OUR WASHINGTON.

Celebration of the Day That Made Him President.

Graphic Description of the Scenes and Ceremonies Attendant Upon That Occasion in the History of Our Country.

EARLY in the morning, the sun shined brightly on the city of Washington, and the air was fresh and cool. The people were out in the streets, and the city was in a state of excitement. The celebration of the day that made George Washington President was being held in the city.

The first of the ceremonies was the opening of the Federal Hall. The hall was filled with people, and the atmosphere was one of joy and pride. The people were looking at the hall with admiration, and the hall was a sight to be proud of.

On this day, in Federal Hall, April 30, 1789, George Washington took the oath of office as the first President of the United States. The ceremony was a historic one, and the people were looking at the President with admiration.

This event, indelibly recorded, marked the beginning of a memorable epoch in American history. It was the day that the young Republic was born, and the people were looking at the President with admiration.

"An, Sambo," said a sick patient to his attendant negro, "I fear I'm going, and I've a long journey before me." "Nebber mind, massa," was the encouraging answer, "I'm all down hill."

YOUNG LADY (to editor)—"I see, Mr. Editor, that you published an article about Mr. Shivers. 'Yes, we used it, but we had to cut it down a good deal. We had the boy run the adjective-killer at work on it pretty nearly all day.'"

A Common-Sense Letter. Exchange. To THE EDITOR: I see that newspaper articles are again making their appearance calling attention to matters pertaining to health as well as to the means whereby disease may be removed and good health preserved. I am thereby reminded that I have received from time to time, pamphlet publications issued by the well-known firm of H. Warner & Co., which dwell upon the history and growth of kidney diseases; showing how such is the cause of consumption, heart, brain and nervous disorders, which can only be successfully treated by removing the primary disease from the kidneys. At the same time care is taken to convince the reader that Warner's Safe Cure is the only means whereby the physician or the individual can successfully prevent and cure this class of disease.

Whilst I have personal cause to feel grateful to Warner's Safe Cure, for the benefit which I derived from it when suffering from kidney troubles last spring, I can not see, since that remedy is already so well known in every household, why the parties interested in its manufacture should continue to expend money in calling attention to what the public already knows so well. I am aware, Mr. Editor, that the members of the medical profession are seldom disposed to give due credit to proprietary medicines, but public confidence is likely to be even more shaken in those learned gentlemen since the startling disclosures in the Robinson poisoning cases were made in Somerville, Mass.

It was discovered, through the efforts of an insurance company, that eight cases of death from arsenical poisoning had occurred—seven of them in one family, and within five years and the other that of a relative—wherein the true cause of death had not been even suspected by prominent physicians who were in attendance, but who treated the cases for other causes, and finally, who each estimated the fatal result, for such causes as pneumonia, typhoid fever, meningitis, etc.

After such an evidence of the utter incompetency of those physicians who were regarded as experts in their profession, I am not surprised why it will be longer necessary for further advertising to be done in behalf of Warner's Safe Cure, since I deem the Somerville disclosure to be the best possible endorsement of the good sense manifested by those who take matters of health in their own hands and use a remedy which experience has shown to be fully adapted for the purposes intended, instead of trusting themselves in experimental hands.

That Tired Feeling

is experienced by almost everyone at this season, and many people resort to Hood's Sarsaparilla to drive away the languor and exhaustion. The Sarsaparilla, however, which has been so commending for months, moves sluggishly through the system, and the mind fails to think quickly, and the veins, the blood, the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor.

Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My appetite was poor, I could not sleep, had headache a great deal, pain in my back, my bowels did not move regularly. Hood's Sarsaparilla in a short time did me so much good that I feel like a new man. My pain and aches are relieved, my appetite improved." GEORGE F. JACKSON, Boston, Mass.

Makes the Weak Strong. "For years I was sick every spring, but last year took Hood's Sarsaparilla and have not seen a sick day since." G. W. SLOAN, Milton, Mass.

"I take Hood's Sarsaparilla as a spring tonic, and it recommends it to all who have that miserable tired feeling." C. FARMER, 360 Bridge Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
