One of our exchanges puts it in this way: An editor works 365 1/2 days per year to get out 52 issues of his paper; that's labor. Once in a while some one pays him for a year's subscription, that's capital; and once in a while some son of a gun of a dead beat takes the paper for a year or two and then vanishes without paying for it, that's anarchy; but later on justice will overtake the last named creature, for there is a place where he will get his deserts; that's hell.

It is said that while the Jackson churches raise money in goodly sums to disseminate the gospel abroad, they do not pay the least attention to the heathen living almost in the shadow of their own houses of worship. The joss-house devotees of that town are never approached by the saints and saintesses surrounding them, and welfare of their souls is of too little consequence to incite inquiry or work from anybody. The soul of a Chinaman on the other side of the earth is of immense consequence, but here at home it does not amount to shucks.—News.

The girls no longer hang up in their dressing rooms the flowers sent them by their admirers. Neither do they select special buds or blossoms and press them between the leaves of books for keepsakes. They make them in potpourri. A potpourri jar now has place in every properly appointed boudoir. Pretty Chinese and Japanese jars are generally used. The majority put the petals into glycerine, to which is added perfume and spice. The best way to make a potpourri is to put into the receptacle nothing but the leaves of the flowers and salt. Rose leaves must be used for the foundation, as no other flower will hold the flavor of itself. Alternate the layers of rose leaves. When the scent becomes evident any other fragrant flower or leaves may be added, such as violets, heliotrope, lemon, verbena or geranium leaves. A jar filled in this way will remain a well of delicious perfume for months, flooding an apartment with rare scent whenever the lid is removed.

Now is the time for some one to set the ball rolling in regard to summer band concerts. We have a good band and no doubt the boys would play once or twice a week during the summer. We know many of our stores close early, and it would make business better for the confectionary and ice-cream parlors. Our business men ought to have enterprise enough about them to do something like this for our village, and we are sure they would if some one would only take the lead.

BORNE TO THE TOMB.

The Remains of the Late Rocco Conkling Placed in the Tomb at Utica, N. Y.—The Services—Floral Tributes from the White House.

Utica, N. Y., April 23.—The day on which the citizens of Utica are adding a new chapter to their history, for Rocco Conkling, opened with clouds threatening rain. The draped city, notwithstanding the presence of many strangers, exhibited less than its usual stir, for business was to be suspended during the entire day in many establishments, and in all commercial circles at least during the hours devoted to the funeral and viewing of the remains. The principal delegations from abroad arrived during the night, but the trains of the morning have brought throngs of official and unofficial friends from all parts of the Nation.

Calvary Church was filled to overflowing long before 2 o'clock, the hour named for the beginning of the services. Upon the arrival of the procession it was met at the entrance of the church by the rector, Rev. A. B. Goodrich, D. D., in his robes. During the passage of the procession into the church, the rector, in the opening sentences of the beautiful and impressive burial service of the Episcopal church, commencing, "I am the resurrection and the life," when all were seated the burial anthem, taken from the 39th and 90th Psalms, was rendered responsively by the officiating clergyman, the choir singing alternate verses. After brief but impressive service the sad procession wended its way to the cemetery, where the committal service of the church was held in the conservatory. The bearers were William H. Comstock, William H. Comstock, Francis Korman, Henry D. Wixley, Theodore Pomroy, William Blake, Publius V. Rogers, E. Prentiss Bailey, and Charles M. Dennison. The remains of Mr. Conkling lay in state from 12 to 1 o'clock. Before noon a very large number of the friends of the deceased had assembled in the conservatory, and during the following hour a continuous stream of people passed into the residence to take a last look at the features of the dead. The floral tributes were very numerous and of unusual magnificence.

Some suspicious among them was a large wreath of white lilies, interspersed with blue immortelles, attached to which was a plain white card, bearing the words: "The President."

DEATH OF DEXTER.

Robert Bonner's Famous Trotter Succumbed to Old Age—Sketch of His Career on the Turf.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Dexter, the famous trotter, died Saturday morning at the stable of Robert Bonner in this city. He was just 30 years old, having been foaled in 1858. He died of old age and exhaustion. The body will be taken up to Mr. Bonner's farm at Tarrytown, where it will be buried.

For two years the old horse had been vegetating in ill-health under the fostering care of Mr. Bonner. Foaled in 1858, he had nearly filled the span of equine life, and during those two years no harness was allowed to touch his back. Some time before he fell ill he was used to perform his office, and the old horse had to be fed mashes and other soft food. For months he had been kept in his worn-out body by kind and wise treatment. Mr. Bonner paid $35,000 for Dexter. When Dexter was 4 years old he was sold him for $400 to the late George B. Alley, of New York. Mr. Alley kept Dexter until 1863 or 1864, and then, the horse having developed remarkable turn of speed in numerous races, he sold him for $10,000 to Mr. Parrett, a prominent live-stock man and lover of horses, of Chicago. Dexter's record at that time was 2:14, August 14, 1868. Dexter was driven in Buffalo, near the testing track, on the 21st, then held by Flora Temple. On the occasion of his Buffalo trial Dexter trotted a preparatory mile in 2:24, and then covered the race in 2:17, the fastest time ever made by a horse in the world. Immediately upon the result of this trial becoming known to Mr. Bonner he purchased and sold him to Mr. Bonner. Mr. Bonner has said that he considered Dexter a horse of great value, the most remarkable trotting horse ever foaled. On one occasion, after Mr. Bonner had purchased Dexter, he drove the horse to sulky and made him trot. Subsequently he drove him to road wagon in 2:14.

Things Off Are Not What They Appear.

BY JAMES MCCLAREN.

How often bright visions of pleasure,
That hope reveals to our sight
Contained in some coveted treasure,
When possessed is found hidden in night.

As often from slumbers awaking,
And thoughts that realities seem—
At once from our eyes the clouds breaking,
We see that it's only a dream.

So friendship we fondly have cherished,
And deemed that it life-long would last,
By the touch of adversity's perished,
And is as a dream that has passed.

And wealth that is sought with such madness,
For the pleasure it's thought to contain,
When possessed, where we thought to find gladness,
How often there's only found pain.

So love the divinest emotion
That actuates man here below,
Is unstead as the waves of the ocean
Impelled by its ebb and its flow.

When once we're possessed of the dearest,
The fondest desires of the heart,
From that we have loved the sincerest,
How often we gladly would part.

How often we meet on life's journey
Objects that gladden our way,
With beauty so rare and sweet odors,
Hope says that they will not decay.

Yet while we're inhaling their fragrance,
While yet we are charmed with their bloom,
The polar of death stealing ore them,
Already they are marked for the tomb.

In voyaging over life's ocean,
How often dark clouds will appear,
That hereafter to wreck all our pleasure,
Where destruction seems gathering near.

Yet while in terror we're waiting,
The storm to assail in its might,
The clouds from the sky are departing,
And again all looks tranquil and light.

How often in life's early morning,
The sky that was cloudless and bright,
Ere the sun had reached forward to noon-day,
Was hid in the shadows of night.

Then be not overjoyed with bright prospects,
Nor hopeless when prospects are drear,
For whether in sunshine or shadow,
Things off are not what they appear.

Obituary

Died in Chelsea, Mich., April 17, 1888, Mrs. Addie E. Hutton, aged 10 years.

Mrs. Hutton's maiden name was Lawson. She came with her parents to Chelsea in the summer of 1887.

She was married to Willis A. Hutton, of Laona, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1887, and immediately departed with her husband to their eastern home. But alas, how fragile are all earthly hopes! While busily engaged in arranging their new home, she was prostrated with pneumonia, which quickly did its fatal work.

Addie was an amiable girl, always kind and dutiful to her parents, who almost idolized her.

To part with her as a bride was a sore trial for the household, but to part with her by death was a blow that none can realize but those who have been through such a sore bereavement.

Although she possessed a fine cultured mind, and a sweet singer, yet as dissolution drew near, she felt the need of the conscious presence of her Savior, and giving all into his hands, and asking forgiveness for all that Infinite Purity saw amiss in her, the valley was lighted with the Divine presence, and after delivering her last messages of love, she calmly passed away.

She was buried from the M. E. church, April 19th, having been a member of its choir and Sunday school. J. H. McI.

To Patrons and Farmers.

Agriculture seems to be the butt of society and every species of parasite is at work busily feeding from its well filled veins. All classes not content with a legitimate proportion of the toil of the Husbandman, seen engaged in robbing him of the utmost farthing.

I desire to direct your attention to two subjects that need your careful consideration and your prompt and decisive action.

First. The Chicago Cattle Ring is here in Washington, with paid lobbyists masquerading as the friends of Agriculture, and demanding the adoption of a Bill known as the "Palmer Bill," which if it becomes a law takes the entire control of the Animal Industry from the Department of Agriculture, and places it under the control of a Board with plenary powers, and practically puts the control outside of your Department.

The money expended under this Bill is not controlled by your Department.

The Chicago Cattle Ring has been here year after year, with paid lobbyists and attorneys, pressing this matter on Congress and you will doubtless recognize this as the old Miller Bill killed last Congress by your influence and direction.

For years the farmers of the country have been fighting to build up the Department of Agriculture, not to break it down by disintegration and dismemberment. What more important part of agriculture can there be than the Animal Industry? Why is it necessary, I would ask, to change the method of exterminating animal diseases, when the Bureau of Animal Industry, as at present organized in the Department of Agriculture, is giving such general satisfaction?

Can the milk in a cocoon be a big steal for somebody? Judging from the source which is backing this measure I should say that it was. This same crew of monopolists, the Western Cattle Ring so well known to fame, are the men who tried to defeat our Oleomargarine measure. They are here fighting Pure Land, and when the Pure Food fight begins, they will antagonize that, and as we know these men and their power, I would treat them like I would a snake—I'd kill them first and look for the sting afterwards. The measure is unnecessary and will undoubtedly work detrimentally to the interest of the American farmer.

On page 147 of the proceedings of the National Grange at Lansing, will be found the following:

"Resolved, 2d, That the usefulness of the Department of Agriculture be increased by adequate appropriations to experiment so as to increase the diversity of products of the farm and to be enabled to stamp out contagious diseases among farm animals and that nothing be done to impair the usefulness of the Department."

Should the "Palmer Bill" become a law the whole of the pleuro-pneumonia work would be taken from the Department of Agriculture and the usefulness of the Department be thus greatly impaired.

PURE FOODS.

I also desire to ask your attention to the iniquity being practiced upon the people of the country in the adulteration of food, liquors and medicines. A strong effort is being made to secure the passage of a general anti-adulteration law by Congress. No greater evil demands the attention of the people of the country. The farmer has many enemies but the adulterator is the one who injures him both in purse and health. The products of the American farmer are being brought by this nefarious practice into disrepute by the man who enriches himself at the expense of both producer and consumer.

Get all bodies to which you belong to adopt resolutions demanding that our grave yards be not filled with victims of adulterated articles of diet, liquors, and drugs. Ask that articles for export be so recognized for purity that our food supply will command the markets of the world for their established and undoubted worth.

Trusting that you will read this to your Grange and neighbors, and do all that you can to further these two matters of vital importance to the interest of agriculture, and remember that he who acts quickly acts twice.

Yours for Agriculture,

ALEX J. WEDDERBURN,
Sec. Leg. Com. Va. State Grange.
P. O. Box, 318, Washington, D. C.

Lack of Courtesy.

Trifling discourtesies of speech and manner constantly indulged in do more to destroy the peace of a household than an occasional war of words which lasts for a brief period and is then at an end. Chief among the causes to create a murky home atmosphere is the habit of "nagging" one another. Husbands and wives give expression to every petty feeling of irritation, and bandy words—back and forth till some molehill assumes the proportions of a mountain. A tendency to nag goes unchecked among the children, and almost before the parents are aware there is a chronic condition of unpleasantness in the home. Young married people especially, need to learn control in this direction. Another disagreeable trait to be guarded against is the habit, peculiar to some people, of always being on the opposite side of a question. Call attention to the good points of a book, a person, a public movement, a work of art, or what not, and this individual is ever ready to interpose, "Yes—but." Conversation in such a home gives one the chills.—Ex.

Card of Thanks.

With grateful hearts we desire to return our sincere thanks to the many kind friends who have manifested so much interest in and for us, in our recent deep bereavement. We also return our thanks to the singers who rendered such sweet and consoling songs at the funeral of our precious one.

IN THE CORNER STORE FORMERLY KNOWN AS THE H. K. B.

One of the first laws of human nature is to protect yourself. No man or woman who has a dollar to spend for foot wear, ought to visit a store where every safeguard is not thrown around the purchaser. It is self protection to seek an establishment where all classes are treated with respect and alike; where the poor man's dollar goes just as far as the rich man's. I protect the purchaser by close buying, close selling, and selling my own goods. I give the customer the benefit of paying cash. I guarantee every article as represented, and will exchange goods or refund money if requested. My goods are all marked in plain figures and a child can buy goods in my store with safety.
