The prison population of Jackson on March 1st, numbered 772. There were received during February, 21; discharged, by expiration of sentence, 17; by order of Supreme court, 1; transferred to the Ionia Asylum, 2; died, 1; leaving 772 in prison on March 1.

The able editors of Petoskey have fixed up a corner on church socials, having agreed to pay cash for such tickets as they care to use, and to charge ten cents a line for all the puffing they give before the affair comes off. We think the above is a very good rule to go by, and every newspaper in Michigan ought to follow suit. There are hundreds of newspapers in a starving condition, because they give free puffing. The result is they offer their office for sale, and sell for a song.

The Rev. Dr. John Hall is said to have pocketed, since last September, fully $30,000 in marriage fees. One bridegroom gave him a check for $5,000 for tying the nuptial knot. Dr. Hall is worth $1,000,000; his total income is at least $100,000. His congregation is the wealthiest in New York. The amount of $400,000,000 can be seen in his church any Sunday morning.

Dr. Hall has a monopoly of all the swell weddings. Brides who desire to be in the fashion insist upon being married by the millionaire clergyman.

The people of Chelsea were greatly excited and had lots of fun last Saturday afternoon. It seems that two young men came to Chelsea last Friday and boarded with Mr. Haselschwardt, who keeps restaurant on Main St. The two young men called themselves Jack R. Oakley and Chas. Pierce. They had the style of Buffalo Bill of the "Wild West," with long flowing hair and broad-brimmed hats. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon while Mr. Haselschwardt and family were down stairs, and the two men were left alone up stairs, took the advantage and tumbled everything upside down. Then they picked out two suits of fine clothes, one belonging to Sam, the other one to Jake. They then put out with the clothes and by this time Mr. Haselschwardt came up stairs, and saw that something was wrong, and said that the depot where he met them. They then went north to a barn, and stowed away the clothes under the straw where they were found. About this time they were surrounded by about 19 of Chelsea's brave young men and captured. They were taken to Ann Arbor Tuesday morning to await their trial before the Circuit Court. No doubt they came here to size up the town for plunder.

Boyd's 30c Tea is as good as ever.

The roads are in fine condition in this vicinity.

L. and A. Winans have just received a large line of spectacles of the very best makes, also a large assortment of clocks, day and eight day. Their fine line of jewelry cannot be surpassed in Chelsea. Call on them and examine their fine goods.

Rev. J. H. McIntosh, of Chelsea, made a sensation, in that staid town last Sunday, by stating to his audience, that he always claimed the right to judge what notices are fit to be read from his pulpit, and that he would not advertise neck-tie, sun-dower, or night-cap socials.—Journal.

A traveler in making change at the railroad station at Concord, N. H., gave the ticket agent a $5 gold piece for a penny. The agent saw it and handed the coin back. The man thanked him, shoved it into his pocket, pulled out several coins and gave the agent one, and the agent brushed it into the drawer with the pennies. After the train started the traveler jumped off and rushed back. "I gave you a $5 gold piece for a penny," he said. "Yes," said the agent, "and I gave it back to you." "But I gave it to you again! Look and see." The agent looked, and there was the gold piece. The man had made the same mistake twice.

Mrs. Joseph Beasley died at her home last Monday, aged 58 years.

An exchange says that a newspaper folded up and placed in the small of the back will answer the purpose of an overcoat. That is right; a newspaper sometimes makes it exceedingly warm for a person without being folded up at all. In fact, the more it is unfolded the warmer it makes him.

A man in New York city is preserving all the newspaper articles and squibs in regard to President Cleveland, and at last accounts had over 40,000 different articles, ranging from grave to gay, and from double-distilled dynamite to flowery praise. He is going to present it at the White House some day.

Section two of division eight, of the state game and fish laws, provides that it shall not be lawful to take, catch or kill by spearing, any fish during the months of March, April, May and June, in any of the waters in this state, except Lakes Michigan, Superior, Huron, Saint Clair and Erie, and in Saginaw Bay.

Reading, Mich., Sept 1, 1881.

Mr. J. D. Kellogg—I have been afflicted with kidney complaint for eighteen years, and used and done everything I could think of, to get relief. I spent two seasons at mineral springs, but received no benefit and steadily grew worse, so that my mind was made up to die. But I was finally induced to try a bottle of Columbian Oil, and before I had used half of the first bottle, I felt much better, and I am now entirely cured. My wife was troubled with rheumatism, and the Oil made an entire cure on her. Yours truly, Lorenzo Abbott.

The Hathaway, Yellow Dent, and Golden Rod. I have carefully selected and well cured seed of the above named varieties that I offer to any one desiring to secure good seed corn. Corn on exhibition at Bagge's meat market. Respectfully, n31 C. H. WINES.

Another Pioneer Gone.

Died, at her residence in Chelsea, Feb. 23, 1888, Mrs. Lois T. Fenn.

Mrs. Fenn was born June 13, 1813, in the township of Shoreham, Addison County, Vermont. She was the daughter of Mr. Aaron Lawrence, an was married to Orlo H. Fenn, Feb. 22nd, 1832. They moved to Michigan the following June and settled in the township of Sylvan. Their land was purchased of the Government, but by industry and economy, they became the possessors of a comfortable and pleasant home. Four sons and two daughters were added to their family circle. The husband "went home" twelve years ago. Two sons and two daughters still survive their parents. Several years after the death of her husband, Mrs. F. sold her farm and bought her a home in the village of Chelsea.

Mrs. F. made a profession of religion when a girl living in Vt, and joined the Congregational church. In 1835 she united with the Baptist church in Lima. The same church was afterwards re-organized, and now is the Baptist church in Chelsea. Here she remained a worthy member until her death. Her faithfulness to duty, and sincerity and honesty of purpose enabled her to develop a strong christian character. COM.

A Disgusted Smoker.

A revenue agent late of Chicago, where millions of cigarettes are manufactured, was spoken to on the subject of cigarettes.

"I used to be a confirmed cigarette smoker, but now you could not induce me to touch one of them," he said.

"Why, how is that?"

"Well, it's because I went into a large manufacturing place in Chicago and what I saw there sickened me of the imitation smokers. How are they made and of what? Of all that is vile and injurious and mean. Cigar-buts picked up in the streets, butts of certain kinds, tobacco stems and refuse, and heaped together in one filthy pile, and then saturated with opium, which gives the cigarette that soothing effect desirable to all smokers. I tell you, sir, if all cigarette smokers could see as I have seen how one of the greatest firms in Chicago manufactured cigarettes, the trade in the same would soon fall off or cease entirely." G. H. W.

The weather has been so cold in the south that the man who went to Florida to spend the winter is sorry that he didn't wait till summer.

Agency, Chelsea, Mich.

Farm No. 1—370 acres, located 2 miles south of Francisco, 6 miles west from Chelsea, 5 miles east of Grass Lake, adjoining Michael Schenk's farm on the south, known as the Wales Kings farm. One of the best soil farms in Michigan. There is a comfortable frame house, a large frame barn 114 feet long, 2 small barns, 2 good wells of water, wind mill, corn house, henhouse and tool house, orchard and a fine vineyard of one acre. 180 acres of land fit for the plow, besides ample woodland. In all it is one of the best grain and stock farms in Michigan, to make money from.

Farm No. 2—80 acres, situated 6 miles southwest of Ann Arbor, on good road. Nearly all good improved land, having a living stream of water, good orchard, very productive sandy loam soil. A bargain at $50 per acre. 10 acres additional of excellent timber, if wanted, at $68 per acre. Would make a very complete farm.

Farm No. 3—236 acres, located 2 1/2 miles from Chelsea, on prominent road, in good neighborhood, near church and school house and blacksmith shop. 175 acres of plow land, 35 acres of timber, 20 acres good mowing marsh, 16 acres of low pasture with living stream of water, through it. The northwest corner of this farm is the highest, gently sloping to southeast, protecting wheat from winter winds. It has a fine young orchard of grafted fruit just coming into bearing. The buildings are unusually good, consisting of a frame dwelling house, upright and wing each 18x28, two stories, kitchen 15x18, wood shed 15x20. A fine basement barn 36x30 with gambrel roof, built in 1885, also hog house and kitchen room, corn crib, carriage house and workshop attached, hen house 16x20, tool shed, and 2 good wells. Sandy loam about buildings but most of farm is a clay loam and is a superior grain and stock farm in excellent condition. The owner was offered 100 acres of plow land, producing excellent crops; 35 acres of good white oak, hickory and walnut timber; 25 acres of good mowing marsh, with good living stream of water through it; 3 acres of orchard; 2 good frame dwellings, a frame stock and hay barn, a grain barn and 2 good wells of water. This farm is nicely arranged to divide into 2 farms. Its health is the cause of owner selling. Price $50 per acre.

Farm No. 4—280 acres, 2 1/2 miles east of Chelsea, 4 miles from Dexter village, 1 1/2 miles from German Methodist church, on prominent road, a large commodious frame house, pleasantly situated near a fine lake, a barn 36x56, also one 26x50, horse barn 30x36, corn barn 16x30, and other improvements, in good repair; 4 acres of orchard, 140 acres plow land, 60 acres good timber, 30 acres of mowing meadow, 50 acres of pasture and marsh. Strong gravelly loam soil, a good stock and sure crop farm. Price $50 per acre.

Farm No. 5—103 68-100 acres, situated 3 miles from Chelsea, near school, on good road, and in an excellent neighborhood of Eastern people. There is a frame dwelling house of 20 rooms (large and small), a frame barn 28x56, also a stock barn 100 feet long, wagon house 20x30, brick smoke house and fruit dryer, 2 good wells of excellent water, medium sized orchard, 90 acres of plow land, remainder good timber land. No waste land whatever. This is a superior located farm, under high state of cultivation. The owner desires to retire from active work and will sell for $55 per acre.

THERE were organized in Nebraska last year thirty-two new railroad corporations, representing $70,000,000 capital stock, and 225 miscellaneous corporations, representing a capital stock of $54,000,000. This is double the number of new corporations for the year previous.

COLFAX LADDEN, a gray-haired Philadelphia, who had been given up for dead by his relatives over twenty years ago, surprised them by returning safe and sound the other day. He left for the army in 1864, and that was the last they heard from him until his unexpected appearance.

SOME genius with a fancy for handling babies has figured out that a piece of wood the size of a month-old baby would be worn down one-half in six months if handled as much as the average baby is. The dear little things like it, however, and grow fat on being tumbled around and nussed up.

AN Eastern physician announces that he has solved the mystery of ice-cream poisoning, and that electricity is at the bottom of it all. IT pays a man to go happily about his work. Two years ago a man named Bernard was singing at his carpenter bench in Paris when M. Hartmann, the music publisher, chanced to be passing. M. Hartmann stopped and learned that the singer knew nothing of music, but he had a beautiful voice, and M. Hartmann sent him to the best schools. That poor carpenter is now M. INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

WEDNESDAY, March 7.—A bill was introduced in the Senate to provide more adequately for postal services between the United States and South and Central America. The pension bill went over for one day. In the House bills were introduced for pensioning prisoners of war and to create a department of agriculture and forest. The bill to divide the great Sioux Indian reservation into separate smaller reservations was passed. This throws open to settlement many thousands acres of valuable land.

THURSDAY, March 8.—In the Senate bills were placed on the calendar to provide for a joint celebration at Washington by the sixteen American republics in honor of the centennial of the parent republic—the United States; for an Indian industrial school in Michigan; applying the Eight-hour law to letter-carriers. A petition was presented from thirty-three States and Territories, containing over one hundred thousand signatures, against the admission of Utah as a State so long as its people are under the control of the Mormon priesthood. The bill granting pensions to ex-soldiers and sailors who are unable to perform manual labor and to the dependent relatives of deceased soldiers and sailors was passed by a vote of 44 yeas to 16 nays. In the House a bill was introduced to regulate the classification, compensation and allowance of postmasters. The bill to establish a postal telegraph was reported favorably, and the measure to enable the people to select their postmasters was reported adversely.

FRIDAY, March 9.—The Senate was not in session. In the House the "omnibus" war-claim bill was passed—yeas, 105; nays, 100. At the evening session, thirty-four pension bills were passed, including the one increasing the pension of the widow of General Robert Anderson, the hero of Fort Sumter, to $100 a month.

SATURDAY, March 10.—There was no session. In the House bills were passed to restore to the public domain part of the Utah Indian reservation in Utah, and prescribing fine and imprisonment for the unlawful cutting of timber on Indian reservations. The dependent pension bill was received from the Senate and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Judge Gresham Hears the Answer of the Washburn Road to the Arguments of Counsel on Both Sides, but Reserves His Decision.

CHICAGO, March 13.—The case of the Burlington road against the Washburn and Chief Arthur and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers came up before Judge Gresham in the United States Circuit court yesterday afternoon, proceedings being begun promptly at 2 o'clock. It will be remembered that the proceedings had week were in the shape of an application by the Burlington road for an order on the receiver of the Washburn line to handle Burlington cars and freight, and also for an order to summon F. M. Arthur to show cause why he should not be attached for contempt of court in having ordered the Washburn men not to handle Burlington cars. An affidavit from Manager Stone, of the Burlington road, was read. Mr. Stone averred that since the filing of the original petition in the case he had discovered a telegram sent by F. M. Arthur to M. W. Barnum at Omaha, the said Barnum being chairman of the grievance committee of the Union Pacific road. In this telegram, the affidavit says, Mr. Arthur ordered Mr. Barnum to keep the Union Pacific engineers from handling Burlington freight or cars. It was also asserted by Mr. Stone that Arthur had issued the same instructions to the Washburn engineers. All of this the Burlington people say they will be able to prove if given an opportunity to do so, and the affidavit concludes with an application for the appointment of a master, who shall have power to send for telegrams, etc., and to take testimony in the matter.

Robert T. Lincoln, the attorney for the Washburn railway, then filed his answer to the petition of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway. In the answer the respondent admits that he, in his official capacity, is subject to the orders of the court, and that he is bound by the subject to the obligations and duties imposed upon common carriers by the Interstate law or other statutes. He admits that he has been in the habit of interchanging loaded cars with the petitioner, but not to any great extent; on the contrary, the interchange of cars has been a very small and unimportant part of the business transacted. The respondent says that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway is not engaged in operating a system of railways which forms with that operated by your respondent a continuous trunk line, but that it is a branch line from one or more sections of the country to others, but on the contrary is operating a system which enters and occupies much of the Territory tributary to the railway operated by respondent and its associated lines, and which is a rival system to that of respondent and is directly competitive at many points.

The answer then goes on to state that the relations between the Washburn and their engineers and firemen were harmonious, and that they being solicited by reason of any complication growing out of affiliation and friendly feeling of the engineers in his employment toward the petitioner, and for that reason the orders were issued as a temporary measure. The answer then says that the orders not to handle "Q" freight were withdrawn on Saturday last, and the following was issued:

"The business of receiving and interchanging cars and traffic by this road with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway, and all of the roads of that system will go on upon the same terms and conditions as those upon which similar business has been done by this road with other connecting railways."

The above order, the answer says, has been in full force since its issuance and will be continued and executed. In conclusion the Washburn people having had any business transactions or communications with P. M. Arthur, or any other representing him, and prays that the petition be dismissed at petitioner's cost.

I wonder if editors ever
Find Cuckoo, content and calm
In dreaming that their subscribers
Are blessed with an open palm?

I wonder if editors ever
See visions of crowns of fame
Rise out of the lamp-light's flicker
For their eager hands to claim?

I wonder if editors ever
Get rich, like other men
Who walk in different meadows
And use a different pen?

I wonder if editors ever
Are happy as others are
Who walk in a golden garden
Under a silver star?

I wonder if editors ever
Lay down their pencil and pen
And wish, in the midnight silence,
They need not be used again?

I wonder if editors ever,
Or even a writer penned
A line for which he was sorry,
Whether of foe or friend?

I wonder if editors ever
Go roaming in bowers of bliss?
I'm sure if they do, their footsteps
Are in other worlds than this.

A Bit in Natural History.

Quite a number of birds announce the coming of rain; for instance, the magpie, the owl, the yellow thrush, and the green finch. This is all done by means of peculiar notes which they never sound on other occasions. Nicotardot has essayed to reproduce these notes by letters. There also are storm birds, so called procellaria, which in a similar manner—that is to say, by the use of certain peculiar sounds—predict the coming of a storm even a long time in advance. Birds can feel and announce the coming of rain and storm, and the ancients ascribed to them the faculty of prediction. In their flight and in their voices indication of coming events were sought. The augurs of old had established a whole science of the flight and the voices of birds. Nor is it improbable that training was resorted to, to aid in procuring such predictions—that is to say, to create favorable or unfavorable omens, whichever might happen to best suit the plans of the priests at the time. Louis Napoleon in our nineteenth century intended to convince the French people, by the aid of a trained eagle which was to have alighted on his head at the right moment, that he was the predestined successor of his great uncle. Nicotardot does not go quite so far as the augurs of the ancients, but he also ascribes to birds a prescience of coming events, especially of approaching misfortune, to which feeling they lend expression by certain peculiar sounds. As an example he recites a tale from O'Meara's "Voice from St. Helena." When the French entered Moscow, this author relates, a great flock of ravens came and settled on the towers of the Kremlin. From there, these birds, to which the ancients ascribed great sagacity, came flying down close to the heads of the soldiers, flapping their wings, and kept up a continuous croaking. The troops were much disheartened by the occurrence and feared misfortune. Shortly before the terrible conflagration broke out all the ravens had disappeared, flying away in great numbers.

Military Education in Germany.

Military education is very thorough. There are nine military schools in the empire, at Potsdam, Kulin, Wahlstadt, Bensberg, Ploen, Oranienstein, Lichterfeld, Dresden and Muench. Seven, it will be seen, are in Prussia. Six of these receive pupils at 10 to 15 years of age, who terminate their studies at the last three. Their experience after examination is varied according to their standing. The best are admitted to the corps of officers without further formalities. The rest have to pursue their studies further, and finally have to be examined by the officers of the regiment as to character, social position, etc. There is a higher school at Berlin, called the War academy, to which are admitted only lieutenants and captains who have served three years. There are other schools for artillery, marksmanship (rifle and artillery) riding, gymnastics, medicine and surgery as relates to war, and veterinary practices. Railroads and railroad stations are in charge of commissions which are expected to keep them in condition for mobilization at any moment.—Ex.

North Lake Items.

The leap year party was all that could have been expected, where the young ladies are so very modest as they are at North Lake. About eighteen of them had the courage and cheek to ask partners and none failed who tried, as far as heard from. All had a good time.

Thousands of dollars worth of clover and timothy seed will be sown this month as there is little old clover on the ground at present.

Mr. R. C. Glenn is making elaborate preparations for the Ann Arbor Campers next season by building cottages, both frame and log.

Miss Clara Burkhart is home again.

Mr. Twanley & Son, were called to Webster last Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. T's cousin.

Mr. C. D. Johnson of West Lake, is confined to his bed by an abscess on the bowels. His friends have hopes of his recovery.

Another pioneer gone, Mr. Josiah Collins, of Collins Plains was buried last Thursday after a short illness. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends and the M. E. church, of which he was a member.

Some parties from Chelsea had a fast ride on the lake her last Friday on an ice boat.

Wheat looks sickly on the hills, while the ice is pinching the roots on more level land. Rye looks green.

Lou Glenn's school in Unadilla, closed with an old time exhibition in which she was assisted by the scholars and some of the young people of the neighborhood. It was well received by a full house.

School closed in District No. 5, on Saturday last, with literary exercises by the scholars. After each pupil was given a card with the register of the school printed on in gilt letters. A new feature and a very good one.

Mr. Doll's people have the measles. "Better you look out."

No Lyceum on Saturday eve, had night. Old question will hold over until we meet.

The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kaiser, have called on them through the week past, before they leave for their new home in Hamburg township. Luck and good wishes go with them.

Eld. Marshall of this charge, is helping Eld. Bird of Brighton village, in revival meetings at present. Has closed meetings at Pinckney for a time.

Good feeders around Pinckney complain that their stock looks bad. Lack of grain is the reason.

If you do anything very good or cunning, look for your name in the paper. But if bad you keep still about it and I will.

Somebody fishes here on Sunday. If the sun is weighed by the weight of fish it would be light.

Nearly all the farmers around here have their help hired for the summer's campaign.

It's now time to take potatoes out of the pits, but keep still or the neighbors will all be there sure.

Eastern buyers are picking up four-year-old colts around Pinckney, and paying good prices. A good horse is like ready money.

The Unchanging Chinese.

There is in China a city called Hui Yuen, which was sunk in the sea by an earthquake over 1,000 years ago, and recently by some volcanic action the city has again become exposed to view with all its quaint towers and pagodas still standing. Exploring parties have found any number of relics of a former age, but these have nothing like the interest they would have if the city had been inhabited by any other people than the Chinese; for all the old coins, implements and specimens of chinaware found are precisely similar to those in use today in the surrounding cities. It is a striking proof of the aphorism that the Chinese have not changed in 1,000 years.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night.

And each day and night during the week you can get at F. P. Glazier's, Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of coughs, croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

A Good Editor.

The requisites of a good editor seem to be the topic of general discussion which is gradually moving like a storm center, through the press of the country. It seems to be a discussion to which every paper is expected to add its mite. So a slight treatment of this topic will be in harmony with the current newspaper fashion.

A guest once entered the dining-room of a hotel and asked for "everything." The waiter brought him hash. This act showed the waiter's knowledge of the composite and multifarious nature of this mysterious compound. Now what hash is to the world of food so is a good editor to the world of men.

Pursuing the analogy of the dining room, it may be remarked that the good editor is as infrequent as good hash. There is or can be no perfection in either; and by either can only approximate excellence be attained. Doubtless Mrs. Parloa can give a recipe for preparing this favorite sustenance of our dyspeptic nation; and so it is easy to give the component ingredients of a good editor; but there is often serious mistakes made in the mixing.

A good editor, first of all, should be a limitless reservoir for receiving advice. Into this all-receiving tank will be poured, in copious streams, the suggestions of cranks of all degrees of insanity; enthusiasts of large hearts and small heads will deposit their long-cherished, but impracticable schemes; hamlet autocrats and village philosophers will send in their messages that seem almost like an inspiration to the worshippers of their neighborhood, but which would appear very crude and fallible when placed before the eyes of the nation. But the editor should take all the advice, as the ocean takes its rivers, and still retain his own saline and individual flavor.

An editor should not be so very profound. A man about town should not dress in a full evening suit. An editor whose business is to talk to everybody should not betray the accent of the school and the subtle intonation of the salon. "He was a friend of man and lived in a house by the side of the road," wrote Homer many centuries ago. An editor should be a friend of man and live in a house by the side of the road and not attempt the inaccessible mountain peaks of thought to commune with clouds and lightning. An editor should aim to be understood rather than admired, and should desire a reputation for sense rather than philosophy. Wisdom is doubtless desirable, but effects its purpose quicker when clothed in the garb of wit.

He should know how to say things. An editor must be a word-artist, a cunning moulder of phrases. He must be gothic and not classic in his word structures, with sharp corners and fringes, with jagged and unexpected towers. He must be interesting or be content with a small subscription list. A reader enjoys a shock better than a soporific; and it is a nice question for ethics to settle whether it is not better to intoxicate than to drug a man. The American people read too much; and over-readers like over-eaters, require much spice, pepper, and condiment.

An editor is necessarily a sciolist. He should possess a superficial knowledge of all things, and should be able to use that knowledge at all times, without a moment's warning and without special effort. His pen should transcribe the image of his thought as quick as the sun casts a shadow. Rapidity is his golden virtue. The firstlings of his heart must be the firstlings of his hand; and he has no time to transform his thoughts in the alchemy of reflection. Lack of time must be his spur and the cry for "copy" his inspiration. He must be as healthy as an immortal god.—Ex.

To the Afflicted.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney Complaints and Rheumatism than any known remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheumatism, kidney affliction, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at Glazier, Deputy & Co. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for coughs and colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes F. P. Glazier to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Corporation Election.

Last Monday was village election. The day was beautiful and all passed off very quietly. There were two tickets in the field, an anti-tax and peoples'. The following are those elected:

President, W. J. Knapp, 22 majority, P.

Clerk, Alfred R. Congdon, 21 majority, A.

Treasurer, Theodore Wood, 10 majority, P.

Trustees, Will Bacon, A. Chas. Guerin, A. Hiram Lighthall, P.

Assessor, James L. Gilbert, 26 majority, P.

Suffering in Turkey.

Asiatic Turkey is the scene of a sad state of affairs. People are starving to death there by the thousands, and the American board, which has been trying almost single-handed to allay the suffering, has just received word that its relief fund is exhausted. There are two famous centers, one in Central Turkey at Adana, about 400 miles southeast of Constantinople on the shores of the Mediterranean, the other at Mardin in the mountainous district of Eastern Turkey, 300 miles further east. In the Adana district which includes Kars and the site of ancient Tarsus, the suffering is occasioned by the drought; in Eastern Turkey the destitution is caused by locusts, which have devastated 10,000 square miles of territory. Within a few weeks word came from Mardin that 10,000 people were in a starving condition, and the relief afforded since that time has been wholly inadequate. The latest cry of distress comes from Adana. Under the most favorable conditions no relief can be looked for from crops before June, and in the interior great loss of life from starvation is apprehended.

The Unprotected Neck Space.

It is ours to warn, and with warning give counsel that shall protect. Between a man's coat collar and his brain there lies a space of neck that modern hirsut fashion has left bare—exposed to chilly winds, uncovered to cold. If collar be upturned, some help is found, but merciless draughts still play at will about one of life's centers. For beneath this exposed skin lies what anatomists call the cerebro-spinal axis—which is the center of animal as the front brain is the center of intellectual life—whence proceed the nerves that govern both heart and lungs; among others, the pneumogastric and spinal accessory. So, in place of most injudicious exposure, it would logically seem that extra efforts should be made to guard this sensitive area.—William F. Hutchinson, M. D., in American Magazine.

In Days Gone By.

The wife of a recent Governor of a Western State used to take her blankets and go cautiously out after nightfall to some sheltered nook, there to sleep with the stars for company. Her husband was obliged to make long freighting trips to some distant mining camp. She has recently been in her husband's home at the state capital, while he filled the highest office in the state. And that capital has sprung from a few dog-outs to 75,000 inhabitants since her days and nights of danger on the river bluff, and her children yet in their teens, have been enjoying the educational advantages of a state university.—Ex.
