Bert Howlett, of Lyndon, was agreeably surprised last Friday evening, by about thirty of his young friends, it being his twentieth birthday. An enjoyable time was had by all. May he live to see many more birthdays is the wish of his many friends.

The boy who spends his evenings at home reading newspapers, the local news of his own town and county, and the general news of the days, or in reading some useful book, will certainly make a better man, everything else being equal, than the boy who spends his evenings on the streets and loafing at places where the town gossip is dished out, in the most common and profane manner.

At the request of Rt. Rev. Bishop Foley all the Catholic churches of the diocese held appropriate service on Thanksgiving day. Rev. Father Considine officiated in St. Mary's church, and the juvenile choir sang some beautiful songs. At the end of Mass, the prayer for the President of the United States and the civil authorities was offered up. The alters were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The remains of the late Mr. James Gorman, Sr. were taken up, and tenderly laid away in Mt. Olivet cemetery this week. Mr. Frank Staffan also removed some of his relatives to the above-named cemetery. The avenues are now graveled, paths laid out, and the improvements of a few weeks are wonderful. The Catholic's of St. Mary's parish have now a cemetery of which they may well feel proud. The acquisition of this resting place for the departed is not the least of the good works inaugurated by the present pastor.

We desire to call attention to the beautiful poem "Brother Alfus," published in this issue. It is a first effort in this line by one of Chelsea's brightest boys, and is really commendable, giving evidence, in many lines, of genuine, poetic genius. The legend, which is turned into poetry, is well known to those familiar with English literature. It seems to us that our young friend is climbing the steps that lead to Parnassus and the Home of the Muses. We cordially encourage such efforts, and gladly give space for the inscription of these poetic lines.

There is much still to be done by the graded school system in the way of fitting them to the primary purposes for which they are designed. There are many old fogies who do not hesitate to say that the old red brick or log school houses were fully as successful in turning out boys and girls fitted to brave the battles of life and reach successful man and womanhood as the best graded schools of to-day. In the most advanced of the schools of our large towns and cities everything is set to the one purpose of fitting the pupils for the high schools and the college, whereas not one scholar in twenty remains in school after the age of fourteen.

They Will

WILL THEY GO?

Johnnie.

It would be impossible to hold them with a 2-inch rope tied in a hard knot.

You may hear that Glazier is loading up too heavily with holiday goods—can't sell 'em all—ain't enough people in the country to buy them all—will get left—and other similar remarks. Well we expect to get left, but in the same old way we always get left, with the cash in place of the goods. Underbuy and Underwill does the business. The people of Chelsea have a hard-headed sensible way of knowing what they want, and they are pretty apt to insist upon the gratification of their wants, they don't want to pay two prices for goods, and won't have to as long as our Underbuy and Underwill prices prevail. Just now they all seem bent upon looking over our Holiday stock and leaving their Christmas presents laid away for them.

TWENTY MILLION acres of the land of the United States are held by foreigners.

SOME wealthy New York ladies contemplate founding a big daily newspaper next year.

It is said that excellent wool is being made out of the fiber of the fir tree by means of electricity.

An exchange says there is a well in Lincoln County, Miss., that flows free on week days, but always goes dry on Sunday.

DURING the past seventy-three years the American Bible Society has distributed over 52,736,000 copies of the Scripture.

TWENTY-SEVEN THOUSAND men in New York City are supported by their wives, and all these men, doubtless, were counted in the census as heads of families.

THERE is a man up in Maine who is likely to cause some profanity among stenographers and mailing clerks. His name is Glorious Florious George Washington Stout Peck.

"The United States Government loses nearly one million dollars every year by the fraudulent use of canceled stamps," remarked Assistant Postmaster Lanning the other day.

MEXICO is called a Republic, but, as a matter of fact, it is governed by an oligarchy of landlords. Some of these men own vast domains, one possessing five hundred million acres of land.

AGUSTE, a picker-up of cigar ends, has just died in Paris, leaving behind him the respectable sum of one hundred thousand francs, which, it is narrated, he amassed from his occupation.

IRELAND is beginning to swell the hosts of immigration. Within the last year twenty thousand of its inhabitants have gone to other countries, leaving the home population reduced by nearly one-half.

HERE is the latest thing in trusts. It is a monkey trust, organized at Newark, N. J., by Italians, "to bring to America for sale in the different cities and museums monkeys from Africa and the Azores."

It is now more than two thousand years since it was first proposed to cut a canal through the Isthmus of Corinth, but the work is at last under way, directed by a Polish engineer, and promises to be completed in 1892.

JOHN W. JANUARY, the noted experimenter of war, who cut off his feet at Andersonville in order to save his life, is going on the stage in a thrilling war play. Mr. January will hardly be a success as the walking gentleman.

HENRY DIXON, manufacturer of musical instruments for bands, and the head of the Dixon factory at Williamsport, says there are fifteen thousand brass bands in this country, with one hundred and fifty thousand performers.

THE opening of a bank in Hardinsburg, Ky., brought to light a $500 bill that a farmer living near there had had stored away in his house for twenty years. This amount put out at simple interest for that length of time would have brought the owner $600.

WILLIAM A. SLATER, of Norwich, Conn., son of the great cotton manufacturer who gave $1,000,000 for educating the Southern Freedmen, has followed his father's example and given $150,000 to endow a public hospital in his native city. He is worth $20,000,000.

STANLEY's traveling in America will not be surrounded by the same hardships as was his journey through Central Africa. He is to have a private car especially constructed for his use, in which he will live during the tour. In addition he received $5,000 for his first lecture in New York, and will receive $500 for every subsequent address delivered by him during his tour, which will end April 6 next.

It is a curious fact, revealed by the figures of the recent census, that while there are in the United States three cities of more than 1,000,000 inhabitants each, one of between 800,000 and 900,000, three of between 400,000 and 500,000 each, and nine of between 200,000 and 300,000 each, there is not a single one inhabiting between 300,000 and 400,000 inhabitants. In 1890 we had but nine cities with a population over 100,000 each.

SOME figures recently made public by a foreign statistician regarding the extent to which women have affected the industrial situation in Europe show an unusual prevalence of female labor in factories. They assert that in Germany the number of female artisans and mechanics is upwards of 5,500,000. England follows with about 4,000,000. France with only a few less, while in both Italy and Austria the number approximates 3,500,000. It is not difficult, therefore, in view of these figures, to understand why foreigners are so anxious to immigrate to this country, where labor is better appreciated.

THERE is something very saddening in the announcement of the veteran historian Bancroft that falling health has at last compelled him to lay aside forever the pen which has been so busy in the upbuilding of American literature. The language in which this information is conveyed is noble in its quiet resignation and cheerfulness. Mr. Bancroft says: "I have laid my work upon the shelf, and I now only wait for the future summons. Literary effort has passed beyond my powers. I can do no more, so I must accept the common lot of humanity." Mr. Bancroft has had a busy life, and he has earned his rest.

A GERMAN scientist claims that by means of an acid process he can convert sawdust into a material firm in texture and extremely hard, impervious to the action of the elements than the ordinary metals, and practically indestructible by fire. The scientist also claims that it is much stronger than timber for joists and girders, and several times lighter than iron or steel, and, above all, the cost of manufacture is claimed to be so low as to bring it into direct competition with both wood and iron.

FOR JACKSON PARK.

Plans for the World's Fair Exhibit on That Portion of the Site.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Plans and specifications for the world's fair buildings will be presented to the National commission to-day. The local directors adopted them Friday. Their approval is the last act necessary to be taken by the commission to secure the President's proclamation to the world announcing that the world's fair is on.

The report of the directors of the National commission to use all of Jackson Park for purposes of the fair, leaving the improved parts as much as possible in their present condition. The unimproved part is to be laid out in a manner appropriate to the whole plan of buildings and at the same time to follow, when possible, the lines already laid down by the park commissioners.

In general the present northern inlet is to be extended and to become an interior lagoon, inclosed in this lagoon is an island covered with an extensive body of native wood. It is an essential part of the general design that it shall be preserved and made the basis of a natural landscape to supply an episode of scenery in refreshing relief to the grandeur of the buildings.

"From the lagoon above mentioned a canal will connect the waterway southward along the main building, and into the large basin which is to form the center of a great court about which the principal buildings of the exposition are to be grouped. The water in the fountain of water are to be finished in ways appropriate to the various localities through which they pass. Broad terraces and landings will be needed where the lagoon opens into the court, and the Government exhibits, while the shores of the island have informal outlines masked with foliage. The borders of the canal and the basin of the court are to be treated formally with embankments of stone or brick, surrounded by parapets or balustrades of stone, iron, brick or terra cotta, and opening upon steps and landings here and there where boat parties may land.

"All passenger railways, whether steam, cable, electric or horse, will deliver passengers inside the administration building. From this place an intramural electric elevated road will connect with the grounds, entering buildings where deemed advisable and having convenient stations wherever necessary. It will connect with the station at Midway Plaisance and pass back to the administration building, the route of this road forming a complete circuit and making it easy to form one place to another without walking. Visitors once in the fair will come out of the administration building through the grounds, where all the spaces are very broad, affording ample room for the gathering or dispersing of large crowds. Wheeled chairs are to be always kept in attendance here. The buildings will be impressive in appearance when viewed from this court.

"Opposite the great open court, as yet to be of such form and direction as may be hereafter determined, will project into the lake about 1,500 feet. It is to be so constructed as to form a harbor for the largest lake craft and for their better safety. There is to be a large restaurant and resting-place at the outer end of this pier, with a band-stand and dancing floor in connection with the grounds, and to be a most noted feature of the exposition.

"Without destroying the improved part of Jackson Park on the north, the horticultural exhibit is to be placed there upon the open ground, which is largely of iron and glass, and furnished with a plant for purposes of heating and ventilation. The large open green in front of the building will be used for the display of horticultural exhibits.

"According to instructions we have placed the agricultural and live-stock exhibits in the southwestern portion of the park, where the land is comparatively high and well protected. For agriculture a building is to be erected, in size and arrangement adapted to the need of this department and having an independent heating plant.

"For live stock the buildings are to be adapted to the needs of the department, and having this department in charge. In general there will be housing for stock and their attendants and hospitals for the animals. Receiving pens for the agricultural and live-stock exhibits, it is the intention of the designers to place these departments interesting in plan and appearance by all the arts at their command.

"The Government will furnish their own buildings and exhibits, among the latter a line of battle-ship fully equipped. A large open campus will be laid near this point for Government exhibits.

"Across the inlet from the Government exhibit will be the buildings for the fisheries. A building here as beautiful as possible in appearance will be erected of durable materials and fitted with every appliance and detail to carry on the propagation, subsisting and display of water animals.

"The administration building is to cover many departments, among them that of a station for all transportation, the express and parcel station more extensive than any now existing. It will also contain the full administration forces; for information, for police, fire, transportation, and other similar purposes. It is therefore headquarters where nearly all visitors will arrive, attend to any business that they may have and depart, and where all forces and employees report their orders.

"The machinery hall, which will be larger than any before built, will not only cover machinery in the ordinary sense, but will furnish a large open space spanned with wide trusses, where the most interesting and valuable of the display of the different transportation exhibits.

"The main building for manufacturers is to be arranged in plan to cover many functions. In it either the ground-floor level or above are to be special, isolated rooms for judges or for special societies or committees. Here are to be arranged the exhibits of the canal and toward the West.

"The electric and mining exhibits are each to occupy a building across the canal from the manufacturing building, each adapted to its purpose and furnished with power. The one for electric power is to be adapted not only for power house and light station, but to be especially for all displays and contests for manufacturing and of the companies or persons in the business, and to be in itself a very interesting and valuable display of the day or night.

"This group of buildings—namely, the administration, the machinery, the manufacturing, the electric and mining—are to form a whole in design. They are intended to be so impressive, as a plan most convenient and as structures to be very substantial.
