RUINED RESORTS.

Many Noted Watering-Places Along the Atlantic Coast Suffer Greatly from the Wildest Storm Known for Years - A

this section was the most terrible in the memory of man. The beach from Rehoboth to Lewes is strewn with wreck, and it is thought at least fifty lives were lost in Delaware bay. Men were seen clinging to the rigging of the sinking vessels. The lite-saving crews were powerless to render assistance owing to the fury of the gale. It was a terrible sight to witness. Their bodies were washed ashore and were buried in the sand along the water. The loss to vessel property at the breakwater will reach, it is thought, $5,00,000. The loss of life in Delaware bay by the storm has been almost as heavy as during the great bilistered of March 1888. Three coal lidger, carried away. At Coney Island the bifzzard of March, 1888. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12 .- The terrible storm which has prevailed along the coast for so many hours past has left Atlantic City, N. J., in a frightful condition. The place is almost entirely under water. The 10,000 permanent residents and more than 10,000 hotel guests are panic-stricken at the steady encroach-ment of the sea and the awful hurricane prevailing. Not a train can reach or leave the storm-beleaguered city. A famine is threatened. There is no milk, no vegetables, no meat, no eggs, and before another day dawns there will be nothing kinds. Several bodies have been seen left but bread and water. No trains have left the flooded city since Monday morning. The devastation and ruin is appailing and the loss of life is as yet a matter of conjecture. The rain began falling in torrents Tuesday morning, and all through the da ed its copious volumes to the general inundation, and when nightfall enveloped the was submerged by the flood, yarying in depth from one to five feet. During the night the gale developed into a hurricane, the waves gathered redoubled power, and with Wednesday morning's flood-tide they swept the coast with a destructiveness that was appalling. Whole squares of board walk were thrown high into the air, the shattered timbers falling down in a shower of infinitesimal pieces; pavilions, bath-houses, booths and other buildings were raised bodily and carried out to sea or throwngon the beach n a mass of ruins.

Large three-story houses were quickly undermined and fell in the boiling surf into fragments and stout bulkheads were shattered and the heavy timbers east about as if they were match-sticks. The iron pier was swept away, and between this point and States avenue all the buildings and stands were destroyed by the breakers. The thousand and one buildings, including bath houses, photograph and shooting galleries, shell stores, booths and stands of every description, all went down and mingled their debris in the whirlpool of destruction. It was a scene never to be forgotten and was fraught with thrilling incidents and hairbreadth escapes. Fire and water was the dread combination which assailed the dozen or more buildings on the Ocean terrace. This strongly protected spot juts out into the ocean The terrace was entirely surrounded by water and it was necessary to carry each information about the men. Parties have piece of furniture through the rushingwaters, filled with the floating debris. The terror - stricken women and children were carried to a place of safety first and then followed the movable articles. But long before the hardy men had completed their task the undermined buildings succumbed to the onslaught of the waves and toppled over seaward. They remained in this condition until midnight, and then, when the frightened and nervous hotel guests were endeavoring to get a few hours rest, a the earth has gone down over twenty feet, sheet of flame was seen to shoot up from the ruined buildings. It was a period of owners will exceed $100,000. Outside the howling hurricane and the commotion attending a The bottom has fallen out of a number of fire at night struck terror into the hearts cellars in the neighborhood and a farmof the women, but they were in no actual danger. The flames consumed all the wrecked structures on the terrace.

From Pleasantville town to Atlantic City the railroad tracks are almost entirely destroyed and the West Jersey road, sections of a mile in extent, are carried away out of sight. The heavy steel rails are twisted into every conceivable shape, and for miles in succession the rails and ties have been carried ten to twenty-five feet from the roadbed.

The news from Longport was to the effect that a monster wave swept along the coast from Great Egg Harbor bay up to South Atlantic City, doing incalculable damage to property. All com-munication with this exposed section is cut off, and lives and prop erty alike may have been destroyed with out the knowledge of the inhabitants of Atlantic City. There is but little doubt that Peters' Beach House has been swept away. The Young Northern Michigan Desperade view of the isolated place.

The inhabitants of the houses on the Penrose track had a thrilling race for life before the rising waters, and it is said that a number of lives were lost at that place and among the outlying meadow tanements. The losses will undoubtedly run into millions of dollars, and it will be many years ere the city by the sea will be many

Next to the continued ravages of the storm, the greater dread is folt at the alarming scarcity of fresh meats and vegetables. Even the water supply is limited, for the mammoth standpipe of the water company has been partially wrecked by the storm. Governor Luce Pardoned Josep Mulligan, of Mason County. Governor Luce recently pardoned Joseph Mulligan, who had served a four years' sentence in Jackson prison, having been convicted of an assault with intent to kill. He was sent up from Mason County, where he bore a good reputation. On account of his general good character, because he had a sick and helpless wife, who, during all her husband's imprisonment, has struggled on against sickness and poverty to keep her children together; because the prosecuting attorney of the county in which he was convicted, who also was the one who prosecuted him, appealed in his behalf, and also because the judge by whom he was sentenced and many influential citizens all pleaded for his release, the Governor has extended this clemency. He was sent up from Mason County, where the Height of the Tempest.

Lewes, Del., Sept. 13.—The present storm has proved to be the most disastrous experienced here since 1867. Thirty vessels were wrecked within sight of town, at least as many more went ashore further down, and about sixty persons perished Wednesday night. The pecuniary loss is estimated at 16,000,000. The captain and nine men of the Kate E. Morse, have the same feared had gone down have which it was feared had gone down, have seen saved after two days and nights of great hardship and are safe here. They report, however, that the captain and crew of seven or nine of the schooner Walter F. Parker were certainly drowned. They saw the men go down one by one almost before their eyes. No part of the Parker has yet been found. Captain Peter Nelson and three men of the barge Casilda, bound to Philadelphia from Boston, came ashore in their own dory. The crew of the barge To-wanda, of Philadelphia, are on the tug Argus, which took them off after the old

They carried dent to the fire as follows: five men each, and it is feared they are lost. At daylight the life-saving crew rescued willing men who were unable to help them. The vessels were tossed about at the mercy of the elements, and when they went ashore and the crews attempted to escape the angry waves caught them in their embrace and hurried the poor fellows to watery graves. The schooner A. L. Snow, of Taunton,

Mass, probably from Philadelphia, was discovered this afternoon between the Brown shoals and the Brandywine by a tug. The schooner was in a fair condition, though he had been abandoned. The tug passed p and down repeatedly and whistled, but

The schooner Elfa R Simpson went ashore near Hog Island Wednesday night, and will be a total loss. Specials state that three schooners and four barges went down near Brandywine shoals. They were close to the schooner E and L Bryan, and all on board were lost. The barges were loaded with coal from Philadelphia. The estimate of loss on the above vessel is thirty-nine lives. The pilot boat E. W. Tunnell, of Lewes, left last Sunday, and has not been heard of since. She had four pilots on board and a crew of eight men. WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The following is Commissioner Tanner's letter of resignation and President Harrison's reply thereto: "DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, BUREAU OF PENSIONS WISHINGTON D. Section 1989.

"DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, BUREAU OF PENSIONS, WASHINGTON, D. C., September 12, 1889.—To the President: The differences which exist between the Secretary of the Interior and myself as to the policy to be pursued in the administration of the Pension Bureau have reached a stage which threatens to embarrass you to an extent which I feel I should not call upon you to suffer, and as the investigation into the affairs of the bureau has been completed, and I am assured, both by yourself and by the Secretary of the Interior, contains no reflection on my integrity as an individual or as an officer, I herewith place my resignation in your hands, to take effect at your self-sufficient of the self-set at your self-sufficient of the processing the self-set at your hands, to take effect at your self-sufficient of the self-set at your hands, herewith pince my resignation in your hands, to take effect at your pleasure, to the end that you may be relieved of any further embarrass-

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, September 12—Hon. James Tanner, Commissioner of Pensions: Dear Sir—Your letter tendering your resignation of the office of Commissioner of Pensions has been received, and your resignation is accepted to take effect on the appointment and qualification of your successor.

"I do not think it necessary in this correspondence to discuss the causes which have led to the present attitude of affairs in the Pension Office. You have been kindly and fully advised of my views upon most of these "It gives me pleasure to add that so far as I am advised your honesty has not at any time been called in question, and I beg to renew the expression of my personal good will. Very truly yours, Benjamin Harrison."

Washington, Sept. 13.—Mr. Tanner was in his official chair all day Thursday signing his mail and attending to his last acts of office. When he was notified that his resignation had been accepted he bade his personal friends good-bye and went to his home in Georgetown. It is not probable that his successor will be appointed under several weeks, and the office may remain in the present condition until after Congress convenes in December. The President has not determined just what he will do. The report that the office is to be given to Major Warner, late Commander of the Grand Army, is denied, and it is said at the Interior Department that his coming to Washington at this time is in connection with the report of the Sloux Indian Commissioners. Corporal Tanner is undecided as to what he will do. The reports about his having been tendered various appointments at the hands of the Administration are without authority or fact. No trade was entered into for the purpose of inducing Mr. Tan-ner to retire from office and no compro-mises were made. In an interview Mr. Tanner said: "The President did not ask for my resigna-tion nor did he advise that I resign. He assured me, however, that the investigation into the affairs of the Pension Office had developed nothing that reflected upon my honesty or my good intentions, and said that if I remained in office Secretary Noble would resign. The dismemberment of a Cabinet is a very serious thing, and I decided that it was better that I should resign, since the unreasonable preju-dices of Mr. Noble could not be overcome." Secretary Noble declares that there has been no break in the personal relations between himself and Mr. Tanner. He also says that the story of a wrangle between himself and Secretary Tracy was made out of whole cloth and was

Private Secretary Halford says: "No issue was ever made by Secretary Noble to the President as to whether he or Mr. Tanner should go. There was never any formal Cabinet consultation about the matter and there was no disagreement whatever among the members, much less any exchange of incivilities." The names of Judge John P. Rea, of Minneapolis, and ex-Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, have been added to the list of those mentioned in connection with the office of Commissioner of Pensions. Hancock command, Union Veteran Union, Thursday night adopted resolutions condemning the Administration for accepting Tanner's resignation and indorsing the latter's management of the Pension Bureau. Most of the criticism heard here is directed toward Secretary Noble and Assistant Secretary Bussey. Where there has been expression on the part of members of Grand Army of the Republic it is generally directed toward these officials, who are believed by some not to have been as friendly toward the Commissioner as they should have been.

Assistant Secretary Bussey asserts his innocence of the charge that months ago he encouraged an estrangement between Secretary Noble and the Commissioner of Pensions, or that he in any way contributed toward placing the Commissioner in an embarrassing attitude toward either the Secretary or the President or the people at large. Both Secretary Noble and Assistant Secretary Bussey say that they have no personal feelings toward Mr. Tanner and that the differences which have existed have been confined exclusively to official business.

No Cure No Pay.

It is a pretty severe test of any doctor's skill when the payment of his fee is made conditional upon his curing his patient. Yet after having, for many years, observed the thousands of marvelous cures effected in liver, blood and lung diseases, by Br. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, its manufacturers feel warranted in selling it, as they are now doing, through all druggists, the world over, under a certificate of positive guarantee that it will either benefit or cure in every case of disease for which they recommend it, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. Torpid liver, or "billousness," impure blood, skin eruptions, scrofulous sores and sweilings, consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), all yield to this wonderful medicine.
