The Star-Spangled Banner" Waves Over Chelspa's Union School.

Last Friday was the happy day. It rained, and we were all glad of that. But the particularly happy event was the flag raising that took place in the afternoon. At 2 o'clock the procession formed at the school house, and, led by the Chelsca Cornet Band, that always inspires the citizens of Chelsea, old and young, marched through the rain to the Town Hall. When all were seated, there was room for but few more; and these were soon in their places. The hall was crowded to the door. Prof. Hall, our new Principal, who seems to be a model of promptness,

After a stirring opening by the Band and a song by the High School Choir, To prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Holmes. Mr. Ernest Shaver was in Jackson last The pupils then, from the First Primary to the High School, were called upon, in the order arranged on the program, and performed their parts with a spirit, promptness and perfection seldom wit nessed on such occasions, and worthy of all praise. There was not a moment's hesitation, not a word of prompting, from the beginning to the end. So perfectly was each part performed that it would be invidious to speak of one as more excellent than another. Enthusiasm ruled the hour, raising both listeners and performers quite above the plane of criti-

THE FOURTH DAY.

Mrs. Conklin, with Whom Dr. Cronin Boarded, the Principal Witness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 .- The principal witness in the Cronin case yesterday was Mrs. T. T. Conklin, who testified as to the manner in which Dr. Cronin was enticed from his office on the night of May 4. Her description of the man who drove him away tallied closely with that given by Liveryman Dinan of the stranger for whom Dan Coughlin hired the white horse. She saw Frank Scanlan approach At the meeting of Camp 20 on February 8 wit the buggy and speak to the doctor just as they were about to drive away. Dr. Cronin gave Mr. Scanlan some keys. The parties in the buggy then drove away, and that was the last time Mrs. Conklin saw Dr. Cronin alive.

John J. Cronin testified to his posi-Cronin by certain physical peculiarities which he was not called on to detail. The doctor's name, he said, was Patrick Henry Cronin. He was born in County Cork, Ireland, and was either 44 or 45 years old when he died. The witness was an older brother. On cross-examination it was the remains until after the post-mortem. Frank T. Scanlan was the next witness. He saw Dr. Cronin last alive about 7:30 o'clock on the evening of May 4. This was just as he was getting into a buggy standing in front of his office. Witness asked the doctor where he was going and the latter replied that he was going to attend a man hurt at an ice-house "up north." Members of the Clan-na-Gael Prove Un willing Witnesses CHICAGO, Oct 30 .- After a couple of unimportant witnesses had been heard at yesterday morning's session of the Cronin trial the State called John F. O'Connor, recording secretary of Camp 20, of the United Brotherhood, or Clanna-Gael. He had been a member of the the doctor was a suspicious circumstance order for six years, and now belonged to the branch known as Camp 20, or the Columbia Club.

Mr. Foster, counsel for Beggs, said that "on behalf of the defendant Beggs we want the record to show that no objection is made on his part to the introduction of this testimony.'

Mr. O'Connor proceeded. He said John F. Beggs was senior guardian of Camp 20. Martin Burke, Dan Coughlin, Patrick Cooney and Patrick O'Sullivan Reilly, were members. There was a meeting of the camp on the night of February 8 Captain T. F. O'Connor was there and made a few remarks, but witness did not hear him say there were spies among the members; that the triangle needed investigation, and that they were wasting or embezzling the funds of the order. Witness said a motion prevailed to appoint a secret committee to investigate the question as to whether the report regarding the trial of the triangle had been received in another camp, but he had no knowledge as to whether or not the committee was ever appointed.

At the afternoon session the first withe belonged to Camp 20. He was at the meeting on the night of February 8 and made a few remarks. Captain T. F. O'Connor had said that Informer LeCaron had been engaged by the executive body of the order for some object in England and Ireland and there was some money given to LeCaron by the executive—he thought it was in jails.

William Lynn, a pal of Sampson's, william Lynn, a pal of the fying before the Parnell Commission. Witness spoke concerning this. He said that if there were spies in the camp they ought to be driven out. Judge Longenecker asked him if O'Connor accused anybody of embezzling the funds. He said by implication he accused the triangle, but made no direct charges. He knew Burke, Coughlin. O'Sullivan and Cooney, and they were all members of Camp 20.

Andrew J. Ford, past guardian of Camp 20, was not present at the meeting of February 8, but attended a reunion February 22. None but members of the order were present. He heard Patrick McGarry and Richard Powers, visiting members, make speeches. Guardian Beggs also made a speech. McGarry and Powers made speeches the executive, saying they had wasted the funds of the order and betrayed it. Beggs, he said, defended Alexander Sullivan in a warm speechin fact, the speakers on both sides were pretty warm. Beggs said there must be peace or war. The witness would not be sure whether Beggs used the word "war" or "blood." Beggs acted the part

Murder of Dr. Cronin.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—At the Cronin trial yester day Dennis O'Connor, a member of the Clan-na-Gaet for twenty-one years, testified. He heard Captain T. F. O'Connor's speech in which he said he had been in Dr. Cronin's campand heard read there the minority report of the committee which tried the executive body. Witness did not know who were members of the executive it being a rule of the order that the personnet of that hody should not be known by members. #### THE SEVENTH DAY. Interesting Testimony by Several Wit-

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 .- In the Cronin trial yesterday George Reilly, a bar-keeper, testified that in March, 1889, about a week before the spring election, he overheard Dan Coughlin say that a North side Catholic was talking too much, and would get the worst of it. The remark was not made secretly. James Quinn corroborated

W. P. Hatfield, salesman for A. H. Revell & scribed the purchase on February 18 of a trunk and various articles of furniture from him by a man giving his name as J. B. Simonds, and afterwards identified the goods taken from the der of Dr. Cronin as the "Simonds" had bought. The trunk was brought into court. It was a medium-sized packing trunk and partially filled with cotton batting, and blood stains were plainly seen in the bottom. After an examination of the trunk by the witness he said it was identical with the one he sold to Simonds. John W. Sampson, better known as "Major," testified that, accompanied by a young man amed William Lynn, he went to see Dar Coughlin about two years ago. The witness ness called was Andrew Foy. He said When he met Coughlin the latter offered pay him well if he would lay for good beating. The witness said he did not feel disposed to earry out Coughlin's wishes, and never met the detective after that. On cross-examination Sampson admitted that he was a gambler, a passer of counterfeit money, a robber and experienced in most every form of scrime except murder; that he had been arrested many times and spent more or less time called. His testimony consisted of the corroboration of the meeting between Sampson and Coughlin at which Coughlin requested impson to "slug" Dr. Cronin.

Edward G. Throckmorton, who, as the representative of Knight & Marshall, rented the rooms at 117 South Clark street to J. B. ids, told how Simonds called at his office on February 18 and said he wanted the rooms for a brother who was coming from the East to have his eyes treated. Witness gave a personal description of Simonds, which corresponded with that given by other witnesses. Court adned to Friday, at 10 a. m.

On April 17 or 18 the witness asked O'Sullivan if he knew the men who had rented his cottage. He said no at first, but afterward said he knew one of them, and asked if the rent was due. Witness told him it would be due on the 20th. O'Sullivan said: "We'll, I will pay it then." Witness then described how he broke into the cottage, found the floor painted yellow except in two or three spots, and saw foot prints in the paint and stains on the walls. The chairs were lying on their sides, one of them being broken, as if a struggle had taken piace. There was also a bedstead and mattress, two blankets and two pillows without cases, a dressing case, one wash-bowl and pitcher, a perors.

Patrick Henry Nolan testified that he was financial secretary of Camp 30. Coughlin's number in the camp was 94; Beggs', 256; Cooney's, 211; O'Sullivan's, 356, and Burke's, 332 in the camp. Witness was at a meeting on the night of May 3. John F. Beggs presided. Some one asked if the report of the committee appointed at the meeting of February 8 had been made, and Mr. Beggs said that the committee was to report to him alone. On cross mingled expression of recognition and contempt, and without saying a word he jerked his hand toward Burke and walked back to his chair. The dentification was complete John C. Garrity was next called to corre the testimony "Major" Sampson gave to the effect that he had been sent to Coughlin by witness and asked by Coughlin to "slug" Dr. Cronin. Garrity swore that Coughlin two years ago asked him if he thought Sampson would do a job for him. Witness asked of what the job consisted, and was told by Coughlin that he wanted a man slugged in the neck with a club or bat. Witness saw Sampson and sent him to

A Synopsis of the Report of Secretary Rusk of the Department of Agriculture-A Prediction That Pleuro-Pneumoni Will Soon Be Thoroughly Eradicated-He Urges the Passage of a National Beef Inspection Law. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture, the first issued under the newly constructed department, will be made public to-day. It calls attention to the fact that the first It calls attention to the fact that the first efforts toward a reorganization of the department were hampered because the appropriations for the current fiscal year were made entirely upon the basis of the old organization, no account being taken of the entire change in the statue of the department. The financiary fusists upon the necessity for ade-Secretary insists upon the necessity for ade-quate appropriations to enable him to meet what he believes to be the obligations of the department to the country. In this connection ho draws a comparison with the appropriations made for agriculture by those countries which the report says "are the most active competiidentified by the person who sold it; that an inner circle existed in Camp 20; that Beggs was the Senior Guardian of that camp and ordered tors of American farmers in the world's mar-

000,000 for agriculture and mines; France, $8,000,000, and Austria, more than $4,000,000. The Secretary expresses gratification at the success with which he has been enabled to get the results of the department's work before the people by utilizing the press of the country, and, referring to the press reports, says:

Following is a synopsis:

"While approximate, it is in danger of becoming discredited by the popular acceptance of its results as exact in precision and absolute in authority. It should be companioned that be remembered that they are not the con-clusions of a thorough census, though they may be far better than the work of a poor census; that they are the consolidations of local estimates of agricultural experts, and are intended as a foil to the interested, blased and untruthful statements that speculators issue to mis lead their victims."

Of the rapid development of agriculture in the Rocky Mountain districts the Secretary says: "The results will surprise the Eastern States with new views of the wealth and prog ress of the great American desert of the recent past," The Secretary, in this connection suggests the appointment of a State statisti-cian in every State and a comprehensive plan of agricultural surveys of the States and

The condition of the sugar industry is reviewed in detail and the results declared to be of a mixed character, in some cases yielding well and in other cases proving disappointing. The region where the sorghum-sugar industry may be attended with success has been localized in the southern part of Central Kansas west and south of Wichita, and in parts of the Indian Territory resembling it in soil and climate. There are perhaps other parts of the United States where similar success could be secured, but these have not been pointed out.

The report urges the duty of the Governmen to assume a more definite supervision of such forest areas as are still owned by it and so occupy a position of importance in the regulation of waterflow and of other climatic conditions, and emphasizes the importance of the relations which the forests bear to the problem of irriga-tion in the arid lands of their Immense annual

The subject of agricultural organizations is dwelt upon earnestly, their astonishing growth during the last few years being cited as a strong evidence of the growth of the spirit of self-help among the farmers. The farmers' institutes are referred to particularly as one of the great-est movements in the history of agriculture and as the strongest lever for raising and upholding the work of superior agricultural education represented by our system of agricultural colleges and experiment stations The Secretary recommends, without going into details, that the department should be empowered to afford aid and encouragement to this work.

In regard to pleuro-pneumonia the situation is regarded as most encouraging. Thanks to the cottage one night after May 4. which has been out of blast for seven years, the vigilance and vigorous measures which have been exercised, this disease is now effectually under control and restricted to Kings and Queens counties in New York State, to New Jersey and a limited section in each of the States of Pennsylvania and Maryland, A careful review of the field, together with the arrangements made for the supervision of the limited districts still infected, justify, in the Secretary's opinion, "the prost sanguine hopes" in regard to the proximate complete eradication of the disease.

The language used by the Secretary in urging the adoption of a National meatinspection law is pointed and vigorous. The necessity for inspection at the time of slaughfirst, to enable the authorities to promptly locate any cattle disease centers, and, secondly, to avoid the anomaly of leaving the inspection of our meat products to the officers of other countries, thus giving foreign governments some show of reason for the clair that they have better opportunities for learning of diseases among American cattle than are enjoyed by our own Government. Authority and means are also de-sired to enable the department to exercise a close supervision of the economic side of the cattle markets, the characteristics of stock commanding the highest price, varia-tions as to age, weight and quality, and all facts bearing upon the cattle industry which will enable the bureau to supply to farmers such information as it is impossible for them to obtain for themselves.

The sheep and wool industry secures special attention in the report. The reduction of the tariff in 1883 is earnestly deplored. To it is attributed the great reduction in the number of sheep, which has since then fallen off by about 7,000,000 head, while the importation of wool has increased from .78,350,651 pounds in 1884 to 126,-487,729 pounds the last year.

In conclusion the report submits figures showing the importance of agriculture, which produces an annual yield of nearly $4,000,000,000, employing on the 5,000,000 farms 10,000,000 persons, representing a population of 30,000,000 peo-ple, while the value of live stock alone is estimated at $2,507,000,000.

A RESUME.

What the State Has Proved in the Cronin Trial by Sixty-Three Witnesses So Far Examined—More Links Added to the Chain of Evidence Against Burke— Senator Kennedy, One of the Latter's

Lawyers, Withdraws. CHICAGO, Nov. 4.-Up to the close of Saturchicago, Nov. 4.—Up to the close of Saturday's session the prosecution in the Cronin trial had examined sixty-three witnesses. By their combined evidence the State's lawyers have identified the body as that of Cronin; they have established the cause and the motive of death; they have shown conclusively that Dinan's horse it was which carried Dr. Cronin to his doom; that the said white horse was the same horse which was hired on behalf of the stranger by Daniel Coughlin. The State of the stranger by Daniel Coughlin. The State has proved that the tenant of the Carlson cottage was Martin Burke; they have proved the connection between Burke and O'Sullivan; that the furniture bought at Revell's was driven to the cottage, leaded and unloaded by one of the prisoners; that the bloody trunk found on the roadside in Lake View has been reasonably the secret committee to report to him alone. They have proved the relations between the various prisoners in the streets and in saloons; they have proved that Martin Burke was in the office of John F. Beggs soon after the meeting in Camp 20, where the secret committee was formed; that Beggs said that Cronin was not a proper man to belong to Irish societies, in the opinion of Beggs, and that Coughlin on a previous occasion hired men to remove him. Burke and Cooney have been proved to be together, and Coughlin and Burke and Coughlin and Burke and Coughlin and Burke and Coughlin and Burke and Coughlin and Beggs, and they have proved the connection between Burke and O'Sullivan. It was announced Saturday afternoon that Senator Kennedy, the Wisconsin lawyer who has been of counsel for Burke, had withdrawn

The Herald says Senator Kennedy's withdrawal, if current report be true, was caused by Forrest undermining him and because he was almost ignored by all of the other lawyers in the case and the prisoners. It is claimed that Kennedy is not only convinced of the guilt of the men on trial, but that he believes every one of thent to have had a guilty knowledge of the attempt to bribe the jury.

PROCEEDINGS ON SATURDAY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.-At Saturday's session of the Cronin trial Charles Carlson was the first witness on the stand. His testimony in the first part was nearly corroborative of the nar-rative of his wife and his father as far as the hiring of the cottage was con-cerned. He saw Williams again when the furniture was moved in. With him was Martinson, the expressman, and another man, shorter than Williams, slender in build and dark complexioned. When Williams came to pay another month's rent, on April 20, witness saw him. The next time he saw him was in the jail at Winnipeg. The witness, pointing at Burke, identified him as Williams.

Mr. Hynes then interrogated the witness concerning the entrance into the cottage made by himself, his father and Lindgren, his brotherin-law, after the receipt of the letter from Hammond, Ind. Carlson said: "We couldn't find any key to the door and I went round to the front door. I found that the shutter was open. The catch wasn't on the window next the stairs, and we got in. The carpet was gone and they had poured paint on the floor. It hadn't been brushed except in certain places. There were also bloody stains on the base-boards. There was a hig blood stain near the north side and one in the middle of the floor. The rocking-chair's arm was off, and the furniture was moved into the middle of the room. I wasn't in there again until the next day after the body was found. The officers went with me then. The appearance of things was just the

The witness said he saw foot-prints in the paint which looked as though they might have been made by a man walking in his stocking feet. He saw a man prowling around came from Williams. The witness could not describe him very well, because it was quite dark when he met him.

"Was the man you saw coming out of the cottage any thing like that man on the pillow? pointing to Kunze.

The sick prisoner slowly turned his head on his pillow till he faced the witness fully. The two men looked at one another for a moment and then Carlson shook his head slowly and said: "No, that is not the man."

The State did not push the identification of the man seen by Carlson, but authenticated rumor has it that later on it will show that Kunze and the man are one. Mr. Hynes questioned Mr. Carlson as to his observations on the night of the murder, but with little result. Carlson said he went to bed that night about 7:30. Mr. Forrest's cross-examination was well calculated to confuse the witness who might be trying to give conned or made-up testimony. Questions which invited direct answers were craftlly put, but in no case did Carlson trip. The next witness was Mrs. Johanna Carlson and once more Burke was identified quickly and emphatically. Mrs. Carlson's story consisted in a repetition of many features of the other Carlsons, adding that she noticed the condition of the walls in the cottage before Will lams took possession, and after the murder. The defense fought against that part of the story going in the record, but it went in just the same. The walls unspotted before, were in places splashed with blood. Then Halkan Martinsen, the expressman who hauled the furniture from 117 South Clark street to "Murderers' Cottage," took the witness chair, and he, too, identified Burke as the one who hired him. Martinsen said that on the last of March a man came to his stand at the corner of Chicago avenue and Market street and bargained with him to take a load of furniture from 117 South Clark street to Belmont and Ashland avenues. This was in the middle of the afternoon, and witness was He was there on time, and met the man who had hired him at the door. He was told to wait on the sidewalk. He did so, and the man and another, who the witness described in a manner that pictured Simonds, carried the furniture down. Asked what furni-ture there was, he said a bed, some chairs and a trunk. The trunk was again brought into the court-room and Martinsen said it looked very much like the one he hauled. A large strap was around the trunk he hauled, and the trunk was empty. Arriving at the Carlson cottage the furniture was taken into

"Do you see the man who hired you?" asked the State's Attorney. "Yes, he sits next to that sick man," pointing at Burke. The witness next saw Burke in jail at Winnipeg, whence he was taken to identify Burke worried more over his identification by this witness than by any of the preceding witnesses. He flushed very red and look troubled. and ever after kept a steady gaze on the ex pressman. The cross-examination simply de-veloped the fact that Martenson had received pay while in the care of the police, and that now he has a city job taking care of horses in a patrol stable. Mr. Donahue, for the defense, said he might want to further examine the witness, and court adjourned until Monday moing.
