CHELSEA, MICH., THURSDAY, DEC. 10, 1891.

One of the most pleasant social events that has occured in this village for a long time, was the marriage, Wednesday, Dec. 9th, 1891, of Mr. Clarence Maroney to Miss Carrie Vogel. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents on East street, Rev. C. Haag officiating. The company of guests was composed mostly of relatives of the contracting parties Many rich and fine presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Maroney very sensibly decided to take no wedding trip, Born, Dec 2d, 1891, to Mr. and Mrs. but after the ceremony repaired to their new home on Railroad street, which had been beautifully furnished, and are now receiving the congratulations of their many friends on their happy union.

We copy the following from the Woodstock (Ill.) Sentinel: "The marriage of Miss Nona D. Guerin to Will E. Whiting on Wednesday, Nov. 25, 1891, mentioned in these columns last week, was in every respect a most enjoyable social event. The bride, a modest, intelligent, comely young lady, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Guerin, of this city, who has won many friends during her short residence here. MR. PHILIP H. STERNBERGH, of Reading, Pa., has married the sister of his father's wife, and there is a great deal of speculation as to the curious complications of relationship that will arise. Young Mr. Sternbergh, in the first place, is his wife's nephew; by marriage he is his father's brother in law, his own uncle, as well as an uncle to his brothers and sisters, and his father's nephew. He will be uncle and great uncle to his own children, and is brother in law to his wife.

THE postage stamp will celebrate its fifty-second anniversary on May 6 of next year. Its invention is due to a printer, James Chalmers, of Dundee, Scotland, who died in 1853. England, fifty-two years ago, introduced the new system of preparing letter postage and according to a decree of December 21, 1839, issued the first stamps, which were to be put before the public on May 6 of the following year, as noted above. A year later they were introduced into the United States and Switzerland and within three years they had become common in Bavaria, Belgium and

WANTED A FORTUNE.

& Crank Demands $1,200,000 from Rus to Give It He Throws a Dynamite Bomb, Blowing Off His Own Head, Killing Another Man, and Severely Injuring Mr. Sage and Others.

New York, Dec. 5.—Russell Sare, the millionaire broker, escaped death as by a miracle Friday. The entire Empire building, in which was his foundation by the explosion of a dynamite bomb hurled by a who crank, who made a demand upon Mr. at Sage for the immediate payment of $1,250,000, the ultimatum being, in case of refusal, the death of the millionaire, the crank himself and those employed in the office.

Those who were close at hand saw a man blown through one of the windows of Sage's office into Rector street. A few minutes later Mr. Sage himself, with blood streaming from his face and hands, was helped out into the street and taken to O'Connell's drug store, just below Wall street, on Broadway. There, also, was carried the man blown from the window.

Within ten minutes after the explosion Dr. A. P. Munn, the physician of Jay Gould, was at the side of Mr. Sage and personally attended to his injuries, which proved to be not of a serious nature. The hair and eyebrows of the millionaire were burned and his face and his hands hurt by small particles of glass and plaster, the result of the explosion.

But one person was killed outright, supposed to be H. D. Wilson, the man that made the demand for money from Mr. Sage and the one that threw the bomb. Benjamin F. Morton, who was thrown through the window, a clerk in the office of Mr. Sage, was removed to Chambers street hospital, where he died at 1:30 a. m. while under operation for fracture of the skull. The deceased was a resident of Far Rockaway, L. I.

Mr. Slocum, the chief clerk of Mr. Sage, is badly cut about the head. The safe was broken open and the securities scattered over the building and street. The others injured are:

S. G. Calhoun, of 165 Dean street, Brooklyn, who was in Mr. Sage's office or near it when the explosion occurred; badly burned on the side of the face, but otherwise uninjured. W. R. Laidiaw, Sage's clerk, leg lacerated and wounds about the face and body.

Frank Robertson, a broker's clerk, 96 years old, living at Bergen Point, N. J., bruised and cut about the abdomen; dangerous, F. G. Morrison, who has an office in the building, badly cut and bruised.
C. W. Osborn, 52 years old. 196 Berkley place,

Brooklyn, severe injuries about body and face. It was learned that a shabbily dressed man had entered the office of Mr. Sage just as the latter was preparing to leave his desk to go to luncheon. The man had a package in his hand, and when Mr. Sage looked up the visitor held it above the millionaire's

"What do you want?" asked Mr. Sage, noting a wild look in the face of his visitor. "Russell Sage," responded the man,

"I want a million and a half dollars." Mr. Sage at once knew the man was insane, and, rising from his chair, said: 'All right. I'll have to see about it and will let you know." "No. I want it now." said the man.

motioning Mr. Sage to stop. "If I don't get it," he continued, raising his voice so that people in the outer office could hear, "you will regret it. Will you give it to me?" "No," said Mr. Sage, quietly, "not now; come after it some other time " Mr. Sage had hardly spoken when the man raised the package he held in his hand above his head, and, saying: 'Here goes," threw it to the floor, almost at the feet of the millionaire broker. There was instantly a tremendous explosion. When the relief party of police went into the room half an hour later they found the body of the man who threw the dynamite literally torn to pieces.

The second floor hallway leading to Mr. Sage's offices was badly shattered and the floor was covered with debris. In the hallway just outside the door leading to Sage's main office was found the shockingly mangled body of a man. The trunk and legs were in a state that would have made recognition impossible, but the head, which the police reported as having been severed from his body, showed few marks of the explosion. As the trunk and legs lay in a net of rope brought by the firemen they looked like a bundle of ragged old clothes and were absolutely without human semblance. The man wore a pointed, reddish beard. The face looked like that of a man of education. ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 5 .- The dynamite crank is thought to be Hiram D. Wilson, aged 45, an escaped lunatic and native of Glens Falls, Warren county. Wilson has escaped previously from Middletown and other asylums. He was very strong and of light complexion. The worst of insanity were developed four teen years ago when he kept the Bolton house on Lake George. Wil son, after short terms in insane asy lums, has been discharged as cured or escaped. He has generally celebrated his freedom by making attempts to kill some one who refused to meet his de mands for money.

He had also threatened the life of Goodwin Brown, one of the state lupacy commissioners. It was the loss of money that made him crazy. Wilson was arrested here about a year ago for threatening to kill some one.

WHO THREW THE BOMB?

W. D. Southworth Under Arrest as Chief Urica, N. Y., Dec. 7 .- Hiram Wilson, dropped the dynamite bomb in Russell Sage's office in New York, is confined at the state hospital in this city. NEW YORK, Dec. 7.-The detective force of the police department and the detective force of the press of the city office, was shaken to its very are each and all scurrying after an identification of the dead wretch who blew himself into pieces Russell Sage's office Frilast. Identification is lieved to have been effected by Capt. Harry Horne as that of a man whom he had met several times and with whom he had frequently conversed. Capt. Horne, who was originally interested in wild west shows, is now a lecturer in Worth's museum and it was there he first met the bomb-thrower in the latter part of September. Capt.

Horne said to Inspector Byrnes:
"The dead man came to me with a letter of introduction from some one whose name I do meet me the following afternoon. I met him sud he asked me to go on a lecture tour. One of the features of the lecture was to be a proposition that all railroads carry passengers at the same rate as freight. He said that all the prominent railroad men, Gould, Sage, Depew and other magnates, would be invited to attend the lectures and be convinced of the errors of their ways. In case they did not accept the invitations a letter would be sent to them and if they persisted in refusing bombs would be used. He said he was a member of a strong organization to revolutionize matters in the interes of the poor people. It was a religious organization and would be the largest in the coun try in two years. God was with it and it was bound to succeed. If any one of the monopolists refused to do what was right toward the people he would be killed by some member o the organization, to be chosen by lot."

Interest in the attempt to kill Rus sell Sage with dynamite on Friday last was increased Sunday by the arrest of W. D. Southworth. It was said that Southworth had gone to Central America, but he was found by Inspector Byrnes' men near the city and taken to police headquarters. Southworth is undoubtedly a crank and confessed to Inspector Byrnes that he had been an inmate of a lunatic asylum. He was taken to the morgue and shown the head of the dynamiter, but said he had never seen it in life. In that particular he contradicted the story of Horne, who said that the dead man in troduced Southworth to him at the museum two months ago.

BURIED IN A MINE. Seventy-Five Lives Thought to Have Been

Lost by an Explosion in a French Colliery. ST. ETIENNE, Dec. 7 .- The noise of two terrific explosions was heard here

Sunday afternon at 12:30 o'clock coming in the direction of one of the col liery pits belonging to the company As between sixty and eighty men were down the shaft, the utmost consternation prevailed. Doctors were summoned and relief parties organized. Enormous crowds surged round the pit mouths, and the relatives of those who were known to be at work below made frantic efforts to pass the police line. The work of relief was extremely difficult to carry on because the explosion had affected the neighboring shafts and rendered them impassible. Another explosion took place in the lower factory shaft. Up to 4 o'clock nothing was known of the number of killed and wounded. At last the first relief party went down composed of nine men, but the cage had descended only 70 feet when it was enveloped in suffocating smoke and gas, and the men could go no further, so the engineer in charge gave orders to ascend to the surface.

Later on seven men were brought to the mouth of the pit badly injured and one died. Seventy-four men still remain below, and there is no hope for their lives on account of the great mass of earth dislodged by the explosion, which has completed buried them. 3 a. m.-It has been ascertained that seventy-five miners have perished. The wives, children and relatives of the entombed miners still surround the mouth of the pit, and the most heartrending scenes are witnessed as the BELLE CENTER, O., Dec. 7. - Early Saturday morning as several railroad hands were walking in the rear of the local bank they were startled to see the heavy back door shattered and they gave the alarm at once and large crowds of people hurried to the scene, including the bank officials. The latter at once opened the front door. On entering they found that the safe had been blown open and the bank completely gutted. The robbers drilled several holes in the iron safe, which was supposed to be burglar proof, and blew it open with dynamite. The inside of the bank was not shattered and the job was done with artistic skill. The burglars took all the money there was in the safe and also a number of valuable papers and negotiable securities. The total amount stolen is supposed to be about $12,000.

Now, all obstacles surmounted. Where a glow of gleaming glory Surged upon us like a flood. Oit, the sunlight! Oh, the sunlight! How it shot in quiv'ring bars, Teiling of the wails of jasper And the city o'er the stars.

Far below a storm was raging. And the clouds of blackest hub Relied and tossed in mad confusion, While the lightains glittered through. Hidden from us all the valley, By the moving, murky screen; out above, where we were standing, All was quiet and serene.

and my heart went out in pity To the dwellers far below— Hidden from them all the beauty, Hidden from them all the glow-And I wondered if in future, After we have done with life, When the mountain is ascended— Left below the storm of strife-

If we then would look in pity On the cloud-hid souls below Whisper that sweet rest was o'er them. Bid them bravely upward go. Ye within the storm-swept valley, Look beyond the dark ning sky! On the mountain top is sunlight; Ye shall reach it by and by. Mattie Bonner, in Philadelphia Ledger.

RS. M'GREGsat darning stockings one fine August morning by the open window of the little sitting-

On the table at her side lay a novel, and every once in awhile the little woman, with a sigh, turned a longing glance at its worn blue cover. After finishing the scarlet sock she had been at work upon she bustled to the door which looked out on the road winding through the valley from Pilarcitos canyon in the north to the "coast" stage road in the south.

"I declare, Tumas," she exclaimed, adjusting her spectacles as she spoke, I do b'lieve the fire's comin' right over the range. The smoke's pourin' down thick from the canyon, an' it pears like the brush is burnin' up at the lake. Lor me, what'll we do if it comes this way? Like as not we'll test roast 'live.' Her husband, an old man lying in an invalid's chair, on being thus addressed made a feeble gesture with his right arm. He was a hopeless paralytic, "jest waitin' for the las' stroke," as his wife was wont to tell to Miss Anna, the parson's sister, who brought her jellies and novels now and then. 'John's been gone this half hour."

she exclaimed, divining her husband's meaning, "but he promised to be back pail after pail of water from the creek this afternoon 'fore dark, so it won't do no good ter fret an' worry. He didn't think the fire was half way dangerous, an' I allers put a big store by what John says." After thus declaring her implicit confidence in her son's opinion, she wheeled her husband out upon the porch, which extended half way around the low, rambling cottage. Here she left him and went out to the small stable, usually occupied by the sorrel pony which John had driven to San Mateo that morning. John McGregor, their only child, was a likely young man. He had procured work upon the dam, then in process of construction at the southern end of the valley, and in consequence he was obliged to leave his parents alone the greater part of the time. part of the time, as his mat shared in MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The sunny afternoon passed without event, save for the passing of numerous teams, which Mrs. McGreyor did not notice, so absorbed was she in her story. Had she done so she might have been alarmed, for from the chattering of Spanish that went on, it was evident that whole families were moving. But there was a thick screen of trees be-tween the cottage and the road, and they went by without stopping, probably taking it for granted that the old couple had already taken alarm and departed.

The sun was nearing the horizon, when all at once Mrs. Metregor sprang from the hammock, exclaiming: me, thet boy'd orter be back; he but she never finished the sentence. A cry of horror burst from her lips.

The porch was strewn with charred leaves, and back of the house the smoke was sucking up the valley in great clouds, until it mingled with the body of fire in the north, which was steadily advancing. Judging from a very hasty survey in that direction, she came to the conclusion that the fire had burst out in another canyon, creating a strong wind as it burned. But it was to the south that she looked with greatest apprehension. "The wind's full on us," she cried, wringing her hands in distress. "Dear me, if I warn't sech a dreadful novel reader! Where can John be? There ain't a minute ter be lost. I know what I'll do first," she added, hurrying to the barn close by.

She kneeled down among the bales of hay and loose straw, causing dire consternation to an old hen with her brood. She prayed aloud, with upturned eyes and clasped hands. Then she rose and hurried to the house.

First she waked her husband, explaining to him the situation, and wheeled him into the front doorway Then, after tying up the great family Bible and sundry other treasures in a patchwork quilt made by her grandmother, she placed them near the door, where they could be snatched when her son came, for she had entire faith that they would be rescued.

Then she looked around to see what to do first. It was useless to think of flight, for she could never push her husband's chair along the uneven road, and besides they might be turned back at any moment by the fire. So turning up her rusty black skirt she first began firing the underbrush immediately about the house, putting it out with evergreen boughs as soon as it had burned the space of a few feet. This she repeated again and again, fearing to burn too much, lest it should get beyond her control.

Thus she toiled late into the night, clearing a pitiably small space, in view of the threatening furnace of fire. which every moment grew more terrible. The air became almost stifling, the light of the full moon faded into insignificance beside the glare of the flames, which were licking into the heavens with a mighty roar.

Patiently the little woman brought Hardly half a mile to the north, on the Millbrae road, an express wagon drawn by two running horses was rapidly approaching the seething lake of fire. The driver, a young man, leaned forward in his excitement, and urged the horses on with shouts and cuts from his long whip as they neared the valley road, which was here and there crossed by tongues of flame, reaching out in all directions as if seeking for food.

Another minute and they were op-posite the house. John McGregor pulled his cap down over his eyes, and laid the curling whip unmercifully about the flanks of the trembling horses. . First Love the Strongest. George Gould, of Detroit, son of a weil-known wholesa'e grocer, was engaged to marry Edna Percy, a hand-some and wealthy young lady of Ontario. The wedding trousseau had been prepared at a cost of $3,000, the clergyman engaged and a home hand. somely furnished, but in an unguarded moment Miss Edna went across the river to call on some friends and met a former lover. The result was a rekindling of old love fires, and a hasty marriage before a justice of the peace.

Health in Michigan, Reports to the state board of health by fifty observers in different parts of the state for the week ended November 28 indicated that membranous croup, pneumonia typhoid fever and cholera infantum increased, and cholera morbus, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough decreased in area prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at forty-three places, scarlet fever at thirty-six, typhoid fever at thirty-nine and measles at seven

A Profitable Prison. The first quarterly financial state ment of the auditor general under the new law of the charitable, penal and has been made public. It shows that while the other institutions of the state have been a burden to taxpayers of from $2,000 to $32,000 each for the quarter ended September 30, the receipts have exceeded the disbursements of the Jackson prison 85,987, a state of affairs unprecedented in its his-

Spaniels Prevent a Blaze. What might have proved a disastrou fire was prevented at Holland by two spaniel dogs. They are the property of Charles J. Richardson, and one of the canines awakened a servant by rubbing his nose against her face, who aroused their master just in time to extinguish a blaze that had already eaten a hole through the floor of his billiard hall. The fire had been started by a cigar being thrown in a wooden box filled with sawdust.

Will Have a Sanitarium. Four Detroit capitalists have pur chased of Dr. Keeley the right to use his drunkard cure, and leased a building in the village of Northville, engaged Dr. A. E. Carrier as resident physician and manager, and will start a sanitarium there. The projectors declined to say what they paid Dr. Keelev for the use of his discovery, but acknowledge the venture would require the investment of $100,000.

Will Stay by Itself. The Michigan Masonic Mutual Benefit association at a special session in Grand Rapids decided not to amalgamate with the Mutual Reserve Life Fund association of New York, and appointed a committee, with S. S. Stevens, of Muskegon, as chairman, to present some plan for reorganization at another meeting to be held January 6.

DOM PEDRO IS DEAD.

The Extlet Monarch Passes Away in France, Breathing Expressions of Love for Brazil-A Sketch of His Career. Paris, Dec. 5 .-- Dom Pedro, ex-emperor of Brazil, died at 2 o'clock a. m. and at 2 o'clock one lung was so clogged up that all hope of saving his life had gone. He ### uniconsciotis from that time on and suffered no pain when he died. The count and faithful friends who had attended him during his siekness.

Since 1887, when Dom Pedro was forced to leave Brazil, his health had been failing. It was bad before, but the troubles consequent on his banishment seemed to have made it worse. A few days ago the ex-emperor was seized with pneumonia and the disease made rapid progress. Wednesday his life was despaired of, but Thursday he rallied and it was thought he would survive. Friday, however, his case took another unfavorable turn. It is said that the last conscious words of the ex-emperor were an expression of his deep affection for Brazil and his regret that he could not go back there to die. The cold reception of Dom Pedro's offer to return to Brazil, made in & manifesto issued during the cent revolution, seems to have been a final blow. The disease which had for some time troubled him was aggravated by his mental suffering and he took to his bed. His death will probably put an end forever to the attempts to revive the Brazilian empire. [Dom Pedro will be mourned throughout the civilized world as one of the best and most enlightened of rulers. He was born in Rio Janeiro reformatory institutions of the state Carlos Leopoldo Salvador Bibiano Franon December 2, 1825, and was christened Joas cisco Xavier Da Paula Leocadio Miguel Gabriel Rafael Gonzaga, When not 6 years, old he became sovereign by the abdication of his father, Emperor Pedro L From 1831 to 1833 his tutor and the sole regent as Don Bonifacio Jose de Andrada E. Silva, leader of the democratic party; but after the fall of that statesman a council of regency con-In 1840 Pedro II. was declared by the chambers to have attained his majority and he aswas crowned July 18, 1841. On September 4, 1843, he married Princess Theresa Caroline Marie de Bourbor daughter of Francis I., king of the two Sicilie. Almost his first act was to dissolve the Brazilian parliament, and for years, or until 1548, there were stormy times, but he finally established himself firm in the affections of the people and for forty years he enjoyed an empire without internal dissensions. In 1850 he felt secure in beginning the peaceful work of emancipating the slaves, and on September 4 of that year he decreed that the barter and sale of human beings should cease. It was not until 1871, however, that he directed parliament, to pass laws for the emancipation of slaves as they reached certain years of servitude, and it was not until 1888 that all human beings in Brazil were free.

He had a dispute with England in 1862 which threatened to assume big proportions, but was finally referred to the king of the Belgians for arbitration He decided in favor of Dom Pedro. Then there was a war against Paraguay, begun by Brazil and continued for five years. It ended in 1870 with the acquisition by Brazil of 1,000 square miles of the territory of Paraguay. Dom Pedro spoke Portuguese, Spanish, French, English, German and Italian fluently, and had traveled most observantly all over the world. In 1862 he made his first trip through Europe, and on his return he threw the river Amazon and its tributaries open to the com-merce of the world. In 1871 he revisited Europe, and in 1876, the centennial year, he went to the United States, and saw the country -its people, its industries, its municipal, state and national institutions-more thoroughly and more intelligently perhaps than any other distinguished visitor. He traveled like a pri vate citizen, for he detested mere show and adulation. Is 1887 he went to Europe for his health, which had been completely broken down. During his absence his daughter, the Countess d'Eu, was regent. When the emperor's health was restored he returned to Brazil in the latter part of 1888. In November, 1889, a revolution broke out in Brazil, the throne was overturned, a republic declared and the emperor and the entire royal family were .placed on board a vessel and shipped to Europe with orders never again to set foot in Brazil. Since that time Dom Pedro had resided most of the time in Paris.]
