CHELSEA, FEBRUARY 26, 1880.

The Year in Review.

THE years of this busy human life of ours are crowded with events. Some of them stand boldly out in history, marking the beginning and end of important epochs; while others add only short chapters to the story of the world.

The year 1879 will take its place among those last mentioned; unless, indeed, some of its events have results more far-reaching than we now foresee. There has been no desolating war in the twelve months just passed, and no brilliant work of statecraft. Yet a survey of what has taken place will not be fruitless.

Europe has been at peace. The formal treaty between Russia and Turkey was signed in February, though hostilities had ceased months before. Some slight difficulties have arisen as to the States newly created out of Turkey's former dominions. Once or twice threatening clouds have arisen, but they have been quickly dispelled. A treaty, the object and terms of which are little understood, has been concluded between Germany and Austria.

Internally there has been some disturbance in the countries of Europe. In Russia, the specter of Nihilism has been stalking through the land, carrying terror to the czar on the throne (whose life has twice been attempted), and to the upper classes of Russian society.

In Ireland, the British Government is puzzled how to deal with the farmers who have banded together to resist the payment of rent for the land they till. Italy, too, has been stirred by agitators, who wish the Government to wrest from Austria the provinces which they say should belong to their own realm.

France has had a change of Presidents. Marshal McMahon resigned on the 30th of January, and M. Jules Grévy was elected his successor on the same day. Important changes of ministries have taken place in Spain and Italy. The young King of Spain has just taken an Austrian Archduchess as his second wife, his first Queen Mercedes having died some 18 months ago. In Germany, Prince Bismarck's policy has undergone a marked change, and an election of a new Parliament in Prussia has given him a majority which supports his new views.

No political changes of moment have occurred in Great Britain. The country has had on its hands two "little wars," one in Afghanistan, in Asia, the other in Zululand, in Africa. In each of these wars the English have suffered severely, but in both they have been finally successful.

If we turn our eyes westward we shall notice in South America a war of Peru and Bolivia against Chili, declared at the beginning of April, and not yet concluded. A revolution has taken place in Venezuela, and another in Hayti; a third has been attempted and is not yet wholly crushed in Mexico; and a new insurrection has broken out in Cuba.

The main event of the year in the United States have been the successful resumption of specie payments, and the refunding of the public debt. A prolonged though fruitless contest occurred in Congress in the spring, and gave an issue for the political parties to fight over in the State elections later in the year. Otherwise, the year has been barren of political events.

In one aspect, it has been a year long to be remembered. To the farmers of Europe it has been the most depressing months of bad trade they have known since the reverses in this country in 1873 spread business stagnation through the world.

In this country the year has marked a turning-point. Our crop was the largest and best of a series of fruitful harvests. Before the middle of the year, trade began to revive with wonderful vigor, and the improvement has not only lasted, but become greater than ever. Our foreign trade has been immense, and its profits have been returning to us in the form of gold, to the amount of about seventy-five million dollars in a few months.

Among the commercial events of the year should also be mentioned the movement for a canal through the Isthmus of Panama, which was originated by an International Congress at Paris in May; the laying of a new telegraphic cable from France to Massachusetts; and the bank troubles in England and Wales, Canada and Louisiana.

The year has given us its full share of disaster and death. The plague has made its ravages in Szegedin, in Hungary; the yellow fever has once more visited the fated city of Memphis.

But comparatively few persons of great distinction have died. The Prince Imperial of France, the hope of his party, has been killed by the Zulus. Senor Espartero, an old Spanish statesman, has died of apoplexy. The famous French economist, Michel Chevalier; Mr. J. A. Delane, for 36 years editor of the London Times; Mr. Roebuck, a member of the British Parliament who attracted notice by his strong advocacy of the Southern cause during our Civil War; Mr. William Lloyd Garrison, the anti-slavery apostle of this country—these are perhaps the most prominent men who have passed away.

If we look back, we also look forward. And if our eyes do not pass the limits of our own land, we foresee for the year 1880 a season of large material prosperity, and of intense agitation over the Presidential election. There is nothing discouraging in the prospect, and we may have reason to hope that the universal aspiration for a good year will be realized.

The rumor seems well-founded that a number of prominent citizens of Baltimore have resolved to erect a monument to the memory of the late Dr. J. W. Bull, discoverer of that wonderful remedy, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

ITALIAN POSTAL CULIOSTIES.—The distribution of letters is, in fact, one of the weakest points in the Italian postal system. Except in large towns the post-office does not profess to make any house-to-house distribution at all, except on the payment of a small fee; generally a sou for each packet delivered to the postman, and in the large towns the delivery is done in a very careless manner. The postman rarely takes the trouble to climb the stairs to the different apartments, except just before Christmas, but contents himself with leaving all the letters for a house with a porter, who delivers them whenever he happens to be going up stairs; if the porter is not in the way the letters go back into the bag until the next round is made, or are even sometimes left at a shop near. No wonder then that letters frequently miscarry without such willful intention as the postman showed, who was discovered one Christmas stuffing all his letters into a sewer-grating that he might get the sooner to his Christmas dinner. The excuse for non-delivery is that with houses of five or six stories the work is too hard for the postman; but the remedy for that is obvious. It is only fair to say that the post-office does not recognize this hazardous distribution; but complaints only remedy the evil for a time, and somehow one's letters seem to miscarry more frequently after making them. As a consequence most business houses pay a small fee to the postoffice to have a box of their own, into which all of their letters are put, and withdrawn by a messenger.

The difficulties put in the way of cashing post office orders (and, also, it may be added, of obtaining registered letters) are most vexatious. You must produce some one to identify you who is known to the officials, and it is easy to see how difficult this may often be; otherwise in material certificates is required, and that is only removing the difficulty a step further.

THE DIFFERENCE IN PEOPLE.—We are not all constituted alike. There is Simpkinson; for instance; He will listen to you for hours, while you tell of your bodily pains, your financial troubles, your family infelicities and the harassments in your business, and go off, after you have exhausted yourself in the distressing recital, with a springing step, shoulders thrown back, and head erect, chuckling to himself, "By George! never felt better in my life!" Health!

A money all drawing good interest, business thriving, and no wife or family to bother me! I pity that Jones! I do, by George!" But there is Doubleheart, on the contrary who will shut you up in an instant with some such unfeeling remark as, "You are working yourself too hard, Jones," or, "Times are going to be better, now, you bet!" or, "You are a happy dog to have a family, if things don't go smoothly all the time; look at me, miserable wretch, without chick or child!" Yes, we are not all alike.

To My Friends and Patrons.

I would say do not be alarmed about high prices, and the great advance that is talked about that is said will happen in the near future. It is mostly talk, for "any reasonable thinking person" will see at once that there is no excuse for it. The price goods for Ready-Made Clothing for Spring and Summer Wear, was purchased by manufacturers last Fall when there was scarcely any advance, and with the great competition in the United States, one can see at once that there is no reasonable reason for an advance this Spring, and I intend (if not in person) in reality, to remain in the

CLOTHING, HAT, CAP AND FURNISHING GOODS

BUSINESS IN ANN ARBOR,

I will have something to say about Prices of Merchandise in my line. I might add here that I have not made as absolute a change in my business as I first desired and thought I would. But owing to present circumstances I am glad things have shaped themselves as they have. By having my Clearing Sale my friends have not only received a benefit, but I have got my Stock in better condition than I otherwise would have had it, and will have during the coming year

More NEW GOODS to select from than any other Clothing House in the County.

And would advise all to inspect my Stock before making their purchases, for I am consummating arrangements by which I will buy my Goods at Less Profits to the manufacturers than I ever did before, and will sell accordingly. During my absence my Store will be managed by CHARLES A. HENDRICK and TRUMAN H. WADSWORTH, and assisted by THEODORE A. REYER.

Thanking my friends for many past favors, I am

Very Respectfully, Yours,

JACKSON, MICHIGAN, February 25, 1880.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—A WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH. One of the most distressing and heart-rending accidents we have witnessed for some time past, happened on last Saturday morning. Between the hours of eight and nine o'clock, the people living in the neighborhood of Chicago and State streets were shocked at hearing the screams of Mrs. Elizabeth Hall—wife of Jonathan Hall, a teamster for the Jackson Coal Company, who had taken an epileptic fit, and fell upon a stove in her sitting room, this fit of the ordinary description for burning soft coal, and the poor woman's dress, as she fell against it, and dropped upon the floor, caught on a projection of the door, and in a moment ignited. There was no one in the house but herself and her little boy, six years old, who tried to disengage her clothing, but without success, and soon she was in a mass of flames. The pain, resulting from the fire, soon restored her to consciousness, when she sprang to her feet and ran shrieking from the house. A neighbor, hearing her cries, and, at a glance, taking in the situation, seized a bed comforter and ran to her relief. Every vestige of her garments was destroyed, and she was so badly burned, from her head to her ankles, that the flesh peeled from her bones in shreds. The unfortunate woman died in a few hours after, retaining her faculties to the last, but suffering untortured agonies. The deceased leaves two boys, aged six and thirteen years; her age was thirty-four years, and is spoken of as a kind and good woman.

JOTTINGS. The old train buildings occupied by the Gregg bakery, on North Main street, which reminds the pioneer of early Jackson, is soon to be pulled down, and a handsome three-story brick block erected. The ground floor is to be occupied by D. V. Bunnell, as a clothing store, and with one of the handsomest saloons in the city. A few more of such improvements would greatly add to the beauty of our main business street. From all indications there will be considerable building going on this spring, and the outlook for our mechanics and laboring classes is cheering.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. Quite a large delegation from this Congressional district, met in convention on Wednesday last week, at the Reform Club Hall. D. P. Sagendorph, of Eaton Rapids, was elected President, and G. J. McCandless, of Jackson, Secretary. The committee on resolutions endorsed the action of the State Convention, to be held at Lansing, August 6th, and Resolved, "That truth and consistency demanded that in the exercise of the right of elective franchise, that we vote for no man not known to be a temperate and well defined temperance man, and that we vote for no man for the Legislature of Michigan for 1881, that is not out and out in favor of a submission to the people of this State of a Constitutional amendment, forever prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks to be used as a beverage." The convention lasted two days, and a spirit of earnestness and strong prohibition feeling seemed to characterize a number of the delegates, led by their venerable agitator, Judge J. L. Vidler, of Jackson. The gathering was in every sense a success, and large audiences greeted the public meetings.

REVEREND NOTES. The Rev. Dr. Hugh, the esteemed pastor of the First Congregational Church, is delivering a course of Sunday evening lectures, on the inspiration of the scriptures. These discourses have been full of instruction, and the authenticity of the Bible has been eloquently vindicated. The Lenten seasons being observed very generally by the members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and St. John's Catholic Church, and the services are being more largely attended than usual. M. N.

was passed authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to designate a vessel of the United States to carry free of charge contributions for the relief of the suffering poor of Ireland.

At the expiration of the morning hour the house went into committee on revision of the calendar for the year 1878.

The third clause of rule 28, which provides that all appropriation bills, or bills involving a tax or charge upon the people, shall be first considered in committee of the whole, having been read, Mr. Davis submitted an amendment providing that this clause shall not be suspended when the amount involved exceeds $10,000.

Mr. Oscar Turner (Dem., Ky.) submitted an amendment providing that when any bill, etc., is referred to a committee and reported on, it shall be in order for the introducer to introduce the bill again, and it shall be referred to its proper place on the calendar pending action on the amendment. The committee ruled Monday.

Feb. 28.—In the Senate Mr. Bayard (Dem.) moved that in respect to the memory of John C. Fremont, the Secretary of the Interior (Mr. Bailey) (Dem., Tenn.) give notice of an amendment admitting, free of duty, clothing and personal effects of the late general, for the relief of colored emigrants from abroad.

In the House at the expiration of the morning hour, public business was suspended and the House adjourned until 10 o'clock. Mr. Knott (Dem., Ky.), Phillips (Dem., Mo.), the House adjourned.

FOREIGN.

The Pope has issued an encyclical in favor of universal suffrage for the election of all civil jurisdiction whatsoever. It traces the history of marriage from patriarchal to Catholic times, and states that Christ elevated marriage to a sacrament which only the church can administer. The attempt made under various guises by the modern spirit of irreligion to reduce marriage to a mere civil contract, and to loose the marriage tie most sacred by the whole Catholic world.

Another attempt has been made to blow up the Car of Russia. At about 7 o'clock on Monday morning a bomb was exploded in the principal guard room, by which eight soldiers of the Russian regiment of the guard, and a number of the Emperor's attendants, were injured. The flooring of the guard room and several galleys were damaged, and the Emperor's carriage was overturned and gun action. The train did not stop, and the Emperor and his suite were not injured.

The explosion of the attempt to blow up the Car of Russia has been reported as a success. The Emperor's carriage was overturned and gun action. The train did not stop, and the Emperor and his suite were not injured.

Inhabitants of Britain 20,000 Years Ago.

"The Man of the Caverns" was the subject of last night's London Institution lecture, which was delivered in the lecture by Prof. Boyd Hawkins, F. R. S., who fills the Chair of Geology in Owens College, Manchester. He said that, while the living drift men and the cave men were living in Britain, the hills and valleys in the south of England presented the same outlines, as they did now. Could we take our stand in those times on Shooter's Hill or on the Essex Heights, and look over the Thames Valley in the direction of London, we should see a dense forest of oak, ash and Scotch fir, and the course of the Thames marked by lines of willows and alders. A few stumps of trees would rise above the tops of the trees, and the forest would be a forest of the primeval man. In the forest wild boars, mammoths and rhinoceroses, wild horses, stags and Irish elk would meet our eyes, and in the summer time countless herds of blous, like those now ranging over the plains of Northwestern America. In the winter were vast numbers of reindeer, and a few musk-oxen, the most Arctic of mammals, in the hills. In the rivers were otters and beavers, and the explorer would be startled by the snort of the hippopotamus in the reaches of the Thames near Brentford. Beasts of prey also abounded—lions, leopards, hyenas, grizzly bears, wolves and foxes. If we penetrated to one of the cave men's dwellings, we should see the river-drift hunter chipping and using some of these rude flint implements which he buried in the London gravels along with the remains of the animals which he hunted. The river-drift man, in the long course of ages, was succeeded by the man of the caverns, like him a hunter-living on the same animals, and more highly equipped for the battle of life in the course of time the cave man disappeared, the climate and geography of this country became almost what it is now, the hunter stage of civilization was superseded by that of the herdsman and the tiller of the ground and the manufacturer of the Neolithic Age. From the Neolithic Age down to the present time the progress of man had been unbroken in the course of time, and the present condition of the European people would be looked upon as the result of a gradual series of changes by which civilization succeeded civilization, and race succeeded race, the old order yielding place into the new, because the new order was higher and nobler.—London Times.

The Latest Marvel.

Dr. H. B. Licks, of old South Bethlehem, after three years' study, claims that he has perfected an instrument by which forms and colors can be sent by wire the same as words are sent. He calls the instrument a diaphote. The word diaphote, from the Greek, dia signifying through, and phote signifying light, had been selected as its name, implying, as the light travels in a straight line, that the diaphote would be a paper on his invention before a scientific society here. The diaphote consists of four essential parts, the receiving mirror, the transmitting wires, a common galvanic battery and the reproducing speculum. Dr. Licks gave a detailed account of the many experiments undertaken to determine the proper proportion and arrangement of the mirror and speculum. The former he had finally selected an amalgam of selenium and iodide of silver, and for the latter a compound of selenium and chromium. The peculiar sensitiveness of iodide of silver and chromium to light has long been known, and their practical use in photography suggested their application to the diaphote. The theoretical action of the instrument appears to be the following: The waves of light from an object are conducted through an ordinary camera, so that they fall on certain of the divisions of the mirror when the electric circuit is closed. The light and accompanying heat produce momentary chemical changes in the amalgam of the mirror, which changes are electric current and cause similar changes in the corresponding portions of the remote speculum, thus reproducing a similar image, which by a second camera may be readily seen by the eye or thrown upon a screen. Dr. Licks explained how the proportions of selenium and chromium to light has long been known, and their practical use in photography suggested their application to the diaphote.

The Reign of Mineral Water.

All the preaching about stimulants and about the proper variety of foods to be taken has produced a very curious state of things in society. All sorts of fanatical have their devotees, and the high priests of the goddess Hygeia have a large following. Thus it is by no means an uncommon experience at a dinner party to sit next a lady before whom the butler solemnly sets a glass jug of toast and water, while she will kindly favor you during the meal with her views upon the probable fate if you should neglect to take a glass of DeLelleme, while instant excitement awaits you if you are man enough to eat patate's a la gratin, no matter how daintily enshrined in aspic. Such care as to eating and drinking is not confined to your feminine neighbor. You will probably observe one gentleman opposite who keeps the footman mystified by whiskey and Apollinaris, while another calls for dry champagne and audibly wonders how any sane man can drink champagne when a thoughtful host of the same way of thinking as himself has provided barley water flavored with lemon. When the ladies have retired you make up your mind for a modest indulgence in the quiet which is soft as a feather, or you have a weakiness for Madras not so readily unaccounted for.

At the close of the paper an illustration of the diaphote was shown on the instrument. The mirror of the diaphote, in charge of a committee of three, was taken to a room in the lower part of the building and the connecting wires laid through the halls and stairways to the speculum on the lecturer's platform. Before the mirror the committee held in succession various objects, illuminating each by a gas jet, and the committee wire, since the rays from a gas jet are not in action, and simultaneous on the speculum appeared the secondary images, which for exhibition to the audience were thrown on a screen considerably magnified. An apple, a pen-knife and a trade dollar were the first objects shown on the table. After the exhibition the address of Liberty was recognized, and the date 1878 was plainly legible. A watch was held five minutes before the mirror and the audience could plainly perceive the motion of the minute hand on the screen.—Reading (Pa.) Register.
