It is not considered the correct thing to put on your straw hat until the morning of June 15th. All rules, however are liable to exceptions, and it really does seem that when the mercury climbs up to eighty-nine degrees in the shade, as it did last week, any man would be excusable for being bold enough to disregard the unwritten law and hunt up his last summer's Mack inaw.

he came down and discovered "Thanks"
written upon the other side of the card.
Then he yanked the safe open and found that $76.38 in cash and paper valued at $1,500 had been stolen. However, he saved the safe.—Ex.

The state news scissorer of the Detroit Evening News has invented an incubator which he claims will hatch porcelain eggs.
The device is simply a coal oil barrel with a 10-inch bung-hole, and a spigot-aperture sufficiently capacious for a procession of chickens to march out two abreast and arm in arm. After filling the barrel with imitation eggs the requisite warmth is imparted by the ingenious inventor sitting on the bung-hole. The theory is, that by feeding in porcelain eggs at the top a continual stream of live chicks will pour out at the bottom. The thing has a feasible look.—Ex.

A Savannah lady who was endeavoring to raise a flock of young chickens found the whole brood in a bad fix the other day.
With the advent of warm weather she had recourse to flypaper to catch the flies that swarm in her kitchen, and accidentally she left an open sheet on the ground in the yard. A little infant spring rooster in his peregrinations happened to walk on it and in slang parlance, "got stuck." His brother came along to investigate the trouble and he got stuck; the old hen came to the rescue, but she could do nothing. The rest of the chicks flocked around until nearly all were sticking fast upon the paper. They were rescued from their ridiculous predicament with great difficulty.

A BLANK book has just been issued in this country in which the records of a family for eight generations back may be kept. There are a great many excellent families which would find it exceedingly hard to trace their lineage that far back, and doubtless some families that wouldn't if they could.

BLODIN, "Chevalier" Blondin, has come back to us partly to prove he is not dead. He arrived in New York the other day. He is now sixty-five years old and has not been in America for nearly thirty years. He crossed Niagara on a tight rope five times, twice carrying a man and once crossing in a sack.

JAMES CALDWELL, a Montgomery (Ala.) florist, coughed up a pin from his right lung the other day. He had suffered about twenty years, and had been treated for lung trouble. He has now a distinct recollection of swallowing the pin forty-seven years ago in Glasgow, Scotland, when seven years of age.

MRS. MARIA E. BRASLEY, of Philadelphia, has made a fortune from the most remarkable invention which the mind of a woman ever conceived. A STONE in New York advertises as the newest thing out its "patent knee pads for children." The history of the pads is interesting. A New Hampshire woman, with boys who went through the knees of their knickerbockers faster than she could mend them, in a moment of inspiration fitted some soft leather smoothly over the knees of two of her boys. A summer visitor saw the scheme and adopted it for her boys, and so the pads went out into the world, and now some body has patented the New Hampshire woman's idea, and is making money out of it.

MRS. BAKER of Findlay, O., deserves immortality as about the most successful defier of a corporation in the year of grace 1888. In grading a new railway it was necessary to cut the corner of her lot—which the company had not purchased, so the lady met engineers and shovelers with a loaded revolver, which was so gracefully handled that construction came to a standstill, nor was it resumed till Mrs. Baker had been guaranteed $700 for her bit of ground, as well as the moving and rebuilding of her house at a more convenient distance.

Scotland.

My thoughts to-day have wandered Across the ocean blue, To my friends in "bonnie Scotland" Who are thoughtful, brave and true. To them I'll write a poem, And send it far o'er the deep. I'll send it to the land of the Thistle, Oh! Bonnie Scotland so sweet.

I'll send it where the heather waves On the hills so steep and high, To my dearest mother's birthplace, Which, to me, seems beyond the sky, Oh! pathetic, deep blue heather, Would that I could be Now on the highlands of Scotland, Far o'er the dark blue sea.

Yet why should I long to wander From the place where I was born, Why should I long to leave fair Maine And take a journey so long? Oh, Scotland! you know my secret, Oh, Scotland! you know my heart, Tell my friends that I love them, And that my home seems dark.

Tell them I long to see them, And I sigh for them day and night, Tell them I'll never forget them, In bonnie Scotland so bright.

And now as I sit in my chamber, I gaze on the grass so green, Even that has lost its charm for me, Oh! I love the Scottish green. And may I one day in the future, In the future that now looks fair, Go far over the ocean To bonnie Scotland so fair.

To Postmasters.—It is not unusual to receive notices of discontinuance of papers, the cause of which is removal of the subscriber. For instance, "Your paper addressed to Richard Roe, lies uncalled for. Please discontinue the same. Reason, he has moved away, or he has removed." A man of any intelligence generally leaves his new address at the office of his residence, and when this is the case, or the postmaster knows where the fugitive has gone, why can he not for the benefit of the publisher just as well say, "Has removed to such a place," giving the new address? We have several cases of removal of this kind, where probably the postmaster is, thoughtlessly, the accomplice of a sneak who goes away without settling for a paper which he has read for years.—Sentinel.

Untimely and Sad.

Such was the sudden and unexpected demise of Miss Victoria Westfall, daughter of Palmer and Fannie Westfall, of Lima, on Friday, June 8, 1888. Addie was born in Lima on the 13th of September, 1868, and was 21 years, 8 months, and 26 days of age when she died. Her disease was brain fever, apparently induced by exposure and over exertion about two weeks before her death. Addie was a sprightly, intelligent, winning and worthy young lady, very ambitious to obtain an education and fit herself for a noble and useful life work, winning immediately, on first acquaintance, the favorable opinion and respect of others, and enjoying the esteem and affectionate regards of all who were well acquainted with her. She leaves, besides her immediate relatives, a large circle of admiring friends to mourn her untimely end; among whom are her school and school patrons in the township of Freedom, where she had taught several terms with excellent success.

Her funeral, which took place at Lima Center on Sunday afternoon, June 10th, was attended by a very large concourse of people, the towns of Lima, Freedom and Sylvan being largely represented. Her school from Freedom were present, and marched in the procession with the mourners. Thus suddenly and sadly has closed a most hopeful and promising life, leaving a cloud of mystery and gloom hanging over many an aching heart.

Another Sad Bereavement.

Mrs. Eliza Gage, consort of Mr. Clarence Gage, died of inflammation of the bowels, at their home in Sharon on the 9th of June, 1888, aged 36 years, 11 months and 5 days. Mrs. Gage's maiden name was Worley. She was born at Leicester, Mass. In childhood she came to this country with her parents, and was married to Mr. Clarence Gage on the 14th of July, 1872. The fruits of this marriage were three sons and one daughter, all of whom are living to mourn the loss of an excellent, faithful loving mother. As a wife Mrs. Gage was unsurpassed in affection, faithfulness, industry and all the excellent qualities that go to make a happy home. The grief of her bereft husband is unbounded and uncontrollable. Three brothers, also, are left to mourn the loss of a loving sister, the last that was left them, and the whole neighborhood is smitten with grief and sadness. Her funeral was attended on Tuesday, 12th inst., and her remains followed to their resting place, by a large assemblage of sympathizing and grief stricken friends and neighbors.

Children's Day at the M. E. Church.

The pastor preached a sermon on education in the morning, in which he explained to the young members of the church and Sunday School the origin of Children's Day. He said that it was instituted in 1866, that being the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.

At its organization, in the city of New York, in the year 1786, only five persons enrolled their names as members, and met at the house of Mrs. Barbara Heck.

The speaker showed that though it had such a small beginning, and its cradle rocked by the storms of the Revolution it grew so rapidly, that to-day it numbers, including the Methodist Church South, about 4,500,000 members. He said that the glory of this branch of God's Zion was not numbers, nor wealth, nor the fact that it was building two church edifices a day, but that it has been found in the fore front of every reform, designed to benefit the world. It was in the thickest of the fight against slavery, and to-day its trumpet gives no uncertain sound in the war on the liquor curse; while its watchword is, no compromise with any form of vice.

Out of gratitude to God a free will offering was called for in 1866, as centenary thank offering; to which the Church responded by contributing a large sum, which was to be devoted to the higher education of the poorer students of the Church who were struggling to get a collegiate education. In order to swell this educational fund all the Sunday Schools of the Church were asked to observe the second Sunday in June of each year as Children's Day, and to them is committed the task of making the occasion attractive and financially successful.

Last Sabbath evening, the church was beautifully ornamented with flowers, and at an early hour was literally packed. The program was an excellent one, finely rendered. The audience, big and little, showed their appreciation of the speaking and singing by giving a good collection. After singing the "Sweet Bye and Bye," and the benediction by the pastor, the exercises closed.

The Chelsea Chautauque Circle held its last meeting for the year '87-8 last Friday evening. This was a special red letter evening for the Circle, as it marked the completion of the course for seven of the original class of ten. The following is the list of graduates: A. N. Morton, Mrs. H. M. Woods, Miss M. Wellman, Miss Emma Kempf, Miss Cora E. Lewis, Mrs. M. G. Hill, Mrs. E. A. McIlwain.

The latter has finished her reading with the Circle at Wayne which Rev. J. A. McIlwain and wife organized soon after their establishment at that place, two years ago. The Chelsea Circle was also organized by them.

The class highly appreciate the value which this course of reading has been to them, and congratulate themselves that they can still continue their work in the local Circle by way of seal courses and magazine reading, which it is their purpose to do. The members of the Circle were all earnestly exhorted by their President to be present at their reorganization next September, and by individual effort during vacation to secure additional members. The prospect for increased membership is fair and it is hoped that many will decide to avail themselves of the benefits of this deservedly popular course of reading.

The Chelsea Girl.

Her dimpled cheeks are pale;
She's a lily of the vale,
Not a rose.
In a muslin or a lawn,
She is fairer than the dawn,
To her beau.

Her boots are thin and neat,
She is vain about her feet,
It is said.
She amputates her r's,
But her eyes are like the stars,
Overhead.

'Tis a matter of regret,
She's a bit of a coquette,
Whom I sing.
On her cruel path she goes,
With a half dozen beaux,
On her string.

But let that all pass by,
And her maiden moments fly,
Dew empearled.
When she marries on in life,
She will make the dearest wife,
In the world.

One of the saddest gatherings Lima has known for some time was the funeral of Miss Victoria Westfall last Sunday afternoon. She died a few days before of brain fever in Freedom where she had been teaching. The funeral was at the church, conducted by Rev. T. Holmes. The attendance was very large.

The Storms-Killam-Rockwell-Boynton family reunion at the town hall last week was a pleasant affair. Of course there was visiting and plenty of it. No deaths had occurred in the family association during the past year. There was a most excellent dinner, after which came music, vocal and instrumental, a most felicitous address by Rev. A. W. Stalker of Clinton, a charming recitation by Nettle Storms, election of officers, and adjournment. Such gatherings out to be more frequent.

How to Buy a Horse.

An old horseman says: If you want to buy a horse, don't believe your own brother. Take no man's word for it. Your eye is your market. Don't buy a horse in harness. Unhitch him and take everything off but his halter, and lead him around, if he has a corn or is stiff or has any other failing, you can see it. Let him go by himself a ways, and if he staves right into anything you know that he is blind. Back of him, too. Some horses show their weakness or tricks in that way when they don't in any other. But, be as smart as you can, you'll get caught sometimes. Even an expert gets stuck. A horse may look ever so nice and go a great pace, and yet have fits. There isn't a man could tell it until something happens.

Or he may have a weak back. Give him the whip and off he goes for a mile or two, then all of a sudden he stops on the road. After a rest he starts again, but stops for good, and nothing but a derrick can move him.

The weak points of a horse can better be discovered while standing than by moving. If he is sound he will stand firmly and squarely on his legs without moving them, feet squarely on the ground with legs plump and naturally poised; or if the foot is lifted from the ground and the weight taken from it, disease may be suspected, or at least tenderness which is a precursor of disease. If the horse stands with his feet spread apart or straddles with his hind legs, there is a weakness in the loins and the kidneys are disordered. Heavy pulling bends the knees. Bluish, milky cast eyes in horses indicates blindness or some thing else. A bad tempered one keeps his ears thrown back; a kicking horse is apt to have scalded legs; a stumbling horse has blinched knees. When the skin is rough and harsh, and does not move easily to the touch the horse is a heavy eater and digestion is bad. Never buy a horse whose breathing organs are at all impaired. Place your ear at the heart, and if a wheezing sound is heard it is an indication of trouble.

It is safe to assert that every newspaper man who has been in the business five or ten years or even less time, has frequently met men who were too poor to take a paper. The following from an old editor is a pat illustration of their excuses: "We asked a man the other day to take the country paper, his reply was: 'Would like to but am too poor.' A wave of sympathy flitted over us at his condition, but fifteen minutes later we found him shaking dice for the beer, and planked down a quarter as the result of getting beat. Every time he comes to town he spends foolishly enough to pay for the paper, which costs less than two cents per week for a year, for his wife and family."
