mith Details the Working of the Con-spirators Against the Burlington Road —His Testimony Puts the Plotters in s

Deeper Hole. Chicago, July 17.—The sensational developments of Saturday attracted a large crowd to the Government building who were anxious for another sensation to becur. In the present case, however, it is hardly possible that any thing more of a startling nature will occur, as the prosecution has already obtained all the knowledge that Bowles, Broderick and Smith possess. This was outlined in the opening speech of the district attorney, Vhatever has been learned since then will be kept quiet until the time comes to try the men on the charge of conspiracy. Alex Smith was sworn and his testimon was substantially as follows: "My name is Alexander Smith, I have lived in Aurora twenty years, and live there when I am at home. I am a locomotive fireman, and worked for the "Q" road four years. I quit work on February 27, but have since been working for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, or, rather, have been getting paid by them for being idle. I know Broderick, Goding and Bowles slightly, and Bauereisen well. I met Bowles first at the hall in Aurora, where the stikers held their meetings. The next time I met him he got a meetings. The next time I met him he got a buggy and I went with him for a drive. We drove to the railroad track, and for the first time I saw dynam to. Howles had several sticks of it and some caps. He got a twig off a tree and bored a hole in the end of a stick of the dynamite. It was the night of the Eola explosion. Bowles said: 'I guess we'll give them a scare.' Bowles got out of the buggy and put the dynamite on the track. Then we drove put the dynamite on the track. Then we drove away and when we got one and a half miles from there we heard the dynamite go off. The next day Bowles asked me if I had heard any thing and I told him no. The next day he told me he'd leave a cartridge with me and that I should put it on the track. He told me to do it the night he went away or they would suspect him of doing it.

"I met Bauereisen shortly afterward, and he told me that Bowles had left a package for me at Heck's Hotel. In the package were dynamite and caps. Bauereisen told me to give them a scare that night, June 14. I took the cartridge that night and put it on the Burlington track near the depot at South Aurora. The next day I met Bauereisen, who asked me if I had been out the night before. I told him that I had, and he remarked that he thought so, because he had heard the noise of the explosion. plosion. On July 5 I saw Bowles, and he told me to get some caps and dynamite from Goding. I found Goding, told him what I wanted and he gave me an order to his wife, who handed me a wooden box containing dynamite cartridges and caps and fuse. These I gave to Bowles that day. I saw Broderick, Bowles, Bauereison, Wilson and another man the same day. Either Broderick or Bowles then told me to go up to Goding's house and get some dynamite. Then they saw Goding on the opposite side of the street called him over. One of them told him that was going up to the house for the stuff. I don't remember who it was. Goding and I then went up to his house and got the package. I took it to the reception-room of the brotherhood hall. Then I told Broderick that it was then and we all went in. Shortly afterward Bro erick, Bowles and Bauereisen left the hall."

After the witness had identified the dynamite found in the car as that taken from Goding's house he was turned over to the defense for cross-examination. After a long string of questions which did not materially effect the evidence the crossexamination ceased and the court then ad journed till 2 o'clock.

The afternoon session was brief and without sensation. Smith was recalled and acknowledged having received several visits from his brother during the time he has been in custody, but he denied ever having told that he had not even seen any dynamite on July 4 or 5, "Nor," said the witness, with some little emotion, "did I After Smith had told how, since his arrest, he had sleps part of the time in the Government building and at other times at Pinkerton's, it was announced that an adjournment would be taken until Wednesday morning. This was by agreement and on account of the illness of District-Attorney Ewing.

Bowles did not appear in court. It is said that he knows so much that he is still "squealing." A result of this will be a number of new arrests, some of which will be from circles supposed to be without the radical element. A conference was held between the chairman of the grievance committee of locomotive engineers and firemen and the chief officers of the Burlington road which promises to result in the strike against that road being declared off within a very short

Mon Who Stop Their Papers.

It is not an uncommon thing for a newspaper subscriber to call round at the office and order it discontinued, because he is offended at something he has read in its columns. All newspapers have such experiences and as a rule pay slight attention to them. The wind which blows from one direction to-day, may come from another quarter tomorrow, and the experienced newspaper manager calmly pursues the course which he believes is right and safe, whether it pleases everybody or not. There grows in Mixteca, Mexico, a plant which the natives call " The Herb of Prophecy." It is said that whoever partakes of the herb in few moments sinks into a sort of sleep, or rather hypnotic state, in which, while apparently insensible, he has a kind of prophetic gift, or double sight, answers questions that are put to him, and becomes so under the will of another that he obevs every command, even to taking his own life. When the effects of the herb wear off he remembers nothing of what he hrs done.
