As a people become prosperous and are able to indulge their more luxurious desires, a growing contempt for labor is manifested and it does not angur well for their future that such is the case. Aversion to labor is a potent factor in the downfall of nations. To come to despise and avoid that which has created and sustained us as a people and a nation is a deplorable condition of things. A contempt for labor on the part of the wealthy and educated begets a great many imitators in every the tramp and the crooks.

Fermal Opening of the Corn Palace of Beauty.

Stoux Crry, Ia., Sept. 26.—The corn palace has been formally opened with appropriate ceremonies. It will remain open till Saturday, October 11. On each day there will be parades and street demonstrations, the principal of which will be the Mandi Case nearly present. will be the Mardi Gras carnival parade; Thursday, October 2, the floats and costumes being designed by the artist in charge of the last New Orleans carnival and some of the materials having been brought from New Orleans. The corn palace this year in general design and in exterior and interior decoration is great improvement upon the former palaces. About twenty counties, of Northwestern Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska have exhibits. The States of Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee have splendid showings of their products, which are in striking contrast with those of the Northwest. A description of the palace is given below: It fronts south on Sixth street and west on Pierce street. Each front is 250 feet in length, and the southwest corner is cut to a face sixty feet wide. The building is merely a frame, inclosed with boards, but it has been made tight turn rain and protect visitors in any weather. It has the appearance of a square from the outside, but the interior is finished in the form of an octagon.

The main wall is forty-two feet high and from it the roof rises in a pyramid, the apex of which -116 feet above the ground-is truncated, and upon which is placed a globe forty-five feet in diameter. This globe is really the base of the central tower, and over it, as another part of the tower, is placed a framework which forms an immense crown. The crown is supposed to be that of "King Corn." Its height above the ground is 196 feet. Just beneath it is the globe, every geographical feature being wrought out in the various colors of corn. The sections of corn sawed lengthwise are nailed on. Thus the oceans are represented as a dark expanse by sections of blue square corn, which, viewed from the street, seem a solid mass. The coninents stand out in bright yellow, and the akes and other prominent features are made

These decorations will suggest somewhat the methods followed in adorning the exterior. The architect has so designed the building that the lowers, turrets, gables and other elevations rising above the walls and projecting outward present ample and varied fields for the artist's ngenuity. Corn is the main material, but all the grasses and grains are also used.

The interior is decorated with even greater skill. A gallery projects from the walls to distance of twenty-six feet and a height of twenty feet above the ground floor. The diameter of the interior, measuring from face to ace of the gallery, is 110 feet Elet central space are thrown trusses which support the dome. The whole interior. pillars with great wreaths of evergreens and grains. The ceiling is covered with oats, heads down, and millet and flax. Everywhere are designs wrought out in these materials. One of the most striking features of the decorations this year is the working out of pictures in grains. A frame is first made and crossed ith cloth, upon which the sketch is made in suitable materials, and the result is a picture of a conishing effects of color. One of these pictures represents a tally-ho coach party. The white horses are represented by hulled millet, the dark horses by flax and turnip seed. The tails and manes are made of corn silks, and the harness is made with husks. The various parts of the coach are made of grains of corn of various colors, the main body of a dark mahogany color, and the windows of husks. Similar materials are employed to represent the driver and the figures on the top of the coach, every detail being brought out with surprising accuracy. This is one of the simplest of the designs. There are scores of similarly wrought pictures-landscapes, groups, marines, etc. One feature is a cascade. It is a sheet of water fifteen feet wide, having the appearance of flowing through a gorge, and it terminates in a fall of eighteen

COLONEL WHEAT ACCUSED. The Postmaster of the House Charged with Improper Conduct.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.-A resolution will be presented in the House at once providing for the investigation of the Postmaster of the House, Colonel James L. Wheat, of Wisconsin. The resolution recites that a charge has been made that Wheat gave a contract for the carrying of the mails of the House postoffice to one Culbertson with the agreement that Culbertson would pay to him (Wheat) $150 per month out of the same, and that he did receive this amount for at least five months. The resolution will create a decided sensation, as Wheat is well known and popular both here and in his own State.

FAILURE AT PITTSBURGH. The Iron City Bridge Company Reported to Be in a Bad Way. PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 26. - The failure of the Iron City Bridge Company. consisting of Charles J. Schultz & Sons, is reported. No schedule of the liabilities and assets has yet been prepared, but it is understood that Oliver Bros. hold judgments against the firm aggregating $110,000. It is one of the oldest firms in the city and was always considered strong financially. This is the first failure of any importance here in a long time.

Exciting Scene at the Trial of Dillon and O'Brien-Tipperary Police Attack the Crowd Around the Court-Room-Many Persons Injured.

DUBLIN, Sept. 26.—Patrick O'Brien who was arrested at Cardiff on Tuesday was brought to this city Wednesday and placed in prison. The police refused to give any information as to when he would be taken to Tips perary for a hearing. But late Wednesday night the Nationalists learned that he would be conveyed thither by the morning train, and they at once made preparations to give him a worthy escort. Much to the surprise of the authorities a large delegation of Nationalists boarded the train at the same time that the officers appeared with O'Brien. Among these were John Morley, who has been in Ireland for some time studying the Irish question; John Dillon, Alfred Illingworth, member of Parliament for Bradford; T. M. Healy, Commoner Harrington and several others. On the arrival of the train at Tip perary the Nationalists started for the court-house in a body. They had not gone far when they stopped at a street corner and entered into a conversation. While they were standing, in no way disturbing the peace there, they were ordered by the police to move on. John O'Connor, member of Parliament from South Tipperary, took very vigorous exception to this order and showed his contempt for the police by calling upon the crowd, which by that time had become large, to give three cheers for John Morley. The cheers were given with hearty good will, much to the exasperation of the police, who thereupon charged upon the group and attempted to force it to move forward. In the melee that followed the policemen did not hesitate to use their batons. One burly constable aimed a blow at John Morley himself, but John O'Connor, who stood near, warded it off. The Nationalists then continued their way slowly toward the court-house Early in the day it became known that still another arrest had been made. The victim this time was Thomas J. Condon, member of Parliament for Tipperary East. He was taken at Limerick and also brought to Tipperary.

As it was the day fixed for the trial of the arrested Nationalists, the streets of Tipperary were full to overflowing with people interested in the case. When the hour for the sitting of the court arrived an immense crowd had collected before the court-house, ready to rush in the moment the doors were thrown open. The authorities thereupon decided not to open the doors to the general public, but to admit only those who were immediately interested in the trial. The crowd did not take kindly to this treatment, but pressed forward trying to force a way into the courthouse. The police stoutly resisted, charging repeatedly upon the crowd and using their clubs freely on whoever happened to be within reach. Many of their blows took effect, but the crowd did not yield instantly. For fully five minutes there was a stand-up fight between the now excited throng and the police. At last, however, the crowd was gradually forced back, and the police succeeded in maintaining a clear space in front of the court-house. The leaders of the crowd continued to make vigorous protests against being excluded from the court-house and the police were subjected to jeers and taunts from the angry and wounded victims of their ecent onslaught.

During the conflict many persons were wounded with blows from the policemen's bludgeons. One of the most serious cases was that of a man, some of whose teeth were knocked out and forced into his throat. Several men were so badly hurt as to require surgical attendance. Among the wounded were Timothy Harrington, member of Parliament for Dublin, and a Mr. Halifax. Both received heavy blows on their heads, which bled profusely. They made their way into the court-room as soon as they could. But by that time their hair and coat codlars were saturated with blood and they presented a pitiable spectacle. Their appearance in court created a profound sensation and lent additional emphasis to the complaint which Mr. William O'Brien was making to the court of the brutality of the police,

At first Mr. O'Brien had refused to enter the court-room unless the public could be freely admitted. He maintained this attitude for some time, but at last decided that he could accomplish more by appealing to the court, entered the room and bitterly denounced the wanton clubbing of the crowd of which he had just been a witness. It was while he was speaking that the sensational entrance of Messrs. Harrington and Halifax occurred.

Then John Morley rose and addressed the court, manifesting great agitation both in tone and manner. He earnestly appealed to the court to protect the populace against the wanton use of the club by the police. Meanwhile the National leaders continued to protest against the exclusion of the general public from the court-room. Both Mr. Morley and Mr. Dillon appealed to Colonel Caddell, the presiding magistrate, to reverse his decision to keep the doors shut against the public. For some time he refused to recede from his determination. Messrs Morley and Dillon, however, continued to labor with him, and at last he yielded the point and ordered the doors thrown open. This was certainly intelligible enough. Probably Mrs. Morgan did not know when she wrote this note that in withdrawing her patronage from the young girl she was depriving her of hree-fourths of her income. So it was, however, and it was with a deep sinking of the heart that Margaret Tremaine read the four lines recorded above. Margaret, as of course the reader will understand, was a music teacher. She had been reared in affluence, bat the sudden failure of her father, and his almost immediate death, had thrown her upon her own resources for support. She had a brother two years older, who had gone to California in search of employment. It was in the early days of the history of that State. "NEVER SURRENDER."

Colonel Moore, Author of the Famous Remark, Taken to an Asylum. Colonel O. H. Moore, of Coldwater, has been taken to St. Joseph Retreat, a private asylum near Detroit, for treatment. Ten years ago, while serving in the regular army on the frontier, he was overcome by the heat, and has since gradually lost his mind and is now a physical wreck. Colonel Moore is the part of the city. A young man man who, when his command was surrounded July 4, 1863, by the rebel General Morgan at Tibb's Bend, Ky., cut his way out against fearful odds, replying, when summoned to surrender, with the words which made him famous: "Yankees never surrender on the Fourth of July."

Something of a Surprise. Citizens of Grand Ledge were treated to considerable of a surprise the other day by the arrest of Deputy Sheriff C. advantage of her father's absence from R. Patrick O'Connor, aged 28, until recently a clerk in the Grand Rapids & Indiana railway offices, was found dead in a gutter in the southern part of Grand Rapids the other morning with his skull crushed, the result apparently of blows from a club. He attended social gathering last night near the scene of the tragedy, and at 11 o'clock started for home alone. He was waylaid on the road by some enemy, as his money and watch were undisturbed.

Health in Michigan Reports to the State Board of Health by seventy-five observers in different parts of the State for the week ended September 20 indicated that cerebro-spinal meningitis, typhoid fever, inflammation of the brain and inflammation of the bowels increased, and whooping cough and pneumonia decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-four places, scarlot fever at twenty-seven, typhoid fever at thirtythree and measles at seven places.

Big Fire at Bay City. About 4 o'clock the other afternoon fire broke out in Eddy Bros. & Co.'s lumber wharf, located in the northern part of Bay City. The flames spread rapidly from one dock to another, and before they were controlled 3,000,000 feet of choice lumber had been destroyed, 1,000,000 feet of which had been bargained for at $20 per 1,000. The company estimated the loss at $60,-000, nearly covered by insurance.

One of Chicago's Big Packing-Houses, That of Fowler Bros., Destroyed by Fire -The Loss Estimated at $700,000.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. - Fowler Bros. packing-houses, one of the largest esablishments at the stock yards, took fire about 2:30 a. m. Sunday, and at midnight the ruins were still blazing.

The firemen worked against obstacles from the start. Water had little effect on the grease-soaked floors, and the fire soon reached the tank-room, where thirty-two tanks of lard were located. These exploded one after another with loud reports and the boiling lard burned fiercely. The heat was so intense the There is one thing a woman can never dofiremen were compelled to work at a distance. The flames spread to the been.—Atchison Globe. distance. The girls were employed in sewing hams, trimming meat and other light work.

Mr. Fowler estimates his loss as follows: On the building and machinery, $125,000; 7,000 dressed hogs hanging in the packing-house, $75,000; on the twenty tanks of lard, the meat and hams and other products, $500,000, making a total of $700,000. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

COLONEL BOUDINOT.

The Famous Cherokee Statesman Passes Away at His Home in Fort Smith, Ark. FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 29. - Saturday morning Colonel Elias Cornelius Boudinot the lawyer, statesman and orator breathed his last after an illness of about eighteen days. He was buried Sunday with Masonic ceremonies.

[Colonel Boudinot was a quarter-blood Cher-okee Indian. He was born in New Echola, Ga. His Indian ancestors were distinguished among the Cherokees and were noted for their prowes the Cherokees and were noted for their prowess in war and their eloquence and sagacity in the councils of their country. In 1861 he was secretary of the convention which took Arkansas out of the Union. At the adjournment of this convention he went to the cherokee hatton and raised a reg ment of Cherokees for the Confederate army. He was elected Major of this regiment and afterward became Lieutenant-Colonel. Colonel Boudinot-became a member of the Confederate Congress, in which capacity he served until the war closed. Shortly after the war he became involved in a dispute with the Federal Government, which dispute was finally settled by an act of Congress in 1871. In a speech in the Cherokee nation he put forth the idea that the Indians should drop their tribal customs and become citizens of the United States. For this he was forced to flee from the Indian Territory to save his life, but latterly the Indians of the Territory had become reconciled to his doctrines and satisfied he was their best friend.]
