Advance in Advetteing Rates, Continued.

Regarding my advertisement which Mr. Emmert says was not frozen out of the Standard, I would say that in his item in last week's HERALD regarding advertising and postal laws, he virtually admits that he would have been compelled under the A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor was in town existing postal laws to publish my locals, as he calls them, just as they had previously been published, and at regular column rates. If I had asked him to distribute them among his other locals in the local columns, then he could have

I wish to state right here that any of Mr. Emmert's advertisers have a perfect right to fill their entire advertising space with locals if they wish, and Mr. Emmert will have to publish them at regular column rates, and if he refuses to do so, under the existing postal laws, he can no longer mail his paper as second-class matter at 1 cent per pound, but thereafter Glazier, the Druggist, will be obliged to pay 1 cent postage on each paper mailed. I would like to ask Mr. Emmert to answer frankly and EULL OF squrely whether the above statement is correct or not.

Standard: "Thursday, Dec. 12, an advertisement containing a "stocking," was handed in; also some locals. We told Miss Tichenor. (who brought them) that the advertisement, with the exception of the "stocking," would be published, but owing to the "carnival" item in that week's issue, it would be impossible to put the "stocking" in type. The locals, we told her, would be published at 5 cents per line, which is the same rate that R. A. Snyder, H. S. Holmes, Hoag & Holmes and all others pay." (who brought them) that the advertise

What Mr. Emmert did say was this : "Mr. Glazier has imposed upon me long enough. His contract for advertising has expired, and if I publish the locals he will have to pay 5 cents per line for them; also that it would take nearly three days to set up the "ad." containing the "stocking," and that he would have to charge $10 for it."

As the same "ad." had been accepted at the HERALD office without one word about any extra charge, and as 1500 Christmas circulars just printed, contained the "stocking" as well as much more P. J. As I do not wish to do Mr. Emmert any injustice, I will state that just as Miss Tichenor was leaving the store, Mr. Emmert told her he would set up the "stocking for $5. "Only a $5 drop on a $10 stocking." Whether Mr. Emmert would have made any profit on it after a 100 per cent. drop, we leave the reader to judge. Respectfully,

A Cheap Necklace

Regarding the necklace claimed that I sold Mrs. Emmert so much below regular price, would say that it is only another instance of my free-heartedness, and endeavor to kut not only others prices, but my own as well, for the benefit of our customers. However we were slightly busy about that time and I may possibly have given away several necklaces, in order to accommodate the eager and impatient crowd of purchasers that thronged my store at that time. In fact it has been reported that we actually gave away over five hundred dollars worth of Christmas presents to our customers, the few weeks before holidays.

This report may have been started by our "particular" friends, and "circulated by our enemies who thus hoped to injure Henry Stapish, while trimming apple us." Be that as it may, it would hardly trees for his father, last Saturday, had the be becoming of me to call them "liars."

How MANY black-haired women do you know? If you will take the trouble to count you will find that out of ten women you meet nine will have blonde hair of some shade and the tenth will possess dark brown rather than black. The tendency of the times seems to be towards light-haired women; but we don't mean the ones whose hair is made light by the use of peroxide of hydrogen. Scientists tell us that as a nation grows more civilized its women grow more perfectly blonde, and students in the mysteries of love, say that the blonde women are the most affectionate GREAT distress prevails among the miners in Northumberland County, Pa., and in the towns of Treverton, Shamokin and Mount Carmel, due to the action of some of the owners in closing down their mines. Mr. Grady was ill when he left Atlanta for Boston to deliver the speech recently delivered there. He went contrary to the advice of his physician and returned quite sick. Saturday his condition was very serious and Sunday it was understood that there was very little hope for his recovery. The announcement of his death was a great shock to the people.

His message to his mother in a conscious moment Sunday was character-istic. "If I die," said he, "I die serving the South, the land I love so well. Father fell in battle for it. I am proud to die talking for it." He leaves a wife and two children.

All of the courts have adjourned, and many of the city buildings are draped in mourning. Some of the emblems are touching in telling the story of the love which all, great and small, have for this most brilliant man. Mrs. Grady has received a great many messages of condolence, among the senders being ex-President Cleveland, Hons. Samuel J. Randall and Roswell P. What made Mr. Grady's name known in the North was his famous speech at the annual dinner of the New England Society on the evening of December 29, 1887. He was the first Southerner to speak at a dinner of the society since the war. Before half a dozen sentence had left his lips he had fired his audience. His characterization of Abra-ham Lincoln as the first typical American called forth a storm of cheers, and not less warm was the recognition given to his eloquent and touching picture of the Souths's heroism in defeat. In short he swept his audience by storm, and in the moment of intense silence which followed his peroration it was realized that the Southern orator had spoken words which Americans would not willingly let die. The speech has since been reprinted far and wide and commented toon, generally with enthusiasm, throughout the entire country.]

Sr. Paul, Minn., Dec. 26.—Christmas Day, 1889, proved the most remarkable in thirty years in the Northwest. The Mississippi river is open from St. Paul to the Gulf, and steamboat excursions were the order of the day throughout this section. Steamers left the docks in St. Paul. and Winona at. 2 p. m. Full bands were on board for dancing, and ice-cream, soda water and lemonade were served. Fans were distributed, and linen dusters and straw hats formed part of the attire of the excursionists. WINONA, Minn., Dec. 26. - With the thermometer 54 above zero the second annual Christmas excursion of Southern Minnesota took place Wednesday. The attendance was nearly 1,000. The people in this vicinity turned out en masse in linen dusters and straw hats. A regular midsummer holiday was celebrated. Farmers here are seeding wheat and plowing in celebration of the fine weather, and pansies, roses and many delicate flowering shrubs are in full bloom. Holland, Mich., Dec. 26 .- The young people enjoyed a Christmas boat-ride to the summer resorts on the steamer Lizzie Walsh Wednesday afternoon, something that has not happened before since the settlement in 1847. JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 26.-The convicts at the penitentiary were entertained on Christmas Day by the Cambridge Dramatic Company, which gave them a pleasing performance. A feast followed the entertainment. CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Hundreds of persons strolled about the streets Wednesday without overcoats, and they felt no discomfort, the air was so balmy and spring-like. The day was observed in the usual manner at the churches, theaters, etc. Merchants generally are dissatisfied with the mild weather, it having a tendency to depression in the holiday trade.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 26 .- Christmas Day was a reminder of spring, the thermometer registering during the day 70 degrees. Grass has not yet lost its greenness, and in many places is starting a fresh growth. Sap is running from trees, and common flowers, like the dandelion, are in full bloom. Such Christmas weather is not remembered by any one.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 26 .- A couny seat election is soon to be held in Rawlins County, in the northwestern part of Kansas, the towns of Atwood and Blakeman competing for the honor of being the seat of government. Forty-seven dwelling houses and stores have already been moved to Blakeman and the pur-

Омана, Neb., Dec. 28.—La grippe, or Russian influenza, is prevailing here in epidemic form. It is estimated that fully two-thirds of the people are suffering from it at the present time. It is in mild form, only about half those attacked being confined to their beds if medical treatment is promptly given. There have been no deaths. Physicians look upon it as a developed stage of epizootic and successfully treat it from that diagnosis.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 28 .- "La grippe" has reached here at last. Many cases of influenza are reported by doctors and the city health department, while the hospitals have their share. Five thousand cases is a low estimate to place on the number of victims. Boston, Dec. 28 .-- Boston is overrun

When the attack has begun it seems to be desirable to give one or two grains of calomel at night, inhale some sulphurous acid gas, and have the patient sit in a room where steam containing oil of eucalyptus can be inhaled in large quantities. As the medicament is prompt and prolonged in action it should be given not more than twice a day, unless the dose be much smaller than is advised above. Salicylate of cinchonidine and quinine should be given as a prophylactic remedy, if there be reason to suppose that such power is really expected by, it. My own conviction is that as a prophylactic the combination of cin-chonidine with salicylic acid is preferable to quinine. For the depression and melanchely it is probable that atropine will do better. For the distressing headsche, joint pains and wakefulness, antipyrin, acetantiid, phonacetin and other remedies and antiseptics will, no doubt, be found useful."

INDIAN GRATITUDE.

An Experience I Had While Scouting It Out West.

That Some Red Skins Can Feel Grateful Is Clearly Shown by the Following Good Story—A Kind Act Doubly Paid.

While I lived in the Indian country for upward of twelve years, and encountered the red man daily, either in peace or war, I never considered him worth studying as a man. Indeed, in only one single instance was I satisfied that there was any thing to study. I felt that he was to be taken as a surly, brutal, inconsistent, and revengeful chunk of humanity, and any search for fine sentiment was time thrown away. This one instance occurred during the savage Indian campaign which ended in Custer's death.

In the fall of 1866, while I was carrying a dispatch between two temporary posts on the Arkansas river, and when midway between the posts and twenty miles from either, at the hour of noon, I came upon an Indian lying on the ground between two of the monotonous ridges on the plains. I saw him while vet forty rods away, and I knew that he shot through the head, as I supposed, as one side of it was covered with blood. and while I sat on my horse and looked down on him a dozen or more buzzards the force of hostiles were reduced by even one, for every Indian was a hostile in those days, and was about to ride on when the supposed dead man uttered a

I was down beside him in a moment. I had a bottle of brandy and a canteen of water, and when I had poured some of the former down his throat, and used the latter to wash off some of the blood, he opened his eyes and looked at me in a way to prove that he had his senses. I could speak the Sioux dialect like one born in the tribe, and I presently asked: "Who are you, and how came you to be in this condition?" "Why don't you kill me?" he asked.

"I have no wish to harm you."

"But the white man and Indian are enemies. We kill whenever we can." "If I found you seeking my life I should try to take yours. As it is, you are almost dead, and I am willing to aid you in any way I can." He looked incredulous, and composed aimself for the death-blow; but as I mixed some water and brandy and handed it to him, and again investigated the nature of his wound, he finally explained that he was a member of Little crow's band. The Sioux tribe, as a tribe, was then split up into half a dozen bands, each under the leadership of a sub-chief. He would not fully explain what had occurred, but told me sufficient to enable me to supply the rest. He had attempted to run off with one of the subchief's three wives, and had been pursued, overtaken, and left for dead. The bullet had not entered his skull, but had plowed through his scalp clear over his head, making him unconscious for several hours and making a terrible wound to look at. There was water in a sinkhole a quarter of a mile away, and I juries. He was sitting up and feeling quite strong when I offered to do a bit of surgery for him. He grunted his assent, and I took needle and thread from my pack and brought the scalp together and stitched it in half a dozen places. No Indian will give his feelings away in his face if he can possibly prevent it, but this young fellow made no effort. He looked his amazement and increduling his hand he stared at me as if he could not comprehend my motive. We were enemies. There were from three to six of indicated. By daylight I was safe at a us with each stage, according to the de- dug-out on the mail route, and it was meanor of the Indians, who, at times, seemed determined to prevent all travel. A skirmish of some sort was an every day occurrence, but one afternoon, as aiding my escape and was tomahawked three of us were riding ahead of a stage in which were three civilians, we were ambushed from a cut or ravine. The party of Indians numbered twenty-one, and they did a very singular thing. My two companions were shot dead at the first volley, while my horse was killed. They did not molest the stage at all, although it could have been easily captured, but let it go and turned their attention to me. When my horse went down I took his body for a breastwork and opened a rapid fire on the advancing Indians, while the stage driver whipped up his horses and was soon out of sight. No one man, no matter how brave and well armed, could be expected to stand off and when a person rests his whole such a band of Indians very long. I killed | weight upon one foot, there should be a one and wounded another, and then they scattered and circled me. This deprived me of the protection of my breastwork, and, knowing that I had no show whatever of rescue, I stood up and signaled the fact of my surrender. He was one of the first to declare my identity as a Government scout, and to argue that I ought to be put to the torture at once. Several other young men agreed with him, but the older heads would not listen to any thing of the kind. I was greatly shocked to find that this second band held as prisoners a white man named Cooper and a boy named Peters. They had been captured together thirty miles away while hunting for a lost horse. The man seemed dull-witted, and did not apparently realize what was in store for him. The boy, on the con-trary, keenly appreciated his danger and was all unnerved. He was only sixteen years old, pale and sickly, and when I saw him in tears I could not reproach him, although I warned him that to administer greater punishment. At dusk we all set off together in a northwesterly direction, and after riding a distance of eighteen or twenty miles we reached an Indian camp on a creek running into the Solomons river. This creek is called "Wolf;" "Bear," "Crow" and several other names, but military records speak or it as Snake high antiquity. A writer in the Quarterly Review, describing the ancient courts in Greece, says: "We have all courts in miles we reached an Indian camp on a only the old men and boys were home. All the warriors were off on the warpath. About half a dozen, two of whom were wounded, came in however, two manner of making known their were wounded, came in, however, two hours after our arrival, and next morning I saw one band of fourteen come in from the east. Each prisoner was placed in a different quarter of the village. A family near the center of the village vacated a lodge for my benefit, and when left alone I found myself so securely tied that I could neither move hand nor foot. A warrior was placed on guard at the door, and after an hour or two of rejoicfetched some and worked away at him until I could see the extent of his inlie on my right side, and the throngs pained me so that I could not sleep. I was facing the door of the lodge, and it was within half an hour of daybreak, when a voice whispered in my ear:

"Let my brother keep up a stout heart! I will seek to release him when

It was the voice of the warrior I had eration he never uttered a groan. When I had his head in shape I divided my luncheon with him, and was amazed to see what an appetite he had. As we finished I said: "You are not able to travel, and if you were you are defenseless. What do you propose to do?"

The guard at the door appeared to be asleep, but if I had been able to work out of my bonds I should not have made a move toward escape.

Morning dawned soon after my visitor band for a time, if ever," he replied left, and the whole village had eaten after a moment's thought. "As my white breakfast before seven o'clock. How This Irregularity Can Be Relieved Without Much Difficulty. The bones of the foot are arranged from behind forward in the form of an arch, upon the top of which falls the weight of the body. The bones are held together by ligaments which yield a Jackson. little when pressure is applied, thus forming a sort of elastic cushion which prevents the sudden jar of walking or jumping from being communicated to the rest of the body.

Under normal circumstances the arch should sustain the weight of the body, space at the middle of the sole which is not brought into contact with the floor except the outer border.

In certain people, whose tissues become lax through debility, the tissues which bind these foot-bones together lose their normal tension, becoming flaccid and easily stretched, so that the bones are not kept in their fully arched position, but tend to flatten out.

Such a condition is known as flat-foot. It may be present in varying degrees, and is difficult of correction in proportion to the extent of the falling and the whose occupation forces them to stand or walk a great deal, especially if they are very heavy, are most likely to suffer in this manner.

There is noticed first an aching sensation in the arch of the foot or under the heel. Sometimes almost the only evidence of the condition is the presence of trouble. The patient walks with a pe-culiar stumping step, as though he had wooden feet, and generally "toes out."

In older and more severe cases artificial supports become necessary, these being plates of steel, either worn inside the shoe or built into the counter. The immediate relief to the wearer is very great, and generally a complete cure results after a longer or shorter time, the ligaments becoming strengthened and allowing the artificial support to be discarded .- Youth's Companion.

Health in Michigan. Reports to the State Board of Health by forty-seven observers in different parts of the State for the week ended Decembes 21 indicated that cerebrospinal meningitis, membranous croup and scarlet fever increased, and inflammation of the brain, cholers infantum, cholera morbus, diarrhea, dysentery, crysipelas, typho-malarial fever, inflammation of the kidneys and puerperal fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-nine places, scarlet fever at twenty-five, typhoid fever at twenty-one, measles at eight and small-pox at Muskegon.

Claims Valuable Land.

Henry Caby, whose real name is Kishka-ko, lives in Arenac County, is a greatgrandson of an Indian chief of the same name, and he sets up a claim that in 1819 his royal ancestor was, by treaty with the Government, given sections 28 and 29, on which the most valuable part of Bay City stands; and now his lawyers propose to get the land for him or get the money value thereof. It is alleged that the treaty records show no further disposition of the land has ever been authorized since the treaty of 1819.
