Portraits of the Emperor of Japan give him a yearning, dissatisfied expression that no man ought to wear who has a yearly allowance of $2,500,000 for his household and kitchen expenses.

Mr. JOHN WATERS, an Ohio schoolmaster, has been discharged for smiting a pupil over the head with a slungshot because he did not know how to parse a sentence. The teacher himself is now a past tense.

The people of Louisville, Ky., seem to think that "the English language as she is spoke" is good enough for them, and by a vote of 23 to 1, the School Board of Louisville has decided that German shall not be taught in the public schools.

The quantity of pine logs and round lumber shipped from the United States to Canada during the last ten years is 450,000 feet, valued at $4,500,000. In the same period Canada shipped to the United States 20,000,000 feet, valued at $160,000.

An old book soon to be published in New York for private circulation is to contain a catalogue of the very wealthy men of the United States. About forty years ago a similar book was printed and the standard of wealth then was fixed at $100,000. Now it is $1,000,000.

A year ago at Lincoln, Neb., a colored man named Warwick had a barber of this city arrested under the Civil Rights bill for refusing to shave him. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, which handed down a decision the other day in Warwick's favor.

REV. EDWARD EVERETT HALE wants the Government to pension all school teachers who have faithfully served for fifty consecutive years. This plan is all right, but how many female school-teachers can you find who will confess to being over twenty-five years of age?

Dr. DAVID D. STEWART declares in the Medical News of Philadelphia that hundreds of people are sent to their graves annually by chrome yellow in pastry. It had long been our opinion that many were sent to their graves by simple pastry, let alone this distasteful yellow.

A CAMERA, called "detective," was shown at a late meeting of the Photographic Society of Great Britain which contained some novel features. The instrument consisted of a tin camera, at the back of which was a drum, and at the front of which was a lens, and in the circumference of which six plates were ranged. By mechanism an inner drum bearing these plates was made to revolve, presenting them in succession to the action of the lens.

A REMARKABLE instance showing how a person of advanced years may be able to retain the interest of young people comes from Taunton, Mass. Mrs. Mary C. Patton, ninety-three years old, has had charge of the infant class in a Methodist Sunday-school in that city during the past forty-eight years. She never misses a session of the school, and the children almost worship her. Here is a youthful heart and head despite the lapse of almost a century of years.

A CASE of wonderful growth after death of hair and beard was brought to light by the recent disinterment of Amzi Coleman, who died in Belleville, N. J., four years ago. His beard was fully twenty-four inches long, and covered his breast, while his hair partly rested on his shoulders, and, with the beard, almost hid his features. During his life the deceased, it was said, never allowed his beard to grow more than two inches in length, and always kept his hair short.

The United States Supreme Court has given a decision which upholds the validity of State laws for the licensing of physicians and forbidding those who have not complied with them to practice. The particular case went up from West Virginia, the plaintiff claiming that the law of that State interfered with his "liberty and property" in violation of the "fourteenth amendment." The court was unanimously of the opinion that the Medical act in question was constitutional.

The population of the United States January 1, 1890, was close to 64,300,000; for the immigration during the previous twelve months was 518,518, and at the rate of increase maintained for three previous decades, with the actual immigration added each year, the population should have reached the figures above given. At the same rate, if the immigration during the period remaining should amount to 800,000, the population at the date of the next census—July 1, 1890, would be about 67,000,000. The increase is now more than 100,000 a month.

In all there are 238 schools, an enrollment of 15,212, and an average attendance of 11,748. In six years the average attendance increased from 4,042 to 11,420.

The Grand Canyon on the Colorado.

About three hundred miles from Albuquerque we approach the San Francisco Mountains and for many miles the scenery is very fine. The sides of the mountains are covered with pine forests and, as we went our way up it seems as if we were in a grand park, as the ground is entirely clear of underbrush, and we got nearer and finer views of the three snow-covered peaks of Mt. San Francisco, 12,500 feet high. At Flagstaff, in the heart of the mountains, we found a very little town with a large planing mill owned by a Chicagoan. On the western slope of the mountains the scenery is grand; the road winds, down the side of Johnson Canyon for miles, with the bottom hundreds of feet below, and we cannot help thinking of the result of a broken rail. As we feel our way along, but a few miles further on, we reach a more open country, and soon arrive at Peach Springs, 465 miles from Albuquerque, and here we leave the railroad to visit the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

We leave Peach Springs about nine in the morning for our drive of twenty-three miles to the canyon, and right here we must say a word or two about Mr. J. H. Farlee, who is the owner of the stage line and the road into the canyon; we found him a good driver and guide, possessed of a lot of information about the canyon and the surrounding country, and withal, a good cook, and as we had to depend upon him for our meals while away from town, and our appetites were unusually sharp, we valued his services very highly. The road climbs a small hill back of the town to an elevation of 5,100 feet, thence to the river, which is 1,200 feet above the sea, the descent is steady. Our road for a few miles leads through an open country with no indications of anything out of the common, but soon we get into a little valley with hills a few hundred feet high around us; gradually we descend until we are in a narrow valley with sides 2,000 feet high; then we reach New Creek Canyon, and now the walls are from 3,000 to 5,000 feet high and gradually close in upon us; for eight miles we go on down the canyon, each turn of the road bringing some new point of view, increasing the grandeur of the scene, until we arrive at the house; then we turn and look back up the canyon for miles, then on either side to cliffs 4,000 feet high and in front to the Pyramid, towering 5,000 feet above us. The house (which is used only for visitors) stands at the junction of New Creek and Diamond Creek; the former is dry, except during the rainy season, but Diamond Creek is pure, cool water and never runs dry; it is a mile from the Colorado River, which carries it to the sea, and is the most conveniently located, as it is at the foot of Diamond Creek Canyon, which boasts some of the grandest scenery in the vicinity. Before going down to the river we went up Diamond Creek Canyon; at the foot it is about 400 feet wide, but as we go up it gradually becomes narrower, our way is over rocks and stones, and we have to jump the little stream very often (during the dry season it is only a few feet wide), but we forgot all about the rough way when the grandeur of the scene; the walls are now less than 100 feet apart, and each turn seems as if it must be the last, but still we go on, until two and a half miles up, we come to a place where the opening is only twelve feet wide at the base and the walls tower 2,700 feet above, and we are literally in a crack in the earth half a mile deep. Our guide tells us that this canyon contains forty miles further, but we are satisfied, and slowly retrace our steps, and as we reach the house in the dark, we look up to Sunset Peak, 6,000 feet high and see it still gilded with the rays of the sun that had bid us "good night" long before.

Next morning we went down to the river, and as we picked our way over the rocks, it was but a repetition of the day before; at every turn we were obliged to stand still and look with awe upon the wonderful scene around us, until, at last, we reached the river, where we sat down and tried to realize the grandeur of the surroundings.

At our feet the rushing, muddy river, 300 feet wide, 125 feet deep, just below it narrows to 225 feet and is 75 feet deep, while a short distance above it is half a mile wide; then we raise our eyes, up and over the side of the cliffs opposite, until they reach the pinnacle of the grand mass of rock called Solomon's Temple, 6,200 feet above where we are sitting, but words fail to convey any idea of the scene, and the effect is overpowering.

We slowly retrace our steps and as we turn to look back an immense mass of rock rises into view; it is on the opposite side of the river, above Solomon's Temple, but could not be seen from the bank; it is known as the Tower of Babel, and is over five thousand feet high. As we journey back to town up New Creek Canyon we see the cliffs from new points of view, and they are more impressive than on the way down; on the left hand is the Sphinx, towering up above all the others and about the same height as Sunset Peak, and on the right, further up, we have Westminister Abbey, an immense rock 4,000 feet high, so-called from its resemblance to that noted building.

There is no vegetation in the canyon, except some varieties of cactus and some of the wild flowers; some of them we have never seen before, and many of them are beautiful, but there is so little verdure the awful grandeur of the scene is ever present.

It seemed to us last year, as we stood in the Yosemite Valley and saw its beauty and grandeur, that this world could not show anything to surpass it, but we have seen the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and it is grander than Yosemite, which we thought was unsurpassed, and yet we saw only a small portion of the canyon, as it is more than 300 miles long, and here are many lateral canyons, which, perhaps, surpass Diamond Creek in wild beauty, but they are inaccessible as yet. We got back to town soon after dark and early the next morning left for San Francisco, where we arrived in less than thirty hours.—W. J. Lutz, in Chicago Journal.

Some Valuable Information About Dogs.

BY A SCHOOL BOY.

The Dog is a great Source of national wealth but the Buffaloes is nearly extinct. The Dog is a domestic animal like the Wolf and Fox, but most dogs won't stand it if you tramp on their tails. He is knock-knee in the hams but he don't squeal like the Mules & pig. We have three dogs and Uncle Ben says all 3 ain't worth a plug of tobacco to him. If you don't give dogs enough to eat he becomes so avaricious that he will attack human people and on account of his great Fidelity to Man he is called the King of Beasts. The dogs are a ruminating animal and if he had horns he would chew his food. You can know he is dreaming his food when he can't get his mouth open, but if something makes our dogs awake at night Uncle Ben says they make such a racket like all the Hall was broke loose. Dogs is a source of great Pleasure to the Faithful Companion of the lonely traveler and when our Watch sees a pedler or somebody going apast our house he Lays Low till he gets past then he sneaks up behind and bites his leg. Thompson says that's the Law and you can't get over it and he says the Dog Days was made so every dog could have their days all at once, our Teacher says the dog belongs to the Wolf Family but Uncle Ben he laughed, he said he knew better than that with his one eye shut, for he said he bet a wolf would be a doggone nice Family Man. This Faithful Animal guards the house at night while all the house is Rappled in Peace look Slumber and Bill Thompson he says if a dog has wool in his teeth the next morning it is a sign he's heard sheep that night. And a dog ain't no Beast of Pray, but our Teacher she says that don't mean that he's worse than other people, for she says it don't mean that kind of pray—but the New Found Land dog is the hairiest of the whole lot who can swim more than a week before he Ascends to the surface to Breathe, he is therefore called the Ship of the Desert. And a English Bulldog is awful funny, all look Uncle Ben says if a English bulldog looks like that he would like to see a Dutch one. Bill Thompson he says if a dog has a full bloody English Bulldog looks like a Hott of a Steer's nose he is so sagacious that he won't let go even if you cut off one of your legs. Dogs run a Engine in the world. In Old Times before the war Dogs could talk Latin but nobody can talk any more Dog Latin except the professors in the Colleges. The Dogs is Up on the hole the Caninest animals that ever was and when Prof. Daislyhand made a address in our school he said if he had known as much about Scientific Animal as Boys he would have had a show to be President too but he said in them dark ages where he was born boys had no show to be President but Jo Simmons said, I bet you would sooner be a Engine than be a President because Garfield killed him, but Bill Thompson says Jo hasn't got Back Bones enough. Our Teacher she learned to talk French at Miss Krauschwanger's Boarded School and she says if you want to make a dog stand on his Hine legs in French and make a Bough, you just say Reservoir Mon Chair.—The Judge.

Class in Spelling, Stand Up.

Prof. March says the "dropping of duplicated consonants" is 1.6 per cent, and of silent e's 4 per cent. The complete clearance of silent letters saves 17 per cent. It is a current statement among spelling reformers that we throw away $10,000,000 a year in payments to printers and publishers for sprinkling our books and papers with silent letters. Now there, young man, is a plan, cheap, easy and 2 worth. I can now understand how Josh Billings got rich. Just say your letters. Don't wait 1; not 1 solitary lost letter. The silent letter must go. Swear of from the silent e's that fill up, but do not balance your cash. By abstaining from the use of all silent letters you get a saving of 17 per cent. Your salary is, say, $300 a year. 17 per cent of $300 is a saving like sum 2 save every yer. & in saving these 51 ur not losing dollar. It does u no good to be silent letters. There is no joy in it u. It does not create more blisful st8 of mind in your hart to spel belev with 3 e's and then find that u have got the 1 l on the wrong side of the l. We ider, then, that u cling to the absurd and wasteful ed'em. Turn your l8der mind 2 the economic path and 69 ways of rein spelling, and say 17 per cent of ur salary, and thus das rin stor u. But bear—I mean—that is, I mean—this one—or rather, I obstacle to your—that is, ur, sudden—I should—oh dear—der I mean—I men, shud say—or more correctly oh,—o without a h—witot a h, that is—shud sa, sudn, acqui—tation—that is, akylshyn of wealth—rather, that, and that is the following—or, more,—that is, more economically—only, only, following—I should—shud say—or, rather, I should—rather, whil you—u I mean—would—or wud, undoubtedly—oh dear—or rather der, undoubtedly say—I should—or rather shud say—so, say seventeen—ah me, 17en pr. ct, by esecwing—oh goodness!—I should—that is shud—say—or sa, o gudnes! esting all—or, rather all silent letters—with one—I t, of course—without a, you—u, that is, u, would—a rather wud, suffer with u, that is, i, a dead—or rather, ded loss with one s of seventy-five or more without a c or speaking with the a left out seventy-five per cent, invaluable without a c time without a c, ink or patience or rather pasheon in scratching out words spelled with one o r l l and l e, in the old way or rather wa, and spelling with l l and writhing with no w then in the now—that is, no way mean—or men—wa. And therefore—oh pawful! that is, and therefore osha, the loss entailed by the progressive stasle of spelling eces, ceedingly counterbalances the meager salvage theoretically effected by the paynestaking salving of an occasional beggarly e, or even the rare bonanza of a handfull of consonants in a Welsh history or a case of phth—phthlitzick. Awf with his hed! Saw match for the spelling reform!—Burdette, in Burlington Hawkeye.

Serpent Worship.

It has been suggested, and apparently with some reason, says Mr. Gordon Cumming, that in ancient pagan times it may have been a recognized symbol in serpent worship, and hence may have arisen its common use as a charm against all manner of evil. The resemblance is obvious, more especially to the species of harmless snake which is rounded at both ends, so that head and tail are apparently just alike. The creature moves backward or forward at pleasure; hence the old belief that it actually had two heads and was indestructible, as even when cut in two parts it was supposed that the divided heads would seek one another and reunite. It stands to reason that in a snake-worshipping community such a creature would be held in high reverence. Even in Scotland, various ancient snake-like bracelets and ornaments have been found which seem to favor this theory; and at a very early period both snakes and horsehoes seem to have been engraven as symbols on sacred stones. We hear of the latter having been sculptured, not only on the threshold of Old London houses, but even on that of ancient churches in various parts of Britain. And in the present day we all know the idea of luck connected with finding one, and how constantly they are nailed up on houses, stables and ships as a charm against witchcraft. In Scotland, all parts of England and Wales, and especially in Cornwall (where not only vases and omnibuses, but sometimes even on the gates of the old jails), we may find this curious trace of ancient superstition. Whatever may have been its origin, it is certainly remarkable that it should survive both in Britain and in Hindostan.—London Spectator.

Perfectly Sane.

"What an absent-minded man is Mr. Eastfoot," Clara said at the breakfast-table.
"And why, my daughter?"
"Because he is. He doesn't seem to know what he is doing. Last night while he was waiting for pa in the parlor, I asked him if he had heard my new song, 'Rock Me to Sleep, Mother.' He said he hadn't, and then just as I sat down at the piano, he got up and went away without his hat, like one in a dream. He isn't crazy, is he, pa?"
Pa looked up over his paper. "No, my daughter," he said, solemnly, as one who carefully weighs his words; "no, you bet your sweet voice, Eastfoot isn't crazy."
And a great silence, like that which follows a request for five dollars under the next Saturday, came down and filled the room with the hush of a nameless awe that hovered over the table with such an icy glare that the mullins shuddered.—Philadelphia Call.
