St. Mary's Christmas Festival,

Last Monday evening the Town Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity by a large and appreciative audience, who greatly enjoyed a most admirable Christmas entertainment, given by the young people

The entertainment consisted of songs, recitations, tableau vivants, winding up with a melodrama performance by the young ladies and gentlemen of the congregation.

The entertainment opened with a recherche supper, supplied by the ladies of the church. Conspicuous in the Hall was the Fancy Table, tastefully decorated with the Papal colors, yellow and white. On the stage was visible the magnificent Christmas tree, laden with hundreds of enticing articles, which attracted the covetous eyes of the pretty juveniles.

The Talleau Vivant, "Too Late." elicited the well merited applause of Harry and Fred Morton, of Detroit, the entire audience. We must not forget to mention that the young Miss Rose Howe is spending the holidays ladies, who acted in the Melodrama, performed their parts with a charming ease, grace, and pathos, enlivened by wit, humor, sarcasm, fire and Christmas Day.

Christmas Day, commemorating the great and joyous mystery of the birth of the Savior, was celebrated with fitting pomp and devetion in St. Mary's church.

The interior of the church was decorated with a profusion of festoons and garlands of evergreens, interspersed with flowers of all tints and hues, while numberless lamps of varied colors, nestled, as it were, amid green bowers, diffused their demand for next season is to place his soft and weird light throughout the sacred edifice.

THE shattering of another popular belief is attempted. A number of prominent English and American lawyers in Paris declare that the marriages of American girls with foreigners turn out as well as most marriages, when the bride understands what to expect. Very likely; but there have, nevertheless, been several conspicuous instances of unhappiness.

THE news comes from Philadelphia of a great change in the manners and customs of the Quakers. The women have discarded their little black bonnets and sedate black dresses with white collars for more modern costumes, and their "thou" and "thee" of address are as unfamiliar as their old style of dress. Many of the orthodox Quakers have begun to show a preference for the Hicks doctrine. It is mainly in the south now that the Quakers follow in the footsteps of their old leaders.

To sum up the cost of running this great government it may be said that the legislative establishment, by which is meant congress and all appertaining thereto, costs $3,500,000 a year. TABLE-TALK IN CHINA.

Hard Questions Propounded by an Ori ental While Dining.

Conversation at the table of a Chinese centleman is on a high plane. It is literary rather than intellectual, reminiscent rather than original. At times nor, T. J. Geary, R. R. Hitt, A. C. Harmer. it is dry, and even dull, but it is always clean, choice and elegant. Their classics abound in phrases such as "May Wheeler (Ala.), W. C. Newberry, D. H. Pat-ten, H. H. Rockwell, J. L. Mitchell, Oscar Lap-good digestion wait on appetite, and ham, E. F. McDonald, J. C. Crosby, H. H. health on both," "Better is a dinner Bingham, C. E. Beiknap, W. W. Bowers, J. ward Bedloe, in Lippincott's. WORK OF CONGRESS. Importance Attached to the Appointing of Committees. In the days of the famous statesmen sketched and delineated by Oliver Dyer in his "Great Senators of the United States," transcendent ability and personal greatness exercised a controlling influence in the halls of congress. When Calhoun, Benton, Clay or Webster supported a measure it was understood that he had made himself familiar with all its bearings and was advocating it because he believed its passage would conduce to the welfare of the country. Moreover, he was acknowledged as a leader; his followers had faith in him, and his eloquence and his arguments had a powerful influence upon the minds of his colleagues.

In those days the bills which came before congress were so few that whenever a measure of vital interest was introduced it was possible for a D. B. Brunner, D. D. Donovan, J. L. Bretz, R. W. Everett, B. F. Grady, G. P. Coburn, J. H. Beeman, J. D. Taylor (O.), H. Cheatham, John Cally and give ample time to its consideration. Now it is different. The calenders of the senate and the house Bunting, James Capehart, J. W. Causey, John of representatives are so loaded down with important bills that it is physically impossible for anybody to master the details of even a moiety of them. Hence, as a matter of necessity, the work of examining them is divided up between the committees of either house. Every measure is referred to the appropriate committee; the committee examines and reports upon it, and and if the report be unanimous it is usually accepted as conclusive, and the bill is passed or rejected in accordance lots, stereotype metal in lots of the hundred thousand pounds and an equal hundred thousand pounds and an equal quantity of bar-lead; twenty-five thousand feet sand pounds of glue, fifty thousand feet of imitation Russia leather, and paper to cost alone over a half million dollars, it is easy to believe that the government it is easy to believe that the government printing office is a great site blishment.

It's an insult to your intelligence, but some un-scrupulous dealers try it. For in-stance: you're suffering from some Skin, Scalp or Scrofulous affection, or are feeling "run-down" and "used-up." There's a torpid liver, impure blood, and all that may come from it. You've decided, wisely, that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the medicine to help you. You know that it's guaranteed to do so, as no other bloodpurifier is. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you get your money back.

But what is best for you to take isn't always best for the dealer to sell. He offers something else that's "just as good." Is it likely? If the makers of a medicine can't trust it, can you?

One of two things has to happen. You're cured of Catarrh, or you're paid $500 cash. That's what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. By its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties, it cures the worst

This is the query perpetually on your little What is boy's lips. And he is It For? no worse than the bigger, older, balder-head-ed boys. Life is an interrogation point. "What is it for?" we continually cry from the cradle to the grave. So with this little introductory sermon we turn and ask: "What is August Flower for?" As easily answered as asked: It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this; but this brimful. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. Twenty years ago it started in a small country town. To-day it has an honored place in every city and country store. possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country and sells everywhere. Why is this? The reason is as simple as a child's thought. It is honest, does one thing, and does it right along-it cures Dyspepsia. G. G. GREEN, Sole Man'fr, Woodbury, N.J.

THE TRUE THEORY.

A great many people and some who ought to know better insist that there is no connection between the lungs and kidneys, and they say what has a cough to do with the kidneys. Every medical man who is thoroughly posted will tell you that more pneumonia comes from kidney trouble than from any other cause, and that in the lungs of a patient who dies of pneumonia there is often to be found the salts that should have been taken out of the blood by the kidneys but were not. These salts were deposited in the lungs, and thus became the seat of a disorder that resulted in pneumonia so the cause was in the inactivity of the kidneys. Case after case is laid down in the books where this has been the result. REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE is a specific for all these cases. It induces the kidneys to resume their normal functions and it incites the lungs to action. In this way, and this way alone, can this malady be overcome. Get it of your

"Stay a few minutes and have a chat with me, Harry," commanded my aunt -she could not help her least request sounding imperative; "and Maggie, my dear, you can go to your bed. Good night." Maggie submissively obeyed though I fancied she gave me her hand in parting with a wistful look, as if she would gladly have stayed, too. > Ring up the curtain now, on an Indian New Year's dinner six years later. I and my family-think of that-are gathered round the table. It is a small, round table, chosen to-night for coziness, so that my wife and I are near each other, and our five-year-old heir sits between us, with his golden head not very high above the tablecloth. Opposite him sits Thorold, a true and tried friend to us both and comrade of mine. Maude is more lovely than ever in my eyes. Just as winning and laughing, but a glorious woman instead of a more charming girl. She looks especially beautiful to-night in a new ball gown, a triumph of exquisitely fitting satin about the bodice, and of bewildering fluffiness as to the skirt, while her bare, snowy neck and bosom rise out of some soft veiling accessories that an angel might not disdain to take pattern

With gigorous attacks of spoon and fork, urged on by the wondering curiosity of us all, out I brought presently a small tin case from the heart of the plum pudding. It was tied round with narrow red ribbon, which was fastened in a dozen places by great blobs of sealing wax, impressed with the full Upcher coat of arms.

"O, Harry, what can it be?" "By jove! here is a surprise!" chorused Thorold and Maude in astonishment, rising and looking eagerly.

"Here! hi! Get me something to open this, quick!" I hurriedly ordered in the native vernacular of my butler. "Anything! from a hammer to a hatchet." (For a wild idea had darted across my brain.) It was done. In thirty seconds the tin case was open, and with fingers fairly tingling with anxiety and delight I drew forth a roll of cotton wool and tissue paper, and unwrapped-the diamond necklace! Yes, I was right. There it lay, first in my hands, then gleaming round Maude's dear throat in all its old brilliancy.

"I am, as I said, the happiest woman in India to-night," she cried, half laughing, half crying, as I clasped it on, and stood back to look at her in admiring pride, while Thorold kept repeating: "Capital! first-rate! It's as good as a
