BAYARD IS HONORED.

GOES TO THE COURT OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Maxwell's Method of Making Vacancies—Lord Leslie Commits Suicide at St. Louis—Stealing in the Dominion Postal Service—French Ministry Resigns.

Nominated by the President.

The nominations sent to the Senate on Thursday by President Cleveland are as follows:

Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britain; James D. Porter, of Tennessee, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Chili; James A. McKenzie, of Kentucky, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Guatemala and Honduras; Edwin Dun, of Ohio, now Secretary of Legation at Japan, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Japan; John M. Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior (vice Cyrus Bussey, resigned); Lawrence Maxwell, Jr., of Ohio, to be Solicitor General (vice Charles H. Aldrich, resigned); John L. Hall, of Georgia, to be Assistant Attorney General (vice George H. Shields, resigned); To be Consuls of the United States—L. M. Shaffer, of West Virginia, to Stratford, Ont.; Harrison R. Williams, of Missouri, to Vera Cruz; M. P. Pendleton, of Maine, to Pictou; Theodore M. Stephan, of Illinois, to Annaberg; William T. Townes, of Virginia, to Rio de Janeiro; Claude McKee, of Ohio, to Bradford; Newton R. Eustis, of Louisiana, to be Second Secretary of the Legation of the United States at Paris.

Headman Maxwell's Victims.

On Thursday, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Maxwell appointed 188 fourth-class postmasters, and of this number eighty-five were to fill vacancies caused by removals. The largest number appointed from any one State was forty-five in Indiana, which involved eleven removals. In Kentucky there were twenty-four appointments and six removals. In Vermont there were twenty appointments and ten removals. In West Virginia fourteen appointments and eleven removals, and in Wisconsin ten appointments and five removals.

BREVITIES.

There is a possibility that the knitting mills of the Dominion will form a combination.

The date for the reciprocity convention to be held in St. Paul, Minn., has been fixed for June 5 and 6.

The shoe house of A. Lyons at Pine Bluff, Ark., was closed. Liabilities, $25,000; assets about the same.

MATRICIDE LATIMER'S escape from the jail at Jackson, Mich., is likely to lead to the restoration of the death penalty.

SIX of the largest typewriter companies in the country are reported to be forming a combine with a capital stock of $20,000,000.

The Western Union has purchased the Edison Mutual Telegraph Line, having headquarters at Fort Wayne and now operated by the Postal Company.

FRIENDS of Senators Hill and Murphy are reported to have secured a controlling interest in the Albany Argus, which has heretofore been a strong Cleveland paper.

The French Ministry, after service of only eleven weeks, has again resigned, because the Chamber of Deputies insisted on heavier taxation of the liquor interest.

The Minnesota Senate adopted a set of resolutions, presented by Senator Donnelly, providing for a national convention to formulate plans to throttle the coal combine.

SAMUEL CROSBY, a Newport (Ky.) awning-maker, blew the top of his wife's head off Wednesday night with a shotgun. No cause is assigned for the deed. Crosby is under arrest.

A SERIOUS land slide on the Great Northern coast line, a short distance north of Edmonds, Wash., killed Robert Baker and seriously injured Charles Rode and Frank Kelly.

The Governor of Pennsylvania has issued the death warrant of Pietro Bucieri, an Italian, who murdered his nurse, a Sister of Mercy, in a hospital at Reading. He will be hanged June 1.

MISS ALICE B. GOODLEY, of Philadelphia, has begun suit for $50,000 for breach of promise against Samuel L. Clayton, who married Miss Partridge, daughter of the Chicago grain operator.

An old man arrested for begging in St. Paul was found to have bank books and certificates of deposit on New York banks to the amount of over $20,000, besides several hundred dollars in cash.

The Board of Pardons of Pennsylvania has recommended pardons for "Abe" Buzzard, the Welsh mountain outlaw, and James S. Dungan, the wrecker of the Bank of America, Philadelphia.

MESSRS. BOURGE and CHAFFEX, respectively, the Chief Accountant and the Postal Clerk of the Northwest Government, have been suspended. It is understood that their delinquencies amount to thousands of dollars, and there are intimations that others are involved.

LORD LESLIE, who until Wednesday was an accountant on a St. Louis paper, his title being unknown there, committed suicide by jumping into the Mississippi. He was the last of the house of Leslie, which dates from 1646. He had been a scapegrace for years, being involved in one scandal after another.

EASTERN.

EX-UNITED STATES SENATOR HENRY L. DAWES was given a dinner and reception at Boston by his friends, who presented him with a substantial certificate of deposit as a testimonial of their regard.

THE New York Times is reported to have been sold for $950,000 to a syndicate headed by Charles B. Flint. Dr. Charles R. Miller, the present editor; Governor Flower and H. Walter Webb are also interested.

GEORGE H. GALT, one of the best known men in the art world, of New York, died suddenly at his studio in the Association Hall Building. He was English by birth; but had dwelt in that city many years.

FOUR THOUSAND Irishmen of New York and sympathizers with the home-rule measure of Gladstone assembled in mass meeting and adopted resolutions endorsing Mr. Gladstone's struggle. Lurke Cockran made an able address.

THE Elm Park Methodist-Episcopal Church, of Scranton, Pa., which was partially destroyed by fire Dec. 3 last, at a loss of $100,000, and which had been almost reconstructed, was again burned. The structure is now a complete ruin, nothing standing of the walls but the tower. The estimated loss will reach fully $125,000, on which there is $30,000 insurance. It is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

ELLIOTT F. SHEPARD, editor of the New York Mail and Express, died suddenly at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at his home, 2 West 52d street. The death of Col. Shepard followed the administration of ether by Dr. Charles McBurney and the family physician, Dr. J. W. McLane, who were about to make an examination to ascertain whether the Colonel's suspicion that he suffered from stone in the bladder was correct.

Elliott Fitch Shepard was born in Jamestown, Chautauque County, N. Y., July 23, 1853. He was educated at the University of the City of New York, admitted to the bar in 1883, and for many years practiced in New York City. In 1881 and 1882 he was aid-camp on the staff of Governor Edwin D. Morgan, was in command of the depot of volunteers at Elmira, N. Y., and aided in organizing and forwarding to the field nearly 30,000 troops. He was instrumental in raising the Fifty-first New York Regiment, which was named for him the Shepard Rifles. He was the founder of the New York State Bar Association in 1876, which has formed the model for the organization of similar associations in other States. In March 1888, he purchased the New York Mail and Express, which he has since conducted. Col. Shepard has been conspicuous of late by his vigorous opposition to the Sunday opening of the World's Fair.

WESTERN.

JAMES COSGROVE shot and killed his wife at Butte, Mont., and then committed suicide.

THE Rev. Dr. William Bliss Ashley, who was the oldest clergyman at Milwaukee, is dead.

JAMES SOERGER, was found guilty of manslaughter at New Albany, Ind., and sentenced to five years.

COLONEL CORBIN of the Fourth Infantry, an Illinoisan, will be appointed to succeed General Carr.

SCHWEINFURTH, the Rockford logus messiah, it is reported, is soon to move his "heaven" to Aspen, Colo.

MILWAUKEE intends to investigate the recent fires, with a Grand Jury, which will convene in May.

T. O. SMITH, of Watkins, Ohio, was given drugged whisky and robbed. He died from the effects of the drug.

SNEDICOR & HALAWA, manufacturers of boots and shoes at Detroit, were burned out. The loss is $150,000.

A MAN named Lewis, who has been identified as one of the Wharton robbers, has been arrested in Osage County, Missouri.

SCULPTOR RUPERT SCHMID, of San Francisco, has been awarded the contract to model a bronze group of figures representing Pocahontas saving the life of John Smith. The expense will be $15,000, to be paid for by the descendants of the Captain.

FRED S. TURTLE, of Omaha, has been arrested at Sioux City for embezzling $200 from D. Appleton & Co., of New York, for whom he was a collector, and for forging orders and embezzling money from the Century Publishing Company. He will be prosecuted in both cases.

AT Geneva, Ill., the jury in the Vera Ava case brought in a verdict of guilty, as charged in the indictment, and fixed the penalty at two years in the penitentiary. A motion for a new trial was overruled, and Vera Ava asked to be taken to jail at once. Her attorneys will appeal to the Supreme Court.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., police arrested Joseph Pigg, who is charged with murder by the Coroner. The other morning a four-months-old child of his step-mother was found dead. The son is said to have given it a dose of medicine the night before its death, and it is said he was seen to do so by several children.

JOHN F. MAJORS, of Nebraska, representing the General Land Office, has arrived from Roswell, N. M., where he has been engaged for ten days past investigating the accounts of the missing receiver, Frank Lesnet. He employed an expert to open the safe and found that the shortage was between $10,000 and $11,000.

THE Fearless reached San Diego after a cruise of over five thousand miles in search of the burning ship Hronesfeld, a coaler, from Liverpool for San Francisco. The cruise extended over twenty-four days. Strong gales were encountered nearly all the time and nothing was sighted from the time the tug left San Diego till it returned.

TWO DESPERADOES held up the officers of the Caney Valley Bank at Caney, Kan., in broad daylight Monday afternoon and rifled the vault of $2,500. While they were at work seven business men came in to make deposits and were made to stand in line with their hands up while the outlaws secured the cash and made their escape. The robbers were Henry Starr, a half-breed Indian, and Ed Newcomb.

THREE young men were drowned Sunday morning at the dam at the head of Marietta Island, at Marietta, Ohio. The victims were: Frank Ackerson, aged 20; George Dow, aged 24; and Harry Dow, aged 15. They were attempting to shoot the swift water and go above when their boat capsized. All were good swimmers and made a heroic effort in the cold, swift water to save themselves. The Dow boys were the sons of Capt. David Dow.

LATIMER, the Jackson, Mich., escaped convict, is caught. He was run down at Jerome, on the Cincinnati, Jackson and Mackinaw Railroad, at sundown Tuesday evening. He was taken to Jackson, heavily guarded, across the country in a wagon. The prison officials awaited him with extra guards, all heavily armed. The patrolmen on the streets were notified, and the Sheriff had a posse out. There were grave fears that no official force could control the fury of the mob which awaited him. Jerome is a small village, and reports were meager in details, but the word was received that Latimer is fully identified by his prison number, 4578, on his clothing. Two thousand people waited to welcome him.

SOUTHERN.

WADE HAINES, colored, who was to hang at Columbia, S. C., for the murder of Miss Hornsby, a white girl, was relieved for a month. Public opinion is much divided as to Haines' guilt.

FRANCIS M. BROWN, a Maryland millionaire, was murdered and his body thrown into a well. His skull had been fractured and his throat cut. Robbery was the incentive. A negro has been arrested for the deed.

AN end has been put to the heavy car robberies suffered at Paris, Texas, by the Santa Fe and Frisco lines. The other night W. D. Nelson, a guard, saw two thieves leaving a car and, failing to halt them, fired, killing Les Stephenson, a negro.

TUESDAY afternoon, at Sewanee, Tenn., occurred the death of Gen. E. Kirby Smith, the last survivor of the Confederate leaders bearing the full rank of General. For seventeen years he had been Professor of Mathematics at the Southern University. He was 69 years old.

CARROLLTON, Ga., was in a state of panic the other day owing to the riotous actions of eleven masked and armed men. The men assaulted a woman and then knocked down an old man of 80 years who tried to stop them. They whipped one woman and then whipped a man who ventured to protest so severely that it is believed that he will die. After that they whipped another man and brutally knocked down and kicked a woman 70 years old.

JEANNETTE HAMMOND is a prisoner in Atlanta, Ga. The charge against her is that she is an accomplice of Louis Redwine, who robbed the Gate City National Bank, and that she has now in her possession $35,000 of the stolen money. She is addicted to the use of opium and whisky and has been talking too freely. Lem Harris, a negro aged 18, is also in custody as being involved with Mrs. Hammond and Redwine. The woman denies that she has any of the stolen cash.

THE Nashville, Tenn., Bank of Commerce made an assignment Monday, and the Merchants' Savings Bank also closed its doors, though it is said the latter will resume business in a few days. The assets and liabilities of the Bank of Commerce are each reported to be approximately $97,700. After the failure of the Commercial National Saturday, runs were inaugurated upon every bank in the city, and the officials immediately drew upon their correspondents by wire, so that by Monday morning over $2,000,000 in currency had been received to stem the tide. All were successful except the two named above. It is thought no loss will result.

WASHINGTON.

AN official inquiry is to be made into the sanity of Col. William B. Remey, ex-Judge Advocate General of the Navy.

SECRETARY HOKE SMITH on Friday rendered his first land decision. It was the case of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, and the Secretary holds that the company had acquired no title to the lands in question under its grant. This decision operates to open many thousands of acres in Southern California to settlement and entry. The Commissioner of the General Land Office is accordingly directed to take such steps as may be necessary to restore them to the public domain.

The President on Monday sent the following nominations to the Senate:

Felix A. Reeve, of Tennessee, to be Solicitor of the Treasury; William H. Seaman, of Wisconsin, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Wisconsin; Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico, to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico; To be Attorneys of the United States: George J. Denis, of California, for the Southern District of California; Joseph S. James, of Georgia, for the Northern District of Georgia; William L. Cary, of Georgia, for the Southern District of Georgia; To be Marshals of the Southern District of Georgia: James Blackburn, of Kentucky, for the District of Kentucky; Samuel T. Fisher, of Massachusetts, to be Assistant Commissioner of Patents; Robert E. Wilson, of Mississippi, to be Registrar of the Land Office at Jackson, Miss.; Francisco Estudillo of California, to be Agent for the Indians of the Mission Tale River (consolidated); Agency in California; Samuel F. Morse of Indiana, to be Consul General of the United States at Paris; C. W. Chancellor of the United States at Paris; To be Consul at Glasgow: George F. Parker of New York; to be Consul at Birmingham: Seaton Norman of Indiana, to be Assistant Surgeon in the Marine Hospital at Seattle.

THERE will be an extra session of Congress and it will convene some time in September. There need be no doubt about this, for the President has so declined and made his decision known to a Senator from whom a Washington correspondent received the information Monday. The President may, says the correspondent, of course, change his mind, but that is so rare an act for him to perform as to make its possibility unworthy of consideration. The President shortly before the inauguration had some thoughts of calling an extra session for April or May, but he has concluded that September will be the earliest time consistent with several necessary considerations, and so September has been decided upon. Congress cannot be restricted to any special business, like several State Legislatures. When in session it has power to consider whatever may please its fancy, but it is understood that the President in his message will dwell upon two subjects only—the tariff and the currency. One of the President's reasons for not calling an extra session earlier is his desire that a tariff bill of such a character as to suit the leaders of the Democratic party in Congress, as well as himself, shall be completed ready for the immediate consideration of Congress upon convening. It might be possible for old, experienced hands to frame a bill earlier, but President Cleveland intends that this bill shall be one of extraordinary character.

FOREIGN.

THE Turkish Government has denied that there were any anti-Christian riots in Casarea and other cities of Asia Minor.

IN Berlin a test was made of the cloth cuirass and it proved impenetrable by small-caliber bullets. The cloth is prepared chemically by a secret process.

ANARCHIST MATHIEU, Ravachol's alleged accomplice in the explosions of a year since, has been identified. He was arrested for robbery, and in his shoes were found papers connecting him with anarchistic plots.

A GREAT sensation has been caused in London sporting circles by the inexplicable disappearance of the famous racer and winner of the Waterloo cup, Fullerton. The horse was taken from the stable of Colonel North at Eltham on Saturday.

J. W. HOBBS and H. Granville Wright, charged with frauds in connection with the failure of the Liberator Building Society at London, have been sentenced to twelve years' penal servitude each. George Newman was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

IN GENERAL.

UNCLE SAM'S new cruiser New York is the fastest armored vessel in the world, having developed a speed of twenty nautical miles an hour on her trial trip.

AN application for a receiver and an accounting has been made by minority stockholders of the Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern Railroad, alleging fraud by the Northern Pacific.

THE barge Equator, which was lost off Fenwick Islands light, was commanded by Capt. John Feehan, of Philadelphia, who, together with three colored men shipped in Richmond, was lost. The hawser parted during a storm, and the vessel drifted on to the shoals surrounding the islands. The tug was unable to render any assistance.

R. G. DUN & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The volume of trade is well maintained, and manufacturers are better employed, with some increase of demand where increase was most needed, and every indication that people do not yet begin to think of reducing purchases. The Treasury has been gaining gold in spite of exports of $500,000, and some exports expected, but in view of the enormous excess of imports since January 1st, it is scarcely reasonable to hope that further outgoes are to be avoided. The stringency in money markets is largely due to slow collections, which appear to result rather from severe weather than from any form of commercial unsoundness. The business failures occurring throughout the country number 243, as compared with the totals of 220 the previous week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 231.

BIG TANGLE IN WHISKY.

FORGERY OF THOUSANDS IN WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

Costly Incendiary Blazes—Killed His Wife Without Cause—A Son of a Duke Elope—An Aged Mother Pleads for Her Son's Life.

Looks Bad for a Louisvilleian.

DEVELOPMENTS at Louisville, Ky., seemed to prove to those who have made the examination that the whisky warehouse receipts now held by various local banks as collateral for loans to A. R. Sutton are forgeries. The amount involved is between $120,000 to $150,000. This covers only Louisville banks. It is claimed now that Sutton scattered these bogus receipts all over the country. His method was to send them to his agents and have them negotiate loans with the banks of their respective cities. Notwithstanding these startling disclosures Sutton still remains in town and has not been arrested. He has made no attempt to flee, but on the contrary has put on a bold front. He met a committee of bankers and remained closeted with them nearly all night. He claims that his assets are between $500,000 and $700,000, and this statement is borne out by the books, which were examined by experts. After the meeting detectives shadowed Sutton to keep him from leaving the city. He is still under surveillance, but no steps have been taken to cause his arrest.

THE Plug Manufacturers' Trade-Mark Association, in session at Louisville, Ky., re-elected the old officers and Executive Committee for the ensuing year.

F. EWING DENT, a salesman for J. H. North & Co., furniture dealers in Kansas City, has disappeared. He has a brother in Chicago connected with the firm of Dent & Doggett.

PETER W. PERSON, an Omaha lawyer, was murdered in his bed, in his stable office. An employee, who is now missing, is suspected, and "Dick" Gifford, one of Person's chums, is under arrest for complicity.

A WELL-DRESSED man demanded an immediate interview with President Carnot at the Elysee. The janitor questioned him, and he replied he was a son of Joan of Arc, and has been divinely directed to come to Paris to be appointed King of Dahomey, in order to civilize darkest Africa. He was taken to a lunatic asylum.

FORGED drafts for $10,000 on the First National Bank and another for $500 on the City National Bank of Gloucester, Mass., have been received by those institutions. The drafts came from the First National Bank of San Francisco and are signed "Allen L. McDonald." The person signing them is under arrest in San Francisco awaiting information from Gloucester.

A FIRE at Llano, Tex., destroyed property to the value of $55,000, with $20,000 insurance. The losers are: W. A. H. Miller, building, $22,000; B. H. Lauderdale, building, $12,000; B. Yates, drug store, $10,000; H. W. McGhee, bar, $7,500; Dr. C. F. Darnall, office and household, $2,000; C. R. Porter, household, $1,000. The fire was incendiary.

The most costly and luxurious train of cars that has ever crossed this continent left New York at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. It is composed of six elegant Wagner coaches, and it will carry Dr. W. Seward Webb, his family, and a few invited guests to the Pacific coast and back. This train constitutes a perfectly equipped hotel on wheels, with an uncommon supply of the comforts of a home.

A ROMANCE reached its climax at Kansas City, when William J. Thompson, who is the son of the Duke of Gloucester, owner of the racing track at Gloucester, N. Y., and Miss Joll, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married. The newly married people went to the Indian Territory, which they will make their home, where young Thompson is the treasurer of the Pioneer Lead and Zinc Mining Company.

EDWARD STERRETT, an Auburn (Neb.) physician, shot his wife and killed himself. Mrs. Sterrett left her husband without assigning any reason. He met her on the street, and without saying a word drew a revolver and grasping his wife by the throat forced her weapon into her mouth and fired. He then turned the revolver upon himself. The woman is fatally wounded. There is no explanation known.

MRS. MARY POLINITZ, the mother of Dr. Polinitz, sentenced to be hanged on May 5, has appealed to the Governor of Georgia for the pardon of her son. She is more than 80 years old and made a piteous appeal for clemency, asking the Governor to let her go down to the grave without experiencing the disgrace of the execution of her son. She lives in Marengo County, Alabama. The family is one of noble birth. The father of Dr. Polinitz was forced to fly from Germany in the revolution of 1848.

PRINCE BISMARCK is reported to be falling rapidly. His principal troubles are insomnia and neuralgia.

JOHN J. RHODES, of coal-combine celebrity, was arrested at St. Paul for perjury. This is the first crushing step of the investigation.

stood Up For the Badge.

ANY were the trilling episodes and adventures of the great war which fell in fascinating recitals from the lips of General Sherman. but they are either recorded in the pages of his autobiography or too long and discursive to set down here. One little flash of humor, perhaps, worth preserving from all the war talk which we enjoyed.

General Thomas, said he, "junior in rank, but senior in service, was a stern disciplinarian. He had received many complaints about the pillaging and plundering committed by his brigades, and, being reprimanded for this offense down, he issued some very strict orders, menning with death any one who should aggress. The brigade in question was for its badge an acorn, in silver gold, and the men were inordinately proud of this distinctive sign. Several cases of disobedience had been reported to the general, but the evidence was never strong enough for decisive action, until one day, riding with an army down a by-lane outside the city, Thomas came full upon an Irishman, who, having laid down his rifle, which he had killed a hog, was engaged in skinning the animal with his sword bayonet, so as to make work with the bristles, etc., being cooking some pork chops.

"Ah, cried the General 'you rascal, I have caught one of you in the act. There is no mistake about it this time, and I will make an example of you."

"Dear General, honey!" said the Irishman, straightening himself up and saluting, "it's not shooting that you ought to be at, but reprimanding me."

"What do you mean, sir?" exclaimed General Thomas.

"Why, your Honor," the soldier replied, "this bad baste had just been reprimanded by the regimental badge, and was forced to dispatch him. It's the acorns I found him at!"

General Thomas was obliged to laugh at this, and the soldier saved his life by his wit.—London Telegraph.

Obedient Military Orders.

The story is told in a French newspaper of Pierre Barlat, a poor laborer living at Sevres, near Paris, with his wife Jeanne and their three children. Industrious, frugal, knowing the way to the wine-shop, he saved all his spare money, and at last bought a tiny cottage in which they lived. It was a tiny cottage, indeed, of stones, with tiled roof, and a small garden, and covered with clematis. It always attracted the eye of a passer-by, on the left, as he crossed the bridge.

Pierre and Jeanne worked and saved until the little cottage was paid for, and made a feast of it all done, to celebrate their achievement. A landed proprietor, to be sure, does not mind an occasional excursion to entertain his friends.

One day Pierre and Jeanne had a quarrel just before the war of 1870 broke out. The quarrel was about Pierre, who, more than an old soldier and belonged to the reserves. A gunner he had been famous for his skill in hitting a target with a shell.

When the Germans had fallen into the hands of the French, the French guns were pointed away at them from the Mont Valerien. Pierre Barlat was at that fort, and one morning he was standing by his gun, when the commander, came up to him and held his field glass at the Sevres bridge.

"Pierre," he said sharply, without looking at him, "answered Pierre, respectfully, 'yes, sir.'"

"You see the Sevres bridge over there very well, sir," said the commander, "and that little cottage there, at the foot of the hill?"

recovering himself. "It was my house—everything I had in the world!"

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

AN INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE LESSON.

Reflections of an Elevating Character—Wholesome Food for Thought—Studying the Scriptural Lesson Intelligently and Profitably.

Affliction Sanctified. The lesson for Sunday, April 9th, may be found in Job v. 17-27.

INTRODUCTORY. No matter when Job was written, or by whom. It is a present day transcript of the deepest experiences of the human heart, and it is dictated in very truth for us by the Holy Spirit. The lesson of it lies at a lower depth than some of us have been imagining. It is trusting God in the dark. Job is brought to see that, even though he be surrounded by blanketed mystery, even though he can see no personal advantage in righteousness, still for God's own sake and for goodness sake it pays to be righteous, to be good. Precisely there where he lost sight of self ("I abhor myself") and saw only God, his captivity was turned. So was yours. "Unto the upright there ariseth a light in darkness."

POINTS IN THE LESSON. "Happy" is good, but blessed is better. The same word is used at Psalm l. 1 ("Blessed is the man"). It is not easy to be happy under correction, and yet one can feel himself blest. The expression "despise not then the chastening of the Almighty," is a picturesque one. Literally it is reject or refuse not the binding or instruction, and its original reference seems to be to the taming of animals for service. The horse that keeps spurning the bit, the ox that kicks against the pricks, each is conceived of as missing its best estate and bringing added evil on itself. The man who most readily receives God's discipline and profits thereby is the supremely wise man.

Have you gotten to the seventh trouble? You never will. The man who abides with God through six troubles will not know it as trouble when it comes to the seventh. Delivered six times, he has reached a stage which is patience, if not perfection, and there the evil scarcely touches him, or as the Hebrew has it, reaches him. He is beyond it. Brother, sister, do you know this haven calm?

What is God but "strength and Redeemer"? He loves to deliver, he loves to redeem, which is something more. The ordinary ills of life are but methods of trial and means of glorification. Is it famine? Is it opportunity? Is it war? Is it opportunity? Is it worse still, gossip and libel? Still it is opportunity. Hold on to God. Or rather let his hand hold "in the hollow."

HINTS AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

Let us be careful. The tendency used to be to take everything said by these comforters of Job as "gospel truth." On the other hand, the trend of critical thought seems to be now toward a large if not total disparagement. They are, forsooth, all wrong. There is no occasion for such wholesale reflection. Honor the truth wherever you see it. Pease Job came to a clearer conclusion at last is no ground for saying that all that went before was false. It was rather truth, and if not "the whole truth" was coming at the whole truth, and was undoubtedly "nothing but the truth." So esteem the words of Eliphaz here. He is from first to last speaking God's truth. The implied deductions of their censorious attitude toward Job in individual application may have been wrong, but in facts of existence they brought forward they were certainly not amiss. Job himself led out into the light on stepping-stones of truth thrown out by these men, though half unwittingly. Teacher, you need not apologize to-day. This is truth. If you can get up something better, be about it.

"Human nature being such as it is." Our friend was saying, "Human nature being such as it is, you can expect just so much as this from the ordinary church member; and then he went on to indicate the doubtful proceeds. "But how about the divine nature?" some one whispered to his neighbor—he ought to have spoken it out loud. Surely we are not to leave that out of the account; our brother does not, dare not. "Peter says we are made 'partakers of the divine nature.' If he is wrong about it, and we have not a bit of the divine nature given to us, then the writer, for one, throws up his commission. He has been misled; failure is certain. Somewhere we have read it: 'We wrestle not with flesh and blood, but with principalities and powers,' i. e., we are contending with Satan. What then? This: Set Jehovah, God, over against the adversary. Let the Lord fight for us. Here is the secret of endurance in trouble and affliction. 'If God be for us—who is he that is against us?'"

A Bull.

After the skirmish at Deep Bottom, Va., it was reported in New York that a certain non-commissioned officer of one of the Irish regiments had been mortally wounded. His wife, in her grief, sent a dispatch to Washington to her husband worded in this way:

DEAR MIKE—Are you dead or alive? If dead, send on the body. NOVA.

To which the commander of the man's company replied at once:

He's not dead but we'll send on his body.—Once a Week.

The California State Flower.

The State flower of California is the eschscholtzia or orange-colored California poppy, which has great beauty and individuality. It is exclusively a California flower and was so named after Dr. Eschscholtz, who made an exploration to this country in 1816. The flower is a smooth-stemmed annual, with finely cut, pale-green leaves, four brilliant orange petals of satiny texture, numerous stamens of the same shade, and a colorless, acrid juice. The two sepals are united into a cap, like a candle extinguisher, which is pushed upward and dropped off as the blossom expands.

There are several varieties, the largest and brightest being found in the valleys and foothills and the smaller and lighter-colored in the neighborhood of the sea-coast. One kind is spotless white. It often attains the height of nearly two feet.

Growth of Immigration.

From the birth of this nation up to 1820 not more than a quarter of a million immigrants landed on our shores. In the decade from 1820 to 1830 the number was only 143,439, and from 1830 to 1840 only 399,125. Then came the Irish famine and the beginning of the rush to America. From 1840 to 1850 the number of immigrants was 1,713,251, from 1850 to 1860 it was 2,579,589, from 1860 to 1870 it was 2,282,787, from 1870 to 1880 it was 2,812,161, and during the decade from 1880 to 1890 it jumped to the enormous figure of 5,246,613.

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS DOING.

An Impartial Record of the Work Accomplished by Those Who Make Our Laws—How the Time Has Been Occupied During the Past Week.

The Law-Makers. The war over church taxation is being fiercely waged in the Legislature, the Gluecklich bill providing for the taxation of the real estate exceeding $5,000 in value held by any one church society being the object of attack. A remonstrance containing 12,500 names was Friday presented in the Senate. This body passed a bill providing that one railroad company may sell and convey its property and franchises to another. The House Committee on Ways and Means reported favorably bills making appropriations of $283,117 for State institutions. The Ishpeming and Marquette charter bills passed both houses. The House Ways and Means Committee made favorable reports upon appropriation bills as follows: State Normal School, $90,000; Industrial School for Girls, $70,432; School for the Blind, $47,000; State Public School, $73,255; Home for Discharged Prisoners, $2,400. These appropriations are for the biennial period, 1893-94. A joint resolution was passed by the House providing for the release of a volume upon "Michigan and Its Resources," intended for circulation at the World's Fair. Bills to exempt sewing machines from executions and legalizing voting machines were also passed in the House.

The Senate Tuesday, after a spirited discussion, refused to pass the Brundage anti-railroad pass bill by a vote of 11 to 12, and as this is the second time the bill has failed it is now dead. The House Judiciary Committee reported out a substitute for the Gordon bill repealing the mortgage tax law of 1891, which consists of amendments to that law and contemplates taxation of bank stock and that of insurance companies and classifies all mortgages held by them as personal property subject to taxation.

The most important legislation Wednesday was the passage by the House of the bill amending the mortgage tax law of 1891. It has been found very defective in operation, and has been amended so as to tax all real estate mortgages held by banks and insurance companies. Under the 1891 law the amount of such securities was deducted from the capital stock, and in many cases these institutions wholly escaped taxation. Another bill passed was that providing for the optional use of the Rhines vote recorder at municipal elections. The Senate passed a bill re-establishing the Board of Control for the School for the Deaf, which was abolished by the Legislature of two years ago.

The House Thursday passed the Moody bill fixing the test of illuminating oil, making it 125 instead of 120 degrees, the Foster cup to be in use. The salary of the inspector is reduced from $1,500 to $1,200. The inspection fees are 25 cents per barrel of fifty-five gallons and 1 mill per gallon when inspected in tanks. The Senate adopted a resolution providing for a special committee of three from each house to make a searching investigation of affairs at the State Prison with reference to the management, the discipline, and the rules in general. Both branches adjourned until 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

They Go Far for Beauty's Sake.

There really seems to be no end to the queer things which are done by the women of other countries to make their faces conform to their own ideas of female beauty. But it remains for the Chinese to do something which we in our country would consider very barbarous and cruel indeed, and it is this: The Chinese do not admire small eyes, and to reach their standard of beauty a girl's eyes must be not only very large, but very long and brilliant. The eyes are easily made brilliant by putting certain drugs in them, but to make them long when nature has not intended to be so is quite another matter. To accomplish it the women have often recourse to a kind of home surgery which must be very painful. A Chinese mother who has a child affected with small eyes takes the child at the age of 10 or 12 and slits the eye-lid at the corner just where it joins the lower lid. A very small slit is made, and this is then left to heal. As soon as it is healed it is slit again. And this process is continued until the eyes appear very long and prominent.

The Cowboy's Wonderful Memory.

Of all the men in the world not accounted prodigies I think the cowboy's memory and intuition are the most marvelous, says a ranch owner. I have witnessed feats of memory performed by cowboys that appear preposterous when related. For instance, I was on a drive from the Texas Panhandle to the Indian Territory a few weeks ago with 7,000 cattle. Twelve men comprised my outfit. We had a couple of big stampedes, and after we got the frightened cattle rounded up, how do you suppose we were able to tell how many were missing? Every one of the twelve men was so thoroughly acquainted with the herd that any of them could, by getting on an elevation so as to get a clear sweep of the entire lot, tell exactly how many and the kind of stock we had missed in the round-up. Not only that, but he could pick out the stray cattle that had got mixed in our bunch without seeing the brand.

She Could Not Plow.

A story is told of a bashful young Georgia swain who called on his sweetheart to propose. Here is a sample of the conversation:

"Miss Addie, can you sweep the floor?" "Why, yes, of course I can." "Can you cook?" "Yes." "Can you wash?" "Yes, I can wash, too." "And scour?" "Yes." "Did you ever hoe?" "Sometimes." "Pick cotton?" "Yes, pick cotton also." "Well, can you cut wood?" "I have cut wood, too." "Can you plow?" "No, I can't plow." "Well, then, I can plow for both of us." He got her.—Atlanta Constitution.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

OCCURRENCES DURING THE PAST WEEK.

The Old Sailor Had the Cash—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage is Careless with His Money—Michigan's Health—Wheat is Damaged Slightly.

From Far and Near. STANDISH will build a $5,000 school. HERMAN RACKZEN was killed in a runaway at Grand Marais.

The project of extending the Toledo & South Haven railroad and widening the track to a standard gauge will not be carried out this season.

A DOZEN Poles at Menominee got into a row on the street. Knives were used. George Robitz, a young man, will probably die. Mike Pjitake is in jail.

ERNEST GODFREY, of Grand Rapids, aged 20, whose sister is trying to get him out of the army, will have to stay. The court refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus.

MAUDE CARR, a Webberville girl, tried to commit suicide by taking chloroform at Belding, where she is staying with her sister. A false lover is said to be the cause.

PETER KLEYENBERG, a young Hollander, living near Plainfield, was assaulted by a highwayman. Peter fought the fellow, and as a result has a bullet hole through his right hand.

AN Ithaca paper says that a certain citizen there "had his house consumed by fire." According to that phraseology, either the editor is guilty if libel or the citizen is guilty of arson.

NORTHVILLE'S Lecture Course Association has a balance of 76 cents in the treasury after this season's course. The associat on would have been short 90 cents, but there was a balance of $1.66 from last winter.

F. W. VIRGIES was arrested at Clayton. He is charged with fraudulently representing the Michigan Liquor Journal, published at Saginaw, and a myth concern which he is said to cull the Saloonists' Insurance Co.

In Michigan there are some complaints of wheat being damaged by freezing and thawing weather, but not to any great extent. The present conditions are, however, unfavorable for the crop. Millers have good trade in feed, but are piling up the flour.

THE body of Fred Hartman, since 1887 an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, at Grand Rapids, was found in the river there. From all appearances his body was in the water fully a week, although he was not missed at the institution. How he was drowned is not known.

A MT. PLEASANT editor lost a fine Jersey cow. So full of grief was he that he wrote an obituary, lauding the animal up to the skies. About the same time a minister died, and an envious contemporary chides the editor for devoting twice as much space to the cow as to the departed pastor.

REPORTS to the State Board of Health show neuralgia, rheumatism, influenza, bronchitis and tonsillitis, in order named, causing most sickness in Michigan the past week. Diphtheria was reported at 27 places, scarlet fever at 44, typhoid fever at 19, and measles at 30 places.

WOLF, the Ontonagon County murderer, tried to commit suicide the other day, according to the Oriental hari-kari style. With a penknife he made a cut two inches long and kept on digging until he penetrated the abdominal cavity. His injuries are frightful, but he may recover.

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE came near losing $2,000 at Grand Rapids. He stopped over between trains and, going to a hotel, carelessly threw his coat on a chair. When he left a package was found on the floor containing $2,000 in greenbacks. A messenger was sent to overtake Talmage on his way to the depot.

At Saginaw a sailor asked the C. S. & M. agent for a ticket. He said he didn't care where he went, but would take a ticket to Japan. When the agent couldn't accommodate him, the sailor said he'd take one to h—l or Detroit, as both were about the same. The agent hinted that probably the man didn't have any cash to pay his ticket. The old sailor threw down a purse containing $3.00, and got what he wanted.

LOUIS SCHILLING, one of the best-known business men in Kalamazoo, was found in his meat market with his throat cut. It was evidently murder, but the criminal escaped. Mr. Schilling had for nearly thirty years kept a meat market on Portage street and had a lucrative trade. At noon Walter Schilling, his son, went to dinner, leaving his father alone in the market. About 1 o'clock Wm. Servass, employed next door, went into the market, and, finding no one, went into the office at the rear. Here he found the body of Mr. Schilling lying on the floor. The body and floor were covered with the blood, yet warm, flowing from the wounds. The body was lying in a cramped position, as if having fallen from the high stool at the office desk, two feet from the stove, and the theory is that Mr. Schilling entered the office room to get warm, and was sitting on the stool facing the front of the market, the window opening into the market being the only one in the office. He had evidently just lighted his pipe when the assassin entered from behind, dealing him a blow on the top of his head, crushing his skull and rendering him unconscious. The fiend then finished his work by cutting the old man's throat, making the job doubly sure by cutting twice across the throat, making a ragged wound. The dead man's pocketbook, in which he commonly carried a considerable sum of money, was gone, but the money in the till was untouched. No knife or other weapon was found in the back-room. No clew to the murderer was found. Mr. Schilling was highly respected. He was 60 years of age and leaves a large family. A reward of $500 has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

H. S. Holmes is now the possessor of the Barthel store, having traded his property on the north side of Middle street for the same.

Died, Sunday, April 2d, at his home in Chelsea, John Mohr, aged about 75 years. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the M. E. church.

Miss Sarah McKune died, Tuesday, April 4th, at the home of her parents in this place. The funeral was held Thursday from St. Mary's church.

L. D. Loomis, while moving his household goods in Jackson, preparatory to coming to this place, had the misfortune to have the horses run away, smashing his piano and damaging other articles.

A certain schoolmarm has found a new and satisfactory way (to the scholars at least) of punishment. "When one of the girls misses a word, the boy spelling it correctly is permitted to kiss the girl. The boys are improving, but it is feared the girls will forget how to spell."

John Twamley, aged 85 years, died Sunday night, April 2d. Mr. Twamley was one of the early pioneers in this section, and purchased the farm on which he died, from the government. He was the father of four children, one of whom is dead. The funeral services were held at North Lake church Wednesday at 10:30 a.m., Rev. Mr. Pearce, of Dexter, officiating.

Edgar Williams, for a number of years an employe at the M. C. R. R. yards, at this place has accepted a position as station agent at Reece, on the Bay City Division of the M. C. R. R. Mr. Williams has made many friends during his stay here and while all are pleased to learn of his promotion, they regret to lose so good a citizen and neighbor as Mr. Williams has proven himself to be.

IF YOU CAN READ

and write, and are possessed of fair intelligence, you are fully qualified to make a grand success of what we offer. We have lately published at great expense and labor a perfect wonder in the way of an illustrated Gift Book, suitable to all classes, an ornament to any home, and at a price that brings it within the reach of all, even those of moderate means. Heretofore only those who indulged in luxuries have felt that they could afford a book of the class, as they are sold in book stores at $3.00 and upwards. The book which we offer is not in any way inferior to those above referred to, but is far superior to hundreds of books of this nature that are sold at prices exceeding ours by as enormous per cent. Its selling with a rush wherever shown. Agents have only to show the book and mention the price, and it sells on its merits without further talking. No better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but at all seasons of the year, for the reason that all will want it in their homes, and will have it as soon as they know the low price at which our agents can furnish them. Reader, if you need profitable employment, and a business in which you can and will take pride, as well as make money rapidly, do not fail to send for circulars containing private terms to agents, and full information, which will be sent FREE upon application. Old and new agents alike are making handsome salaries—yes, fortunes. Many of those who are making the best records are new at the agency business, having had no previous experience. Make a start—this is entirely new. No such terms have been offered agents as we now offer on this wonderful book. Special qualifications not necessary, for it sells everywhere. If you have at hand at some time been unsuccessful at the agency business, if so, there is every reason why you should try this, the PRINCE of gift books, as failure is impossible if you make a S. S. Teacher's Bible as your first sale. Write us at once, and we will send you the book, and order an outfit and go to work with push and energy. You may make the greatest mistake of your life, if you allow this GREAT OPPORTUNITY to pass unimproved.

PRACTICAL WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A Lesson in Street Car Etiquette Taught by a Boston Girl.

It was between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening, and the Tremont street car was crowded. A good many of the passengers were workmen, and those who were fortunate enough to have a seat, even if it was a very narrow one, seemed to lose half the pleasure of it in watching the door every time the car stopped. It reached Eliot street, however, without an invasion of the fair sex. Then five or six of them got on board. The majority of the new comers were young and pretty and of that type who seem to make a special study of the best methods for making the male patrons of street cars feel uneasy if they happen to be sitting.

One of the arrivals, however, was a motherly looking woman, whose every feature indicated that she had "a will of her own."

Several of the young girls had selected the seats they meant to have when they had ogled their present occupants out of them, and one young man with a careworn look, who knew he was a victim, but did not want to give up the battle, decided to compromise rather than acknowledge his defeat. He got up and offered his seat to the motherly looking woman.

Instead of quietly dropping into the vacancy, as is usual in such cases, the woman turned and said:

"No, thank you, sir. I am as well able to stand as you are. You had better keep your seat." Then, warning up to the subject, she continued: "I cannot understand this nonsense of giving up everything to women, as if they were poor, weak creatures, unable to stand. Here is a careful of men who have been working hard all day and want a rest on their way home, but they are supposed to give up their seats to a lot of young girls who have nothing to do but saunter through the stores all day long and have not foresight enough to go home before the cars become crowded. I think it simply ridiculous. It is a good while since I have been on a street car at this time of the day, and I propose, so far as I am concerned, to leave the seats to those who have the best right to them."

The young man looked confused, a number of the older men shook their heads approvingly, others looked on in wonder, and the girls for whose benefit the remarks were apparently made seemed undecided whether to giggle or pout. They cast longing glances at the vacant seat, but not one of them had the courage to drop into it.

The car stopped. A young woman got on board. She looked at the deep red cushion, then at the girls who were hanging on the straps, and seemed unable to understand it. A smile went around the car, and for several blocks there was a vacant seat in a crowded electric.—Boston Herald.

Reducing One's Size.

We have the authority of Edwin Checkley, physiculturist, that men wear corsets frequently when the increasing size of the body below the belt gives indications of what Checkley mildly calls "advancing maturity." But anybody may get rid of that accumulation of fat, which is a dead give away as to one's age, the physiculturist says. The fat gathers over the region about the waist because that part of the body gets no exercise.

The remedies proposed for taking away the fat deposits are: first, deep and slow breathing; second, working the muscles of the abdominal region in and out. As to the breathing, the fat person who would be thin must stand erect, place his hands upon the front of his body below the waist and breathe as long and deep breaths as possible, "filling the lungs to their lowest extremities." Then exhale the air slowly. Do this 10 minutes at a time, morning and evening, and several times a day if possible.—Exchange.

The Pit of Creus de Souci.

The wonderful pit of Creus de Souci in France is situated in a sheet of recent basalt on the south side of the Puy de Montchal. The opening is 82 feet in diameter and 38 feet deep, but at that depth a hole about 10 feet wide communicates with a hollow 70 feet deep, at the bottom of which is a stagnant pool overlaid with carbonic acid which forbids access to the water surface. The interior is a vast hollow, apparently formed in the basalt when semifluid by an explosion of volcanic gas. The temperature falls from 54 degrees Fahrenheit in the open air to 34 degrees near the water.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

New Light on Wolsey.

In a historical examination the following was written: Wolsey was a famous general who fought in the Crimean war, and who, after being decapitated several times, said to Cromwell, "Ah, if I had only served you as you have served me, I would not have been deserted in my old age."—Miss A. C. Graham in University Correspondent.

Off Montauk Point it was discovered that one of the middle chains was broken, and the better to repair it sail was taken in, and the Wanderer came to anchor.

Capt. Denham and every man on board the ship, with the exception of Fox and Frenault, believed that the break in the middle chain was the result of accident.

Capt. Fox and his Lieutenant arranged the accident in advance, and they even knew the point where it was to happen.

"The Wanderer needs overhauling, and I hope to be able to do so in New York," said Capt. Fox, coming down to the cabin where Ralph Denham was reading.

"How long will the break detain you?" asked Ralph, who was naturally anxious to report in advance of the time named in the Governor's order.

"It is worse than I at first supposed, but we shall be under way again early in the afternoon. The only way is to have patience."

"Patience is very essential to the sailor. But this is not a bad place to be imprisoned for a few extra hours," said Ralph, looking admiringly about the luxurious cabin.

"Consider it all yours, my dear Capt. Denham. We shall have dinner in an hour, and if you feel like turning in after that, Don, nodding in the direction of the bright-looking cabin boy, "will show you to your cabin; by the way, it was occupied for a week by an Indian princess, the daughter of the King of Oude."

"That certainly will not be an objection," laughed Ralph, his thoughts going back to his own beautiful princess, to whom, he felt very confident, all the rest of the world could not produce an equal.

It was the custom in this era, on land and sea, when the elements permitted, to dine at high noon.

Promptly at 12, Don came to announce dinner. It was served in another cabin with plates for three.

At the table given on board the Wanderer, Ralph Denham was amazed at the lavish display of costly plate, and the extravagant libations of rare wines.

He then supposed that this was the grand effort of a great occasion; considerable then was his surprise at finding the cabin table as richly set as at the fete, while the dinner itself was such as the Governor of the province could not duplicate with all the resources of the city at his command.

"I am afraid," said Ralph Denham, when he, Fox and Frenault were seated at the board, that if I were to remain long with you, that I should be wholly unfitted for service on board a ship where the officers were forced to depend on their rations for subsistence, and their own small pay for luxuries."

"You would soon get used to it, and live it," said Captain Fox, refilling Ralph Denham's glass from a flagon, of which neither he nor Frenault tasted. "A sailor's life, at the best, is one of danger and privation, and my motto is to make the best of it. Thanks to my ancestors, I have a large estate in England, and the question with me, when I first got command of a ship, was, 'shall I let that property go on accumulating on shore till I retire, and am too old to enjoy it, or shall I spend a goodly portion of it for the enjoyment of myself and shipmates?' I decided on the latter course, and so far I have no reason to regret it."

"You have, no doubt, acted wisely, but had I been in your place," said Ralph, "I think I should have dreaded to make the experiment."

"Why so?"

"Luxury would demoralize me, perhaps because I am not used to it; and then my men, who are provincials, and, outside of duty, think themselves just as good as I am, would grow unless I shared with them."

"My men have their share of the Captain's good things. If the authorities knew of it, of course there would be no end of trouble, and they would accuse me of injuring the service; but whenever the time comes for hard work, in storm or battle, my men are not found wanting."

"They certainly behaved admirably well while in Sag Harbor," said Ralph; and he uttered no complaint, for the crew of the Wanderer, though as fierce a looking lot of desperadoes as ever pit foot on shore, behaved themselves in a way that excited the admiration of the settlers.

This was the result of the strictest discipline and constant watching. There was not a sailor on the Wanderer who did not understand the true character of his ship, and who did not appreciate the great necessity for caution. And then, had one of them broken the rules, that were kept in their minds morning, noon, and night, he well knew that the penalty would have been chains and the lash, and for the second offense death.

"When it can be done with safety to the ship and without dishonor to the service, I relax and let the men go ashore and get rid of their excess of spirits. They are devils here, sure enough, but they come on board thoroughly exhausted and as tractable as tame lambs. Try a little more of this wine, Captain Denham. I will guarantee that there is not a headache in a cargo of it," said Fox, again raising the particular flagon.

"But I am not accustomed to wine," replied Ralph, who did not like it; neither did he wish to appear indifferent to the conspicuous kindness of his host.

"You cannot cultivate the taste for this particular brand, I am sorry to say, for I don't think there are ten gallons of it in this hemisphere. There, one more glass will not affect you, unless, indeed, it makes you feel sleepy, and if it should, I promise you that you will rise refreshed, and there is your cabin," said Fox, pointing to an open door.

Before Ralph could refuse a second time, Frenault reached out his glass, and said:

"I drink to you, Capt. Denham."

As it would have been a discourtesy to refuse the pledge thus offered, Ralph Denham raised his glass, bowed to Frenault, and then drank down the delicious contents.

Dinner over, Ralph felt exhilarated. He went on deck, and it seemed to him that he was walking on air.

He felt very happy, and inclined to laugh at every little incident that ordinarily would not have attracted his notice.

He realized that he was in danger of making himself ridiculous, so he made his way—it seemed to him he was floating—to the cabin.

"Would you like to lie down, sir?" asked Don, the cabin boy, opening the door of a splendidly furnished apartment, which, to the excited imagination of Ralph, appeared to be one of more than Oriental magnificence.

"Yes; I will, though I do not feel sleepy. That was rare wine, boy, that you served me at dinner," said Ralph, nodding and laughing, yet fully aware that he had said nothing provocative of hilarity.

"It sometimes makes one sleepy," said Don, taking the Captain's coat and preparing to remove his pumps.

"Very well; let me rest for a short time. If I should go to sleep, which I rarely do in the daytime, wake me in an hour or so."

Ralph Denham threw himself on the luxurious couch, and as Don closed the door there was an expression of mingled pity and admiration on his face.

Captain Denham, though fully aware that the ship was at anchor in a calm sea, felt that he was being rocked and swayed by gentle, invisible hands.

Through the open port-hole that admitted light and air to his room, he heard the splash of the rippling water against the ship, but it was transformed into music, more soothing than was ever blown from the shell of a triton or fell from the seductive but treacherous lips of the fabled mermaid.

The music and the swinging kept on till the cabin expanded into a gorgeous arcade, down which he floated to music of increasing rapture, while maidens of exquisite form, with golden tresses that shimmered in the rosy light, beckoned him on, and Lea Hedges led them; he could not be mistaken in the cornelian lips and teeth of pearl.

What could he now for earth? He was in an elysium more refined and glorious than Mahomet promised to his faithful followers.

The earth had sank beneath him; it had rolled up like a vesture and passed away, and he had become a part of that illimitable space, about which he had often thought, and the new life on which he had entered was bounded by eternity.

"Is he asleep?" asked Frenault, coming into the cabin on tiptoe about the middle of the afternoon; and addressing Don, who had been ordered to remain in attendance on Captain Denham.

"Yes, sir, dead asleep," was the reply.

"Then," said Frenault, "go on deck and tell the captain to come down."

CHAPTER XIV.

CAPTAIN FOX AND LIEUTENANT FRENAULT PUT THEIR HEADS TOGETHER.

"Asleep, did you say?" said Captain Fox, when he joined Frenault in the cabin, and made sure he could not be overheard by the unconscious man in the next room.

"The hashish has had its effect," replied Frenault, "and he is as indifferent to life as if he were lying down there beside the anchor."

"Good; the point is to keep him in that condition till I am ready to act."

"That can be easily done. While in that sleep he will obey. If I were to tell him to get up, go aft and leap overboard, he would do it."

"But the effect will soon wear off. I had an opportunity to look into the workings of the drug, as given in that wine, when we were in Bombay; but I had no idea that I would ever need to employ it. Confound it! I am as wicked as the next man, but I dislike sneaking methods. I'd rather knock a man on the head than drug him to death," said Fox, as if he felt that he was saying something rather commendable.

"That is a matter of taste. I look at the end rather than the means. If you desire to carry out Colonel Graham's plan we could toss him into the sea through an open port to-night, and that would be the last of it."

"But, Frenault, I told you that I do not intend carrying out Colonel Graham's plan. You know the whole story of my first interest in Denham?"

"Yes; when he was a little boy and his father was drowned you saved him, and, with the uncle, took him off to another Long Island. Oh, I could sit down and tell you all from A to Z, and put it all down in the log as straight as one of them lawyer sharks."

"Yes; well, my heart was tender then—it's tough enough now," said Fox, with a laugh that told he felt no sense of degradation at the change in his feelings.

"Then it is not a feeling of humanity that leads you to save his life?"

"Did I say I was going to save his life?"

"I so understood you."

"I told you, Frenault, that I would save him until I had drained Graham of his last ducat, or exhausted his last vestige of power."

"You don't like the old Colonel?"

"Fudge, Frenault, you know with us it is not a matter of like or hate, but of success. We want to win, and when we are rich enough to retire, we can sink the ship and go home to England, and live in luxury and all the glory that wealth brings, to the end of our days," and Fox's blue eyes flashed at the picture he had conjured up.

"But if you carried out Graham's wish and got rid of this fellow," Frenault nodded towards the room in which Captain Denham was sleeping, "don't you think you would make him more securely your friend?"

"My friend?"

"Yes, he has the power."

"I know he has, but he never has and never will use his power, or his wealth, from a sense of friendship. If Graham were sure that Ralph Denham was dead now, he would hasten to give warning that I was a pirate in these seas, and he would exhaust every power to destroy me."

"He does not like you, then?"

"Men never like men they cannot trust, and we can never trust our partners in crime. I see, Frenault, you look as if you thought this remark had a decided personal bearing, and I confess it has. Now, what keeps the officers and crew of this ship together, as closely as if they were bound by the strongest ties in the world?"

"Interest, Captain."

"There is no doubt about it."

"But if Denham were dead and Colonel Graham betrayed you, could you not then retaliate by telling all about the murder of his brother and the abduction of his nephew?"

"I could do so, but it would not save me. It is the first successful blow that tells in a fight. A pirate in chains makes but an indifferent accuser of the man who brings him to justice. The accusations of incarcerated criminals have but little power to delatame a character."

"But as Ralph Denham, as he is called, is believed to be dead, I cannot see how his existence comes into the case at all," said Frenault, who, though a man of large intelligence, had not the intellectual grasp to seize his superior's plans, or the penetration necessary to see through them.

"His being alive or dead forms important factors in the case. There has long been a belief in England that Colonel Graham is criminally responsible for his brother's death, and there is a very general belief that the child was not drowned. The mother, a wealthy lady in her own right, has never ceased her exertions to find her boy, and I am informed by the Colonel that she is now in the new world prosecuting her search."

"Has Graham children?"

"He is not even married. I doubt if he could get any one, even among the peasants of his estates, to marry him."

"Could you not make more money by communicating with the lady?"

"No; and then a man who was privy to her husband's death would not be apt to find continued favor in her sight, even if he restored to her her son. Now, as to Ralph Denham living or dead; let me say that with him alive I could prove my case beyond all dispute, for not only is his old nurse Dinah alive, but he is as like his father, as I remember him, as it is possible to conceive."

"That is an important point."

"A very important point, Frenault."

"But when you have accomplished your purpose, what is to be Denham's fate?"

"I will leave him in the hands of the Indian, Uncas, who pledges himself to keep him secure and concealed for six months. At the end of that time the chief will be more than ready to slay the man who has provoked his jealousy, and I think I shall be willing, for, as I believe, he has provoked my jealousy," said the Captain, laughing lightly, and going over and opening the door of the room in which his victim slept.

Closing the door again, he came back with a pleased expression on his face, and said:

"He sleeps like a child."

"And I will show you how to keep him asleep."

"Ah yes, Frenault, I was going to ask you how that was done."

"I told you that people in this state obey those who speak to them; all their own will power being deadened by the drug."

"I see."

"Then, you can see, it is an easy matter to feel him, and keep him in that condition as long as you please."

"So it is. Now, let me give you instructions."

Suddenly Fox's manner changed from that of an equal to that of a superior, giving an order which he expected to have implicitly obeyed.

"Get together whatever food and clothing you will need for five days, for yourself and two men, whom you can select from among the crew. To-night, when I see a signal fire burning this side of the beacon hill, on Montauk headland, I will send you ashore. Uncas will not join you till to-morrow night, but he will send a messenger, and for this messenger I will give you a note that will announce to the chief your arrival. In the meantime, you can spend your time examining the coast, with a view to securing the greater part of the treasure now on board."

"I understand, sir," said Frenault, who rose to his feet, and stood, while the captain gave his order; "but permit me to ask how I am to know of your return?"

"Should I come back by day, you can see the ship. Should I return by night, keep a fire burning at the same point, and I will come ashore to you in the gig."

"And bring him, sir?" Frenault jerked his thumb in the direction of Ralph Denham.

"Yes, if I can keep him alive on your prescription."

"Follow it out, sir, according to directions, and you can't fail," replied Frenault.

CONECT's crusade was continued in every country of Europe till, reaching Rome, he attacked the clothes and morals of the Cardinals, was accused of heresy, and burned at the stake.

The Better Part.

The dislike of being outdone by another is probably no stronger in childhood than in maturer age, but the conventionalities which restrain a man from giving utterance to his thoughts place no check upon the child's tongue.

Two little girls had been "playing dolls" on the floor, when one, becoming weary, threw aside the dress on which she had been sewing, climbed upon the piano-stool, and played a simple tune which she had been taught. As she finished she turned and said in a boastful manner to the other, who still continued sewing:

"Say, Flossie, my mamma says I've got a fine ear for music."

Flossie was sober for a moment; then she answered in an equally confident tone:

"Well, p'raps I haven't got a fine ear for music; but I've got a fine ear for sewing, anyway!"

Make Haste to Defend Yourself

If you live in a locality where malaria is prevalent, with a preventive that experience indicates as the most reliable of medical safeguards—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Entirely free from the objections—and they are valid ones—which attach to the mineral alkaloid quinine, it is far more effective, and its effects are not evanescent, but lasting, unlike those of the drug. There are portions of our land—and none more beautiful and more fertile—which at no season of the year are entirely exempt from the malarial scourge. In such regions Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has undergone a continuous test for the past forty years, with results which have established its reputation beyond all cavil as a special defense against every form of malarial disease. For biliousness, also, it is an acknowledged specific, and it is a potent remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism and an impoverished condition of the blood.

No Delay Necessary.

Judge William Lindsay, the new Senator from Kentucky, is a man full of resources, says the World. On one occasion he had a bad case and was roundly abusing the opposite party to the suit. Finally he said something specially offensive, when the party approached him, and, whispering in his ear, said: "I will give you just five minutes to retract that remark. If you don't do it, I will kill you!" The last words were hissed in his ear. "Well," said Judge Lindsay, smiling, "what do I want to wait five minutes for? I will take it back right now."

An Excellent Effect.

The next day after the wedding. "I suppose, Henry," said the old gentleman to the new son-in-law, "that you are aware the check for $5,000 I put among your wedding presents was merely for effect?"

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the cheerful Henry, "and the effect was excellent. The bank cashed it this morning without a word."

He Is Cautious.

A Father's Gratitude Impels Him to Tell How His Son Was Saved

"I write this simply because I feel it a duty to humanity, so that others affected as my son was may know how to be cured. When he was 7 years old a white swelling came on his right leg below the knee, drawing his leg up at right angles, and causing him intense suffering. He could not walk and I considered him a confirmed cripple."

The swelling was lanced and discharged freely. At length we decided to take him to Cincinnati for a surgical operation. He was so weak and poor we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla to build up his strength. To our great surprise, not only gave strength, but caused the sore after discharging several pieces of bone, to entirely heal up. His leg straightened out, and he now runs everywhere, as lively as any boy." J. L. McMURRAY, Notary Public, Ravenswood, W. Va.

WASTE IN ITS WAKE.
FURTHER REPORTS OF THE CYCLONE'S WORK.

Great Damage Done Throughout Many States—Death and Devastation Dealt Out by the Wild Winds—Important Pension Ruling Was Not Promulgated.

Work of Wild Winds.
The damage done by the cyclone in the Mississippi Valley is enormous. While the loss of life is not as great as at first reported, the damage to property will reach $2,000,000. The telegraph wires are still demoralized, and reports are coming in slowly from the storm districts, and it will be several days before the full extent of the disaster will be known. The death list so far as known foots up twenty-three, while the list of injured will run up into the hundreds.

The first heard of the cyclone was in North Louisiana and Southern Arkansas. It crossed the Mississippi a few miles above Greenville, devastating plantations, wrecking farmhouses and uprooting giant forest trees. The path of the storm was about half a mile wide, and nothing was left standing in its track. The first fatality occurred near Shaw's Station, Miss., where the house of Drury Sumrall, a prosperous and industrious colored farmer, was leveled to the ground, killing the entire family of nine persons. The cyclone passed through the suburbs of Shaw's and demolished several residences and small stores, but no one was killed. The hurricane then changed its course slightly and traveled the right of way of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad until it entered Cleveland, Miss., where the public school building and several stores and residences were razed to the ground. Leaving Cleveland, the cyclone passed within a mile of Clarksdale, a town of 2,000 inhabitants, and next struck Tunica, the county seat of Tunica County. Nearly every building in the place was wrecked. The colored school building was wrecked, and over thirty children maimed and crippled, some of them being fatally injured. As the cyclone left Tunica it divided, one portion traveling in a northeasterly direction, while the other took a northwesterly course and again crossed the Mississippi River through Arkansas, where it spread ruin through three counties. The towns of Crawfordsville and Vincent were nearly wiped off the face of the earth, and the storm then took a northeasterly course, reaching Kelly, Miss. Here the greatest damage was done. Six people were killed outright and scores injured. Not a building was left standing, the fragments being strewn over the country for miles. After leaving Kelly the cyclone passed into Tennessee, the next place to fall in its path being Spring Creek, where several people were injured.

The storm did great damage at Bowling Green, Ky., and the surrounding country. The loss to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad on the building and locomotives is $75,000 to $100,000. The town of Rowles was almost destroyed. The postoffice building, owned by Frank Cordice, was swept entirely away, together with all the mail, some of which was found two miles off. Mr. Cordice's loss is $41,000. The storehouse, occupied by Stephens & Knox, was demolished, and their stock, valued at $5,000, ruined by the rain which followed the storm. At Murray, Ky., twenty residences and fifty stables and barns were demolished. Only one person, Miss Aline Stubblefield, was seriously injured. A dozen were slightly hurt. The loss will reach $25,000. Much timber, fencing, etc., was also destroyed. Late information concerning the effects of the storm in Southern Indiana indicates that the damage will be very great. A number of persons are known to have been seriously injured, but as yet no fatalities have been reported. The country for miles around was devastated. Dwellings and barns were lifted from their foundations and many are wrecks. Trees, fences, and smaller buildings at various places were laid low. The Center Methodist Episcopal Church of Evansville was completely demolished, only its foundation remaining. At the Southern Hospital for the insane a frightful panic prevailed for nearly an hour. The end of the east wing of the institution was blown in, crumpling between $1,000 and $1,500 damage.

IMPORTANT PENSION RULING.

It Reverses a Decision Under Which $2,000,000 Has Been Paid to Claimants.

It has been discovered that one of the most important rulings ever made in the pension office has remained unpromulgated, so far as the public knows, for more than five months. It is learned that Sept. 28 last Assistant Secretary Bussey made a pension decision which radically changed the practice of the department as to the disposition of accrued pensions in certain cases and established a new and important rule as to reimbursement of "expenses, last sickness, and burial" under Sec. 4718, Revised Statutes. The Assistant Secretary holds that accrued pensions can be fully and reimbursement for "last sickness and burial," the Assistant Secretary concludes "that while only the widow or minor child of the deceased soldier can take the accrued pension, the only person for whom the expenses of the last sickness and burial can be allowed is the soldier himself. From the date and under the authority of an opinion by Solicitor General Phillips rendered Aug. 10, 1876, until now, last sickness and burial expenses have been allowed in all cases where the deceased was an impecunious pensioner or entitled to a pension, whether soldier, minor children, grandchildren, or dependent parents. It is stated that fully $2,000,000 has been wrongfully paid to claimants under the Phillips opinion as reimbursement for last sickness and burial expenses, for which Sec. 4718, Revised Statutes, did not provide.

If You Want The Best

ALTHOUGH you may have had good luck with but few failures in making cake and biscuit in the old-fashioned way with soda and sour milk, or soda and cream of tartar, you will have better luck and (following directions) no failures with the Royal Baking Powder.

The truth of this must be evident when you remember that in the leading hotels and restaurants, and in the homes of our city cousins, where the latest and best methods are invariably employed, and where the most beautiful and dainty food is always set out for the guests, the Royal Baking Powder is exclusively used for all quickly risen food.

Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other Baking Powders.

If you want the best food, Royal Baking Powder is indispensable.

Tonsils Cauterized in Sleep.
For the past five months a girl of 13, of good family, had been lying in a state of complete lethargy in a private hospital at Vesinet, outside Paris. The sleeping maiden has recently been restored to consciousness by Dr. Reffegau, who had charge of her, in a peculiar manner. She usually lay asleep with her mouth wide open and her throat exposed to view. The physician noticed that one of the tonsils was enlarged, so he resolved to cauterize it with a red-hot iron, an operation which would be beneficial to the patient, even if it did not have the effect of terminating her cataleptic condition.

After the iron had done its work, the girl, who had been previously insensible to the pricking of pins, manifested unmistakable signs of pain and uttered a feeble cry. From that moment she began to return gradually to consciousness, and at last awoke, saying to the nun who was taking care of her, "Where am I?" The patient had no recollection or notion of anything that had taken place during the five months in which she was asleep, and manifested the greatest surprise when told about her extraordinarily long slumber. She is now said to be in a normal state of health, full of spirits, and eager to make up for her long silence.—London Telegraph.

The World's Coal.
Coal to the amount of about 485,000,000 tons is mined annually. Of this amount the United States contributes 141,000,000 tons; Great Britain and Ireland, 128,000,000 tons; Germany, 90,000,000 tons; France, 28,000,000 tons; Belgium, 20,000,000 tons; Austria, 9,000,000 tons; and Russia, 6,000,000 tons. The amount of coal still remaining in Great Britain above the depth of 4,000 feet is estimated at one hundred and fifty billion tons, or enough to last at the present rate of consumption per capita, about three hundred years. Perhaps by that time heating by means of the combustion of coal will have become an obsolete practice. Direct or stored sun heat and electricity may accomplish far more satisfactorily all the good results we now get from coal. Let us not despair.

Poor Economy in Road Building.
It is alleged by the St. Louis Republic that the State of Missouri expended in 1890 and 1891 $5,899,000 in putting patches here and there on old roads instead of constructing so many miles of good new roads by contract at so much a mile. It says this sum would have built a macadamized road, at a cost of $7,000 a mile, through the entire length and breadth of the State and left $500,000 in the road fund to keep it in order. It does not claim that this money was squandered or misapplied, but that it was spent in an ill-advised and injudicious way. It was used to patch up in summer the injury done to unskillfully constructed roads in the winter months. The succeeding winter again undid the work, which had again to be repeated, like pouring water into a rat hole or a sieve, with no practical result.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.

From Our Special Correspondent.

The news that the president has decided to reconvene the international monetary conference at Brussels on May 30, is received with approbation by senators who have interested themselves in the silver question. The impression prevails that the United States delegation will not be materially changed in personnel, but at least one familiar figure will be missed when the delegates reassemble, for Senator Allison, who discharged the duties of president of the American delegation, has been obliged from business considerations to surrender the idea of carrying forward his work as a delegate. The senator is not an extremist, but he is hopeful that some definite agreement will be reached when the conference reassembles.

By the action of England and France in raising the titular rank of their diplomatic representatives at Washington from that of minister plenipotentiary to ambassador, it will devolve upon the discretion of the president to confer similar distinction on the representatives of the United States at Paris and London. It is the highest titular distinction in the diplomatic service, and so long as such titles are being passed around it is probable the United States will fall into the procession, not for the sake of the intrinsic honor involved, but for the advantages there probably are in official precedence at foreign courts. To the ordinary mind there is but a slight difference in the titles, but as a matter of fact American ministers abroad have been subjected to great inconvenience and have been obliged to see the representative of some pocket government take precedence, because they were not ambassadors.

The elevation of their ministers to ambassadorships shows that the foreign governments now place the United States on a level with the great powers of Europe. There is a good deal of flim-flam about this diplomatic business, and if the American diplomatic services had any uniform it is probable that an ambassador would have an extra grapevine down his back, but it is not clear how the United States can ignore its requirements and keep in the swim.

It seems, at the capital, as if bad air and bad manners are the sum of human greatness. Every time I sit in the gallery of the House of Representatives and gaze down upon the lolling, lazy-looking lot of microbes that fill the air with poison and pessimism, it seems, that, after all, it is rather unfortunate that the path of glory leads but to the grave, only I wonder why somebody doesn't draw a map defining a short cut. One might suppose that the architecture of the capitol was designed for the purpose. I am told there is a fresh air committee in congress, also that a man is rather ashamed of being a member of it.

One lungful of the air in the capitol is sufficient to drive a man to drink, and it does. The other day I sat in the house cafe three-quarters of an hour and counted twenty-seven little glasses filled with something a shade darker than Potomac water and decorated with a pretty bit of lemon peel disappear by the usual route. Then I counted in between thirty-three baby decanters, each holding a straight—I suppose it was a straight drink, for it went straight down the throats of straight republicans and straight democrats alike.

It is not probable that the reorganization of the senate, so far as the elective officers and the employees under them are concerned, will be made until next fall when congress meets. The desire among the democrats to reorganize at once is so great as to lead them into a protracted debate which would prolong the extra session. The republicans, on the other hand, are determined that the reorganization shall not take out to the end. The work of the extra session of the senate is therefore likely to be confined in the main to the consideration and confirmation of presidential nominations.

"As stupid as a Congressional Directory." That was a comparison used a few days ago by a singularly charming girl, who wished to convince me she had had a dull time at a dinner dance the night before. As I knew to be a case of "Robin was not there," I begged the issue and said, instead: "How stupid is that?" "Look and see," she petulantly answered, with her pretty shoulder naughtily "hitched up" and her pretty eyes trying to glower. So I deliberately took up a fat pamphlet labeled: "Fifty-second Congress. (First session)," and idly began to turn over its leaves. Not for long, however, for here and there names glanced out of the pages where record was "writ in burning rows of steel during the late civil war; names that have come to represent principles and parties. "Why, my dear child, listen to this," I said. "And this, and this. It is magnificent. It is an epic. American manhood and American institutions are superbly set forth." Thoroughly roused, she listened and looked. Surely the romance and historiettes of the Congressional Directory form a record of which the nation may well be proud. In the short sketches of the lives of some of her statesmen as here recorded are written deeds and names which might well be the shibboleth of the men of the country who are fighting their way up against the long odds fame and fortune offer.

The new statistician of the Agricultural Department will assume office on April 1. But perhaps there is nothing significant in this date.

Secretary Morton is too busy with the office-seekers to do anything for the other great American hog.
