

WHY IS IT?

Why So Many Defalcations—Why Such Injustices?

A good conscience and Divine grace may do much, but if the key to a man's body be bad, the man's life will be a failure. If the foundation of a building is weak, the prudent owner promptly repairs it.

Is there not something in the human body, men who inspire the utmost confidence, become criminals, and seek foreign asylums. Whir, whiz, click. Whir, whiz, click. What is it? It goes like the wind. It's a mouse! or a bat? Hurry up, call the cat! We're too late! We've got left way behind.

What! look quick! Here she comes! Now's our chance; how she runs! No, she flies. It's a squirrel with wings! Upon my word, it's a bird! After all that we've heard, A beautiful, beautiful mocking bird, Hark! now to the tunes that it sings. With a whir and a whiz and a click It reaches the end of the route. Then back in a flash and a merry dash, And its songs ring cheerily out— "Busy, busy from morn to night, Busy as bees on every side, Gathering sweets for our customers, Sending them off well satisfied. Take your station a moment here, See the throngs come pouring in, Coming and going like waves of the sea, Laden with sweets to the very brim. We have everything in the dry goods line For maids and misses, for men and boys. From cloaks and shawls that would grace a queen

To hats and mittens and fancy toys. The holiday season is near at hand, We shall fill the "Fancy Center" high With all the novelties of the land— Night here is the place to come and buy. Then "listen to the song of the mocking bird."

Whir, whiz, clicking. Our cable is Cable Railway strong. Of wires, and cable cords, pulleys and springs. With lightning speed we glide along. The motor power water instead of wings. And we are the "Cash Boy," "Pay Car," "If you please."

We ask no questions, we make no sign, But deposit the money entrusted with us. As any station along the line. We are always on time whatever the hour. We are never known to jump the track; The "office" we find on the upper line, On the lower one come whizzing back. From Office to Counter from Center to Side.

When feet in a second, "they say," Up stairs and down, swift as news about town. No time much time to play by the way. While whir, clicking. Commotion, we, in this land of the free, To "Hill & Martin" indebted for birth, To "Hill & Martin" indebted for birth, To "Hill & Martin" indebted for birth.

When we are workers, everyone, From the first gray streak of early dawn, To the last gray streak of early dawn, To the last gray streak of early dawn, To the last gray streak of early dawn.

When a mocking bird, if you will, Sings a better "The Busy Bee" than I.

Death of Mrs. C. E. DePuy.

It becomes our painful duty to record the death of Mrs. Cora DePuy, who closed her eyes to this life's labors at 4:20 p. m. Sunday, Nov. 27.

Though but 34 years of age her life had been a complete one. Giving birth on the 27 of October to a bright and healthy boy, who survives her, she was conscious of having performed as far as her powers would permit, a wife's and mother's duties, and was ready to meet the mother and brother who were waiting for her.

Being the youngest of a family of eight brothers and sisters, she was given every social and educational advantage that a generous and indulgent family could provide.

But during no time in her life were the noble traits of character so apparent as in the performance of her family duties. It was there that the most patient, loving and gentle nature was shown.

The five years of her married life were five happy years to her and her husband and will remain in his memory as the brightest and happiest in his life.

Through her faith she was assured of a home with her heavenly Father, and is now in possession of the highest rewards that a true, noble, and loving life should claim.

The funeral services were held at the house on Tuesday, and were attended by a numerous assemblage of sympathizing friends, Rev. Mr. Webster, of Leslie, the clergyman who performed the marriage ceremony, preached the sermon.

It is needless to say that Mr. DePuy has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in his deep affliction.—Stock bridge Sun.

The Pioneer Meeting.

A pioneer meeting is always an interesting occasion to the people of this vicinity, and the meeting on Wednesday was among the most interesting and best patronized. The session was held in the Town Hall, which furnished ample room and was well filled. The meeting was opened by the singing of "A Greeting Glee" by our able and always acceptable male quartette, Messrs. Kemp, Freer, Congdon and Ward. This piece was performed with great spirit and did much to give interest to the whole session. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Holmes, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read, after which E. D. Lay, of Ypsilanti, the neologist of the society, read his report.

Twenty-six pioneers were reported to have passed away since the last meeting; in September, the oldest of whom was Hugh Duffy, of Lyndon, aged 90. Other papers followed, all interesting, but the especial features of the session were the speech of Hon. A. J. Sawyer, and the address of Ex-Governor Alpheus Felch. Mr. Sawyer, who, all know, is one of Chelsea's noble sons, gave a vivid and eloquent account of the early history of this village, the three hills on which it was founded, its public institutions, its citizens, its retired gentlemen, its calamities, its sports, its business and business men. The speech was a masterly one, though entirely extempore, and was listened to with interest and patience to the end, notwithstanding the announcement that dinner was ready fully thirty minutes before its conclusion.

The dinner table was loaded with viands and luxuries, as the ladies of Chelsea and vicinity know so well how to load them, and about two hundred, old and young, partook of the ample provisions. Much praise is also due to Mr. C. H. Wines, whose executive abilities on such occasions have often been proved before, but have seldom been more conspicuous and successful. Of Mr. Felch's address we have no room to speak.

The occasion will be long remembered with pleasure by all who were present.

Homeopathic Medicines.

To my former patrons and all who may wish to use reliable Homeopathic Medicines. There is a constant and increasing demand for Homeopathic Medicines for domestic use. No one ought to keep house without a reliable Tincture of Aconite and many other equally reliable remedies at hand. As I am about to leave, I spend some time in the hospitals of New York and Philadelphia, I would say to my patrons that they can obtain all of the medicines I have put up for them, of F. P. Glazier, the druggist, who keeps a complete line of Halsey Bros' Preparations, which are fresh and pure. I wish to announce also, that I have given Mr. Glazier the formula for various specialties of mine that are in much demand. My ointment and other preparations that have attained considerable reputation in the treatment of ulcers, hemorrhoids, catarrh and skin diseases, will be put up by Mr. Glazier.

I take pleasure in recommending my old patrons to go to Mr. Glazier for all medicines that I have heretofore furnished them, knowing that they will get of him just what they call for. He is a graduate of the College of Pharmacy, University of Michigan, thoroughly posted in everything pertaining to the drug business, and you may rest assured will dispense all medicines in a thoroughly scientific manner.
