Countercial Properties of a Remarkable Atmospheric Constituent. Ozone was first discovered by Van Marum a century or more ago, but it was first investigated and brought prominently to the notice of medical and scientific men by Schonbein, of Germany, in 1845. From that date to the present it has been a subject of active study by scientists, sanitarians and medical men generally. Ozone seems to exist in a minute quantity in the atmosphere, and how it is formed there and the conditions of its existence have long been matters of dispute. Schonbein, Andrews in England and Houzean in France were the earlier and important exponents of the views that ozone is a normal constituent of the atmosphere. In a valuable monograph published in Germany in 1879 Professor Engler comes to the same conclusion.

On the other hand, the Russian chemist Schoene, after a long series of observations and laboratory experiments, concludes that the effects ascribed to ozone in the air are due not to that substance, but to another strong oxidizing agent-hydrogen others of the present time, while several careful experimenters seem stance.

Ozone is best made by the passage of electricity through oxygen, and many scientists have been working upon apparatus devised for the practical preparation of it in quantity. By the slow combustion of phosphorus in moist air ozone is also formed, but only in limited amount. With reference to the commercial utilization of ozone, Professor Fahrig says: "Ozone is the strongest oxidizing agent known, and should be most useful, particularly in bleaching processes. At present chloride of lime is used extensively as a bleacher. Chlorine, however, in a pure and dry state has no bleaching properties. But from its great affinity for hydrogen, forming oxygen and hydrochloric acid, chlorine becomes the strongest bleaching agent. It is the oxygen set free in the chlorine in combination with the water which performs the bleaching. Now, ozone is nothing but oxygen in a condensed state. Oxygen converted into a 1, 2 or 3 per cent. ozone is a powerful bleacher. It is a mistaken idea that ozone can be produced at any per cent. of strength; 6 or 7 per cent. of ozone is about the strongest one DIEMENSCHNEIDER & SHAVER would care to handle, and 1 per K Proprs of The "City" Barber cent. of ozone is strong enough for almost any commercial oxidation. "Ozone seems designed as nature's own oxidizing agent. By employing ozone instead of chlorine we substitute a harmless substance for a dead ly poison. It would be a step forward did our spice merchants adopt ozone for bleaching ginger, pepper and all other foodstuffs. It could be used also for treating drinking waters. Ozone alone can kill the bacteria in water. Twenty grains of ozone per 1,000 gallons of water gives a good result. Here we have at once a large field for the use of ozone.

"Ozone could be used for bleach ing paper, especially the better grades; also for treating sewage; for separating sugar in sugar refining; for preserving meat, fish, milk, etc.; for aging alcohol in general, and whisky in particular."-Chicago Electrician.

In the Old Home.

Like the patient moss to the rifted hill The wee brown house is clinging: A last year's nest that is lone and still,

Though it erst was filled with singing. Then fleet were the children's pattering feet

And their trilling childish laughter, And miany voices were sweet-oh, how sweet!

Binging from floor to rafter.

The beautiful darlings, one by one. From the nest's safe shelter flying. Went forth in the sheen of the morning

"sun. Their fluttering pinions trying. But oft as the reaping time is o'er,

And the hoar frost cris; s the stubble. They haste to the little home once more

From the great world's toll and trouble. And the mother herself is at the pane,

With a hand the dim eyes shading. And the flush of girlhood tints again

The cheek that is thin and fading.

For her boys and girls are coming home, The mother's kiss their guerdon,

As they came ere yet they had learned to roam

Or bowed to the task and burlen.

Over the door's worn sill they troop, The skies of youth above them.

The blessing of God on the happy group Who have mother left to love them They well may smile in the face of care

To whom such grace is given-A mother's faith and a mother's prayer

Holding them close to heaven.

There are tiny hands that pull her gown, And small heads bright and colden: The childish laugh and the childish frown,

And the dimpled fingers folden.

That bring again to the mother-breast The spell of the sunny weather When she hushed he: brood in the crowded nest, d all were glad togeth was bending over her with a face nearly as white as her own.

He had taken her mother and sisters to their destination, then driven directly back home, as he had intended to do from the first. Finding the lights out and everything quiet and fearing to disturb her, he had entered by the kitchen window.

The sun Thanksgiving morning rose gloriously beautiful over all the land. And for once, at least, Faith Darrows did not forget to be thankiul for God's blessed goodness. But for once she did forget to quarrel with Lute Dinsmore and was sweet and tender and womanly, letting her heart speak to him through her eyes.

At noon the long table, spread in the sitting-100m in Bertie's honor, fairly groaned with the load of good things she had prepared. There was a plump chicken, de feately browned and piping hot; a delicious oyster pie sending up its savory scent; potatoes steaming in their gray jackets under a snowy napkin, squash yellow as the golden blossom that produced it, crisp green pickles that made one's mouth water only to look at them, dainty cranberry jelly quivering on tiny saucere, little frosted cakes on a pretty platter, honey dripping lazily from its thick while comb, pumpkin and mince pie, white and brown bread, and a great dish of luscious pears and rosy-cheeked apples.

When it was all ready and two tiny bouquets made from the few flowers she had, and placed by Lute's and Bertie's plate, Faith ran up-stairs to brush her tumbled hair, bathe her heated face and array herself in her pretty soft-gray gown, a bunch of pink chrysanthemums thrust in the dainty bodice.

Bert gave a shrill whistle when she came down, and shouted "Great Scott" in royal school-boy tashion; but it was the kind gray eyes watching her so steadily at the other end of the table that made her blush so furiously.

Next day when Mrs. Darrows came home, and had Bertie in her arms once, he confided to her "that Thanksgiving Day Ladn't been much of a time 'cept the dinner. That Faith and he had lots of fun until Cousin Lute came home, and after that Faith had 'lected him right along, and didn't seem to care to muse anybody else but Lute. Not but what Cousin Lute is good enough most time, mamma, bnt 1 do think too much of him is a newsance."

And that night when Faith, with her blushing face hidden on her mother's neck, told the sweet old story of Lute's love for her and their reconciliation, she added with a touch of her old sarcasm, "but if I ever have any more lovemaking on hand, deliver me from having Bert around; he won't even let anyone be 'spooney' with comfort." "Why are you harsh and unloving, Filling my poor heart with pain? Lives young as ours should be happy;

Whisper forgiveness again. Why do you talk of my follies? How can you censure and scorn?

FAITH GAVE THANKS.

"Yes, mamma, you go, makes it ever-so much jollier for a fellow. She's got lots more 'musement in her than you have, mamma, and 'sides, you say yourself, she makes better with a bitter laugh and a sarca tic taffy.

There was a general burst of laughter at this remark, for they all knew Bert's hobby-horse was taffy, saddled with 'musement.

"Thank you, little boy," Faith anewered; "it is a rare thing for me to be appreciated by a young gentleman; Cousin Lute here, for instance, does not agree with you at all." And she glanced saucily over to where he was standing. Lute Dinsmore's face flushed angrily as he met her imperious look, but he did not answer. So, catching her pretty, sweet-faced mother around the waist, and waltzing her about the room, she went on:

"Now, I hope, since Bertie agrees, that you are convinced it is your bounden duty to go to grandpa's and spend Thanksgiving as usual. Don't interrupt. me; I have it all planned, you see-Lute is going to drive you and the girls over this afternoon, old Mike will sleep in the house to keep off burglars, and Bertie and I will have glorious fun."

Just here let me explain that pretty, sad-faced Mrs. Darrows was a widow with four children. Faith, the eldest, a fun-loving, saucy young lady of 18-Belle and Kitty, twin sisters, two years younger, and Bertie, a slim, mischievous boy of 6-who in searching for amusement in the top of a tree two weeks before, fell out of it and broke his leg. This accident had quite upset Mrs. Darrows' plans for spending Thanksgiving at her childhood's home, as she had never failed to do since her marriage. Since Mr. Darrows' death two years before, Luther Dinsmore, a sousin of the family, had lived with them and managed the farm. He was a sensible, manly young fellow of 25, with a heart of gold, and all the family were devotedly attached to him. Faith alone snubbed him unmercifully, and they quarreled one day and made up the mext.

Impetuous, fun-loving Faith was "au-

> She scarcely knew what reply she had made to it all, only it was something mocking and saucy and sarcastic, she remembered. He had never been quite the same to her since, she thought, with a little sob. If only he were only sitting in the chair over yonder, just this moment, she telt sure she could go right up to him and whipser softly:

"I am wretched, Cousin Lute; I want you to forgive me. I am tired of being naughty and self-willed and rebellious. want to try and make myself worthy of your love, and-

Hark! what was that? Just a tiny, tiny noise in the kitchen; only a rat maybe; but all the blood seemed settling atout her heart. Bolt upright now she sat and listened breathlessly. Hush! there it was again, like some one trying to open a window. Her eyes seemed starting from their sockets, her heart beat so she could scarcely breathe. She dared not go out and investigate. The only door leading into the sitting-room from the kitchen was locked, but she glided noiselessly over to the big bookcase in the corner, and heavy as it was wheeled it somehow against the locked door; piled chairs on the table against that, then crept back to Bertie. Presently there came a faint chink as of breaking glass, and the sound of feet stepping softly about, and the glimmer of a light under the shut door. Half dead with terror, she stood with her arms around Bertie, who still slumbered peacefully. Presently a hand softly turned the knob of the sitting-room door, and, with one terrified shriek, she fell tainting across Bertie's couch.

When she opened her eyes again the room was coli as a barn, there was a window wide open, and her clothes were

THE FIRST THANKSCIVING.

An Official Proclamation Recommending Its Observance Was First Issued in 1752. In "Young's Chronicles of the Pilgrims" the following is found:

The harvest being gotten in, the Governor sent four men on a fowling expedition that they might rejoice in a special manner. Amongst other recreations they exercised in arms and feasted Massasoyt, with some ninety men, for three days. November, 1621.

Thanksgiving, 1892.

The following is the first official recorded Thanksgiving Proclamation: By the HONOURABLE

SPENCER PHIPPS, ESQ.;

Lieutenant Governour and Commander-in-Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England,

A PROCLAMATION for a publick THANKSGIVING, 1752.

Upon due Consideration of the gracious Dis-pensations of divine Providence towards us in the Year past; particularly, in preserving us from devouring Insects, and granting us a Competency of the Fruits of the Earth, not-withstanding the Drought and early Frost, ly which the latter Harvest hath been considerably diminished; In bestowing so good a Measure of Health in many parts of the Prov-ince; In preserving so many of our Towns from the Contagion of the Small-Pox, and in re-markably abating the Malignity and Mortality of that Distemper in those Piaces which have n visited therewith, especially in Boston and Charlestown, and giving us so fair a pros-pect of being soon delivered from that Cal-amity; In protecting our Sea-Coasts and Inland-Borders from the Invasions of Enemies; in restoring divers of our Captives to Liberty; and in continuing our invaluable Privileges, religious and civil; In prolonging the life of our Sovereign Lord the King, their Royal High-nesses the Prince of Wales, the Princess Dowager of Wales, the Duke, and the rest of the Royal Family; In blessing his Majesty's Counsels and Negotiations for Preserving the Peace of Europe, and the many other instances of divine Goodness towards a sinful and un-thankful People.

I have thought fit, with the Advice of His Majesty's Council, to appoint Thursday the Sixteenth of November next to be observed as a Day of publick THANKSGIVING throughout a Day of publick THANKSCIVING throughout this Province; Hereby calling upon Ministers and People religiously to so emnize the same, not only by offering unto God the Praises of their Lips, but by rendering Him the sincere Thankfulness of their Hearts, and the un-feigned Obedience of their Lives; and with their Praises to join their fervent Supplica-tions to Almighty GOD, that he would be pleased to confer all necessary Blessings, spiritual and temporal, upon our Nation and Land; and cause the Light of the Gospel to shine upon all Nations, that so the whole earth may be filled with His Glory. may be filled with His Glory. And all scrvile Labour is forbidden on the said Day.

Given at Cambridge, the Thirteenth Day of October, 1752, in the Twenty-sixth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD of Great Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c. S. Phipps. Faith, &c. S. Phipps. By Order of His Honour the Lieutenant-Gov ernour with the advice of the Council. J. Willard, Secr'y. GOD Save the KING.

BOSTON: Printed by John Draper, Printer to His Honour the Lieutenant-Gov-ernour & Council, 1752.

J. C. STEWART, the well-known commedian, owns an island in the mouth of Chesapeake Bay, on which there is clay that would turn out pure aluminum at sixteen cents a pound. The clay has been examined by a Philadelphia chemist, and at the end of the season a comthority in the Darrows' household, and, wet with the water that had been pany is to be organized to manufacture as usua', soon won her mother over to dashed in her face. Bert was wide the metal.

Albert Swarthout was shot while in his barn, not fifty steps from the house; his body was then thrown into a cart, hauled within a stone's throw of the side windows of the farm-house, and dumped into a strawstack, which was set on fire. All of this was done within easy reach of the house, in and around which, according to the statements of the family, ther. were at the time the two sons, the daughter and her husband, and the wife of the younger son. The boys were arrested on an atfidavit sworn to by five of the best-known citizens of the county charging them with guilty knowledge of the crime. It is claimed that the boys were opposed to their father's approaching marriage with a young school-teacher in a neighboring town, by which hey thought the estate of $25,000 would be lost to them The theory of robbery is also advanced, as a gold watch and $100 known to have been in the possession of the nurdered man have not been found. The entire evidence, however, is purely circumstantial.

The two sons are good-looking young fellows. John, the eldest, is 25 years of age, and a graduate of this year's class at Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Ernest is 22 years old. He has always lived on the farm with his father, and was married two months ago. Both the young men are willing to talk of their father's death, and deny most emphatically any knowledge of the crime.

lon,

The Pioneer Publisher of Literature for Sunday Schools.

David C. Cook, the Chicago Sunday School publisher, was born in East Worcester, New York, in 1830, a son of

Rev. E. S. Cook, a Methodist minister, a cultured and scholarly man. Since earliest childhood he has been devoted to the Sunday School. In boyhood he joined the church, and began teaching in the DAVID C. COOK. Sunday School at the age of seventeen in the West Division of Chicago, and for four years following taught most of the time in two or three schools each Sabbath.

The fire of 1871 was the beginning of his mission and Sunday-school work on the North Side. His field was one of the roughest and poorast of the burnt district. Here, in a German theater and beer-hall, he organized "Everybody's Mission," afterwards removed to a building of its own. With an attendance of 350 to 450, he sustained the school for five years without the aid of church or society.

Fesides this, he has since organized and superintended North Avenue Mission, Lake View Mission, Lake View Union Sunday-schools in 'Chicago, and the Sunday-s hool connected with Grace Church in Elgin, Ill., besides several smaller schools.

His first publications were issued for his own Sunday-schools alone. Neightoring Sunday-schools, appreciating the value of these helps, became his first subscribers. Soon Mr. Cook discovered that his were not the only schools that needed more and better literature than they could afford to buy at the prices then existin ? and resolved to make it his life work to place in the hands of the Sunday-school children of the land an abundance of the very best literature at the lowest possible prices.

He was met at the very outset with almost insurmountable obstacles and lively opposition; but the obstacles and opposition only furnished zest, for he is a man of purpose, and it has been well said of him, "his indomitable energy demands insurmountable obstacles." That his purpose was good and wise is proved by the way he has been supported.

It is seventeen years since he issued his first publication, and there is now scarcely a village or hamlet in the land where they are not known and used. He employs regularly six associate editors and some sixty writers, representing some of the ablest Sunday school talent in the land.

Among those who know him personally he is always recognized as a man of strong Christian character, a practical worker in the church, Sunday school and temperance cause, and a warm friend of missions, both home and foreign.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

A Tremendous Rumpus

In the system is produced by a disorderly liver. Bile gets into the blood and gives a saffron tinge to the countenance and eye-balls, sick headaches ensue, the digestive organs are thrown out of gear, the bowels become costive, there are pains through the right side and shoulder blade, the breath grows sour and the tongue furred, dizziness is frequent, especially on rising suddenly. This state of affairs could not exist unless the disturbance were a serious one. Yet it is easily remediable with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which relieves every symptom of billousness and indigestion, and promotes a regular action of the bowels, and is auxiliary of appetite and sleep. The Bitters is a superb specific for malarial and kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility. A wineglassful thrice a day.

Beware of Ointmonts for Catarrh that Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. ## Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

Don't give up and say there is no help for Catarrh. Hay Fever, and Cold in the head, since thousands testify that Ely's Cream Balm has entirely cured them.

I HAVE been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years: I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did; my sense of smell seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh .- Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., Ohio,

I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the blad-der had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could est anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat five times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said my stomach was worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food. On the recommendation of a friend I procured a bottle of August Flower. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained strength and flesh rapidly. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has cured me." Jas. E. Dederick, Saugerties, N.Y.

The Chelsea Dramatic Club will present the drama "Comrades" for the benefit of the Maccabees, Friday pleasing home drama and should be Rev. J. H. McIntosh and daughter, greeted with a packed house.

An entertainment entitled "Frolic of the Holidays," something in the Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Freeman spent line of the "Temple of Fame" which was so popular here two years ago, will be given December 7th by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church, at the Town Hall.

> Guy Bros.' Minstrels are on the tapis at Town Hall for Town December 10th. When this company was here last year one man who was unable to get in the hall on account of the large crowd, went home and whipped his wife because she forgot to get reserved seats.

The Blind Boone Concert Company at Town Hall Wednesday evening was greeted with a fair house, the gallery being packed. The program of piano selections proves Boone a wonder as a pianist, and the entertainment was rounded off by several plantation songs by Miss Stella May, who renders negro melodies in a pleasing manner.

The entertainment last Friday evening-the first of the Columbian Course -by Madame Fry Concert Company had a tair house in Town Hall last Friday evening. The ladies presented the several numbers of a well-arranged vocal and instrumental program in a manner to meet the appreciation and elicit the frequent applause of the audience. The most delightful part in the whole program being the violin playing of Miss Alta Fry.

Wedding Bells.

Wednesday evening, November 23d a large company of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Martin to witness the marriage of their daughter, Miss Carrie, to Geo. E. Hathaway, of Ann Arbor.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the wedding march was played and the bride, attended by her friend, Miss Matie Stimson, and the groom attended by Frank Riggs, entered the room, and the nuptual knot was securely tied by Rev. J. H McIntosh, assisted by Rev. L. N. Moon After receiving the congratulations of the company, all repaired to the dining room, where a bountiful repast was served.

CHURCH CORNER

The duet sang by Miss Alice Sargent and J. W. Brighton at the Congregational church last Sunday morning was a fine one. Their rendering of it brought out all the sweetness of the piece.

There need be no difficulty in remembering the text of the Sunday morning sermons at the Congregational church, just now, as the pastor is preaching a series of nine sermons fourth in the series.

About fifteen gathered at Deacon C. H. Wines last Sabbath afternoon and a communion service, was held. As Deacon Wines has been unable to attend church services in some time, it was pleasant to have a season of prayer and communion at his own home. -"All things work together for good of those that love God,' was the subject at the prayer meeting last week at the Congregational church. On account of the rain the attendance was small. Will those absent receive the blessing from the above promise?

It is quite probable that the North men discoverd America one thousand vears before Columbus' day. Yes there is no less glory attached to Columbus' work. So in our churches let us not ask our preachers to discover new truths, but help them to a new discovery of old truths.

The social and workers meeting of the Congregational ladies at Mrs. J C. Winans last week was well attended, but there ought to be more present each time. If any one is kept

B. C. Turner, of Jackson, was the away because the supper costs ten cents, we suggest that they count the cost of supper at home once or twice.

> All Protestants ought to rejoice at the action of the American Missionary Society, (a Cong'l'body), and also of > the Episcopal church recently in refusing to accept aid longer from the U. S. Government to support denom> inational schools among the Indians.

The bridal gifts were many and show the esteem in which the young people are held by their friends.

The young couple left Thursday morning for Ann Arbor, where they will make their home.

Last evening a large and happy company of relatives and invited guests assembled at the cosy home of our from John 3:16. Last Sunday was the townsman, J. H. Hollis, to witness the marriage of their only daughter, Miss Jennie, to Louis T. Freeman of Cnelsea. The rooms were beautifully decorated and arranged so that the company were nicely accommodated, and at 7:30 the nuptual knot was tied by Rev. R. L. Cope, and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman recieved the congratulations and best wishes of their friends.

> Refreshments most elegant and abundant were served, and the evening was spent in a social manner. The multiplicity of bridal gifts were very beautiful and useful.

The high contracting parties are young people for whom our citizens have the highest regard. The bride is one of our most charming and accomplished young ladies. The groom, now a member of the successful firm of F. P. Glazier & Co., of Chelsea, was a former Manchester boy of high social standing and, like h1s bride a graduate of our high school in the class of '89.

At a late hour the bridal party took their departure for Chelsea, where Mr. Freeman has a home all arranged for his bride, and in which they will have their first-thanksgiving .- Manchester Enterprise.

CHECKER NEWS.

The State Tournament moved along finely The state fournament moved along meny until the last day and then a protest was put in by Mr. Robinson and fred O, Melay against E. E. Perty, Ferry and O Melay had played two of their games-off of four and it then being supper time, both agreed to come back and play after supper, very did not show up atplay after supper, i erry did not show up al-ter supper, consequently O'Meiay protested and claimed the other two games. But it was overruled after the players had played under protest. A. U. liphthysin, of dackson, uid not protest. A. C. Robinson, of Jackson, did not play very good eneckers the first day and consequently nad to work hard the second and third days, but when he got to work, he played some very line games. We would like to see him matched against Mr, McNamara of Mt. Pletsantof Detroit, ist, alloaei Mexamara of alloa reareves of Detroit, ist, alloaei Mexamara of All'reas ant, 2d; A. O. Robinson, Jackson, 3d; Dr. W. B Banks, of Detroit, 4th; and Fitzie Barrus, of Chelsea.5. James Labadic.of Manistique. Mich. arrived at Detroit saturday night but was too tired to play very much. The played one extin-bitton game with John-Meurevey, winner of the first prize, which resulted in a very neat win for Labadie. Play was resumed sunday an-ternoon and evening which resulted as follows.

Sympathy in a Dog.

A butcher residing at Brodick, in the Isle of Arran, told me that he had had two collie dogs at the same time, one old and the other young. The old dog became useless through age and was drowned in the sea at Brodick A few days afterward its body was washed ashore, and it was discovered by the young dog, who was seen immediately to go to the butcher's shop and take away a piece of meat and lay it at the dead dog's mouth. The young dog evidently thought that the meat would revive his old comrade, and thereby showed remarkable sympathy in aid of, to him. the apparent "weak."-London Spectator. *

The National Farmer and Home Magazine To any new subscriper, who sends one dollar for either of the above periodicals for one year. This is the grandest offer ever made, and the greatest bargain ever offered. Up to this time the price of a com-plete set of Dickens' Works has been ten dollars or more. The use of modern, improved printing, folding and stitch-ing machinery, the present extremely low price of white paper, and the great competition in the book trade are the factors which made this wonderful offer possible. Bear in mind that we offer, not a single volume, but the entire set of twelve volumes all free to subscribers. All may now afford the luxury of owning a handsome set of Dickens' works. Organized Movement for Good Roads-Small-Pox Creates Alarm at New Haven -Awful Work of Wind-Ben Butler Must Pay.

Ended with Disaster.

THE Democrats of Mountain View, Ark., held a Fres.dential election celebration in the district school-house at that place the other night, and a tertible disaster ended the proceedings prematurely. Anvil firing and the discharge of fireworks were features of the jollification. A portion of these had been stored in the school-house. During the speechmaking and while the building was packed with men, women, and children two kegs of powder explode l. The results were frightful. The school house was totally wrecked and nost of its occupants buried in the ruins. Those who could extricate themselves set about at once to rescue others. Shrieks and moans came from the mass of wrecked timbers, and it was evident that the calamity was a terrible one. The deb. is took fire in several places, and it required hard work to prevent the cremation of the imprisoned victims. The flames were subdued, however, and only one person suffered from the fire. A son and daughter of Silas Graham were taken out dead, and Berry Sherod, one of the nost prominent residents of Washington County, was so badly injured that he has since died. Another man, whose name has not been learned, was also fatally hurt. Fifteen others were seriously injured, lut their names have not been ascer'a ned. He was then conveyed to St. Mary's Hospital, where the bullet was extracted from the back of his neck, whence it had drifted after glancing around several toeth. The chances for his recovery are good. The shooting was the result of an assault by Chinn, upon his receipt of dismissal as starter.

SMALL-POX has made its appearance in Chicago. One case has been reported to the Health Department Every precaution has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease and no danger is apprehended by the physicians, though a few cases may possibly appear. The individual afflicted is Martha Johnson, an unmarried Swede who has just came from the old country. The attending physician says: "The girl's case is a very severe one and the chances are against her recovery. Still her constitution is strong and she may pull through safely. There is no vaccination mark on the girl's arm, and I cannot understand how she could be given a clean bill of health by the New York health officers." Annie Lindtorg, a Swedish girl who came over with Martha Johnson, secured a position as servant in the flat building at No. 2505 Michigan avenue. An inspector was sent down to inquire into her case and to vaccinate the residents of the building.

POLITICAL.

THE New York Sun claims to announce authoritatively that President Cleveland will not call an extra session of the Fifty-third Congress.

PRECEDENT seems to be against the likelihood of an extra session of the next Congress, and according to a Washington correspondent it is not likely that the proposed move will materialize. When President Arthur became President in 1881 it was held that he must and would call Congress together upon certain issues which were impending and which were agitating the country, principally the proposed revision of the tariff. The same had been said when General Garfield became President. There were intervi good which demanded immediate Refreshments most elegant and^{ur} tra dant were served, and the evenine spent in a social manner. The groom, now a memss body seemed to expect an extra sesn n ni'ysion till the President said he would not even consider the subject of an extra session. He said the country would fare very well till Congress met in regular session. It is now pointed out by prominent Democrats in Washington that, besides being opposed to extra sessions of Congress in times like these, President Cleveland will have too much to do making changes in offices to warrant attention to Congress. It is learned that some of the leading tariff reformers are favoring an average reduction of about 20 per cent. from the McKinley schedule. They expect a bill to be passed by the new Congress and made operative two years afterward.

No such continued series of gales has prevailed on the lakes, vesselmen say, since 1867 as during the last three weeks. In that year the wind blew a gale all through November, and the losses to take shipping have not since been equaled. They are predicting that the present November would be a repetition of that month twenty-five years years ago. Friday morning a high southwest wind swept the lakes, but at night the wind had veered to the northwest, and a furious storm from that direction was reported on Lake Michigan and Lake Superior. Navigation was practically suspended, only two boats passing the Straits of Mackinaw. Steel boats, when without cargoes, were generally seeking shelter.

In Secret Session.

In the marble palace of Archbishop Corrigan, on Madison avenue, New York, there is progressing a conference which may have results of a far-reaching character. Catholic archbishops are conferring upon subjects of grave importance, not alone to their own followers but to the people at large. It goes without saying that the conclave is hedged about with privacy, and the avenues of public information are few. Cardinal Gibbons is said to be presiding, and the occasion gains unusual interest from the presence of Archbishop Satolli, the Pope's delegale to this country. Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, is present, and it is thought that he will meet all inquiries from any source relative to his views on the American school question. The educational question, it is believed, is being thoroughly considered by the conference. Among other matters it is understood that the convention will be asked by Archbishop Katzer, of Milwaukee, accurately to define the term "secret society." This request is in deference to the wishes of the German Catholics of the West, and is said to have in view the Knights of Pythias, the United Workmen, and other secret societies without spiritual direction, which have profited by the liberality of the church, while in consequence of this liberality the benevolent societies which have placed themselves under the direction of the church have not prospered to a corresponding degree.

BREVITIES.

JOHN K. SHAW, City Assessor of Duluth, Minn., has been missing for four days. He is at the head of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, in the State.

GENERAL W. S. ROSECRANS, Register of Treasury, who has been ill at Washing on for several weeks, is reported to be in a dangerous condition, with the chances against his recovery.

ARIEL MEINRATH, a Kansas City broker, having branches in Chicago, Boston, and other Eastern cities, turned over all his assets to banking institutions to which he was indebted.

EX-JUDGE JAMES SPENCEE, for four years Judge of the United States District Court of South Dakota, was arraigned at Duluth. Minn., on a charge of grand larceny. The charge grows out of a railroad case.

ANDERSON VENEY, a colored man awaiting trial for wife-murder at Windsor, Ont., is slowly starving to death at the jail. A week ago he refused nourishment, and since then he has not tasted food. Veney has reduced his weight seventy-five pounds.

THE Diebold-Mosler-Damon Safe Combine has been incorporated in New Jersey, with a capital stock of $5,000,000.

The sky was a vault of fleckless blue, the sun a great gleaming sapphire, the air bracing as pure wine, and the rate autumnal day was drawing to a close. Hopedale was a peaceful hamiet, but beyond its kind in certainly one progressive point-it had a young ladies' seminar, of unusual excellence, and a young man of more than usual acumen was enjoying the beautiful day and taking in the distant turrets and peaks of the institute of learning in question at that event: ul hour, for him, when our story opens.

He had the look of an artist, and the equipment of an artist sucrounded him. He had chosen the slope of a woode i grove for his camp-stool, and had set his easel facing the village. The flaming leaves of a broad-spreading tree father, who, for lack of a dead mother's sheltered him. Air, earth and sky were in harmony with the artistic impulse, but ust now he seemed in a thoughtful rather than an active mood.

His brush had fallen to his side, and the canvas showed only a few lazy patches of color. It seemed as if he had come out to paint Nature and had been shamed from feeble effort by the glorious brush of Nature itself. The sun, which dashed the white villas with pale gold, made the sumacs a great ensanguined blur of crin:son, and, mingling with the vari-colo.ed treetops, produced those exquisite shades and alternations of color and beautiful effects which no pen has ever yet described, no brush ever yet delineated. "I wish she would come," he mur-

FROM THE PAST.

Edna Deane's heart quickened its pulsations as she started for the reception room. The m ssage brought her bore a token of excitement. Her mind upon her lover, upon the myst ry of her fair young life, she vaguely dreaded to | thought he was particularly favored. take the step across the threshold that might potend revelations that would distress her.

A glance through the vestibule doors showed a close carriage with two reeking horses, a driver on the box. Had this unusual spectacle something to do with the summons of the moment?

You sent for me, Miss Chandler,' spoke Edna, inquiringly, as she entered the reception room, and then paused abrupuly.

The face of the lady principal was pale, her manner agitated. She half arose, as if moved by a sudden impulse. to greet her favorite warmly, sympathetically. Then, checking herself, she sad, in a muffled, indistinct tone of voice:

"Yes, Edna. This gentleman has come for you.'

At the gentleman in question the wondering, percurbed Edna was staring. He made a sl ght obeisance as she appeared. Now, stiff, prim, severe, his sallow face and nervous eyes rather depressed her.

terious gentleman brought me here, "It is-is is about-" stammered paid ten years' tuition and board in ad-Edra.

"Your past? your friends?" murmured the principal, brokenly. "Yes, Edna, I "Not even a hint. Here I was left. am very sorry, but your schooldays are Was I an orphan, was I at andoned here, over.

> "Oh! Miss Chandler, don't say that!" Edna gasped the words. She comprehended that the consummation so devoutly desired by her mystified, impatient lover and herself had arrived. But the shock of the announcement, a realization of how sunny and happy had been her life under the tender care of the school guardians sent the quick tears to her eyes and the warm color from her face.

Then eagerly, longingly, piteously, she glanced at the man before her. Was he the relative she had so often dreamed of-the mysterious censor of her fate?

"You are not-my father?" she began, twisting her hands in nervous confusion. The strange, mobile features never changed. Staring straight ahead of him like some automaton, his face most resembling that of a man in ill-heal h. suffering but silent; schooled against the be rayal of the least emotion, he answered solemuly, but not unpleasing y:

I: no. I am only your father's friend-his servant-his messenger." "And-he has sent for me?"

Every word was a throb of suspense of their plans, of their hopes, of the and painful uncertainty. A father! Then she was not utterly friendless? A father! But why had he left her loveless, neg ected, all these years? "Miss Chandler will tell you," answered the stranger. "She recognizes the authority by which I appear." "Dear Edna, let it be smiles rather than tears," spoke Miss Chandler, coming to Edna's side and p'acing a caressing arm about her. "It is all quickly told. You have a father, and he has sent for you." "But-"I cannot tell you more. This gentleman not only binds me to secrecy, or, rather, leaves me in complete ignorance of the motive for all this mystery, but insists that you shall leave at once. Of one thing be assured, however. I am satisfied that you are going into kind hands. All will be well. This letter will convince you. It is from your father." And Miss Chandler nodded to the stranger, who handed Edna a sealed missive. She barely gianced at it through her blinding tears. She read only the first few lines, beginning: "My child, there have been vital reasons for my seeming neglect of you, there are still vital reasons why suddenly, abruptly, you must sever your connection with your dearest friends and hasten to me. When I explain you will know why no one must know-Edna crumpled the unfinished missive into her pocket at this stage, for Miss Chandler was giving her directions to go to her room and pack up hurriedly. In that apartment Beatrice Mercer joined her. With a strange, wondering light in her eyes, she listened to Edna's story of the sudden summons. "Oh! I shall surely be allowed to write to you, to explain e erything when I find my father," sobbed Edna, as she clung to Beatr.ce in a fervent embrace. "Beatrice-Raymond?" The scintillating eyes of the dark beauty fashed wickedly, but the expression was veiled from poor Edna's tearblinded sight.

The Erratic Poet Had Loose Ideas of Commercial Honor.

To have loaned Edgar Allen Poe 50 cents is a distinction; to have put into type the poet's own correction of one of his poems is an honor. It is questionable, however, that the man who entered into such transaction with the poet back in the forties Col. Jacob Child, ex-Minister to Siam and prominent citizen of Ray County, eloquent, irrepressible, pulchritudinous, knew the author of "The Raven" intimately. Indeed, he was so well acquainted with the Virginian genius that he let him have 50 cents on one occasion wherewith to buy the cup that cheers and at the same time intoxicates.

"I knew Poe very well," the Colonel said yesterday. "He was a tall, slender fellow, looking much younger than he really was. His hair made him look like a poet. It was long and he 'combed it under' in the style of of the time. His piercing black eyes were another feature of his unusual appearance. When the least bit under the influence of alcohol Poe was a man long to be remembered. Those sparkling orbits fairly blazed. He came into the office of the Richmond Whig not long before he died and asked me to let him have 50 cents for a short time. In those days a poor printer boy in the South thought a good deal of a half-dollar and I remember that 1 reflected twice before letting the poet have the money. A few days later he brought in a proof of "Lenore," which had appeared in the Southern Literary Messenger, full of errors. Leaning over one of the big makeup stones, Poe made a number of changes in the original poem and asked me to set it up for the Richmond Whig. I did so and the next week 'Lenore' appeared in correct form." According to Col. Child, Poe sold his "Annabel Lee" twice once in Buffale and again in Richmond. If this story has ever appeared it has been kept out of books on Poe and his work, for the reason that it casts a shadow over the glamor that envelops the character of the poet. John R. Thompson was editor of the Southern Literary Messenger at the time that "Annabel Lee" was written. Poe brought the manuscript to him and sold it for a good sum. Thompson announced to his friends the next number of the Messenger would contain Foe's masterpiece. He on the sandbar between the harbor and refused, however, to say anything lake. Nothing has been seen of the about the style of the poem. After Col. Child had put the verses in type in the Richmond Whig office, where the Messenger was printed each week, Thompson took the proofs away in his pocket, so as to be sure that the poem would not appear before his magazine came out with it. One day when Thompson, Child, and Dick Heath, a sub-editor, were lounging in the office of the Whig, the latter said:

Over went stool and easel as the young man sprang to his feet, as if from an electric shock. Red as the red, red leaves strewn about him flushed the handsome face, and brighter than the crystal rays of sunshine glowed his proud-looking eyes down into responsive ones brighter yet, while he clasped the lope he does not. Good-by. No! Behands, both hands, that had shaken the jatrice is looking this way. Be patient, bough overhead, sending earthward the fluttering me-singers of mischief.

"I so wanted to see you!" he breathed, thrilling at the trustful glance of those pure eves.

And I so wanted to see you, but-Raymond!

He was a privileged character, this athletic, handsome-laced young fellow, all soul, all art, all love, for they were affianced, yet her tones were a tender reproach, a mock serious mandate, as his eager lips came a triffe dangerously near sweeping her velvety cheek. She had managed to shrink back and disengage her hand, and with the tip of one pearly pink finger she pointed back the way she had come.

There was a roguish twinkle in her eye, as Rayn ond Marshall stole a quick glance in the direction indicated. He frowned and groaned, dolefully but submissively.

His visitor had not come unattended. Back in the grove, a girl of her own age was toying with the rattling tops of the blanched golden rod.

"was it necessary," he began, and then he uttered, quite testily: "Always that girl!"

"Baymond! how dare you?" came the sprited interpolation; and Miss Edna Beane showed the fire of her quick nature in a sudden, indignent flash of those captivating eyes. "Beatrice Mercer is my friend.

"I wish she wasn't. Of all your associates I distrust her the most," ventured Raymond Mars sall.

You ought to be ashamed!" commented Miss Tyrant, severely. "and you cught to feel grateful to her, instead of otherwise. "Grateful?"

Yes; that is if you really care about seeing me. You know the rules of the seminary. No young lady may leave its sacred precincts unless accompanied by one of the teachers. Poor Beatrice has to teach for her tuition, and they invest-her with the dignity and judgment of a duenna. So, when I told Miss Chandler, the principal, that I had the headache, that I thought I spied you so onesome and industrious over here, and felt that the encouragement of my criticism on your beautiful picture might hurry up its completion, she re-lu tantiy admitted that such a proceeding would be quite proper if Beatrice accompanied me.

Raymond Marshall winced at the thrust at his indolence. He brightened up, ho vever, as he said:

She was gone as she had come, like a flashing, dainty sprite. Raymond Marshall followed her with his eyes, until the bushes shut out the remotest view of her pretty, nodding cap.

"Picture!" he murmured, with a sigh, as he pa ked up stool and easel. "Who could paint with such a face haunting every glance and thought? And she bids me wait! Wait, to be tortured every time I see her in the company of that fellow Brinsley, or making a confidante of Beatrice Mercer. How I distrust her!

Yes, Miss Beatrice Morcer was a thorn in the artist's side. Why, he could scarcely explain. She was pretty, young, apparently devoted to his fiancee, but more than once he had caught her eyes fixed on Edna with a latent, baleful light, upon himself with a passionate, pleading expression that mystified, repulsed him, he knew not why.

But all this would soon end; ah, yes! it must soon end. The mystery of his fiancee must some time cease to be a mystery. It was not an unusual case. It would probably have a very prosaic conclusion, with the long-lost father returning, and explaining that he had placed his daughter in Miss Chandler's charge because she was motherless.

Then they would marry, and life would be worth living, and all the distressing trifles of the present would vanish. It must be so. Edna had predicted that word must soon come from her mysterious relative.

Her faith as hopeful as his own, Edna locked her arm through that of her companion, and did most of the chattering the way back to the seminary.

Miss Mercer went straight to her own room. If Edna hal s.en her as she threw herself on her bed and lay convulsed in a paroxysm of tears, rage, and emotion for over an hour, she might not vainly have guessed at the cause of the varying moois of this strange creature. As to Edna, she studied for an hour and started to find her friend again, thinking of Raymond's handsome face desp.te herself, and Eaymond's anxious wish that the obstacles to their union were removed-that "word would come," and the suspense of waiting be allevi-

Her somber companion helped her into the carriage, and the wheels grinding down the soft road seemed to be tearing her very heart-strings, as Hopedale faded from view in the distance and the vehicle bounded forward, carrying innocent Edna Deane to meet a strange, solemn mystery.

With locked doors and shades drawn, Beatrice Mercer sat at a table in her apartment, poring over a letter, studying it, analyzing it, re-reading it.

Star Stones.

The asterias or star stones are among the most wonderful productions of the mineral kingdom. They are corundums; the star saphire being a grayish blue; the star ruby, bright red, the star topaz, a straw yellow. The star appearance in the stone is caused, according to some mineralists, by a foreign substance in the gem; others say it is due to peculiarities of crystalization. Whatever it may be, advantage is taken of it by the lapidary, who cuts the stone in the shape of a dome, beginning at the center of the star and making the points radiate to the circumference. The stone has six points, and as the light plays on the surface of the stone the bright lines of the star change with the position of the gem and produce a singularly beautiful effect. These stones are very valuable, the best specimens, being, it is said, worth as much as diamonds of the same weight. Burton, the great oriental traveler, had a star saphire which he always carried on his person, and in the heart of Arabia or the deserts of Africa, the sight of this wonderfulgem always inspired a respect that was akin to reverence. The wild Arabs and Negroes would gaze at the stone, then at its possessor, and, concluding that he had a talisman of unexampled power, would render him all possible assistance for men. Undoubtedly they are drowned.

THE low price of wheat which has prevailed this year has had the effect of materially decreasing the area seeded to that cereal in this State. According to the Michigan crop report the decrease in the acreage seeded this fall amounts to 5 per cent. in the entire State. With an average crop this decrease will amount to nearly a million and a half bushels in next year's crop. The condition of growing wheat averages 87 per cent. compared with the vitality and grow h of average years. Nearly 80 per cent. of the crop correspondents in the southern counties of the State report injury to wheat by insects. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in October is 2, 66,965. At thirteen elevators and mills no wheat was marketed during the month. Du ing August, September, and Cctober 5,441.317 bushels were marketed, which is 69,150 bushels more than was marketed in the same months last year. The corn crop is considerably below the average, the estimate. being forty-nine bushels an acre for the State. The average yield of clover an acre was 90-110 bushels. The potato crop is estimated at 59 per cent. of an average crop.

Never since the civil service law went into effect has any reform proposition called forth so-great number of local supporters and antagonists as has the proposition to make employes of the government printing office more secure in their position by giving the civil service commission full legal control of the conditions upon the makeup of the force depends. Naturally the majority of those now employed in the great building favor anything that looks like an extension of the term place their autographs on Uncle Samuel's pay rolls. Quite as many are there on the outside who want, to return to they places which the occupied prior to the incoming of this administration. Between the two classes there can be no harmony, no oneness of sentiment. There are those, however, who have no personal interest either in the government printing office as an establishment, or in its employes, and some of these have taken up the banner of-civil service reform, and propose to wave it persistently before the eyes of President Harrison until he fixes their standard to the halyards of the government printing office flag staff. Among these philanthropists here now seems to be satisfying impression that the President will shortly accede to their wishes, although up to the present time the chief executive has made them no promise.

There is not believed to be the probablity that any of the numerous "popgun" tariff bills that were sent over to the senate by the house at the last session will be considered by the senate at this session. WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. - President Harrison is doing no talking through the press, but he takes a deep interest and an active part in the consideration of the future plans of the republican party. He has been receiving calls ing both papers for the price of our from men more or less prominent in the party since the election, and his talks with them have tended to encourage them to activity in the work of organizing and strengthening the party. There has been no despondency in what he has said and he wastes no time in vain regrets, but is earnest in the feeling that more than ever there is need for compactness and unity of purpose in the party. It is evidently his feeling that the party should show no weakening in the presence of defeat and should lose as little time as possible in strengthening the party organization. The discussion of the reorganization in the sense, not of change of principle or policy, but of perfecting the management and methods, has already been taken up seriously by leading republicans, and correspondence looking to the strengthening of the organization has already begun. A permanent organization, with workers who will keep up the work all the year around and every year, instead of trying to do the work of four years in the few months before a presidential election, is what is aimed at. There is some difference of opinion among republicans as to the policy to be followed, but the idea seems to prevail that the "force bill" question must be forever put aside and that there
