THE old method of the art preservative has been discovered by German ingenuity. THE fact has just come out that Tennyson adds a pretty penny to his income by selling milk from the cows on his Isle of Wight estate. More than this he actually has the name of Alfred Lord Tennyson painted on the side of his milk cans. This will give financial aristocrats admirers of England's laureate a shock. Sensible folks will be unable to see any harm in it. Milk is a good deal more necessary to human existence than poetry.

A CURIOUS fact noted in connection with the epidemic of grip still prevalent in London is that it has almost wholly spared members of the dramatic and musical profession. Inasmuch as such persons do not enjoy any advantage over the rest of the community in the matter of hygienic surroundings, the most likely explanation of their exemption is the constant use of the vocal organs tends to fortify them against the lodgment of the grip germs.

THE Pittsburgh Times thinks "it is only a question of time as to whether or not women will monopolize the work of teaching in the public schools. In forty cities having a population each of 10,000 and above in states east and west, north and south, they outnumber the men in the schools by more than five to one—3,779 to 655, according to a census bulletin just issued. In smaller communities and in the rural districts the proportion is still greater, perhaps because the men who want to teach as a profession or while preparing for a profession, crowd into the cities, there the salaries being highest."

THE young Chinese emperor has celebrated the completion of his 20th year by picking out a new wife. Precedent allows a man of his rank seven of these companions, and this acquisition is only the second. His mother examined the many candidates for the honor, and selected ten therefrom, out of which number Hwangti made the final choice. The maiden is the daughter of a mandarin of the yellow button, and is said to have the smallest foot in Pekin. To be an emperor's wife in China is not considered a very enviable lot, as after marriage she is never permitted to see her old friends again.

Unveiling of the Confederate Monument at Jackson, Miss.—Eulogy of Jefferson Davis.

JACKSON, Miss., June 4.—The monument to dead confederate soldiers was unveiled here in the presence of thousands among whom were numbered men who fought on either side during the war. A civic and military procession marched through the streets to the site of the monument, on reaching which the exercises were at once begun.

After prayer, the monument, which up to this time had been draped in white muslin, was then formally unveiled amid prolonged applause, while the combined bands rendered "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Dixie."

The monument was formally presented by Miss Sallie R. Morgan, the presentation speech being made by C. F. Hooker. It was accepted on behalf of the confederate veterans by Col. J. E. MacIntosh. SIR JOHN IS DEAD.

Death of Premier Macdonald, the Famous Canadian Statesman—A Brief Sketch of His Career.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 8.—Sir John Macdonald, premier of the dominion, died Saturday night at 10:15. He never rallied from unconsciousness and passed quietly away.

The remains of the dead leader were embalmed Sunday morning. The official programme of the funeral arrangements is as follows: The body will be privately moved from Earncliffe to the parliament buildings and will lie in state there from 10 o'clock Tuesday morning till the hour of the funeral. The state funeral will leave the parliament buildings at 1 o'clock p. m. Wednesday for St. Alban's church and thence to the Canadian Pacific railway station, whence the body will be conveyed to Kingston. The body will lie in state at the city hall, Kingston, until Thursday noon, when the interment will take place.

The premier's death dissolves the ministry and Canada is without a cabinet. It is now in order for the governor general to call upon some members of the late cabinet to form a ministry. Who this will be is of course a mystery as yet, but in all probability Sir John Thompson, minister of justice, will be the governor general's choice. His excellency will then issue a royal commission empowering the premier to act and appoint the members of his cabinet. When this is done the premier will report his decision to the house of commons and the new government will again live.

LONDON, June 8.—The papers all eulogize Sir John Macdonald. The Daily News says that his death is a loss to the whole empire. If not exactly a great man, he did great things. His death was likely to produce far-reaching changes. The Times says that the Canadian Pacific railway will be Macdonald's enduring monument.

The premier of the Canadian government has been almost as well known to newspaper readers as statesmen. When this is done the premier will report his decision to the house of commons and the new government will again live.

His going before the people for indorsement last winter when his regime had still a year to run was essentially American. While the large majority of the people of this country was in opposition to Sir John Macdonald, his ideas on reciprocity and on the United States in general his courage and forcing an expression of opinion from the people could not be denied. His success was not so much a matter of self-congratulation. Briefly his biography may be written as follows: Sir John Alexander Macdonald, C. B., G. C. M. G., D. C. L., was born in Scotland, Ont., and formerly of Sutherlandshire, Scotland, born January 11, 1815; called to the bar in 1838; acted as a queen's counsel in 1846; was the head of the extensive law firm of Macdonald & Marsh, Toronto; the grand representative of the grand lodge of A. F. & A. M. of England; holding the rank of a past grand senior warden of the free masons of Canada; was a member of the executive council of Canada from 1847 to 1848; was receiver general, commissioner of crown lands and attorney general, postmaster general, and successively prime minister, at times, and minister of militia, and government leader up to the union in 1867; has been a delegate to England and other countries on behalf of the dominion; was chairman of the London colonial conference, 1866-67, when the act of union known as the "British North America act" was passed; by imperial parliament; in July, 1873, when the constitution came into force, formed the first government, holding office until he and his ministry resigned on the Pacific railroad charges—November 6, 1873; in 1874 was appointed one of her majesty's joint high commissioners and plenipotentiaries to act in connection with five commissioners named by the president of the United States for the settlement of the Alabama claims, etc., which resulted in the treaty of Washington, May 8, 1871. Received degree of D. C. L. (Hon.) from Oxford university, 1885; is also LL. D. of Queen's university, Kingston, and LL. D. of Trinity college, Toronto; created K. C. B. (civil) by her majesty; knight of grand cross of the Royal Order (Spain) Isabella Catholica, and a member of her majesty's privy council since 1859. His political career was marked by his leadership of the conservative opposition in 1873. During summer of 1881 was created G. C. M. G. by her majesty the queen, and in the same year was created a knight of the order of St. Michael and St. George, which was highly honored. The following are among the principal measures carried through parliament by Sir John: viz: The securitization of the clergy reserves; the improvement of the criminal law; the promotion of public instruction; the consolidation of the statutes; the extension of the municipal system; reorganization of the militia; settlement of the seat of government question; establishment of direct steam communication with Europe; establishment of additional penitentiaries, criminal lunatic asylums and reformatories; and providing for inspection of the construction of the intercolonial railway; enlargement of Canada; ratification of the Washington treaty; confederation of British North America and extension of the dominion. In his position of leader of the opposition he on several occasions gave the government the benefit of his ability and long experience in perfecting several of their most important measures, notably the insolvent act and act constituting the supreme court of the dominion. His last great piece of statesmanship from his point of view was declining to enter into trade relations with this country.

His death was likely to produce far-reaching changes. The Times says that the Canadian Pacific railway will be Macdonald's enduring monument.

What is believed to be the largest wheel in the world was made recently at the works of the Dickinson Manufacturing Company in Saranac, Pa., for the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, of Michigan. It is a cog wheel 54 feet in diameter, with an 18-inch face, and is built in the exact form of a bicycle, with its extensions and spokes. The capacity of the wheel, at a velocity of 10 feet a second at the inner edge of the buckets, is 30,000,000 gallons of water and 2,000 tons of sand in 24 hours. Its weight is 400,000 pounds. The journals are 23 inches in diameter and 3 feet 5 inches long. The total length of the shaft is 33 feet 6 inches.

HANGED.

The Murderers of an Aged Nebraska Farmer Suffer the Death Penalty.

FREMONT, Neb., June 6.—Charles Shepherd and Chris Furst were hanged here for the murder of Carlos T. Pulsifer, an aged farmer near Crowell, Neb. Pulsifer was quite wealthy and as there was no bank in that village he carried his money with him at night. The two men planned to rob him, and on the night of December 10, 1889, they waylaid and shot him down, robbing the body of twenty dollars, which was all he had. Governor Snyder refused to interfere with the findings of the court and ordered out his militia to protect the sheriff at the execution, and to keep the people from eering down the stockade in which the murderers were hanged. Both men confessed their guilt on the scaffold.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

An Englishman Kills His Wife, His Child and Himself.

LONDON, June 3.—A horrible crime of double murder and suicide has come to light. The scene of the tragedy was in one of the poor quarters of Kentish town, a suburb of London. The neighbors of a family, occupying apartments in a house in this quarter, noticed that none of the family had been seen for some little time, and upon opening the apartments the head of the family, his wife and his child were found dead in the rooms. Judging from the condition of the rooms it is evident that the man first killed his wife and child by cutting their throats, and then killed himself in the same manner. The wounds inflicted are terrible ones. No reason is known for the crime.

STREET-CAR MAXIMS.

If there is no room anywhere the company earnestly advises trying the new train.

Wagon seats and straps are all occupied passengers without them will not need either.

Conquer the habit of giving up your seat to the women. If you do not you will be a strapper for life.

The gripman will increase speed going around corners, his object being to frighten old ladies and upset careless strappers.

Never quarrel over a strap. Yield gracefully, and if you can't stand alone going around curves there are laps all about you to fall into.

Passengers are not allowed to put their heads and arms out of the windows unless there is no room for their extremities within the car.

When the guard says: "Plenty of room in the center of the car, gentlemen," stroll up and occupy it. He knows better than you; it must be there.

If, while holding to a strap, you step on the feet of a passenger who is seated, do not apologize. The gutter is glad enough to have the seat to take the discomforts with it.

IT HAS THEM ALL.

By the Purchase of the Shufeldt and Calumet Distilleries the Whisky Trust Becomes One of the Most Complete Monopolies in the World.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The whisky trust has triumphed at last. The distilling and cattle feeding company, the incorporated name of the trust, has purchased the Henry H. Shufeldt, and the Calumet Distilling Company's plants, thereby ending one of the bitterest fights between rival concerns ever known, and at the same time creating one of the most absolute and complete monopolies the commercial world has ever heard of. The two big which includes the real estate, machinery, stock of goods, patents, trademarks, good will and the right to continue the use of the names of the two companies. The purchase price, it is understood, is in the neighborhood of $4,500,000.

The purchase leaves the trust practically without a rival. The trust was organized four years ago, and with these purchases has succeeded in gobbling up every distillery in the entire country. One year ago it had four healthy rivals in the field. They were the St. Paul Distilling Company, the Riverdale of Chicago, the Shufeldt and the Calumet. At that time it weakened its enemies' strength by securing the St. Paul concern, and last September fold. And Thursday the crisis was reached after a most bitter fight on the part of the Shufeldts and Lynchs.

Thursday's purchases make the whisky trust the absolute owners of every distillery in Chicago. The Shufeldt has a capacity of 51,000 bushels, producing 35,000 gallons of whisky a day, proof 90. The Calumet's capacity is 35,000 bushels, or 17,000 gallons a day. Before these last purchases the trust produced about 200,000 gallons a day. The other Chicago distilleries owned by the trust are the Phoenix, with a capacity of 3,500 bushels; the United States, 2,000; the Chicago, 2,500; the Empire, 2,000; the Riverdale, 2,000; and the National, 2,000. These do not represent half the property of the trust, although if necessary the Chicago plants could produce about one-third of the total product.

President Sheridan, of the Calumet Distilling Company, is of the opinion that the new deal will not materially affect the price of whisky, as it has already reached the reasonable margin. To raise it much higher would invite competition with the Kentucky whisky and bring large amounts of aged goods into the market.

HANGED FOR HIS CRIME.

Narcisse Larocque, Who Murdered the McGonagle Children, Executed in Ontario.

L'ORIGINAL, Ont., June 5.—Narcisse Larocque, who on October 7 last brutally murdered two little girls named McGonagle, was hanged here at 8:05 a. m. He died without a word and without the faintest sign of fear. He made no confession.

Larocque's victims were the children of James McGonagle, a farmer living a mile and a half from the village of Cumberland, and were aged 14 and 12 years respectively. On Tuesday, October 7, the girls went to school as usual. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon they started for home and were last seen alive half a mile from there. They did not reach home and on Thursday a searching party scoured the country for them. At 10 o'clock that night the party came on the two bodies of the girls in a bush. They were lying side by side, partially covered by dead leaves. Mary's school books lay in her lap. Their tongues were protruded, and there was a dark circle on each neck, showing that death was caused by strangulation. The bodies had also been assaulted. Larocque was arrested and convicted on purely circumstantial evidence.

Logan came to Greensburg and gave himself up, and was admitted to bail, his father, one of Greensburg's richest men, going security for $10,000.

A Bank Failure.

HUNTINGBORO, Ind., June 5.—The Huntingboro bank closed its doors Thursday morning. This action was decided upon by the directors on account of the heavy losses the bank has sustained. The losses were caused by the cashier permitting depositors to overdraw their accounts. These overdrafts will probably aggregate between $30,000 and $40,000. The directors will apply for a receiver. The bank was organized under the state law in 1883. Its capital stock was $25,000 and surplus of $10,000.

THE FUGITIVE YIELDS.

The Itata Reaches Iquique and Surrenders to American Warships There in Accordance with an Agreement Between the Authorities—Her Contraband Cargo of 5,000 Rifles Seized.

IQUIQUE, June 5.—The Itata arrived here Thursday morning with 5,000 rifles aboard. It was immediately surrendered to the American admiral—McCann. The commander of the Itata states that the arms were not embarked at San Diego, but at a point many miles at sea. The Iquique government claims that this circumstance modifies the situation considerably and will probably result in a speedy solution of the difficulties between the admirals and the junta. The authorities at the same time declare that the cargo of the Itata is of little importance, taking into consideration the small number of arms.

As soon as the Itata entered the harbor here from Tocopella Rear Admiral McCann, in company with the rebel vessel, went on board. With very little trouble the privateer and her precious freight were placed under control of the United States squadron. The captain of the steamer says he did not see the Esmeralda off Acapulco, and although he was expecting a chase, did not actually know the Charleston was in pursuit. Naturally the Itata's officers are disappointed that the vessel and cargo have to be given up without a fight for them. Shortly before 12 o'clock Thursday the Charleston was sighted, and thirty minutes later she reached the offing and saluted. Capt. Remy reported to the rear admiral and was at once placed in charge of the Itata.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The navy department received official information Thursday night of the peaceful surrender of the Chilean insurgent steamer Itata at Iquique. This information was contained in a dispatch from Acting Rear-Admiral McCann, received by Secretary Tracy several hours after the regular time of closing the department. The dispatch came in cipher, and it took about three hours to translate it, and even then there were several instances in which its contents could not be fully interpreted. In effect the dispatch stated that the Itata had arrived at Iquique from Tocopella Wednesday night and was placed at the disposition of Admiral McCann Thursday morning. It had on board, the dispatch says, 5,000 rifles and also ammunition taken from the schooner Robert and Mining off the port of San Diego, Cal. It has no other munitions of war than those belonging to the ship and had transferred nothing to the Esmeralda, with which it communicated off Acapulco, Mex. After communicating with this insurgent cruiser the Itata went direct to Tocopella.

The Itata's offense does not come within the definition of piracy, and by putting the United States deputy marshal ashore she escaped the penalty of kidnapping. Naval and state department authorities differ as to the exact nature of the offense, but these questions will be settled when the vessel is taken back to San Diego under the convoy of one of Admiral McCann's cruisers. The Itata will be delivered to the United States court officers at San Diego and the proceedings against it for violation of the neutrality laws will be resumed at the point where they were interrupted by the unlawful departure of the steamship, and the responsible parties will, if they appear, also be called upon to answer the additional charge of contempt of court in running away while under injunction.

Secretary Tracy said that the desire for a surrender came from the leaders of the insurgent party at Iquique. Shortly after the vessel had illegally escaped from the custody of the marshal at San Diego the government was informed by these leaders that they disapproved the action of the officers of the vessel the moment she escaped, and made offers through Admiral McCann to peacefully surrender her to the United States as soon as she arrived in Chilean waters. These offers were then communicated to the department at Washington, and in due time were accepted by this government, without, however, implying any recognition on the part of the United States of the insurgents as belligerents. The proposition for a peaceful surrender was pending at the time the Charleston, which was in pursuit of the Itata, was at Acapulco replenishing her diminished coal supply. As soon as the offer was accepted the telegram authorizing him to cease the chase was sent to Capt. Remy, of the Charleston, but the steamer had already sailed when the telegram reached Acapulco, and the captain, unaware of the turn affairs had taken, proceeded on his search for the escaped vessel. The fact of the acceptance of the offer to surrender the Itata on her arrival in Chilean waters was therefore communicated to Admiral McCann, who was prepared to receive the Itata on her arrival.

This ends a remarkable naval chase. The judicial proceedings will be watched with interest, and as important questions of international law may be brought forward if the owners of the Itata insist on a full legal determination of all matters lately being argued up. It is likely the case will be a celebrated one and a precedent that will be among the first looked up hereafter, should cases arise to which the questions settled in this case would be applicable.

Additional Local.

Canada expects a short wheat crop this year.

We have been encouraging an offensive, dangerous and alien class of immigrants. We have been using the sponge, absorbing everything good or bad, safe or dangerous, when we should have been using the sieve, to sift out the chaff and worthless stuff from the good grain. We have now not only to check the wholesale importation of paupers and criminals, but of all elements which do not assimilate with us.

A great many people are interested in knowing how to remove oil marks on wall paper, where careless people have rested their heads. This may be done by making a paste of cold water and pipeclay or fuller's earth, and laying it on the stains without rubbing it in; leave it on all night, and in the morning it can be brushed off, and the spot, unless it be a very old one, will have disappeared. If old, renew the application.

An exchange says: "At the best of times food is dear in Chili, because so much of the country is not agricultural, and now that supplies can no longer be brought in from abroad, prices are so tremendous that distress prevails. Think of paying $5 for a small chicken, $10 per pound for tough beef, $30 a can for condensed milk, $50 a sack for flour, and $400 for a half grown hog. There is no set standard of prices, but they range according to the necessities of the people, and the figures above quoted have actually been paid in Chili this spring.

Rheumatism Knocked Out.

I have been a subject of Rheumatism so bad that part of the time could not get around. Sometimes better, sometimes worse. But all the time so severe as to make me miserable. But through the advice of your agent who stopped at my house, I commenced to take Red Clover and I can thank the day I did so. I improved so fast that I have played in eight games of ball this fall and have not lost a game. I think—I know it—Loose's Extract of Red Clover is the best blood remedy on earth and I am thankful for the benefit I have derived from your Extract, and every case that is using it here—and there are a dozen—has been benefited. I can cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers of rheumatism. Yours very truly, GEO. E. RETLER.
