An Awful Story of Death and Desolation in Minnesota—A Cyclone's Terrible Work Near St. Paul—An Excursion Steamer on Lake Pepin Capsized and 200 Persons Meet Death-Reports of the Storm's Mo feet at Other Points Swells the List to

Sr. Paul Minn., July 14 .- A report has reached this city that a cyclone or hurricane struck Lake City, located on Lake Pepin, about seventy miles below here, and that a large num-Wing was coming up the lake at about 9 o'clock Sunday night, and paratively brief duration and dated in when opposite the city the storm struck were on board about 350 people from Diamond Bluff and about fifty more were on a barge which was in tow. A late estimate says that at least 200 persons were drowned, among the number being some of the best known and most prominent people of Red Wing and vicinity. Sixty-two bodies have been recovered by the rescuing parties sent out from the shore. Those identified so far are: Miss Hempling, Charles Hempling, Fred Hempling, Miss Way, Charles Dinslage, Henry Steffinson, Annie Steeger, Francis Steeger, Minnie Adams, Katle Dully, Miss Bierson, Minnie Fisher and Charles Dinsling. Sr. PAUL, Minn., July 14 .- Death and devastation visited the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin Sunday afternoon and the death list will be large. The summer resorts seem to have suffered severely, owing to the fact that at this season they are thickly populated, and the losses of life there are fearful to contemplate. A young man drove in from Lake Coleman with the information that at least two persons had been killed and over 100 injured at that point. He had been out there with a young lady friend, and, having gone after his buggy to drive home, on his return to where she had been standing found his companion seriously injured by the storm which had burst upon them. Passing along the cyclone struck Lake Joanna, Lake Gervais, Lake Vadnais, Little Canada, and passed on about four miles to the east of White Bear lake. The storm first struck the farm of James J. Hill, the president of the Great Northern railway, twenty miles north of here, wrecking several buildings and killing three farm laborers as well as several head of stock. The fury of the storm was fearful and every thing in its path was swept away.

Eleven people were instantly killed at the small town of Vadnais, on the line of the St. Paul & Duluth road, six miles north of here, and the village wrecked. Not a building was left standing in a sound condition, while the great majority of them were blown Savannah, Ga., January 21, 1813, and was grad- to pieces, the inmates suffering death without warning.

Mrs. J. H. Schurmeier, Charles Schurmeier, of St. Paul; Rev. Mr. Phaeffer, of Brennan, Tex.; George Miller, of the First National Bank of this city, and Schurmeier's driver.

The bodies of Mrs. Schurmeier, her son and Mr. Phaefler have not yet been found. The injured number ten. It is said that the cyclone was confined to a district only three and a half miles long, and that the worst damage was within a limit of half a mile.

George Hazard, a laborer in the employ of the ill-fated Schurmeier family, reached St. Paul a few minutes after midnight and reports that the list the dead at Coleman's and Gervais will certainly reach twendestroyed by fire and that many lives | United States. At Coleman's also the tornade picked up the house of Joseph Latroux and carried it far out into the lake. Mrs. Latroux and her little 4-year-old shape. The face was entirely unrecog daughter were in the house and both were drowned.

For three miles along the shore of the lake the road from St. Paul runs the line of this highway the water isfull of buggles, wagons, horses, broken trees and the debris of houses. It is practically certain that many people were blown into the lake and drowned, though no bodies have been recovered.

On the Gervaise road, four miles north of the city, the house of Nathaniel Getzky, containing twelve persons, was completely demolished, two children were killed and six other persons so badly crushed that they are not expected to recover. Four of them had gone into the cellar and the wind slid the house from its foundation, dropping its "sleepers" upon them. At North St. Paul the wind blew down a furniture factory and several dwellings, and two persons were killed, both of them by lightning.

Midnight reports from Little Canada a village of 500 people seven miles from St. Paul, indicate that the cyclone struck that place with full force. Twelve houses were blown down, three people killed and eight or ton injured.

BLOWN UP BY OIL

The Inflammable Cargo of the Big Steam-er Tioga Ignites in the Vessel's Hold While at Her Dock in Chicago—A Ter-rific Explosion Follows, the Result of Which Is the Loss of Fifteen Lives, the Wounding of Several Persons and the Sinking of the Ill-Fated Craft

Chicago, July 12.—By a terrific ex-plosion that shook all the buildings in the center of the city and startled thousands of residents the stern of the magnificent freight steamer Tioga was blown out at 7:35 o'clock Friday night and no less than fifteen men met instant death. Nine others were injured. There was a rush of steam and smoke, a cloud of shattered timbers, and the agonizing cries of those not killed who were unable to escape from the flames that at once began to eat up everything within reach of their awful fury.

Thousands flocked to the docks of the Union Steamboat Company, on the river back of Market street between Washington and Randolph, and the fire engines were soon in the vicinity doing good work to prevent the threatened complete loss of the big vessel. Theory differs as to the cause of the explosion. Some claim that the combustible cargo of oil stored in hold 5, directly aft the boilers, was the cause. Others claim that the water in the boilers had been allowed to run low and that they were unable to withstand the strain brought to bear upon them. There were, however, 150 barrels of oil stored in hold No. 5, and it appears from the testimony of those who escaped the wreck that this was the immediate cause of the explosion.

At 7 o'clock the porter, William Palmer, of Buffalo, descended into the hold with several lamps, which he placed about on the deck that the roustabouts might see to continue their work far into the night, as the vessel was to have left on her return trip to Buffalo this evening. No sooner had Palmer ascended to the upper deck after joking with the men below than the explosion came. It is believed that the vapor from a few barrels of naphtha communicated with the light of the lamps and did the fearful work. The noise of the explosion was heard nearly a mile distant from the scene.

Immediately following it came a shower of wood and iron thrown hundreds of feet into the air, with here and there the burned and mangled form of some hyman being plainly visible to the horrified spectators, and then falling into the murky waters of the river, probably never to be seen again. The main deck and promenade deck, together with the house work in the other part of the vessel, were rendered a mass of splintered wood and twisted iron. A sheet of flame wrapped the gigantic vessel from about amidship to the stern, shooting a hundred feet into the air, lighting up the neighboring warehouses and shipping with a dull glow which only added terror to the scene.

When the first engines arrived their efforts, under the direction of Marshal Campion, were directed toward checking the flames, which were fast rushing and threatening her with total destruction. From the depth of the vessel could be heard the roar of the flames and the occasional explosion of a barrel of oil, while the forms of half a score of unfortunates penned into the fiery furnace could be seen writhing in agony and unable to escape. The sight was an awful one and the firemen who made heroic efforts to render assistance were steadily driven back from their position. On the upper deck lay the unconscious forms of seven men who were hurled up from below by the force of the explosion.

The fire-engines poured tons of water into the burning vessel, the object being to cause her to sink to the river's bottom, which is very shallow at this point. An hour of this work, aided by the water rushing into a large hole torn in the bottom by the explosion, had the desired effect, and the vessel slowly found a resting-place in the bottom of

The first body taken out was that of a colored roustabout. It was found hatch leading into hold 5. Not a vestige of the clothing remained, the body being burned almost to a crisp and twisted and distorted in a horrible nizable and the body was quickly re moved to the morgue.

Along and the truck companies, lowered themselves into the hold, and, supported by planks laid across the open hatchways, recovered four more bodies and carried them out to the dock. Two of these were white men and two were colored. but they were so burned and distorted as to be unrecognizable. They were taken to the morgue and placed among the unknown dead. These were all the bodies recovered last night, but it is almost certain that the estimate of fifteen lives lost, as given above, is correct. T. T. Morford, local agent of the Union Steamboat Company, was found at his office at 11 o'clock writing a complete telegraphic report of the disaster to the company headquarters at Buffalo. He estimated the loss at from $15,000 to The steamboat Tioga was built at Buffalo in 1886 by the Union Dry-Dock Company for the Union Steamboat Com-

The writer has nothing to add to the narratives of Mr. and Miss Smith, exept that both came to his knowledge in different parts of the country. To preserve an accurate account of the weird incident, he subsequently called on the two narrators and put their testimony in writing, as nearly in their own language as circumstances permitted. The only regret he has to express is that he is not authorized to publish the real names of his informants.-G. W. Weippiert, in Detroit Free Press.

THE LAUGHING PLANT.

A Bean That Makes People Cut the Most Fantastic Capers. I made some passing remarks the other day on the kola nut and other vegetables of magic. But, if possible, even more desirable and delightful is this "laughing plant." Not that the vegetable itself laughs, it does not even smile, but its seeds, if eaten, incits to immoderate mirthfulness. It is destruck nine. She then looked at every scribed as bearing flowers of a bright one present, kissed her husband and yellow, and soft and woolly seed-pods in which are inclosed small black beans. The natives of "that part of Arabia in which the plant grows" dry and pulverize these beans, and if this powder is administered "it makes the soberest person behave like a circus clown, for he will laugh, dance, sing and cut the most fantastic capers The effect lasts about an hour, at the oblivious of his extraordinary conduct when under the influence of the pow-

Dr. Johnson had a laugh like a ton, were it not for his uncontrollable fits of contagious hijarity, might have been immortal as a tragedian. But he could no more keep his face serious than little boys in school when they are once "set off." Something of the same common condition of society if the plant we are referring to ever comes into general use. It would be an innocent sort of opium, relieving the weary and the wretched from their thoughts, and no one need be dul!. All and typho-malarial fever and typhoid alone, the hypochondriac might make himself the best of company, and withpass his evenings as merrily as if he had got Grimaldi with him or Theodore Hook. GIVEN A BLACK EYE. Matrimonial Agencies in Michigan Will Have to Seek New Fields.

The Supreme Court of Michigan recently rendered a decision that must drive matrimonial agents in the State out of business. An aged farmer recently secured a young wife. A person who claimed to have been instrumental in bringing about the match sued the bucolic bridegroom for his commission, and "settled" for a consideration of 8400. Some days after the marriage the husband announced that he had been swindled, and sued the gent to recover the $400. The case finally went to the Supreme Court, which gave judgment to the farmer, declaring that all matriare engaged in an illicit pursuit. The court also expressed its opinion to the effect that persons of either sex lacked intelligence who sought to achieve matrimonial felicity by means of newspaper advertisements or of mercenary agencies.

The following division officers were elected: Colonel, Frank B. Eddy, of Lowell; Lieutenant-Colonel. H. C. Thompson, of Bay City; Major, George W. Stevens, of Jonesville.

Work of a Fire-Cracker.

A distressing accident occurred in Davidson township the other afternoon. A 7-year-old son of Walter Wooden was left alone in the house, and while play ing with fire-crackers the house was set on fire and burned to the ground. Wooden and his wife hastened in from the field to find the remains of their son burned to a crisp and the house and contents completely destroyed.

"SHENANDOAH" is in the third week of its run at McVicker's, Chicago, and is doing a splendid business. The new cast is now giving a well nigh perfect performance of Bronson Howard's great play, and the scenes of leve and war are received with enthusiasm. It is certain that none of the scenes of love and war are received with enthusiasm. It is certain that none of the many plays introducing incidents of the late war presents them in a manner so well calculated to appease and even gratify the feelings of both parties to that bitter struggle. Excursion parties can secure seats now for any night during the ten weeks' run, and when the party is large a regular discount is made.
