Since trichinae have been found in fish and eels, eater of oysters might as well exercise a little caution and have the bivalves well stewed or fried before swallowing them, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The fish and eels are supposed to have taken trichinae from infected pork or other flesh thrown into the water, and if this is the case there is no earthly reason why an oyster should not also be susceptible to the disease.

Now that cold winter is at hand it is to the interest of every person to see that his stock is properly cared for. Every one knows how he feels when he is not perfectly warm and protected from the colds and draughts, and how apt he is to take cold.
There is no animal which is so susceptible to draughts and chills as your horse. At night when he is sleeping his blood becomes sluggish and he is liable to catch cold. In recent years it has become the fixed rule with all owners of good stock to carefully blanket their horses, not only when out of doors, but also in the stable.

THE CHELSEA HERALD.

A. ALLISON, Editor and Proprietor.
CHELSEA, MICHIGAN.

THERE are fifteen million acres of available land lying untitled in Virginia.

NEW YORK is ahead. It has "a woman forty-five years old who has been married fifteen times."

SPECTACLES were invented in the year 1820, but were not in general use until nearly two hundred years later.

THE most welcome feature of the world's industrial progress is that much which a past generation permitted to go to waste is now made of practical use.

PEOPLE in Japan are called by the family name first, the individual or what we call Christian name next, and then the honorific—thus: "Smith Peter Mr."

THE royalties from Moody and Sankey's famous "Gospel Hymns" have, it is said, amounted to $1,200,000, every penny of which has gone for charitable purposes.

LITTLE QUEEN WILHELMINA of Holland has an income of 600,000 guilders, or about $250,000. Her reign will begin August 13, 1898, when she will have attained the age of eighteen.

VENEZUELA has fifty-six holidays every year, and some years there are enough revolutions between holidays to make life one uninterrupted round of pleasure for months at a stretch.

THE Salvation Army folks have accepted the plans for a big temple which they are going to build in New York city next spring as a memorial to Mrs. Booth, wife of the general, who died a year ago.

NATHANIEL HOLLAND, who is 99 years old, voted at the recent election in Barre, Mass. His vote was cast for James Monroe, for president in 1816, and he has never missed an election since that year.

WALTER H. EVANS, a young Indiana botanist who spent the summer exploring the southwestern states in search of cacti for the agricultural department, says that he did not see a single rattlesnake or tarantula in that region, which is supposed to be their home.

AND still immigration grows. At the present rate, this will be the second largest year of foreign arrivals at New York. In 1885 the total number registered was 455,400. The number this year up to the first of November was 73,000 ahead of the corresponding period last year, and if the ratio keeps up during this month and next the arrivals for 1891 will be not less than 440,000.

THE largest specimen of leaf or fern gold ever found will be exhibited at the world's fair. It was found near Walla Walla, Wash. It is valued at $300 for the gold in it alone, but today five times that amount would not purchase it. The delicate tracery of the fern is as fresh, beautiful and crystalline in appearance as ever nature turned out of her laboratory, and it is fully a foot square.

THAT is a rather fine point of law which holds that a man with burglar's tools on his person, who goes up the steps of a dwelling house where he has no lawful business, has made an attempt to commit burglary, but it is a good law for the protection of the community. The steps of a dwelling are private property and one who trespasses upon them with unlawful purposes has committed an unlawful deed.

THE first flag of stars and stripes was made for the United States army by a Quakeress named Betsy Ross in a little brick building still standing on Arch street in Philadelphia. It is proposed by the Pennsylvania Historical society to purchase this building from the present owner, Mrs. Amelia Mund, and exhibit it at the world's fair alongside the home of William Penn. And, if possible, the first flag should be flown from the gable.

A CO-OPERATIVE home for young women students has been started in Boston with accommodations for about one hundred and fifty, the prices ranging from $1.50 to $5.50 a week. Most of the rooms are in suites, and the arrangements for table board are separate. The intention is to make it self-supporting, and if any student remains there a year she will become a partner in the scheme and have a share of the revenue. Entertainments of various degrees of importance are to be provided.

CHILI is a great country for newspapers. There are more than forty of them in Valparaiso and Santiago, and there are others in all the head towns of departments. Chili has many literary men, including a regiment of poets, and also many scientific men and a multitude of statesmen and generals. The schools are free, and there are agricultural lyceums, normal schools, an agricultural school, schools for the arts and trades, military and naval academies and a national university, all supported by the government. In some years there have been 1,000 students at the Santiago university.

A YOUNG girl in a toilet supply company in Cincinnati was upbraided frequently by her employer because she did not attract the male patronage that other girls did. She protested that she was getting but $4 per week and couldn't dress as well as some of her successful associates. The proprietor pool-poohed such an explanation, and said other girls were making from $30 to $40 in other of his laundry-receiving offices. This girl, who came at 7:30 in the morning and stayed until eight at night, was requested to find work somewhere else. She would not "mash."

A FAMILY in New York were sitting down to dinner the other evening when a messenger arrived in haste with a note for the mistress of the house. It was from a woman friend, and ran: "I am unexpectedly invited out to dine this evening, and want to make an impression. Do send me all your diamond rings to wear and I'll return them in the morning. I shall be so obliged and will do as much for you if I ever have the opportunity." The rings were sent and promptly returned next day. And the man of the house said the ways of women were beyond comprehension, but his wife laughed and said nothing.

A FAMOUS ACTOR GONE.

Death in Philadelphia of William J. Florence, the Noted Comedian.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—William J. Florence, the actor, died at the Continental hotel, this city, at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Death came as a startling surprise to those in attendance upon the sick man for the reason that his condition had been considered as improving during the afternoon and early evening.

He had been apparently getting better, and the physicians had no idea that the end was so near. Dr. Pancoast, who had charge of the case, had left the hotel about 7 o'clock, secure in the idea that the patient was doing as well as could be expected. His death came so peacefully that it may be said that he slept away. He made no utterance whatever, and the first intimation the watchers had of his death was that he ceased to breathe.

Mrs. Florence in England.

As all of Mr. Florence's male relatives had gone to their homes in New York and Brooklyn, Proprietor Kingsley of the Continental hotel took temporary charge of the affairs.

Telegrams were sent in all directions notifying relatives and friends that the end had come. An undertaker was summoned and by midnight the work of embalming the body had begun.

England for New York on Saturday. Until she can be heard from no definite funeral arrangements will be made. The general belief is that the dead actor will be interred in Brooklyn, as most of his relatives live there. Interment will probably not take place until Mrs. Florence's arrival on Friday or Saturday of next week.

Had Been ill Five Days.

Mr. Florence's fatal illness began last Saturday night. He had been complaining during the week, but had performed regularly. On Saturday evening, after playing his part of Ezekiel Home spun in the "Heir at Law" with the Jefferson-Florence combination at the Arch Street theater, he gave a supper at the Continental hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall. Soon after the close of the festivities he was taken ill, and Dr. Pancoast, who was called in, announced that he was suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia, both lungs being affected.

Dr. Da Costa, the eminent physician, assisted Dr. Pancoast, and in addition Dr. Patrick Donnellan, an old friend of Mr. Florence, was called in. The latter was with the sick man almost constantly.

(William J. Conlin, better known as William J. Florence, was born on July 23, 1831, in Albany, N. Y. When only young he appeared in amateur performances in New York city where he was a member of the Murdoch Dramatic association. On December 6, 1844, he made his first appearance on the stage as a professional actor at the Richmond theater as Peter in "The Stranger." He remained at the Richmond theater during a season of four months and then returned to New York and acted at Niblo's garden, then under the management of Messrs. Chipendale and Broughman. During the engagement of the elder Booth at Providence, R. I., he played Macbeth to the great tragedian's Macbeth. After his return to New York he made his appearance at Broadway, where he was engaged for the first time, impersonating Irish characters. At the conclusion of a season at the Broadway theater in 1852 he entered into a star engagement at the National theater. About that time, January 1, 1853, Mr. Florence married Miss Martina Gray. He assumed the role of the Irish boy with decided success, while his wife acted the Yankee girl. During a season in June and July, 1853, Mr. Florence appeared in "Writing on the Wall," "Eva, the Irish Princess," "The Sicilian Bride," "O'Neill the Irishman," "The Drunkard's Doom," and other pieces. After a successful tour in England the Florences returned to this country, where their work has been part of the history of the American stage.

His greatest success here was achieved in "The Mighty Dollar." Since 1880 Mr. Florence has been associated with Joseph Jefferson, their principal productions being "The Rivals" and "The Heir at Law."

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Resident of East St. Louis Mortally Wounded His Wife and Kills Himself.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 19.—Ernest Hickman, aged 35 years, living in East St. Louis, shot and fatally wounded his wife at their residence about noon. The woman ran screaming from the house.

When neighbors entered the Hickman residence they found the husband's body lying on the bedroom floor. Mrs. Hickman was shot in the head, the ball entering her right eye and lodged near the base of the skull.

It is believed he cannot survive. Hickman after firing at his wife sent three bullets into his head. No cause is known for the quarrel other than Hickman had been on a protracted spree and the shooting was probably the result of a quarrel. In the days of the Union association Hickman was pitcher of the Baltimore baseball club. During the last year of the Western league he played with clubs in that organization.

Indictments Are Quashed.

BOONE, Ia., Nov. 20.—Judge Weaver has dismissed the indictments against John D. Gillett, the defaulting Ogden banker who fled six years ago. He was a banker at Ogden, Boone county, and speculated on the Chicago board of trade, losing about $30,000. In June, 1885, the crash came and Gillett fled to Canada, leaving about $20,000 due his creditors. By surrendering his wife's property, his savings, and realizing on his life insurance policy he raised money enough to pay his creditors 33 1/2 cents on the dollar, and negotiations were concluded with them by which they agreed upon payment of this amount to quash the indictments against him.

Coal Famine in Kansas.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 20.—In western Kansas the cold weather of the last three days has caught the towns and villages without an adequate coal supply and a general shortage of cars on all the railroads will, if the weather continues cold, produce coal famine. For the last two years the winters in this state have been so mild that the plan of storing coal early in the season has not been followed. In many of the towns in western and southern Kansas the dealers have no more than a car load of coal on hand.

St. Clair Tunnel to Open Dec. 7.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 20.—It is officially announced that the St. Clair tunnel will be opened for passenger business on December 7. In consequence of this arrangement there will be a great saving of time, which will necessitate the preparing of new time-tables and instructions to employees.

THE FARMERS.

Mr. Polk Re-elected President of the National Alliance—Officers Chosen by the F. M. B. A.—An Industrial Congress to Be Held in February.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 20.—Thursday morning was held the most important meeting that has yet occurred in connection with the alliance convention. This was the gathering of the executive committee of the Confederated Industrial union, composed of the Farmers' Alliance, the F. M. B. A., Knights of Labor, Citizens' Alliance, Workmen's league, Patrons of Husbandry and kindred organizations, to consult about calling a convention of all these organizations on February 22.

The committee decided that this convention, looking to unity in legislative demands and political action, shall be held at some point in the central states. It was then decided to leave the choosing of a city to Messrs. Terrell, Taubeneck and Baumgarten. Five cities were named to choose from—Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Springfield, Ill.

Plan for Political Action.

The political phase of the situation cropped out in this meeting, consuming much of the time of the session. The question at issue was whether the call for the confederated assembly, February 22, should leave the way open for the nomination of a national ticket at that meeting, or whether the scope of the work to be done there should be limited so as to prevent political action. The latter course was the one finally decided upon. When the assembly convenes it will proceed to draw up a platform of declarations and demands and the two great political parties will be requested to give them consideration and endorsement. It is not expected by anyone that the two great parties will take any notice of these demands and the way will remain clear for the people's party to call a convention after the other political conventions have been held and adopt the formulated demands of the confederated labor assembly as its platform. This is the plan of action now determined upon by the people's party.

To Get All the Workmen.

The confederated assembly of industrial unions, as it is called, will, in the minds of the committee, be the most important organization of recent years. It aims at the consolidation of all laboring classes and the subsequent diversion of the whole strength of the gigantic combination into the ranks of the third party. It will be composed of twenty-five delegates at-large from each confederated organization and one delegate for each 10,000 or fraction thereof of members.

Officers Chosen.

The executive session of the council in the afternoon was directed entirely to the election of officers. No fight was made on Polk and he was re-elected by a unanimous vote. Lockwood, of South Dakota, was chosen vice president, and J. H. Turner, of Georgia, was re-elected secretary. When Lecturer J. F. Willits, of Kansas, was named for reelection the third party men put forward James Utley, of the same state, in opposition. Willits was chosen, 88 to 18.

The F. M. B. A.

At the session of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit association the following officers were elected: President, S. S. Gauze, of Iowa; vice president, W. A. Bartlett, of West Virginia; secretary, John P. Stelle, of Illinois.

Reform Press Association.

The Reform Press association elected officers as follows: Dr. S. McCallin, of the Topeka Advocate, president; vice president, J. H. McDowell, of the Tennessee Toller; secretary, W. S. Morgan, of the National Reformer of St. Louis. A committee consisting of T. R. Barrows and L. K. Taylor was appointed to organize an advertising agency for the Reform Press.

STATE FAIRS IN 1892.

Schedule Arranged by the Managers of the Western Circuit—No Fairs in 1893.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The fair managers of the western circuit held their annual meeting at the Sherman house Thursday night. A schedule for the circuit in 1892 was adopted and the state fairs will be held as follows: Mississippi, August 15; Iowa, August 29; Minnesota and Nebraska, September 5; Wisconsin, Kansas and Ohio, September 12; Indiana, September 19; Illinois, September 26; Missouri, October 24. It was decided that in the nine states represented no state fairs would be held in 1893. A committee of two was appointed to confer with Chief Buchanan, of the world's fair, in regard to the issuance of medals for excellence of state exhibits. The various states were urged to set aside sums of money for the purpose of offering prizes at the world's fair. R. W. Furness, of Nebraska, was elected president, and J. M. True, of Wisconsin, secretary.

A Founder of the Republican Party.

RIPON, Wis., Nov. 20.—Jedediah Bowen, aged 73, died Thursday. He was the chief helper of A. E. Boyay, who is credited in Flowers' history with being the founder of the republican party. Bowen and Bowen held meetings and agitated the question of dissolving the whig party as early as 1852. Mr. Bowen was a prosperous merchant.

THANKSGIVING DAY

THANKSGIVING DAY came chill and cold. The fields were brown, the trees were bare. And a wisp of smoke gathered in the air. Foretold the winter of the year. But bright the fire, and full the bin. But Farmer John kept glad within.

But Farmer John, with darkened brow, felt not the gladness of the day. Not to his hopes had sped the plow, and cherished plans had gone astray. The wheat for grain in crop and herd, the blight and murrain had defaced.

And to his wife he murmured sad: "You need not spread the feast for me; for their gifts can thank be paid. My neighbors can enjoy their feast, with birds and flocks and stores increased."

"Their every crop was full in ear, their herds had gained in foal and fleece, they weigh the balance of the year, and laugh to count a rich increase. For me, the months they come and go, they find me poor, they leave me so."

And forth into the fields he went, caring not where his steps might stray, his every thought was discontent. His every word reproached the day. "Just others offer thanks," he said, "whose paths with blossoms thick were spread."

He passed his neighbor's garnered store, with every marked his thrashing horde; his neighbor met him at the door.

With bursting heart and sobbing words, his darling boy, his pride, his all, lay white beneath the funeral pall.

A marble mansion rose in state, white walls, and its clustering trees. A carriage stood before the gate. With shining steeds and cushioned ease. "He sure is blest," said Farmer John, "for whom this luxury waits upon."

yourself, turkey or no turkey! But don't ask me. It's little I have to be thankful for—Lord knows!"

"What has gone wrong, Silas?" asked his wife, a little anxiously. "Hain't the price of wheat gone down, 'till it ain't the price of wheat whether the weevil gets what we've got or not? If the wheat don't sell well, how are we goin' to pay the intruder on that mortgage? Seems to me Sam might've helped us a little there. But since he's got out to Montany he don't care whether his old parents ever hear from him again or not. All the plagues a poor man ever had an ungrateful child is the worst."

"I'm sure Sam don't mean to be ungrateful," said Mrs. Ware, ever ready to defend their absent boy. "You was allus hard on Sam, because he was rather wild. But I have faith in Sam, 'nd I feel to thank the Lord for him as much as a boy."

"That's the way with you women," grunted Silas. "The vuss a boy gets to be, the more you stick up for him. And if this wain't enough, the best steer on the place must lay down and die, just when I was a needin' him to haul in the fodder. Thar hain't his match in the country."

"Oh well, father, you said you was goin' to make beef out'n both the yoke. We'll get the fodder hauled somehow. Let us go to church and do our part. The Lord'll be sure to do his'n anyhow."

"Go yourself, if you want to, Maria, but don't bother me about thankin' the Lord for what he hain't done, and from what I can see hain't goin' to do nuther."

Silas got up as he spoke, put away his pipe and went into the sitting-room. He picked up the county paper and lay down upon a lounge by the window. Though he ignored attending church, he did not feel like going out to work, but grumbled himself into some sort of interest over the market reports. The sound of Mrs. Ware at her work in the kitchen, mingled softly with the gentle flow his reveries soon fell into. He felt sleepy, yet he did not wish to sleep. It seemed as if he lay a long while wondering what would happen next. Then he rose, put on his hat and went out doors.

The sky was overclouded and a cold wind was blowing. The promise of a bright day had not been kept. He wandered slowly over the farm, noticing the stones, the stumps, the ragged fences and the general poverty of the soil. He felt more than ever what an ill-used man he was. Nothing good could be seen in anything.

"No, father. Who said I was? The doughnuts surely must have disagreed with ye, for I heard ye when I was basting the turkey."

"Then the kitchen fire hain't gone out?" interrupted Silas in a dazed sort of way, yet beginning to tremble anew.

"Why no. What made you think that? The turkey's most done, full. Don't you think we might go to meetin' after all, father?"

Silas threw his arms around his wife and drew her gray head down close to his own.

"I thought I'd lost ye," said he, brokenly. "I hollered it wasn't Maria, I just can't live 'thout ye. Thank the Lord he was only a dream! But I thought I was comin' in from the barn, and you was a layin' close by."

"Let it burn," cried Farmer Ware, following her. "We'll kill another one. And we'll all go to church, Maria. I'm just overclouded with thankfulness, 'nd it's got to find some sort o' way to get out. Then we'll write a letter to Sam. We'll tell him we hain't forgot our boy, if he forgits us."

"Letter for Silas us?" called out a neighbor from the road. Farmer Ware went out and returned directly with a well padded envelope bearing a Montana postmark.

"I s'wore!" exclaimed Silas, tearing it open, "if it hain't from our Sam. I dunno who else it can be—"

He Shrinks from Washing

So do woollens and flannels, if they're not washed properly. Try the right way. Get a package of Pearline, and do as directed. Your things won't shrink, and they'll be softer, brighter, and better, than ever before. That's the beauty of Pearline—washing is not only easier, but better and safer. Things that you wouldn't dare to trust to the wear and tear of the washboard are washed perfectly with Pearline. You save work, wear, time and money with it, but you can't do any harm.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back.

THE FAMINE IN RUSSIA.

The accounts of the famine in Russia are of the most appalling character. It is now estimated that it will take one hundred millions of dollars to relieve the present distress, and this too without taking into account the loss by private individuals. This enormous amount of money is simply the sum that it will take to carry over the people until the next crop. The chances are that this will be a season of epidemics. Throat and lung diseases will prevail. For all these maladies there is nothing that acts with such quickness as REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE. This great remedy is a certain cure for all lung and throat maladies. It cannot be excelled for these troubles and it is especially good for croup and pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

How the Turkey Came to Be the National Bird for Thanksgiving Purpose.

Thanksgiving Day, as it is understood nowadays, is purely an American institution. As the annual festival recurs, the "turkey," also a native American, commands the respectful consideration of all patriotic people.
When the day is mentioned, the luccious bird is invariably mentioned in the same connection.

To-day will be celebrated the 240th anniversary of the apotheosis of the turkey as a national bird, which paradoxically, is slaughtered every year on Thanksgiving Day. If Ben Franklin had had his way the turkey would be to-day the emblem of this great republic, but John Quincy Adams, then Secretary of State, thought the eagle a more befitting symbol, as it had been from earliest times the emblem of royal power, and in heraldry significant of fortitude and strength.

The credit of making the turkey a Thanksgiving Day bird is due to Gov.
Bradford the executive of the government of the commonwealth in colonial times. Thanksgiving Day was in olden times, as it is to-day, a religious festival as well as a time of good cheer. In 1608 the Pilgrim Church, exiled from England, went to Holland, where they remained until 1620, when the Mayflower colony was sent off to New England. After the first harvest of the colonists in Plymouth, in 1621 Gov. Bradford sent four men out "following," that they might
"after more special manner rejoice."

When the foraging party returned they brought back with them a good supply of turkeys, which were distributed among the Governor's immediate surroundings, and the day was celebrated with good American fowl,
and the company indulged in a feast of reason and a flow of soul. The turkey was in colonial days exclusively an inhabitant of North America,
but in its wild state, and the stories told that Gov. Bradford's foraging party went out to pay a friendly visit to any neighboring barn-yard are erroneous. The American wild turkey does not frequent barn-yards.
He dwelt in the green woods, and the party that went out with the intention to go "fowling" went out as a matter of fact shooting.

History does not chronicle anything about their marksmanship or just how many turkeys they brought down or whether they bought any on the way.
Suffice it to say that the party returned and brought a lot of turkeys
with them.

Additional Local.

The birds and rabbits suffer these days.
Biting the nails is an exceedingly dangerous practice, as the bitter never knows when to stop, and at any moment is liable to bite into "the quick" and cause blood poisoning. Even when the utmost care is taken of the teeth, a poisonous secretion is apt to collect on them, and the entrance of a minute portion of this into the circulation may prove as certainly fatal as the pus on a surgeon's scalpel.

New silver halves and quarters will soon be ready for circulation. The character of the devices is limited by law to this: On one side shall be an impression emblematic of liberty, with the inscription "Liberty" and the year of the coinage, and on the reverse side shall be the figure of representation of an eagle, with the inscription,
"United States of America" and "E Pluribus Unum," and a designation of the value of the coin. Most of the designs were on scales too minute for use and a classic head will make the new coins artistic. The designs is to be the same for the two coins except the words designating the value.

Tips.

Have all the roller skates rolled into oblivion?

After the irritating campaign roster
comes the soothing Thanksgiving turkey.

The most prudish female cook is stuck on at least one masher—the potato masher.

Great oaks from little acorns grow, and big heads are produced by little drinks of whiskey.

No, Dollie dear, the Farmers' Alliance circular is not a new rural waltz nor any kind of round dance.

The Italians who come to this country must have a strong attachment for their native land. They bring so much of it with them.

Long evenings have set the debating society young man's tongue wagging. As he orates he has visions of the distant time when his eloquence shall compel the snores of slumbering senators.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our grateful thanks to our neighbors and friends, for their kindness and sympathy, during our late affliction, and shall ever hold them in grateful remembrance.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD ROOKE.
