A gentleman made the remark, "country editors are beginning to dun their subscribers, now that it is wool time." If people would pay up promptly there would be no need of country editors dunning their subscribers. It is no pleasant duty we can assure you, but it takes money to run even a country newspaper, and if people will not pay without being asked for it, they ought not to find fault when they are asked.—Enterprise.

The question of the legality and value of a liquor dealers' signature, upon a saloonkeepers' bond, was settled by the supreme court at Lansing recently, in a decision that will give satisfaction to many liquor dealers throughout the state. The decision was made on the case of Ferdinand Kuhn vs. the city of Detroit. The court issued a writ of mandamus, ordering the council to approve the liquor bonds, with two brewers thereon as sureties. That clause of the liquor law of 1887, which makes it unlawful for a liquor dealer or manufacturer to become a surety upon a saloon bond, is declared unconstitutional, upon the ground that it is contrary to both the state and national constitutions. The latter says in its fourteenth amendment that no state shall make or enforce any law that shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States.

Obituary.

Died, at his home in Chelsea, Mich. June 16, 1888, after a lingering illness, James M. Congdon, aged 83 years.

The subject of this memoir was born at Norwich, Conn., March 23, 1805. He, with his wife, came to Washtenaw county in the year 1842, and bought a large tract of land, now constituting the side of the village of Chelsea, west of Main street.

His family consists of four sons and four daughters. All the children but one daughter are still living, the most of them being honored citizens of Chelsea.

Mr. Congdon was, politically, a Democrat, and was elected on that ticket, in 1871, to the State Legislature.

His funeral was held at his home on Tuesday, at 10 a. m., and his remains followed to Oak Grove Cemetery by a large circle of friends, old neighbors and associates. Truly the old pioneers are rapidly passing away. J. H. MOINTOSH.

Obituary.

We copy the following from the Sandusky, O., Weekly Journal:

"Miss Esther H. Farrell, who died at the family residence, Sandusky, O., Sunday morning, after an illness of fourteen months, was a bright young girl of twenty years well and favorably known among a large circle of friends and acquaintances, all of whom are deeply pained at her death. She belonged to Sts. Peter and Paul's choir, and was also a member of the Young Ladies Sodality attached to that parish church, from which place the funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 8:30 o'clock.

The deceased was a kind friend, an affectionate sister and daughter, and her loss will be deeply felt by her family, to whom we offer our heartfelt sympathy in their affliction but their greatest consolation is in knowing that their loss is her gain and that God doeth all things well. ONE WHO LOVED HER."

[She was a sister to Mrs. H. V. Heatley, and resided here for some time. She possessed a sweet voice and a most amiable disposition by which she endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. Mr. and Mrs. Heatley have just returned from Sandusky, where they attended the funeral of the deceased. —Ed.]

What Mrs. Grandy Says.

That the woman whose voice is all for suffrage is not always a Hebe, Cleopatra or Venus.

That the wise parents are those who look after the kind of literature their children read.

That it is a good thing to have a beautiful wife to gracefully assist in the Presidential campaign.

That no champion duck sheds water quicker than fashionable people shake off family disgrace.

That among seasonable things just now may be named "valedictories stuffed with eloquence."

That often the most consequential husband in public is the meekest and most humble at home.

That in the writing of obituaries nowadays it is often most important to know what not to put in.

That a great many women sacrifice the proprieties of life just for the sake of a little brief celebrity.

That married women who prefix "Mrs." to their names in signing correspondence are too numerous.

That the handwriting on the when translated, is that G. O.'s White House days are numbered.

That it may take nine tailors to make a man, but it requires only one man to make a tailor ridiculous.

That boasting of one's wealth and achievements must be regarded as a "fashionable accomplishment."

That May, 1888, will always be associated with umbrellas, overcoats, waterproofs and colds in the head.

That there ought to be material enough for jukes without dragging in churches, clergymen and religion.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

FOR SALE BY

Geo. F. Glazier's Loan and Real Estate Agency, Chelsea, Mich.

Farm No. 1—270 acres, located 2 miles south of Francisco, 6 miles west from Chelsea, 5 miles east of Grass Lake, adjoining Michael Schenk's farm on the south, known as the Wales Riggs farm. One of the best soil farms in Michigan. There is a comfortable frame house, a large frame barn 114 feet long, 2 small barns, 2 good wells of water, wind mill, corn house, henry and tool house, orchard and a fine vineyard of one acre. 180 acres of land fit for the plow, besides ample woodland. In all it is one of the best grain and stock farms in Michigan to make money from.

Farm No. 2—80 acres, situated 6 miles southwest of Ann Arbor, on good road. Nearly all good improved land, having a living stream of water, good orchard, very productive sandy loam soil. A bargain at $50 per acre. 10 acres additional of excellent timber, if wanted, at $68 per acre. Would make a very complete farm.

Farm No. 3—160 acres, 8 1/2 miles N. W. of Chelsea, 3 1/2 miles from Gregory, 2 miles from Uxbridge, 4 churches within 2 miles, on good road, excellent neighborhood, soil mostly sandy loam, remainder clay, surface level as desirable. 100 acres of plow land, producing excellent crops; 35 acres of good white oak, hickory and walnut timber; 25 acres of good mowing marsh, with good living stream of water through it; 5 acres of orchard; 2 good frame dwellings, a frame stock and hay barn, a grain barn and 3 good wells of water. This farm is nicely arranged to divide into 2 farms. Ill health is the cause of owner selling. Price $50 per acre.

Farm No. 4—236 acres, located 3 1/2 miles from Chelsea, on prominent road, in good neighborhood, near church and school house and blacksmith shop. 175 acres of plow land, 25 acres of timber, 20 acres good mowing marsh, 16 acres of low pasture with living stream of water through it. The northwest corner of this farm is the highest, gently sloping to southeast, protecting wheat from winter winds. It has a fine young orchard of graded fruit just coming into bearing. The buildings are unusually good, consisting of a frame dwelling house, upright and wing each 18x26, two stories, kitchen 15x18, wood shed 15x20. A fine basement barn 30x30 with gambrel roof, built in 1885, also hog house and kettle room, corn crib, carriage house and workshop attached, hen house 16x20, tool shed, and 2 good wells. Sandy loam about buildings but most of farm is a clay loam and is a superior grain and stock farm in excellent condition. The owner was offered four years ago, $70 per acre, but will now sell at a sacrifice that he may remove to California. Price, $60 per acre.

Farm No. 5—280 acres, 5 miles from Chelsea and 5 miles from Dexter. Large frame house near school house, barn 40x60 also one 30x60, 3 sheds 20x40 each, two wells, a windmill conducting water into house and barn, orchard with plenty of small fruits, and other improvements. 180 acres of plow land, 80 acres of timber and 20 acres of marsh. Soil, gravel and sandy loam. Very productive. A farm to make money both in cropping and as an investment.

Farm No. 6—Consisting of four separate 40 acre tracts of Beech and Maple timber land, in Cheboygan county, Michigan, near Sturgeon River. Price $12.50 per acre. The owner will accept in part payment, good property in southern Michigan. A good chance to trade for desirable farm land.

Farm No. 7—108 60-100 acres, situated 3 miles from Chelsea, near school, on good road, and in an excellent neighborhood of Eastern people. There is a frame dwelling house of 20 rooms (large and small), a frame barn 28x36, also a stock barn 100 feet long, wagon house 20x30, brick smoke house and fruit dryer, 3 good wells of excellent water, medium sized orchard, 90 acres of plow land, remainder good timber land. No waste land whatever. This is a superior located farm, under high state of cultivation. The owner desires to retire from active work and will sell for $85 per acre.

Farm No. 8—280 acres, 2 1/2 miles east of Chelsea, 4 miles from Dexter village, 1 1/2 miles from German Methodist church, on prominent road, a large commodious frame house, pleasantly situated near a fine lake, a barn 38x36, also one 28x30, horse barn 30x26, corn barn 16x20, and other improvements, in good repair; 4 acres of orchard, 140 acres plow land, 60 acres good timber, 30 acres of mowing meadow, 50 acres of pasture and marsh. Strong gravelly loam soil, a good stock and sure crop farm. Price $60 per acre.

THE GOOD TIME'S COMING.

Grandma told a curious thing—"Boys may whistle but girls must sing." That's the very thing I heard her say to Kate, no longer than yesterday.

"Boys may whistle." Of course they may. If they whistle their lips the proper way, just for the life of me I can't see why Kate can't whistle as well as me.

"Boys may whistle but girls must sing." I call that a curious thing. If boys can whistle why can't girls too? It's the easiest thing in the world to do.

Just you do that and then you do this—just like you were fixing up for a kiss. It's a very poor girl, that's all I say. Who can't make out of that way.

"Boys may whistle but girls must sing." A whistle is a song with somebody out, strayed off somewhere down in the throat. Everything lost but the changeable note.

So if boys can whistle and do it well, why can't they whistle as well as I. And he said: "The reason that girls must sing is because a girl's a sing-along thing."

And grandma laughed till she knew she'd ache. When I said I thought it all a mistake. "Never mind, little man," I heard her say. "It's all wrong, but it's enough for today."

—W. A. Thompson, in Detroit Free Press.

A DOCTOR'S STORY.

The Happy Result of His Encounter With a Mad Passenger.

On a fine summer day in the year 187—, I was proceeding by the Southwestern railway to visit a friend and former patient, a resident of Portsmouth. It is not often that a medical man gets a holiday, and but for the kindness of a fellow-practitioner, in taking my practice for a fortnight, I should not have had an opportunity of enjoying the sea breeze.

The train on which I started was an early one, and, having procured my ticket, I took my place in the second-class carriage and lit my cigar, for it was a smoking carriage. On entering it I was surprised—and, I think, startled—by the sight of a man who appeared to be a foreigner.

"Oh!" said I, inwardly, "some fast American dandy who desires to indulge in a cigarette."

On observation, however, it appeared to me that the features of my fellow-traveler did not bear upon them that impression of coarseness which marks American nationality. She had soft brown eyes, a full, round face, and a profusion of chestnut hair. She was dressed in a plain traveling suit, bound with white braid, and wore a straw hat.

"May be a German," I soliloquized; "they are terrible smokers."

But again it occurred to me that possibly the young lady might be nothing more than a German, but had got in to the carriage without noticing that it was reserved for the use of smokers. Under this impression I bowed slightly to her, saying:

"I fear my cigar may annoy you! Perhaps you are not aware that this is a smoking department?"

"Oh, yes," she answered, with a slight German accent; "yes, yes, yes, yes!"

There was something peculiar in her slow, deliberate utterance and the four times repeated monosyllable. A dreamy look, too, in the speaker's eyes, as if her mind were preoccupied. However, the train was now in motion, and I had nothing for it but to ensconce myself in my corner, look out of the window, and take a bird's eye view of the surrounding house-tops.

For a short time this was well enough; but I began at last to weary of the monotony of such an amusement. We Englishmen, as a rule, are so reserved and uncommunicative that we shrink into ourselves, and every fresh addition to the occupants of a railway carriage or an omnibus is received with blank looks and a sort of tacit intimation that he has no right to enter. Now, I am free to confess that, whatever my feelings, want of sociability is not one of them; and I determined to try to engage my companion in a little conversation. There could be no impropriety in a man of my age (I was thirty-eight) endeavoring to beguile the tedium of a lazy journey by conversing with a fellow-traveler—a school girl—and certainly not out of her teens. It was, therefore, with an almost paternal feeling that I addressed her.

"There are not many passengers by this train," I remarked.

"Two thousand and three," was the answer that not a little startled my equality.

I looked at the speaker, expecting to find a mischievous smile dancing in her eyes or lurking at the corners of her mouth. Nothing of the sort. She was perfectly serious, even stern, and her eyes had still the same dreamy, far-away look in them.

"Very absent-minded, or else in love," I thought. However, I tried again.

"I think we shall have a fine day for our journey," I ventured to remark.

HOME SUGGESTIONS.

In nervous prostration, rest and sleep are the first indispensable conditions. A change always in order to make them possible.

The diet must be generous, the food well masticated and eaten slowly.

Our linings should be washed, ironed and kept in a receptacle devoted to such things. It is seldom these can be utilized in a good dress, but sometimes come in course for children's garments or for every-day cotton gowns.

Among such preventives that are popular is oil of cedar, the odor of which is said to drive the tiny moth or miller from a room. Cloths saturated with oil are laid around the room, which is kept closed for several hours, then aired thoroughly.

The indiscriminate use of the word "poison" is tabooed in polite circles. Superlatives are also in general bad form. If you wish to praise any thing highly call it "strong," "well done," "quite good," or the like, or say it pleases you "much."

A wash which will remove the sunburn acquired by out-door sports is made by adding to twelve ounces of elder flower water six drams of common soda and six drams of powdered borax. Applied to the skin it will make it cool and soft as a baby's.

To change the air in a sick-room without exposing the patient to drafts, open the windows or doors leading out of doors, in the room adjoining. When the air in this adjoining room is renewed close the doors and windows and open the door into the sick-room.

Keep the tick turned down below the top of the burner except when in actual use. If this be done, and there is no leak about the fixture, there is no reason why, if the lamps are carefully wiped every morning, there should be oil on the outside by evening.

The hard soda soaps are preferable to the soft potash soaps for toilet purposes, as the quantity of all soaps depends upon the character of their constituents and the thoroughness of their saponification. Good soaps must not contain free alkali or any foreign irritating substances.

Every day table-talk can be guided as the members of the family may elect, into profitable, frivolousness, or into a happy and intelligent insight into the current affairs of the day from entertaining conversation which parents lead during the meal hours.

A FRETTS vase can be made from an ordinary bottle or jar in a simple manner. Dip a string into spirits of turpentine and tie around the bottle below the neck. Set fire to the string and the glass will break off smoothly. Then cover the bottle with glue or oil and roll in oatmeal, and varnish when thoroughly dry.

When a felon first begins to make its appearance, the proper course to adopt, according to an exchange, is to take a lemon, cut off one end, put the finger in, and, taking care it is kept there the better, the longer it is kept there the better. The combat between the lemon and the felon is a fight to the death, and the lemon, so runs the statement, always comes out victorious.

To exterminate mosquitoes, take of gum camphor a piece about one-third the size of a hen's egg, and evaporate it by placing it in a tin vessel and holding it over a lamp, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room and expel the mosquitoes, and not one will be found in the room next morning, even though the windows should be left open at night.

A receptacle for soiled handkerchiefs, collars and cuffs attached to the inside of the bedroom door, is a great convenience in gathering them for the laundry, and also gives a good way toward keeping the room in order. One or two handkerchiefs lying about, a soiled collar or a pair of cuffs carelessly placed on the dressing-table, often on a chair, gives a room a very untidy appearance.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for coughs and colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes F. P. Glazier to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

The Era of Slang

The era of slang is upon us with a breath that is almost appalling. Not only the slang that might be defined as the burlesque or colloquial form of expression, the language of low humor, or the jargon of thieves and vagrants, but a species that is almost as reprehensible. It will not do to apologize for it by saying that "slang is probably as old as human speech," and that the early writers indulged in it, especially the Greek and Roman dramatists, and while we may speak and write against the pernicious habit, we suspect we will not grow disgusted enough with it to thoroughly uproot it until it has reached its climax. The worst fact about it is that it is not confined to the low and illiterate, but has invaded the public schools, cultured society, and the literature of our books.

Slang, I insist, is the fungus on the stem. It is not the grafted fruit it is the scum of language. It often belittles. It never beautifies. If we all spoke and wrote in a less exaggerated manner we would be less exaggerated in our ways of life and thought. Life as well as speech, would perhaps grow more simple, more true, more worth living.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night.

And each day and night during the week you can get at F. P. Glazier's, Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of coughs, croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

LIMA, June 16, 1888.

Editor CHLSEA HERALD.

In the notice of the reunion of the Boynton, Rockwell, Killum and Storms families which appeared in last week's issue the Lima correspondent omitted to mention a recitation given by Miss Edith Spaulding. It was a beautiful piece and charmingly rendered and as worthy of notice as any part of the program.
