The Democratic caucus here last Saturday was a rousing one; 208 of the Democratic electors of the township were out, and as two candidates presented themselves, each being desirous of a full delegation to the County Nominating Convention, the electors had to decide whether the Democracy of Sylvan would present Tim McKune for Sheriff, or M. J. Lehman for Prosecuting Attorney, to the County Convention in the fall. In order that one might be presented and harmony prevail, it was agreed by the respective parties that a choice be made by ballot, and that the ballot box be left open for two hours, thus giving every Democrat an opportunity to vote for his choice. The result showed the whole number of ballots cast to be 308, of which McKune received 68, and Lehman the remainder, 140. After the vote all joined in and gave Lehman a unanimous delegation, and passed a resolution instructing the delegates to use all honorable means to secure for him the nomination for the office of Prosecuting Attorney.

If you have an ax to grind you should cheerfully take your turn at the crank of the grindstone. If you are deeply interested in church work don't expect those outside your society to rush to the support of your pastor unless you sometimes manifest an interest in their various enterprises. On the other hand if you happen to be rather lukewarm in christianity or even an atheist, opposed entirely to the church, you should bear in mind the reciprocity necessary to the existence of society and give as freely to the church for which you don't care a cent as you do for base ball or the band to which you may be devoted. Every person should give encouragement and money, according to his means, to every honorable public enterprise, regardless of whether or not it happens to suit his individual tastes, naturally and properly giving most to what is best liked but never withholding because you have no interest in it.

It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at Glazier, Deput & Co. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

BETWEEN the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, at a distance of about 250,000,000 miles from the sun, there revolves some 265 little bodies, whose diameter vary from eight or ten miles to 200. Whether they are, as Prof. Young once described them, parts of a planet spoiled in the making or not is unknown. But certain it is that they are little celestial bodies of this character, whose revolutions around the sun are performed as unerringly as those of the larger planets. They are called planetoids, from the Greek, which means resembling a planet or wanderer.

It is also a cover for such diseases as they can not cure. When they advise their patient to travel or that he has overworked and needs rest and is probably suffering from malaria, it is a confession of ignorance or of inability."

"The patient goes abroad. The change is a tonic and for a time he feels better. Comes home. Fickle appetite, frequent headaches, severe colds, cramps, sleeplessness, irritability, tired feelings, and general unfitness for business are succeeded in due time by alarming attacks of rheumatism which fill about his body regardless of all human feelings."

"Now off he goes to the springs. The doctor sends him there, of course, to get well; as his sanguine theory does not really wish him to die on his hands!"

"That would hurt his business!"

"Better for a few days. Returns. After a while neuralgia transfixes him. "I read your fate five years ago. I thought best to keep you ignorant of the facts."

He dismisses his doctor, but too late! His fortune has all gone in fees.

But him, what becomes of him? The other day a well known Wall Street banker said to me: "It is really astonishing how prevalent bright's disease is becoming. Two of my personal friends are now dying of it. But it is not incurable I am certain, for my nephew was recently cured when his physicians said recovery was impossible. The case seems to me to be a wonderful one. This gentleman formerly resided in the United States, and he is now in a foreign country. "Yes," said his father, "I was very skeptical, but since taking that remedy the boy is well."

I happen to know what it was that cured the boy, for Genl. Christiansen, of Drexel, Morgan & Co's., told me that it was that "wonderful remedy Warner's safe cure."

Well, I suspect the hero of the book cured himself by the same means.

Can you give me notice better than by quoting the author's advice:

"If, my friend, you have such an experienced as I have portrayed, do not put your trust in physicians to the exclusion of other remedial agencies. They have no monopoly over disease and I personally know that many of them should go to Heaven direct from their powerless hands than that they should be saved to earth by the use of any 'unauthorized means.'"

A Garden Spot Designed by Nature for the Occupation of Man.

STOCKTON, CAL., April 21, 1888.

I have been engaged several months roaming in the Golden State without making a single visit to the Mother City. I might have found one of the orthodox kind by making a Sabbath-day investigation, but I would not find a genuine business man, but a man who would rather be a speculator than a worker.

Stockton is the county seat of San Joaquin, (pronounced as though spelled Wacker) and is the southern terminus of the Pacific railroad between San Francisco and Sacramento, ninety-two miles from the former and forty-eight from the latter. It is a city of about 10,000 inhabitants, and is a great market for the San Joaquin valley; manufactures 2,800 barrels of flour daily; besides making enormous shipments of grain, and in every way strikes the market as an enterprising and prosperous. Still, for reasons not now necessary to be recounted, there has been for years an irrepressible conflict between the city and the rural, resulting probably to the detriment of both. It was my good luck to land here at the close of the hostilities, and find the largest mail in the country, with people of wit and culture, and a city of homes; a city of flowers; a fair city, a city of a fair proportion of population and a city of a fair proportion of wealth.

Now.

Now the dude with a sad weary air
In a soft vernal twilight is seen,
All fixed to do things on the square
Where the trees are wide spreading and green,
Now the farmer prepares for the summer,
And the boarder is caught with his "ad."
While the mosquito waits the newcomer,
Determined to make him quite sad.

Now the sparrow that's English is flying
And grabbing his food everywhere,
With a lawlessness bold and defying,
That makes the goat weep with despair.
Soon the beautiful midsummer rover,
Will recline up at Cavanaugh Lake,
To return when the season is over
With a fresh lot of dudes in her wake.

Industrial Home For Convicts.

Mrs. Agnes d'Arcambal has succeeded so well in her efforts to secure funds for the establishment of an industrial home for released convicts, that it is now regarded as a certainty. For more than two years past, Mrs. d'Arcambal has devoted her whole time to this project, and her work has been wisely done. After much deliberation, Detroit has been selected as the location for the home, although that city did not give much encouragement to the project. Michael Dunn, who has attained great celebrity in this reformatory work, is now at Detroit, making preparations for the start. A building has been leased at 641 Beaubien street, and the institution will be in operation in a few days. Additional contributions are needed. For many reasons Mrs. d'Arcambal would have preferred Jackson as the location for the home, but this city was finally regarded as too near the greatest prison in the state, and too small in size to give the convicts perfect relief from the results of certain recognition. In making a new start in life the ex-convict should not be subject to constant recognition and reminder of his past misdeeds. The released convicts will be better off away from Jackson, and certainly this city has no desire to retain them as permanent residents.—Jackson Weekly Citizen.

The Quiet Girl.

The quiet girl never wears high collars on the street; you do not see her flaunting in brilliant plaids when they happen to be in the style; when high hats are "in" she does not pile hers so high that it sweeps the cobwebs from the sky; she does not wear an exaggerated bang when the bang is in vogue, nor the biggest bustle in, nor the greatest number of bangles when bangles reign. But because she does not chatter and giggle and make herself conspicuous on all occasions and all subjects, and profess her admiration at every hand's turn, it must not be supposed that she has no ideas, no ideas, no convictions, or enthusiasms; that she moves along like a star in the heavens, which obeys the laws of gravitation without selecting its course or objecting to its orbit. She is quiet because she has no power to make herself heard, to change her conditions, or because she is maturing that power. In the meantime it is the quiet girl who marries earliest, who makes the best match, who fills the niche which her more brilliant sisters leave vacant, who manages the servants, runs the sewing machine, remembers the birthdays and listens to the reminiscences of the old.

Never Grumble.

Don't be a grumbler. Some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything; to run against sharp corners and disagreeable things. Half the strength spent in growling would often set things right. You may as well make up your mind, to begin with, that no one ever found the world quite as he would like it; but you are to take your part of the trouble and bear it bravely. You will be sure to have burdens laid upon you that belong to other people, unless you are a shirker yourself; but don't grumble. If the work needs doing, and you can do it, never mind about that other who ought to have done it and didn't. Those workers who fill up the gaps and smooth away the others leave undone—they are the true peacemakers, and are worth a whole regiment of growlers.
