A tramp broke into the Michigan Central pump-house at Grass Lake last Thursday, and stole an overcoat, shirt and revolver belonging to John Steckenmeyer, who boards in Chelsea, and also locks after the pump-house here. The culprit was arrested here, and deputy sheriff Staffan took him to Grass Lake.

John Farrell, formerly of this place, writes from Ottawa, Kan., as follows: "I have been here about two months, and will remain about two months longer as I have contract to build sewers here. Ottawa is a nice city of about 8,000, built on a rolling prairie, and the country around it is grand in every respect. Abundant crops and first-class people."

The Grass Lake News man, after a visit to Chelsea, relieves his mind as follows:—"An envoy of the News visited Chelsea last Saturday and was pleased to find her wide awake people contented, happy and prosperous. The handsome village is without a vacant store or house. The clean streets, tidy lawns, neat residences and well ordered business houses are well designed to create a favorable impression on the minds of visitors, casual or otherwise; while the cordiality of her citizens and the beauty of her fair daughter are characteristics for which Chelsea has long been famous. Of course, it is well known that the shoe dealers of that place never sell foot wear for the gentler sex smaller than number 6's, and so on up to number 10's, still that argues nothing but death to creeping insects. It is by no means derogatory to the peach-and-lily fairies themselves. They are all right, and worthy of admiration. Our representative found Editor Allison of the Herald in his office, wading to the chin in business. The Herald's quarters are exceptionally neat and convenient and well stocked with presses and material. Its proprietor merits the prosperity he is enjoying."

GOOD-BYE SWEET WORLD!

Good-bye, sweet world! to me no passing fair,
Despite the misery, the want and the pain,
I shall not leave thee, though I must depart,
To leave the flower-walk that shuts me in.

To me the sunny side of life is all that counts,
The best of all the things that I have found,
The best of all the things that I have found,
The best of all the things that I have found.

In the last hour of my life I shall be glad,
To see the sun and feel the wind and rain,
To see the sun and feel the wind and rain,
To see the sun and feel the wind and rain.

From the far land to which I soon must pass,
I shall not turn with home-sick longing here,
I shall not turn with home-sick longing here,
I shall not turn with home-sick longing here.

Where, all undimmed, the sun in glory shines,
No cloud, no shadow, no dimming of the light,
No cloud, no shadow, no dimming of the light,
No cloud, no shadow, no dimming of the light.

At that bright region of eternal day,
The summer moon no more my eyes will meet,
The summer moon no more my eyes will meet,
The summer moon no more my eyes will meet.

Shall I not sigh for evening's quietude,
When there doth come no night to follow morn—
When there doth come no night to follow morn—
When there doth come no night to follow morn—

To taste the fragrance of the dewy dawn,
Or pluck pale lilies in the rose-damp—
Or pluck pale lilies in the rose-damp—
Or pluck pale lilies in the rose-damp—

Will not my youthful spirit shrink apart,
With sense of strangeness in a world unknown?
With sense of strangeness in a world unknown?
With sense of strangeness in a world unknown?

Oh, long dead years that satisfy my heart,
Where memory the years have overgrown—
Where memory the years have overgrown—
Where memory the years have overgrown—

Where Seraphim and Cherubim do cry,
In joyful unison—a shining band—
In joyful unison—a shining band—
In joyful unison—a shining band—

No well-known face to seek with eager eye,
Nor feel the clasp of a familiar hand—
Nor feel the clasp of a familiar hand—
Nor feel the clasp of a familiar hand—

Rejoice! Lord! receive my doubting soul,
Home, kindred, friends, I lose, to find in Thee.

My spirit long in Thy supreme control,
Thou dost lead me through all eternity—
Thou dost lead me through all eternity—
Thou dost lead me through all eternity—

Glory be to Thee, O God, in Heaven,
Glory be to Thee, O God, in Heaven,
Glory be to Thee, O God, in Heaven,
Glory be to Thee, O God, in Heaven.

AFRICAN DWARFS.

Facts Concerning the Smallest People Extant.

Interesting Accounts by Explorers—Their Peculiarities and Mode of Life—Skillful Hunters and Savage Fighters.

None of the remarkable discoveries made by explorers in the depths of Africa has ever excited deeper interest than Schweinfurth's vivid description of the Akka dwarfs whom he found in the northeastern part of the Congo basin.

Living among tribes of splendid physical development, these little people, from four feet to four feet six inches in height, are noted for their courage and agility, for their prowess as hunters, and for their unusual dexterity in the use of the bow and spear.

In a recent lecture in London Prof. Flower, director of the Natural History Museum, described them as the smallest people in the world, and expressed the opinion, now generally held, that they and their relatives south of the Congo are pigmies who were known to the Greeks, and of whom Herodotus and Aristotle gave descriptions that were long believed to be fanciful.

The industry of four great travelers, who took up the work of exploration where Stanley left it, has now supplied us with considerable information about the remarkable Betwa dwarfs, who are spread in little communities through the densely wooded regions south of the great northern bend of the Congo.

They have been found in districts about four hundred miles apart and in much of the intervening regions that are still little known. They have been studied by Wolf, near the Lulua river, still further east by Wissmann in the interminable forests which sunlight hardly penetrates north of the Sankuru, by Grenfell and Von Franconi on the Bussara and Tchuapa rivers, and by Grenfell on the Lublasi, south-west of Stanley Falls. These discoveries were made in the years 1885 and 1886, but the explorers were too busy accumulating facts to prepare them for public perusal, and we have had only the most fragmentary allusions to these unique and interesting little folk until the writings of Wolf, Wissmann and Von Franconi were published in Germany this summer.

One day Dr. Wolf was pushing through the forests east of the Lulua river, when he suddenly came upon a little glade in which were about twenty tumble-down beehive huts, the homes of the Batwa. He had seen a few of these little people, kept as hunters at the towns of big chiefs, but this was the first time he had met them in their own poorly cared for villages. Some of them could speak the language of the Bakuba, the great tribe which claims this region, but they were so awestruck by the white man's sudden advent that they would hardly utter a word. A crowd of nearly a hundred coffee-brown little folks, none of them larger than children two-thirds grown, stood timidly at a distance and surveyed the visitors in wonder. Dr. Wolf won their confidence so far at last that they permitted him to approach, and, unobserved by the natives, he took the heights of many of them on a spear shaft. These and later measurements by Dr. Wolf of full-grown adults vary from four feet three inches to four feet seven and one-half inches.

The average height, according to the several authorities, seems to be about four feet five inches. Unlike the Akka, the Batwa are not unusually prognathous, nor have they disproportionately large abdomens, but they are compact, well-built little creatures, without any physical peculiarity except their small size. Lieutenant Wissmann, however, received quite an unfavorable impression of the Batwa from the few specimens he saw among the Bassanga, whom he describes as dwelling in tiny huts, despoiled by their neighbors, ill-shaped, and woebegone specimens of humanity.

All through the great forest region may be found these nomad hunters. In little bands of eight or more families they build their grass huts wherever game is plentiful, live there a few months and then move on to other hunting grounds. Here and there in the woods they dig pits about eight feet deep, which they cover with branches and turf, and in these traps they catch elephants, hippopotami and

HOME, FARM AND GARDEN.

No flower is more popular than the aster, and few have held so high a place in popular esteem for so many years, and it is still growing in favor.

For an autumn show of flowers we have not its equal.

Banana Fritters.—One pint of milk, two teaspoonfuls of flour, three eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking-powder and one-half of a teaspoonful of salt.

Slice in batter two bananas and drop by the spoonful into a kettle of hot lard.

For moving plants with delicate fibrous roots, such as melons and cucumbers, a piece of eight-inch stove-pipe six inches long is pressed down into the earth three or four inches, and then a spade is run under the "hill," and it is removed with the iron ring to its destination.

For hominy cakes take two cups of cooked hominy, and crush it with a potato-masher until it is a smooth mass. Add one level teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one cupful of flour. Stir together; then add by degrees one quart of milk, and lastly three well-beaten eggs. Bake in tin cakes.

Potato Gems.—Work one cup of cold mashed potato smooth into one cupful of sweet milk. Stir in one cupful of corn meal, or enough to make a batter which will drop easily from a spoon, with a pinch of salt, and add one well-beaten egg. Beat briskly three or four minutes, then put into well-buttered gem pans and bake twenty minutes to half an hour with a steady but not too hot fire.

For fodder purposes the ordinary sorts of corn are esteemed as preferable to the mammoth varieties, on the ground that they mature earlier in the season; thus escaping the danger of frost; are handled with much economy of labor, demand less storage space, and have withal the added and more important advantage of containing an equal quantity of nutriment matter, though the aggregate bulk be not half so great.

Cuttings folded in wet moss with waxed or oiled paper around them will go a week or more in condition if done as soon as cut. It is well to water and sprinkle the whole plant thoroughly the evening before taking off slips, and cut in the dew. At least water and shade an hour before cutting so that the plant will be in the fullest vigor.

Keep the pan of water, wet sand or moist cloth at hand to receive the cuttings as made.

Beefsteak broiled nicely and served with broiled oysters will be found very nice. Take large fresh oysters, drain and dry them. Dip them one by one into melted butter, place in a wire gridiron, and brown them on both sides over a clear fire. Then season them with salt and pepper, and put them over and around the beefsteak, pouring over all melted butter. Serve very quickly so that they may not have a chance to cool.

THE FARMER'S HOME.

Why It Should Be Well-Kept, Comfortable and Happy.

"Be it ever so humble there is no place like home" is a sentiment that will hold good as long as the world stands. The squalid peasant in overcrowded countries where the lordly rich hold down the neck of the poor, contented, because all attempts to aspire to better surroundings and conditions are crushed, or nipped in the bud, or, more likely, no bud is ever allowed to form. So his days are spent in an unending round of wretchedness, yet his humble cot is his home. All his pleasures, however meager, center there with his family around him.

But with the farmers of the United States, how different the conditions! The farmer's lot is dependence, and the latter's is independence. So it would seem that the American farmer should have a comfortable, happy home. But what should a home be—a model home? My idea is that a home should be a place which a farmer can enjoy; where his children grow up around him to years of discretion. The building should be kept in good repair. The yard should be nicely fenced and painted. Shade and fruit trees should be set out in abundance around the dwelling. There should also be a nice garden with vegetables, fruits and berries in their season, so that the pork barrel will only have to be visited at intervals "few and far between."

The children should have a good district school education and a winter or two at the academy if it can be afforded. What stock is raised should be of good blood, so that the boys will be interested and encouraged. Improved machinery ought to be used so that large results may be obtained with an expenditure of but little muscle. With the reaper, horse fork, sulky plow and other riding machinery, the farm and farming have no terrors to an ordinary energetic boy. There should be a work-shop where leisure hours and rainy days may be spent. A few necessary tools should be there, the more the better; then when a rainy day comes, the boys will be there, hard at work making or repairing something that will please the head of the family, and they will soon become expert in the use of tools, thereby saving a good many bills. And as regards the house—the home—see that it is supplied with reading matter suitable to the ages of the children. Supply them with books not of the yellow-covered kind, however; give them current newspapers, magazines, etc. If they have a desire for music get an organ or piano if it can be afforded. What a musical instrument in a family where all can gather around and sing praises to the Great Giver.

A boy that is brought up under such influences can be trusted, and, at the proper age, it would be well to give him a nice carriage, harness and horse, which he has earned many times over, and when he drives out and circulates with companions, who, without doubt, will be of the same stamp as himself, even then he will go home with pleasure because he has reared in a pleasant home, and when he leaves it to fight life's battles, it will be a leave-taking of profound sorrow.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

CALUMET AND HECLA.

Pumping Out a Lake of Water from the Great Copper Mine.

The flood of pumping the water from the flooded Calumet and Hecla mine has been one of great magnitude. No one knows the exact number of millions of gallons of water that the mine contained, but it was something enormous. When the fire was declared to be out last May and the mine was opened the water was up to the 1,500 foot level (i. e., 1,500 feet below surface). Four skips holding 1,000 gallons each and one skip holding 1,000 gallons were put at work hauling water from the mine, and drew up 1,500,000 gallons every twenty-four hours. The big pump which lifts 3,500,000 gallons a day was temporarily disabled, but in June was at work again, and since then some 6,000,000 gallons a day have been drawn out of the mine by the combined action of the pumps. A new pump, being built, and which will be the largest on this side of the Atlantic, will be in place in a short time, and water will then be hoisted from the bowels of the earth at the rate of ten or twelve million gallons per diem.

SOME HEALTH STATISTICS.

Diseases Which Caused the Most Sickness in August.

Reports to the State Board of Health by 280 observers in different parts of the State show the diseases which caused the most sickness in Michigan during the month of August, 1888, as follows:

ROASTED ALIVE.

The Horrible Fate Which Befell a Michigan Man and His Wife.

Louis Brown and his wife were literally roasted to death by the burning of their home on Point River, twenty miles from Crystal Falls, a few days ago. The fire was caused by the accidental overturning of a kerosene lamp. Mrs. Brown was unable to unlock the door, and was overcome by the flames and cremated. Her husband succeeded in saving his six children, but entered the burning house to save his money, which he kept in a trunk, but was overcome by the smoke and flames and burned to death.

A Female Forger Set Free.

Isaiah Bennett, the Detroit banker, "confessed" a large number of state business firms and forged the names of many prominent citizens to orders for gold cash, was convicted of securing money on false pretenses, but she became ill and was confined to her bed ever since her conviction until the other day, when she expired in court for sentence. Judge Gartner decided that the girl was the innocent victim of some older person, and bade her go in peace and sin no more.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by sixty-eight observers in different parts of the State for the week ended on the 5th indicated that pleuritis, bronchitis, erysipelas, pneumonia and rheumatism and cholera morbus increased, and neuritis, erysipelas, inflammation of the bowels and diphtheria decreased in prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at eight places, scarlet fever at eleven, typhoid fever at twenty-two, and measles at Detroit.

W. Gilmore, a miller employed in Smith's water mill at Eaton Rapids, met with a horrible death a few mornings ago. The previous evening he entered the mill while under the influence of liquor and laid down upon a large rubber belt. In the morning Mr. Smith visited the mill with a party of friends and started the machinery to show them the workings. Gilmore was drawn under the pulley and mashed to a jelly.

THEIR ONLY MEDICINE CHEST.

DRESDEN, MONTANA, Dec. 13, 1888.

I have been using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the last thirteen years, and though I have had nine children, I have never had a doctor in the house, except three times, when we had an epidemic of scarlet fever, which we soon banished by a vigorous use of DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS. I have used them for myself, two or three times a night for a month, for liver complaint, dyspepsia and constipation. In diarrhoea, cramps, wind colic, indigestion, one or two DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS fixed the children at once. A box of Pills is all the medicine chest we require in the house. We use them for rheumatism, colds, catarrh, biliousness and neuralgia. I never have failed to cure all the above complaints in a very few days.
