Mr. John Cassidy died at his residence in Sylvan, Tuesday, at 3 o'clock, aged about 81 years. Funeral will take place at St. Mary's church Friday, at 10 o'clock.

A slight fire in Kriebel's shoe store, basement of Sherry's building, called the fire department out Tuesday evening, but the fire was extinguished before any damage was done.

There will be a public dance at Cavanaugh Lake, Thursday evening, June 5th, 1890. Good music in attendance. The elegant steamer, Queen of the Lake, will make her first trip this season on that day. Good stabling for teams, also hay and grain.

R. S. Armstrong has purchased L. Winans' stock of drugs and will continue the business at the present store; L. Winans will also keep a stock of jewelry in the same store, and A. Winans, the watchmaker, will continue to do business as heretofore.

A Manchester man recently got his wife's false teeth in his mouth by mistake, and greatly scandalized himself by going about the town, retelling little secrets, just like a woman, for all the world. He discovered his mistake finally, and is down with nervous prostration.

Two boys named Blair and a third named Blithman, whose ages run from 7 to 10 years, were caught in the cellar of Rich & Abel's store at Ann Arbor last Friday evening. They had gathered about $1,000 worth of plunder, and were waiting for an opportunity to sneak it out of the building.

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Edward Gallagher, at her home in Detroit, was received by her relatives here to day. Mrs. Gallagher was a sister of the late Jas. Gorman, of this place. Mrs. Gallagher will be remembered by some of the old people as a beautiful young girl fifty years ago.

Owing to the heavy rain on Friday evening last, the donation, that was to have been held at the Sylvan Center church, has been postponed until next Wednesday evening, May 21st. Refreshments will be served by the ladies. To The Public!

I hereby give notice that I am now ready to receive Village Taxes. I will be at the Town Hall two days in every week, Tuesday and Friday, until June 10th, that being the last day to receive taxes. All taxes unpaid on and after June 1st will be charged 4 per cent. Pay your taxes this month and save 4 per cent.

Ed. Moore, Village Marshal.

Notice.

I desire to announce to the people of Chelsea and vicinity that I intend to leave the city on June 1. I had intended to practice here for some time to come until recently, a situation in the office of an American dentist practicing in Berlin, Germany, has been offered me which I feel it my duty to accept. Any of my patients desiring work will please call very soon.

Do You Know?

First. That the kidneys are the only natural blood purifiers.
Second. That all the blood passes through the kidneys for purification.
Third. That if the kidneys are full of poison, that poison effects every organ of the body.
Fourth. That they are liable to be filled with uric acid (kidney poison) without your knowledge.
Fifth. That you cannot have good health and disordered kidneys.
Sixth. That the majority of diseases are caused by kidney poisoned blood.
Seventh. That Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup will regulate your kidneys to a healthy action and cleanse them of uric acid. All druggists.

MRS. MCGINTY

Says that since Mr. "Mac" went up by going down, she's had hard times. Her pig had "numony" and the goat had the grip; though he's hearty again and so strong that he's preceptible to the naked nose at fifty yards distance.

"POOR MAC!"

Says his wife, "I can't bear to think of the fishes getting in the pockets of his elegant Sunday suit."

"Mac" used to declare that he saved money enough in six months' trading with Glazier to pay for his elegant Sunday suit.

THERE are three men in the Oregon State prison each of whom cut off a hand to avoid work. They are confined in solitary cells.

It is reported that a vein of black marble has been discovered near Finca, Va. There is none found elsewhere in the United States.

The law of divorce in France has been in operation since 1885, and during four years there have been 15,521 divorces, which is at the rate of 23 for 10,000 marriages.

In ten years, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, women's clubs have done more for the actual good of society than all the men clubs of the past fifty years have done.

Mrs. SWERNY, an old woman of Coatesville, Pa., died of joy recently when she heard that she was to get $3,000 pension money. She had waited for the money ten years.

JOHN WARREN, who sells newspapers on the Derby railroad between New Haven and Birmingham, Conn., and who is now in his eighty-second year, is cutting his third set of teeth.

JOHN B. PARSHALL, a compositor in the Delhi (N. Y.) Gazette office, recently set up the notice of three golden weddings. He set up the marriage notices of the same couples fifty years ago—a remarkable coincidence.

The Supreme Court of Nebraska has decided that railroads in the State must construct and keep in repair suitable crossings over public highways, notwithstanding such highways were laid out after the railroads were built.

Mr. A. J. DREXEL is about to erect in Philadelphia an industrial institute at an expense of $500,000, and will endow it with $1,000,000. The building will be a splendid affair, and will furnish accommodations for two thousand to twenty-five thousand pupils.

The site of a prehistoric village has been discovered on the banks of the Ohio river near Parkersburg, W. Va. It covers about four acres, and the earth is thickly intermixed with fragments of pottery, streaks of ashes and fragments of bones of animals and human beings.

A RAILROAD train of fifteen cars would be required to convey the food and nourishment which a man blessed with a moderate appetite consumes from the time of his birth to the day when he attains the age of three-score years and ten.

Such is at least the calculation which has been made public by Johnman, one of the principal sons of the University of Berlin.

ANCKY DEWEY says that nearly a dozen men whom he can recall as being famous in Wall street during the war for fortunes made suddenly speculative deals, and who have since dropped out of sight, are now life insurance agents. He said he attended an insurance banquet recently and seventy-five per cent of the agents present had formerly been famous as successful Wall street traders.

The Baptist Missionary Union in Boston was surprised the other day by a lady and gentleman who walked into the office and left $5,000 which they said their brother had intended to bequeath the Union, but death overtook him before he made his will. What a wholesome lesson that is to a lot of heirs who are every year invoking the aid of the law to prevent the will of their dead benefactor from being respected and obeyed.

WARDEN BRUSH, of Sing Sing prison, New York, says for every execution in such a great prison—Sing Sing having one thousand six hundred inmates—ten men are driven insane. They succumb to the demoralizing influences of confinement aggravated by the other day simply from brooding over the use of the dynamo wires which he was stringing in connection with the electrocutional plant of that prison.

The New York Senate has passed a bill declaring that "any person who willfully states, delivers or transmits to a newspaper for publication therein any newspaper statement concerning any person or corporation, and thereby secures the actual publication of the same, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

This says the Chicago Inter Ocean, goes to the root of the evil by fastening the label upon the guilty party rather than upon the publishers who have been imposed upon. With such libel laws there would be fewer libel suits.

GENERAL JOHN STARK, the immortal hero of Bennington battle and the intrepid husband of Mollie, who didn't sleep a widow the night of the flight won by his valor and leadership, is to have a monument, if the $50,000 appropriation for that purpose voted by the National Senate the other day goes through Congress. The memorial is to be erected at Manchester, N. H., where the revolutionary commander died. The monument at Bennington, Vt., already commemorates his name and his glorious deeds on the field where his chief fame was won.

The Germantown (Pa.) Republican describes the hard lot of the country editor: "He rises in the morning and knoweth not what a day may bring forth. If he telephs all the news he runneth great risk of having a tin ear put on him, and if he telephs not the news the people say he is n. g. The crafty man catcheth him into giving him a 50-cent puff for a 5-cent cigar, and sends mothers down on him if he fails to flatter their freckle-faced broods. And all his ways are ways of woe, and his days are full of sorrow. The life-insurance man layeth snares for him, and on the whole he hath a deuce of a time."

The oldest man in the British navy is now in his one hundredth year. Sir Provo William Parry Wallis, G. C. B., the senior Admiral of the fleet, is the only survivor of the famous naval combat between her Majesty's ship Shannon and the American frigate Chesapeake, off Boston harbor, on June 1, 1813. He was the actual captor of the Chesapeake, the first Lieutenant of the Shannon having been killed and the Captain dangerously wounded, so that the American Captain surrendered to Wallis, as the senior officer in command. The aged Admiral was born in Halifax, N. S., on April 13, 1791.

Epitome of the Week.

INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FIFTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

TUESDAY, May 6.—There was no session of the Senate. In the House Mr. Bontelle (Me.) introduced a bill intended to repair the damage inflicted upon the State prohibition laws by the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the original package case. The bill is in the shape of a section which is proposed to add to the inter-State commerce act and reads as follows: "That nothing contained in this act shall be construed to authorize the sale or traffic in intoxicating liquors in any State contrary to the laws thereof."

WEDNESDAY, May 7.—In the Senate a bill was introduced to establish in every county of the United States under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture a public farm. The army bill and the Military Academy bill were reported, and the bill authorizing the issue of Treasury notes on deposit of silver bullion was discussed. A bill authorizing the Secretary of War to deliver to the State of Colorado the flags carried by the Colorado regiments during the war of the rebellion was passed. In the House the tariff bill was discussed in the McKinley tariff bill.

THURSDAY, May 8.—President Harrison sent to the Senate the following nominations for the new Territory of Oklahoma: George W. Steele, of Indiana, for Governor; Robert Martin, of Oklahoma, for Secretary, and Edward B. Green, of Illinois, for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The House bill for the classification of worsted goods as woolens was passed. The pension appropriation bill ($97,000, 701) was discussed. In the House a resolution was introduced to make eight hours a legal day's work. A bill was introduced imposing a duty of ten cents a pound on all sugar of milk imported. The tariff bill was further debated.

FRIDAY, May 9.—In the Senate the pension and military academy bills were passed, and the army appropriation bill was considered. In the House bills were passed increasing the pension of Brigadier-General Ayers to $75 per month and giving Mrs. Della S. Parnell a pension of $50 a month. A bill was introduced declaring that any person who shall disseminate the National flag, either by printing on said flag or attaching the same to any advertisement for public display, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The tariff bill was further discussed.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In the United States there were 209 business failures during the seven days ended on the 9th, against 211 the previous seven days.

SPEAKER REED thought on the 9th that both houses of Congress would be ready to adjourn by July 4.

In the United States the construction of new railroads since January 1, 1890, to the 9th inst. amounts to 1,100 miles. There were also 944 new roads incorporated.

THE EAST.

On the 6th the British steamer Vindex, Captain Thompson, with a crew of thirty men, sailed from Philadelphia March 23, bound for Copenhagen, was given up as lost.

In the New York State Senate on the 6th the bill to abolish capital punishment was defeated.

Five convicts in the Dannemora (N. Y.) State prison who recently protected the warden from a murderous assault by a fellow-convict were on the 7th pardoned by the Governor.

On the 7th A. E. Lancaster, a young real-estate agent of Philadelphia, disappeared. He was charged with embezzling about $70,000.

The big plant of the F. A. Kennedy Cracker Company at Cambridge, Mass., was purchased on the 7th by a syndicate for $1,500,000.

At Pittsburgh, Pa., a gang of thieves who had stolen goods valued at over $25,000 from freight cars were arrested on the 7th.

TRAINS collided in Allentown, Pa., on the 7th, and Miss Emma Hall was instantly killed and ten other passengers were more or less seriously injured.

FLAMES destroyed forty houses at Scranton, Pa., on the 7th, rendering 150 persons homeless. Loss, $200,000.

DELAWARE Prohibitionists in convention on the 8th at Dover nominated William T. Kolhum, of Dover, for Governor, and Daniel M. Green, of Newport, for Representative in Congress. The platform favors the Australian ballot system; denounces high license as a fraud, and favors prohibition through amendments to the National and State constitutions.

FLAMES destroyed the Chenango County Insane Asylum at Preston, N. Y., on the 8th, and nine insane persons perished in the flames.

At Bradock, Pa., four Greek workmen were fatally injured on the 8th by a small smelting furnace falling on them.

A PROHIBITION resolution proposing a prohibition constitutional amendment was passed in the New York Assembly on the 8th by a vote of 66 to 44.

PENNSYLVANIA Prohibitionists will hold their State convention at Harrisburg on July 13.

WORKMEN found five bodies (victims of the food one year ago) at Johnstown, Pa., on the 8th. Two of them were a mother and child clasped in each other's arms.

The school board of Providence, R. I., decided on the 9th to banish the Bible and devotional exercises from the city schools.

ARKANSAS Republicans will meet in State convention at Little Rock on July 9.

SAMUEL ELKINS, who had served twenty-four years in the penitentiary on a charge of child-murder, was pardoned by Governor Fifer, of Illinois, on the 7th. It has been discovered that the child was now living in Kentucky.

At Middleborough, Ky., flames on the 7th burned the lively stable of C. E. Clay, and twenty-six fine horses were cremated.

The villages of McKean, Camilla and Ty-Ty, in Georgia, were badly damaged by a cyclone on the 7th, and several persons were injured.

The diocesan convention of the Episcopal church at Charleston, S. C., on the 8th adopted an amendment excluding colored members from seats on the floor.

In nine months Nathan Williams, of Staunton, Ind., spent in dissipation $90,000, less him by his father, and he was taken to the poor-house on the 8th.

On the 8th the boiler of an engine drawing a freight train exploded near Wellington, Kan., killing the engineer and fireman and 125 cattle.

The levee near Benton, La., broke on the 8th, and the water swept over a large area of country, involving heavy losses to hundreds of planters.

RESOLUTIONS were adopted at the session in St. Louis on the 8th of the general conference of the M. E. church South denouncing dancing, card-playing and theater-going, and in favor of prohibiting members from signing dram-shop petitions.

ON the 8th the town of Columbia, Tex., with the exception of one street, was under water and railroad traffic was suspended.

In the vicinity of Wabash, Ind., frosts on the 8th did great damage to vegetation.

George Francis Train Reaches London on the Fifty-Second Day After Leaving Tacoma, Wash., on His Tour of the World.

LONDON, May 12.—Citizen George Francis Train stepped off a train from Dover at Charing Cross station at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, fifty-two days out from Tacoma on his trip around the world. He proceeded to the Victoria Hotel, where he was hospitably received. Half an hour later he was seated amid a group of Americans relating the details and incidents of his trip. Boiled down his story is as follows:

He explained that he left Tacoma, the only town in the world that had any enterprise, on March 18, taking the Canadian Pacific steamer Abyssinia for Yokohama, where, in spite of bad winds, he arrived in sixteen days. Finding that the North German Lloyd steamer General Wender, which he had expected to take for Hong Kong, had sailed, he paid the agent of the line to telegraph her to wait the English mail at Kobe, 300 miles south of Tacoma. Finding that the train for Kobe, ran down to Tokyo, where he secured passports for himself and secretary from the American Minister. The city of Hong Kong he encountered the biggest storm in the history of the world in twenty years. Losing a day outside of the Hong Kong harbor, Train and his secretary sailed serenely by the Prussien to Singapore and Colombo, where he intended to take the Peninsular and Oriental Mail steamer Arcadia. She was lying in the harbor when Colombia was reached, but was going to wait eighteen hours before starting. Accordingly the citizen chartered the Prussien to Allen and Port Said, where the Arcadia overtook them, and he transferred himself, secretary and baggage to her. Train reached Suez last Sunday and arrived in Brindisi on Thursday. Here he found that he had lost the risk of losing Saturday morning's boat from Calais to Dover, which would prevent his taking the Flying Fishman for Queenstown, where he was to embark on the Europa for New York, and therefore he telegraphed for a special boat and train to London. A special was put on to carry the mail, and the citizen says they didn't charge him for it, because the English Government was afraid it would be laughed at if it allowed an American to carry mails for them.

Citizen Train left London at 8:20 o'clock Saturday night for Queenstown and sailed Sunday on the Euripia for New York. He expects to arrive in New York on the 17th, and says that a special train will take him thence to Tacoma in three days. He is looking brown and healthy, and says that he feels like a boy of twenty. His secretary is L. W. Wall, editor of the Tacoma Ledger, who, Train says, represents 9,000 American newspapers and 1,000 leading journals in Asia, Africa, Australia, Europe and South America.

Wall is to write a book about the journey, to be illustrated with 3,000 Kodak pictures taken en route.

BIG BREWERY COMBINE.

Five Chicago Concerns Sought Lyon, has passed over the southern part of his county at 5 o'clock Saturday evening. Two people, Knox Jackson and wife, were killed outright and a number of persons dangerously injured. The storm was general throughout the country, but the track of the cyclone was only about 300 feet wide. Every thing in its path was demolished, trees were uprooted and houses and barns destroyed. A large number of cattle were killed. The path of the cyclone extended from near the county line to the Allegheny river.

On City, Pa., May 12.—A most destructive cloud-burst and cyclone struck this section about 11 p. m. Saturday. Houses, barns, bridges, oil-well rigs and gas lines are in ruins. At East Sandy, about eight miles from here, the residence of William Nunemaker was blown down, burying the entire family in the ruins. Mr. and Mrs. Nunemaker are seriously injured and their two children will probably die.

FATALITIES IN KANSAS.

CHANUTE, Kan., May 12.—A cyclone struck Cedar Valley, Wilson County, at 4 p. m. Friday. Joseph Wilsey's house was demolished, his youngest son killed and two other children injured. Next the dwelling of Frank Gliden was destroyed, his wife killed and two other children injured.

THE KAISER IS ANGRY.

He Threatens Bismarck with Punishment if He Resigns His State Secrets.

BERLIN, May 12.—Emperor William has sent a personal letter reminding Prince Bismarck that he is liable to severe punishment under an amendment to the penal code of his own making, if he makes public or causes to be published any knowledge regarding State matters gained by him during his official life. The Emperor refers to the announcement that Bismarck is about to make public the complete story of his dismissal from the Chancellorship, together with the events which led to it.

Fatal Accident at a Fort.

BRUSSELS, May 12.—The Alliance Fort near Namur, where rebuilding operations are being carried on, was the scene of a fatal accident Sunday. A portion of the work collapsed and twenty persons were buried in the debris. Five corpses have been recovered from the ruins. Twelve other persons were injured.

Prohibition for the Army.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The army appropriation bill was passed by the Senate Saturday, with Senator Hale's (R.) amendment excluding the sale of liquors, beer or wine at army posts.

DESOLATION.

It Follows on the Heels of a Terrible Cyclone—Seventy-Five Buildings Wrecked and a Number of Persons Injured at Akron, O.—Much Ruin Caused and Several Lives Lost From Furious Storms in Iowa, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Kansas.

AKRON, O., May 12.—At 5:30 Saturday evening, in the midst of a very heavy rainfall, this city was struck by the worst tornado, beyond comparison, which has ever been known here. The storm struck the southern part of the city and tore through the Fifth, Fourth and Second wards, doing a tremendous amount of damage. Prof. Egbert, of Buchtel College, who was out in the storm, calculated that it was traveling at the rate of four miles a minute, so that its track of about a mile and a half through this city was traversed in a little more than twenty seconds. It moved in almost a straight line through a well-settled part in the city, and the ground is strewn to-day with splintered house timbers, broken furniture, uprooted trees and leveled barns and outouses. In a trip over the storm's path nineteen dwellings were counted that were either ripped into kindling wood or so badly wrecked that they can not be occupied. About seventy-five persons are being sheltered by friends. Among these are the families of Wilson Kiplinger, John Van Ault, Gehardt Herman, Dominic Goad, Louis Shaffner, Tony Manuel, Harry Sanford, John Miller, Frank Kennitz, Frank Miller, Allen Coup, August Miller, A. C. Baker, Mrs. Fred Boile, Melvin Irish, Thomas Thompson, Alvin Alexander, Mrs. Kate McConnell and W. H. Eltholtz.

Of the eighteen persons injured all will probably recover.

Seventy-five buildings, including residences, barns and outouses, were damaged by the wind. Uprooted trees are counted by the scores.

People whose houses were destroyed had their all invested in them, and a majority of the buildings were mortgaged. That no lives were wonderful. In most instances families took refuge in the cellars and thus escaped serious injury.

THE TEMPEST IN IOWA.

DUBUQUE, IA., May 12.—Friday night one of the most terrific storms that ever visited Iowa swept over Dubuque. For over four hours there was an incessant glare of lightning and a deluge of rain that filled the gutters and sewers to overflowing. Seventeenth street was washed out, and a party of four in a carriage narrowly escaped death as they, not knowing its condition, drove into the street. One of the horses attached to the carriage was swept into the sewer and carried to its mouth at the river, where he was found Sunday morning. Lightning struck the barn of Thomas Coats, at Center Grove, and the building was destroyed by fire.

TWO KILLED BY A FALLING TREE.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 12.—While Life Barnes was driving through a field south of Minshall, with four children in his buggy, a hickory tree was blown down, falling across the buggy. Two of the children, one his son, aged 4, and the other, Della Vance, aged 12, were killed outright, one seriously injured, while the other escaped. Barnes was badly hurt.

SEVERAL DEATHS IN MISSOURI.

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—Several violent tornadoes have occurred in different parts of Northern Missouri within the last two days, and a large amount of property has been damaged and several persons killed. In Harrison County houses and barns were demolished and a large amount of farm property destroyed.

William Wilson and his two small children were blown away with his house and killed and several persons were injured. In Gentry County more than twenty buildings were destroyed and Mrs. Nathan Green was killed. Cattle and hogs were killed and a good deal of general farm property and crops greatly injured. Five or six dwellings and several outbuildings were blown away south of Memphis, Mo. Fences were carried away and orchards swept down, but nobody was hurt.

DR. CUMMINGS DEAD.

The President of the Northwestern University, One of the Oldest and Best Known Instructors in the West, Expires at Evanston, Ill.—Sketch of His Useful Career.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Rev. Joseph Cummings, D. D., LL. D., president of the Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., died at his home in Chicago, avenue about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning of fatty degeneration of the heart. For months he had been struggling with a strong will and massive frame against physical weakness, and for weeks he had insisted upon hearing his recitations and attending to work contrary to the advice of physicians and friends. At last, however, he was compelled to yield and to recognize the truth that his work on earth was nearly done. For the last few days he was unconscious most of the time and was only kept alive by means of artificial respiration. All college exercises have been suspended until after the funeral except the chapel services which were held yesterday at noon. Dr. Cummings leaves a wife and two adopted daughters—Mrs. Samuel P. Hatfield, of Florida, and Miss Alice Cummings, who lives at the family residence in Evanston.

Joseph Cummings, D. D., LL. D., president of Northwestern University, was born at Falmouth, Me., March 8, 1817. He graduated from the Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., in 1840. He then took a position in America's first and best teacher of natural sciences and mathematics. From 1843 to 1846 he was principal of the seminary, but at the end of that period joined the New England Conference of the M. E. Church. He remained in the active work of the ministry during some

"I wish I had an eagle's sight!"
"And if you had a hawk's look,
As all around the evening look,
Each coupled with work or book—
Then on far hills tower I'd stand
And view the wonders on each hand."

"But you're too high to cross the sea!"
"Cried little May, in quick reply,
And if you had—how sick you'd be!"
"I'd take the eagle's wings and fly—
Then on and on o'er hill and plain,
Till round the world I had come again."

"Phew! Eyes and wings!" sneered sturdy Dan.
"I'd choose, if I a choice could make,
A hawk's strength." "And I," said Nan,
"The eagle's breath and beauty take."
Then sweet-toothed Nell piped: "For my part
Give me, from bees, the honey art."

Wishing now, we all were gay,
Mother sat sewing, weary-faced;
Small time had she for books or play,
So many stitches must be placed.
Old pussy stretched, lazy and fat,
Close at her feet upon the mat.

"Mother," called Dan, "Tis your turn now!
What would you take had you the chance?"
She pushed her glasses up her brow
And gave us all a kindly glance—
"Well, if I could, and 'twas no crime,
I'd take," she said, "the cat's spare time."

HELEN'S VISIT.

How Marion Became Aware of Her Fallings.

"Almost eight o'clock!"
Harry Benton hurriedly replaced his watch and laid aside the book he had been reading.

"Marion, I think I'll go down town a little while. Do you mind?"
The young wife, sitting at the opposite side of the table, glanced up from her delicate embroidery.

"Yes, Harry, I mind; but what does it matter to you? I have been left alone a great many evenings this winter and suppose I can survive your absence tonight, as I have done before."

"Oh, no, not in the least. Go if you like."
Harry carelessly kissed his wife goodbye and hurried out into the darkness and cold of the winter's night.

Marion listened to his departing footsteps with an unusual feeling of loneliness, and sighed as she remembered the days of their early married life, when Harry was content to spend his leisure evenings with her, and seemed always eager to contribute to her happiness in every way.

The more she pondered the sadder she became, until bitter tears fell thick and fast upon her work. She felt that Harry was slowly but surely drifting away from her affections, and she shuddered as she thought of the hollow ness of life without him—the mockery of existence without his love.

When Harry Benton sought and won the hand of Marion Bradley, she was the acknowledged belle of Fairfield. Harry was a promising young lawyer of sound moral principles, flattering business prospects and generally considered to be in every way worthy of Dr. Bradley's young daughter.

Unfortunately, Marion had never known a mother's tender care. The inexhaustible love of the maternal nature she was not permitted to know, and yet Dr. Bradley had never forgotten his wife's dying injunction: "Train the child in the way she should go; love her and care for her always as I would have done."

The good housekeeper, who for so many years had presided over the doctor's household, had, with the kindest intentions, shielded Marion from every thing in the nature of work save that which she was disposed to undertake of her own free will.

Marion had inherited much of her mother's beauty and was exceedingly attractive. Vivacious in conversation, always light-hearted and full of good humor, she was a universal favorite among her young associates, and, as she stepped into the arena of married life, she had all predicted a successful and happy career for Lawyer Benton and his fair bride.

The marriage occurred on New Year's eve, and a short wedding journey followed.

A cozy little cottage in a desirable part of the town was the wedding gift of Dr. Bradley to his daughter, and, during the temporary absence of the newly married pair, the entire house was furnished ready for occupancy.

The doctor's faithful housekeeper, whose previous charge Marion had, from her birth, seemingly anticipated even the most insignificant needs of the new household, and nothing was left undone that could contribute to Marion's convenience and comfort.

The oil of the parental affection had been freely sprinkled upon the waters, and Harry Benton and his young bride set sail upon a smooth sea unruffled by a wave of care or trouble.

They were supremely satisfied with each other's love and happiness reigned as queen of the new home for many months. Every thing that the house was so bright and attractive as Harry and Marion inspected it for the first time, that they were quite charmed with the idea of housekeeping, and decided at once that it would be far preferable to boarding, as they had contemplated doing. Marion suggested that she was equal to the task of both mistress and servant, and it was agreed that she should attend to the household duties without the questionable assistance of a servant.

Every thing possessed such an air of cleanliness that it was a delight to the young matron to perform her daily duties. The linen all so new and sparkling, the dainty china and highly-polished silver served to counteract the effect of many an unsuccessful culinary attempt, for who would not rather be served with biscuit strongly suggestive of heaviness under such conditions than to partake of a feast without these pleasing accompaniments?

Harry was not blind to his wife's fallings in the cooking art, but out of kindly consideration for her feelings he gracefully sampled her varied concoctions, not always, though, without a flavor of suppressed merriment.

As the winter wore on, Harry busied himself through the long evenings with reading, which was always of an instructive character, and Marion usually employed the time with some fascinating bit of fancywork. This was her one great failing and with her it could justly be termed such. She cared little for books save occasionally some light novel. Biography, history, science had no charms for her. They would do for Harry; a man needed those things.

Harry had frequently ventured to remonstrate with her and endeavored from time to time to impress her with the fact that study was as necessary and beneficial to her as to him. He had often tried to interest her in his business affairs, and suggested that she might help him in many ways if she would.

But Marion denied adaptability and taste for business, and every effort to prove the contrary was unavailing. So her unambitious, selfish nature was continually absorbing nourishment from Harry's forbearance and gentleness.

Days, weeks and months passed, and the hurrying wheels of time bring Marion's first wedding anniversary. Another year passes more quickly than the first; and so they come, one after another, till she finds her bathed in a flood of tears, lonely and alone.

Her house, once so attractive in its neatness, has suffered seriously from neglect. The dainty dishes which, after patient practice, she had succeeded in preparing so nicely, no longer tempt the hungry husband, and it was always with an unwilling effort that Marion undertook to please Harry in any thing which interfered with her comfort. Yet she was wholly blind to the possible fact that she might be personally responsible for her own trouble, born of Harry's seeming neglect.

Her untidy appearance, her indifference to all the little tasteful touches which mean so much to a woman who values her husband's admiration, were not suggested to her sorrowful, questioning spirit.

These things had grown upon her so gradually that she failed to see wherein she had changed as well as Harry. So, without any scruples of conscience, she buried the bitterness of her soul beneath a calm exterior and resolved that Harry should never know the price she had set upon his devotion.

Next day Harry came home from the office and handed Marion a letter which the postman had left upon his desk that morning.

Marion hastily broke the seal and read aloud the contents.

"Well, I am so glad," she exclaimed, "that at last I am to have a visit from Helen Meldrum."

The two girls had been room-mates at school for two happy years, and a lasting affection was the result. Both had married and settled in widely separated towns, and now for the first time in their married lives they were to meet and spend a few weeks together.

Marion anticipated the visit with intense pleasure, and so busy was she in preparation for the event that the trouble which had borne so heavily upon her during the months that had passed, temporarily took its flight.

The day arrived when Helen was expected. Marion had taken special pains to have the house in order, and a pleasing improvement upon the ordinary appearance was distinctly noticeable.

As the hour at which the train was due arrived, she donned her wraps and hurried to the depot to welcome her old friend and school-mate. The train with its long line of heavily freighted cars pulled slowly into the station and Marion readily recognized her expected visitor peering anxiously from a window.

Affectionate greetings were exchanged and the reunited friends chatted merrily as they wended their way to Marion's home.

"I hardly felt justified," said Helen, "in leaving my husband surrounded by so many business cares, even for this visit which promised so much of pleasure. But he insisted that I should take a rest and I knew, no way in which I could spend the time more satisfactorily than in visiting with you."

"So really I am indebted to your husband, Helen, for this visit," said Marion. "But, pray, why do you feel such a responsibility in connection with his business? You surely have nothing to do with it."

"O yes, Marion, I flatter myself that I am quite indispensable in my husband's office, and certainly I try to make his cares as light as my time and ability will allow."

The conversation then turned upon various other topics of mutual interest, and soon Helen was ushered into Marion's cozy parlor.

From the very moment of Helen's advent Marion was strongly impressed with her attractive appearance.

Every thing in connection with her dress was so suggestive of feminine taste, and yet one would readily discover that dress, in its popular sense, could claim but a comparatively small share of her attention.

Every movement was energy itself, and her conversation was full of inspiration, born of a cultivated and aspiring nature.

"Helen," said Marion, one day, "I have been thinking how lightly the years of married life have affected you. One would think you were still a school girl, to judge from your looks; and you seem so ambitious still. Why, I find my ambition to the wind when I was married. What need has a woman to bother herself about books or business when she has some one to take care of her?"

"Why, Marion, I am really astonished to hear you talk in that way. You surely are not in earnest; and yet I know that what you have said is but the echo of popular sentiment. Let me give you my idea. We hear a great deal nowadays about the failure of marriage. The question has been repeatedly discussed by representatives of all classes. It has been characterized by a deplorable extreme until we are disgusted with every reference to the matter. It is the most absurd question that has ever suggested for discussion. And, yet, I am forced to admit that there are many marriages which are rightly termed failures; but that is not an argument substantiating the failure of marriage as an institution. Every man and woman who enters into the holy state of matrimony assumes an individual responsibility, and in the conscientious appreciation of this fundamental truth lies the very essence of success."

"Why, Helen, what responsibilities can a wife have aside from the discharge of her household duties and the rearing of her children?"

"A very natural question, Marion, to be sure; but these constitute the groundwork of domestic life into which the wife should weave all the embellishments which her circumstances will admit. Oh, if women, instead of despairing under the heavy burden of domestic unhappiness, would begin a thorough and impartial search for their own possible failings, how many miserable years might be avoided. Many a man drifts away from home simply because his wife has ceased to be attractive. It is no fancy with him; it is an actual condition to which he gradually becomes accustomed. She takes no pains to interest herself in what is pleasing to him or to make herself the center of attraction, as she should be. If he come home from his daily toil weary with the vexations of business she manifests no special pleasure at his return or solicitude for his comfort. And as far as sympathy in his business affairs is concerned it would never occur to him to mention such a matter, and where is the man worthy the name who would not appreciate the sweet sympathy and counsel of his wife in the ever-recurring perplexities of business life? But, Marion, I did not intend to preach you a sermon. You have doubtless thought the matter all over for yourself, as I have."

Marion reclined upon a couch with one arm carelessly thrown above her head, and for a moment she seemed in deep but painful study.

"Well, Helen," she said, presently, "what you have stated may all be true, but I never thought of the matter in such a light before."

"But you will admit it, I am sure," said Helen, "upon mature reflection. Women are so ready to believe all men brag because there are so many who neglect home and family and drift into lives of dissipation and vice. In nine cases out of ten, the wife possesses the means of rescue and yet she is wilfully unconscious of the fact."

Helen suddenly discovered that Marion writhed under her argument, and reflected that she might have touched a very tender spot in her nature.

During the remainder of Helen's visit her mind was constantly reverting to that conversation, and although she assumed to be interested in whatever was being said or done, she could think of but one thing, and that was her mistaken conception of marriage.

The days passed all too rapidly, and Helen's pleasant visit was ended. She bade goodbye to Marion and Harry, little thinking of the telling influence she had exerted in that home.

Marion watched the train bear her friend away with an inexpressible feeling of loneliness which lingered for many days.

Harry began to notice that she seemed deeply intent upon some matter which she evidently chose to conceal from him and for a time he refrained from questioning.

One evening, as they sat in the twilight enjoying the solemn quiet of the dying day, Marion suddenly determined to open her heart to her husband and she had not done for many months, and to know for herself whether the old love could be revived through any act of hers.

She crept into his arms with a look of beseeching tenderness, and gathering together all the courage of her nature, she unfolded the bitterness of her soul to him.

She related the conversation with Helen and told him of the deep impression it had made upon her own heart; she told him of the struggles with pride in confessing to him her faults and of her unselfish resolves for the future.

And all that evening these two, whose tide of affection was slowly but surely ebbing away with the current of the years, renewed their wedded love and thanked God for Helen's visit.—Detroit Free Press.

KEEP YOUR RAZOR SHARP.

According to a Barber, There's Comfort in Shaving Once Shave.

"One reason why men are not successful in shaving themselves," said a barber, "is because they do not pay any attention to their tools. They ought to learn a lesson from us in this respect."

"A barber sharpens his razor with the utmost care at least twice and even three times for every man he shaves, and yet there are lots of men shaving themselves who are content with slaming a razor over a strap two or three times before they begin operations and never bother about the matter again."

"Then, too, we rub the soap on a man's face very carefully and thoroughly several minutes before we begin to shave. In reality this is half the battle, for it softens the hair and moistens the skin so that there is no danger of cutting the face, and the resistance of the razor is reduced one-half. The razor is hot and the instant the razor begins to pull it is carefully strapped until it is sharp again."

"I have been in the business for twenty years, and I am still wondering why a man ever goes to a barber shop to get shaved. I shave myself, of course. 'Senator Ingalls is quite right when he says every body ought to do so. I only takes me five or six minutes to shave when I get up in the morning and it is through with for the rest of the day."

"Many a busy man is compelled to stand around for half an hour or more in a shop every day because he thinks he can not shave himself. If he would look after the details it would be as easy as rolling off a log."—Louisville Post.

HISTORICAL TABLES.

Relies on Which Have Been Written Documents of Momentous Import.

George Schweich, of the firm of Ringquist & Schweich, of Richmond, Mo., owns the table upon which the Book of Mormon was written. David Whitmer, grandfather of Mr. Schweich, and formerly owner of the table, was one of the three witnesses to the Divine authenticity of the book above named.

The table used by President Harrison as a writing desk is made of the timbers of the British ship Resolute, which an American vessel rescued in the Arctic Ocean. When the ship was being repaired the Queen caused a table to be made of some of the timbers and presented to the then President of the United States.

There is an interesting historical relic in the executive mansion at Raleigh, N. C., a carved table presented to the first Governor of the colony of North Carolina by King George II., who died in 1760.

Julian Hawthorne has in his house at Scotch Plains, N. J., the little oak table upon which Mary, Queen of Scots, wrote letters the morning of her execution. It was also said to have been used by Nathaniel Hawthorne, father of the present owner, when writing his famous "Scarlet Letter."

The table upon which Oliver Cromwell signed the death-warrant of Charles I. was sold in February of this year to a London relic collector for an amount equal to $710 in United States currency.—St. Louis Republic.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

FOR MICHIGAN VETERANS.

Fifteen Hundred Old Soldiers Entitled to Money Under an Old Law.

Attorney-General Huston submits to the State Board of Auditors his opinion that under the recent ruling of the Supreme Court all persons who were not residents of the State and enlisted after February 5, 1864, and are on the 200,000 roll are entitled to $100 bounty, and all persons residents of the State enlisting after this date not accredited to any township or county may receive $100. Under this ruling about 1,500 veterans are entitled to bounties.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-one observers in different parts of the State for the week ended on the 3d indicated that typho-malarial fever, purpural fever, intermittent fever, inflammation of the kidneys, whooping cough and remittent fever increased, and cholera morbus, inflammation of the brain, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, dysentery and pleuritis decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-two places, scarlet fever at seventeen, typhoid fever at nine and measles at thirty-three places.

Sentenced for Life.

"Buck" Murray was recently convicted of the murder of Patrolman Schumaker in Detroit on the night of March 4 last and sentenced to solitary confinement for life in the State prison at Jackson. Murray, together with an alleged pal named McCormick, was cracking a safe when discovered by the patrolman. In the chase Murray turned and fatally shot the officer.

Shot His Face Off.

At Ironwood the other evening burglars attempted to enter Patter & Co.'s store when a clerk fired a shotgun in the face of the foremost man and the burglars fled. A few nights afterwards a man turned up at the hospital with his face shot off giving his name as John Richards and admitted he was the burglar shot. He died refusing to name his accomplices.

Two Years in a Trance.

Two years ago Margaret Kinney, of Alpena, was taken suddenly ill and since that time she has remained in a trance. For weeks she will remain motionless, and sometimes she goes ten days without food. Physicians say the girl's general health is good and can not account for the remarkable sleep. The girl has not spoken a word since she was first stricken.

Proven Innocent.

Edward Murphy, who was sentenced to prison for life for murder and placed in solitary confinement for ten years, was recently proven innocent. The solitary confinement converted Murphy into a harmless lunatic, and steps were being taken to have him sent to the asylum. His friends oppose this, as they think he has suffered enough.

Three Fatal Accidents.

Edward English, a Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic brakeman, fell from the cars at Negaunee the other afternoon and was killed. Charles Jacobson and another Finn, who were handling timber at the Queen mine, fell down the shaft the same afternoon, a distance of 100 feet. They died a few hours after the accident.

Appearances Are Deceitful.

Don't judge a man by his clothes. A wealthy drover of Davison went to Flint a few days ago to purchase a quantity of furniture. As he looked somewhat shabby he was given a cold shoulder by a dealer. The drover left the store, boarded a train and went to Detroit and purchased a bill of goods to the amount of $700.

Raised Their Pay Voluntarily.

General Manager Beckley, of the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan railroad, recently issued a circular telling his men their pay would be raised from $5 to $10 each per month, advising them to do so each month, adopt economical methods to secure a competency, build themselves homes and save money.

Short But Newsworthy Items.

The G. R. & I. railroad has completed its line to Lake City.

About a dozen tons of sawdust fell on Gustavus Rhode at Melbourne recently, covering him several feet, and he suffocated before he could be dug out.

The jury in the Wright murder case at Frankfort recently brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree for the killing of Frank Thurber last August.

Miss Addie Archer, a former university student at Lansing, died there the 3rd day of spinal meningitis.

The Lake View House, a road-house between Muskegon and Lake Side, was destroyed by fire recently. Loss, $7,000.

Bay City doctors are going to push a scheme for a new city hospital.

The National Dental Association will hold their annual convention at Jackson in June.

After many years of wanting and waiting, Charlotte is to have a free public library. The W. C. T. U. have taken the initiative step.

The Brush Electric Light Company of Detroit have decided to put all their wires under ground and furnish electricity as cheap as gas.

The Muskegon Booming Company recently added 300 men to their working force. All the mills had plenty of logs and were working full time.

William Lambert, aged 73 years, a wealthy colored citizen of Detroit, was found hanging to a rafter in a shed back of his house recently. He had been falling mentally for some time.

A tabulated statement was recently issued showing the number of prisoners that escaped from the Jacksonville prison from 1876 to 1890. There were eighty-one escapes and fifty-one recaptures.

The United States steamer Michigan will spend the entire season in surveying the Detroit river to ascertain the depth of water at every point, when a new official chart will be made for next season.

Detroit has 1,015 saloons that pay licenses.

John Roecraft, a wealthy farmer residing near Clio, committed suicide recently by hanging himself to a tree.

Pack Woods & Co., of Oscoda, have been lumbering for the past twelve years, and have cut over 500,000,000 feet of lumber.

Charles O'Dowd was arrested the other day for setting fire to a barn near the Big Rapids Junction. He kindled fires in two sheds in order to keep warm, as he claimed, and because farmers refused to open their houses to him. He was thought to be insane.

Our Hannah Jane.

Our Hannah Jane was thin and weak, and in her hair up and down, and often thought—she thought with pain, "I soon must lose our Hannah Jane." With changes of doctors, change of air, she sought for healing everywhere. And when our hopes were almost past, "Favorite Prescription" tried at last. She ceased to pine, she ceased to moan, (Pierce's remedies are sure and true) Now Hannah Jane is good as new.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

AN exasperating coincidence—that coal should always come down at the same time the stovepipe does.—Burlington Free Press.

To impress a plain truth it is not necessary to paint it to the eye by comic wood cuts or sensational pictures of any kind. Ordinary type is better, if it secures your confidence. To illustrate: If you are the victim of Malaria, and wish to be free from it immediately, one bottle of Chamberlain's Antidote will infallibly do the work. It may save you to believe this and get the medicine without delay. Dr. A. T. Shallenberger, Rochester, Pa., will send it free for one dollar.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Fig is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

It frequently turns out that the queen of diamonds is a knave of hearts.—Ashland Press.

In another place in this paper will be seen the advertisement of the Hartman Manufacturing Company, of Beaver Falls, Pa. They are an enterprising, reliable firm, and have a great deal of testimony to show that the Hartman Steel Picket Fence is the best thing of the kind on the market. You can find out all about it by writing for particulars.

Come but not Forgotten.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. JOHN E. MOORE.

Rest sister, rest, thy loving heart
Shall never throb with sorrow more;
Thy wounded spirit now doth pass
From every cross which once it bore.
Jesus has wiped all tears away,
His name is graven on thy brow;
The hovering spirit night and day
Encircles all the loved ones now.
We do not wish thee back to earth,
And yet we cannot help but mourn;
We never fathomed half thy worth
Till now dear sister thou art gone.
God hath but taken what he gave,
Yet what, alas! we fain would keep;
Death hath no sting, no victory grave
And thine was but a transient sleep.
To wake borne upon angel's wings,
Robed in the dress our Savior bought,
To walk in Paradise and sing
The unknown song of angels sung.
Rest sister, rest, till we to die,
And all our sins through Christ forgive;
Then let thy wings come rustling by
And bear our ransom souls to Heaven.
MRS. W. H. W.

A remark in passing: Glazier is always getting in new goods.

Webster VanLiper is the owner of an English pug dog, registered No. 90.

Eight essayists and orators took part in the contest last Friday evening at Ypsilanti for the medals offered by the Normal News and the Hon. Don M. Dickinson, of Detroit. The judges were Gov. Luce, Geo. L. Yapple, of Mendon, William A. Moore, of Detroit, Mary S. Lathrop, of Jackson, and Ruth A. Hoppin, of the University of Michigan. They awarded the Dickinson prizes to Messrs. White and Jeffers. Miss Lathrop and Miss Lane carried off the News prizes.

Commissioners' Notice

STATE OF MICHIGAN, county of Washtenaw. The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court for said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of Nancy M. Conklin late of said County, deceased, hereby give notice that on or before the 1st day of June, 1890, at 12 o'clock noon, they will meet at the store of George H. Hinkley in the Village of Chelsea in said County, to receive, examine and adjust said claims.

Dated April 28, 1890.

THOMAS W. HADWIN, J. GEORGE BLANCHI, Commissioners.

The Parlor Barber Shop,
Chelsea, Mich.

I take great pleasure in announcing to the citizens of Chelsea and vicinity that I have moved my barber shop to the old stand of Frank Shaver, where I will be found at all times, to wait on all who may favor me with a call. Good work and close attention to business is my motto. With this in view, I hope to secure, at least, part of your patronage. v18n51
