above as we had the pleasure of watching him pull one last Monday evening, which he did with perfect ease, using only his thumb and finger in place of the usual instrument. We think Jim would make a dandy dentist, and as he can extract teeth without pain, would surely draw a large trade.

Reunion.

The fifth annual reunion of the Boynton, Rockwell, Killam and Storms families took place Thursday, June 6th, at the residence of Dennis Spaulding in the town of Sylvan. The day was sunny and warm, and as beautiful as one could wish for. The guests to the number of about 100 assembled on the grounds at about 11 p. m. They were met by Mr. Spaulding and his family in such a genial and hospitable way as made all feel that they were truly welcome. The people broke up into pleasant groups and held agreeable converse until dinner was announced. The tables were set in the orchard and were covered with loads of such good cheer as only farmers wives know how to serve. After a blessing had been invoked by Rev. J. E. Reilly, all fell to and did justice to the collation in a way that assured your correspondent that none present were suffering from dyspepsia. After dinner the following program was carried out:

Music, Wedemeyer Band. Prayer and Scripture Reading by Rev. Wm. Triggs, of Morenci, a former pastor of the Lima M. E. church. Exercises. Singing and Speaking by children, conducted by Miss Dea Killam and Miss Ida Davidson to whom great praise is due for careful and masterly training. Music by Sylvan Quartette, Frank Davidson, Hattie Spaulding, Myrtle Spaulding and Wm. Davidson.
Recitation, Miss Nellie Storms. Select Reading, Mrs. Wm. Davidson. Music
Wedemeyer Band. Recitation, Artie
Rockwell, Myrtle Spaulding. Organ
Solo, Miss Minnie Steinbach. Recitation, Carrie Rockwell and Bertha Spaulding.
Address, Rev. J. E. Reilly. Music,
Wedemeyer band.

Mr. Irving Storms representing the Committee on Memoirs, eulogized in an appropriate and feeling manner, the life of C. B. Steadman, deceased, since the last annual reunion. Then the following resolutions were proposed and adopted:

Whereas, we are again called upon to record the death of another member of our Association that of Chauncey B.
Steadman, which duty casts over us a cloud of sorrow that shrouds in gloom the heart of every member, therefore be it Resolved, that as an Association we have lost a most estimable and beloved member, that while we feel the loss of a kind and faithful member we feel also that the community has lost a true and upright citizen, and that the church to which he belonged has been bereft of a strong pillar and a bright and shining ornament.

Resolved, that we as an Association extend to Mrs. C. B. Steadman our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy and condolence.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon our records and also printed in the local papers.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be presented to the widow of the deceased.

After election of officers for the ensuing year and a final piece from the band, the program closed with singing the usual hymn, "God be with you till we meet again."

Ellert's daylight liver pills are a boon to sufferers from sick headache, sour stomach, torpid liver and indigestion. Sugar-coated

A NEW system of universal telegraphic language has been proposed. It is to be used in cable lines and for international communication.

KATE CHASE SPRAGUE is writing a biography of her father, the late Chief Justice Chase. She also contemplates publishing a volume of personal memoirs.

In New York they are trying to organize a "caterpillar day," when every man and boy will be asked to lay aside other business and spend the day in destroying these pests.

The honor of having the most magnificent private home in New York belongs, it is said, to Henry G. Marquand, the Madison avenue millionaire. Almost $2,000,000, it is said, were spent by him for the decorations alone.

EDWARD HANLON, ex-champion carman, arrived in New York the other day from Australia on the steamship Zealandia, after an absence of nearly three years. He said his rowing days were over and he was going back to Toronto to live.

Not to this country alone were the recent rain-floods confined. England too has suffered severely, though not on such a tragic and sense-bewildering scale as Pennsylvania. Fully three hundred lives were lost by flood-agencies in various parts of the "land beyond the sea."

The superintendent of New York prisons received a letter recently, postmarked Philadelphia, in which the writer offered "to act as a victim to science" in a test of the new electrical apparatus for killing criminals, conditioned upon the payment to his family of $40,000.

ELIZA JANE STARR, an Oakland (Cal.) widow, has petitioned the Supreme Court to increase her allowance of pin money. Her husband would give her $1,500 per month, and she is now only receiving $1,000, which she claims is not sufficient for her incidental expenses.

A LETTER was recently discovered among the Massachusetts State archives written by William Cullen Bryant in November, 1814, and soliciting "in the present struggle with a powerful enemy a lieutenant in the army about to be raised for the protection and defense of Massachusetts."

The most eastern point of the United States is Quoddy Head, Me.; the most northern point is Point Barrow, Alaska; the most western is Alton Island, and the most southern Key West. Working from these four points many will be surprised when they locate the geographical center of the United States.

HAROLD P. BROWN, of New York City, to whom has been let the contract for furnishing the three electrical machines to be placed in prisons of that State for the execution of criminals under the new law, says that with his machine the time for the passage of the criminal from life to death will be the one hundred and fiftieth part of a second.

RECENT experiments to ascertain within what limits the ear can distinguish the difference in the pitch of two sounds show that the smallest difference perceptible by untrained or only slightly trained ears appears to be from one-sixth to one-fortieth of a semi-tone. It is said that a peculiarity that seems to apply alike to trained and untrained ears is that they detect upward differences more easily than downward.

THE Churchman, speaking of the death of Damien, the leper priest, says that outside of the walls of Jerusalem is a leper hospital tended by deaconesses from the German religious houses. "Year after year these heroic women, without pretentiousness, without any trumpeting of their work, almost unknown to the world, have waited upon lepers, while themselves literally dying by inches. Their courage has only come to light by the chance notice of travelers."

THE Conemaugh disaster has stimulated the people living near large artificial bodies of water to begin a thorough inspection of the dams holding this water in check. The Boston reservoirs have been inspected, and the people are reassured that the dams are of solid masonry. The same is true of the dams in the Housatonic valley, where many smaller cities have their water supply; but the dam above Olean, N. Y., which was built to form a reservoir for the old Genesee canal, is similar to that in the Conemaugh valley, and has been condemned.

THE Philadelphia Inquirer says: "When will we reach the enormous figure of a round 100,000,000? War, famine, or deadly and widespread plagues, it should be before another fifteen years have passed. Assuming the rate of increase to be 84 per cent. from 1890 to 1900—and it will certainly be no less than this—our population in the latter should be more than 86,000,000. Five years later it should be 100,000,000, or more than that of any other country on the globe with the three exceptions of India and the Chinese and Russian empires."

TO THINK of having a hole bored through your nose in order to facilitate breathing is almost brutal. But it is not considered so in these days, for the operation is performed on all sorts of persons. The carmen of a certain college who have just submitted to it are merely following a current fad of one school of directors. The part that is bored is the cartilage between the nostrils inside the nose. The hole is bored by means of a sort of wire drill, and the operation is said not to hurt at all. Very many ladies, as well as men, have their noses bored.

The Coroner's Jury Renders a Verdict Holding the Noted Lawyer Guilty of Complicity in the Cronin Murder.—Full Text of Their Decision.

SULLIVAN IN JAIL.

CHICAGO, June 12.—At 4:45 p. m. Tuesday the jury in the Cronin inquest took the case and retired for deliberation. Shortly before 10 p. m. the coroner announced that the jury had agreed upon a verdict. Only Coroner Hertz and a small knot of spectators were in the room. The verdict was read in slow and impressive tones:

"We, the undersigned, a jury appointed to make inquiry according to law as to how the body viewed came to his death, state as our verdict from the evidence:

"1. That the body of that of Patrick H. Cronin, known as Dr. Cronin.

"2. That his death was not from natural causes but from violent means.

"3. That the said Patrick H. Cronin was murdered by being shot in the back with a revolver at a distance of about ten feet from the body, and that the murder was committed by one or more persons or persons to be unknown.

"4. That the body after said murder was placed in a trunk and carried to Edgewater on a wagon by several persons and by them placed in a catch-basin at the corner of Evanston avenue and Fifty-ninth street, Lake View, where it was discovered May 31.

"5. That the evidence shows conclusively to our minds that a plot or conspiracy was formed by a number of persons for the purpose of murdering said Cronin and concealing his body by plot or conspiracy was deliberately contrived and cruelly executed.

"6. We have carefully inquired into the relations sustained by said Cronin to other persons known to us, and to ascertain if he had any cause of enmity with any person sufficient to cause his murder.

"7. It is our judgment that no other person or persons except some of those who are or have been members of a certain secret society known as 'United Brotherhood' or 'Clan-na-Gael' had any cause to be the instigators or executors of such plot or conspiracy to murder said Cronin.

"8. Many of the witnesses testifying in the case have done so with much evident unwillingness and, as we believe, with much mental reservation.

"9. We find from the evidence that a number of persons were parties to this plot and conspiracy to murder said Cronin, and that Daniel Coughlin, Patrick Sullivan, Alexander Haggerty, and one Woodcock, alias Black, were other principal conspirators, and had guilty knowledge of said plot and conspiracy to murder said Cronin and conceal his body, and they should be held to answer to the grand jury.

"10. We also believe that other persons were engaged in this plot or had guilty knowledge of it and should be apprehended and held to answer to the grand jury.

"11. We further state that this plot or conspiracy in its conception and execution is one of the most foul and brutal that has ever come to our knowledge, and recommend that the proper authorities be requested to make a discovery and conviction of all of those engaged in it in any way.

"12. We further state that in our judgment all secret societies and objects, such as the United Brotherhood that of the Clan-na-Gael or the United Brotherhood, are not in harmony with and are injurious to American institutions.

"13. We hope that future vigor and vigilance by the police force will more than compensate for past neglect by a part of the force in this case.

"It is reported in police circles that no less than thirty warrants are being made out for suspected accessories all of which will be served at once. The list is said to include the following: John F. Beggs, Officer Dan Brown, Harry Jordan, Michael Boland, Lawrence R. Buckley, Peter McManus, D. J. Cullen, and John Moss.

It is also reported that a warrant will be issued for the arrest of Henry Le Caron, the English spy, and his extradition demanded. The majority of those named are prominent officers of the Clan-na-Gael.

Immediately upon the verdict being rendered, Sheriff Palmer, Broderick and Williams drove in a carriage to the residence of Alexander Sullivan, Oak street, in the North division. Even on this critical day the coolness which has characterized the noted Nationalist from the opening of the investigation remained.

Although the jury had retired before he had left his law office, a crowd of shadows of the county building were placed in front of the trunk which was placed in the wagon. By directions he drove to the pier at the lake of Fullerton avenue, the intention being to throw the trunk into deep water. Some fishermen were encountered, however, and it was decided to drive to Edgewater, across the lake.

Here, while reconnoitering the lake, a police officer questioned them and being alarmed they determined to drive toward the city again. When passing the man-hole they ordered him to stop. The trunk was taken by the two men and lifted into the boat. Then, after a too large, however, to go in. Then, after they kicked in the side and deposited the body in the basin. Woodcock testified at the time it was the corpse of a woman. The trunk was lifted back into the wagon, but subsequently thrown into a canal, where it was found.

When they departed, the men in Lincoln Park where they busied.

A loud buzzing went through the courtroom when the chief concluded, and it was renewed when Coroner Hertz, holding up a small package, announced that he proposed to submit some of the private papers of the deceased. He first read two dispatches from New York, one dated January 13, and signed T. McMahon, requesting the doctor to be peremptorily at Westminster Hotel January 15 for a committee meeting, and the other dated January 18, signed Ronayne, saying: "It is requested by proper authorities that you send your report on the trial."

To this a copy of the reply was appended: "I vote as I did at the trial. Mackey has the records." Then came the minority report of the Philadelphia, signed by Dr. Cronin. Finally the coroner admitted the notes of the evidence.

In this document the objections raised by the deceased having first been identified. The protest was overruled at length. The notes were read by the coroner, and the names of the witnesses were given. The notes were read by the coroner, and the names of the witnesses were given.

The evidence went on to tell of the men sent across again and taken another man to help him was John J. Maroney. He was given only $20, and soon after his arrival in London the money gave out. Again he was called on by British detectives.

One of the notes became fragmentary. One paragraph was missing. The work was to be done although money ran short. Saturday they were given $300. The witness did not use his assumed name in London but that of the triangle's agent. This agent, who was not with him four miles of where the work was done, was John J. Maroney. "I thought that Mr. Sullivan knew that Cronin was not fit to associate with us."

"What else was said?"

"Well, just about that time a circular was sent out to members of the order, saying that several hundred Scotland yard detectives had been sent over here to investigate the doings of the Irish revolutionists in this country, and the members were on the qui vive for traitors or for those who might be willing to sell the secrets of those who were to elevate our race and were engaged in a noble cause. The feeling was very bitter among us, and the life of any man suspected of being a spy would be in great danger. I must say I agreed in these sentiments. I thought that any man who could be base enough to betray the secrets of the order was vile. I coincided with Mr. Sullivan that these people should be exterminated."

"Was this sentiment expressed to others?"

"I presume it was. Tim Crain, the district officer who was scattering this information from man to man, could have told hundreds. Crain also spoke the same as Sullivan. The name of traitor rouses before an Irishman's mental vision a very vengeful idea. I can assure you. The Irish know that the secrets of those who were to elevate our race and were engaged in a noble cause. The feeling was very bitter among us, and the life of any man suspected of being a spy would be in great danger. I must say I agreed in these sentiments. I thought that any man who could be base enough to betray the secrets of the order was vile. I coincided with Mr. Sullivan that these people should be exterminated."

"I would like to, but my memory fails me as to the exact words. The substance of it was that Cronin was dangerous to the Irish cause and should be removed from our ranks. He was to give any man such a reputation as, for instance, Le Caron has, would put him in danger."

"It certainly was. The language used by Sullivan or any other man, pointing out a man as a spy in our midst, was enough to make any man who was not a man such a reputation as, for instance, Le Caron has, would put him in danger."

Witnesses said that Le Caron was a member of the committee which tried Dr. Cronin for treason. Le Caron was introduced to Haggerty by Alexander Sullivan as a reputable man, and a confidant.

"In the obligation that you took as a member of the order is there any thing that would be binding on you to remove a man if the order came to you from the executive?"

"There is not."

"Do you obey such an order?"

"I certainly would refuse to obey such an order."

"Do you think it possible that other men, less conscientious and with less brains than he, would obey such an order?"

"I am sorry to say that I believe now, since having the revelations at this trial, that there are men who might construe the duties of the obligation as binding to that extent."

"Did Sullivan's remarks have weight with you and make you suspect Cronin?"

"They certainly did. He was a prominent man in the order, and from his relations with the order I knew that he was a man of more than ordinary importance, and I attached great weight to his opinion. I did not think, though, till I read it in the proceedings of this trial, that Alexander Sullivan could be guilty of being an accessory to this diabolical assassination."

"Do you believe so now?"

"The testimony here proves that he was a friend of Le Caron, and such a man would do any thing."

The afternoon session was full of interest. Haggerty, the Swedish ex-priestman who hailed the order as the Clark street fact opposite Cronin's office to the Carlson cottage, told his story. He said he had seen the man that hired him several times since that day.

Other Moore told of a conversation he had with Sullivan in which the latter said that Sullivan intended to kill him and that he knew there was a conspiracy to put him out of the way.

The next witness was Chief of Police Hubbard, who repeated a statement made to him by the prisoner, Woodcock, and true story of the effect that two men named King and Hertz had hired him several days before the tragedy to have a horse and wagon ready when they notified him, paying him $35.

On May 4 he was ordered to be ready at 9 o'clock. He drove the man to the Carlson cottage, and about $250, and he was out with the trunk which was placed in the wagon. By directions he drove to the pier at the lake of Fullerton avenue, the intention being to throw the trunk into deep water. Some fishermen were encountered, however, and it was decided to drive to Edgewater, across the lake.

My Neighbor's Chickens.

Of all the nuisances that make
A rural life accursed,
My neighbor's chickens take the cake
For being just the worst.

I rise betimes to plant a bed—
As soon as I'm away
Those hens, by the big rooster led,
March in and spend the day.

And when I hasten home at night
To see my labors crowned,
Those chickens, with a cyclone's might,
Have scratched my pretty ground.

My wife the baby leaves alone.
To shoo those hens away.
But as she cannot throw a stone
They laugh at her and stay.

Around my house is little seen
But dusty holes and dirt;
They eat the grass before it's green
And all my flowers hurt.

My neighbor has a garden, too,
And keeps it looking fine,
For he has trained his pirate crew
To fly right into mine.

In case I shoot the feathered plague
I go to jail, alack.
If in my yard they drop some eggs
My neighbor wants them back.

Beneath my window ere the dawn
His rooster comes to crow,
Till I, half crazy, seek the lawn,
To see him strut and show.

I live in strife and misery,
Because my neighbor tries To handle chickens that should be Upon a farm of size.

Something About Round Shoulders.

A stooping figure and a halting gait, accompanied by the unavoidable weakness of lungs incidental to a narrow chest, may be entirely cured by a very simple and easily performed exercise of raising one's self upon the toes leisurely in a perpendicular position several times daily. To take this exercise properly one must take a perfectly upright position, with the heels together and the toes at an angle of 45 degrees. Then drop the arms lifelessly by the sides, animating and raising the chest to its full capacity muscularly, the chin well drawn in, and the crown of the head feeling as if attached to a string suspended from the ceiling above. Slowly rise up on the balls of both feet to the greatest possible height, thereby exercising all the muscles of the legs and body; come again into standing position without swaying the body backward out of the perfect line. Repeat this same exercise, first on one foot, then on the other. It is wonderful what a straightening-out power this exercise has upon round shoulders and crooked backs, and one will be surprised to note how soon the lungs begin to show the effect of such expansive development.—Ex.

A Public Nuisance.

To the Editor of the HERALD:
Sir—Will you allow me space enough in your paper to express the feelings of a lady in regard to the crowds of men (?) and boys that every Sunday as well as nightly congregate around two of the street corners in the principal business part of the town. This has become, to a number of ladies at least, a public nuisance. So much so, that they are expressing themselves strongly on the subject, and ask: "Where is our town Marshal?" and why he does not enforce the law, and thereby remove the street obstructions. We feel that we have the law on our side in this matter, and have, or ought to have, the hearty co-operation of the business men whose stores are in the vicinity of those corners. They certainly must have noticed that ladies, rather than pass by those crowds to enter their stores, go somewhere else to do their shopping. On Sunday they gather in groups in those public places and stare and comment on the passers by as they please. I know of ladies that have gone around on other streets so as to avoid this. Now this should be stopped at once. Ladies who go to and fro without escorts, especially, should be protected by the law.

A Woman of Foresight.

A Springfield woman, with an invalid husband who was not expected to live, thought she would take time by the forelock and engaged a dressmaker several weeks ago to make a full suit of mourning for her. This week the dressmaker received a letter stating that the looked for event had not yet taken place and the wife had decided to wait until the death of her husband, as she wished her suit made in the latest style. This cheerful postscript was added to the letter: "Please do not get discouraged about it. You will be sure of the job sooner or later."—Ex.
