SHAMEFULLY ABUSED.

A Country Lad Who Felt That the City Was Against Him to a Man.

"Folks down b'low in the city seem to think nobody knows anythin but jest themselves," remarked young Bijé Fawcett, who had been on a two weeks' visit to Boston. "I s'pose I may've gaped round some. I ain't sayin I didn't. But it don't make no difference. They hadn't any call to to treat me as if I was an ecjot."

"What did they do to you, Bijé?" asked one of the group to whom he made this statement.

"There wa'n't scussly anythin they didn't do!" replied Bijé, waxing indignant. "They set on me at ev'ry corner, an insulted me, most! 'Twa'n't pleasant. It kep' me riled up most o' the time I was there."

"I want to know!" ejaculated several listeners in chorus.

"Yes, sir!" continued Bijé, flushing a deeper red. "They'd set little boys to spy on me an come shovin papers into my hand, with 'What you want is a good pair o' shoes!' on 'em in big print, or else advisin with me about my hat, or my pants, or somethin."

"An they'd stick jumpin jacks right into my face an ask me to buy 'em, them sassy boys would! I see 'em let other folks go right by without molestin 'em a mite, but they picked on me ev'ry time."

"But the thing that madded me the wust was when I was standin in front of a new lookin shop on a kind of a quiet street one day."

"I was castin round in my mind what some queer lookin pipes was for that was in the winder, an whilst I was figgerin on 'em a little whipper snapper of a feller that was jest clerkin there, I presume to say, stepped up to the winder an set a big placard right down in front o' them pipes, right b'fore my very face an eyes. An it said on it, 'Iron Sinks.'"

"Well, I was het up in a minute, an I passed right into the shop an up to that grinnin young feller, an says I: 'What d'you mean by stickin that card right in front o' me? Did you calc'late I thought iron floated!'"

"He tried to stammer out somethin 'bout its bein a sign an so on, but he was laughin all the time, I could see."

"It's a sign your manners ain't what they'd ought to be," says I, 'pokin fun at a man jest o'cause you can see he's from the country, an pertendin to teach him things he's known sence he was 5 years old!'"

"I could see he was kind o' mortified, so I come out without sayin all I had in my mind to say. But the next day I come home. I couldn't seem to enjoy bein in a place where folks all thought I was so ignorant an had got to be told about ev'ry namable thing!'"—Youth's Companion.

How the Races Originated.

M. de Quatrefages, the French ethnologist, has made public his conclusions with regard to the origin and distribution of the human race. He says all mankind came from a central mass in northern Asia, and that there were three fundamental types—black, white and yellow. These three types scattered over the world and intermingled, forming, in course of time, 72 distinct races of human beings, which is the number of races classified by our best ethnologists in the tabulations brought down to the year 1890. The learned De Quatrefages believes that the American Indians came from "a blending of white and yellow races with a local quaternary race." Say, M. de Quatrefages, where did that local quaternary race originate?—Philadelphia Press.

The Smuggling Mania Crops Out.

Mrs. Mapleson, the prima donna, has invented an apparatus for concealing the beautiful little tailless, shaggy black Russian dog given her by the Princess of Monaco. It is in the shape of a Gladstone bag, with a light, well perforated canvas cover. This drops down from the handle and reveals an inner case of network, stretched apart so as to afford comfortable space for the small animal to lie down or sit up, as he may elect. In this he is smuggled into hotels. Mrs. Mapleson calls it the "evader," and had some idea of patenting the invention, but sympathy with other dog owners induced her to give it publicity.—Boston Budget.

STARTLING news reached Point Conception lighthouse that the four-masted steel ship King James, coal-laden, from Newcastle, England, to San Francisco, had burned at sea 200 miles off San Francisco. A boat containing sixteen men from the King James landed at Point Conception lighthouse, where they were cared for by the lighthouse-keeper. On the 14th of March vapor was discovered arising from the hold of the King James, and the hold gradually grew hotter. Water was poured down the hatchway, but without avail.

R. G. DUN & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The fact of largest influence in the record of the last week has been the increased distribution of goods. The stringency often seen about this time does not appear now as other money markets close. But while imports greatly exceed exports, it is not safe to calculate that outflows of gold will not again disturb confidence. Hence the break in important speculations has its hopeful side.

In Sheep's Clothing.

By Capt. Ormond Steele

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

After this long and apparently satisfactory conversation between Captain Fox and his lieutenant, they went on deck, where they found the rudder in good working order, and the men lounging about the hot decks, while the officers smoked, and wondered among themselves what this conduct on the part of the skipper meant.

The men and officers of the Wanderer had so much confidence in the foresight and daring of their leader, that they but seldom talked among themselves as to the nature of any move that Fox did not explain in advance.

So far, he had done by them exactly as he had promised, and they had every reason to believe that their good luck, and the captain's good management, would continue for many a day to come.

There was not a man on the ship, from Don, the cabin boy, to the captain, with the one exception of Ralph Denham, now incapable of reasoning, that ever thought that the Wanderer was bound for New York when she left Sag Harbor.

The men did not know where they were going, nor did they particularly care, so that they were on the move with some object to gain, or, in lieu of that, of dander in view.

With the exception of Frenaud, the officers were nearly as coarse and brutal-looking as the men, but they fully appreciated the value of good conduct on shore, and of silence, or reticence, when those qualities were found necessary, to hide the defects of their early training.

Three times, during the afternoon, Fox and Frenaud visited the little gem of a cabin in which Ralph Denham lay, still unconscious.

Once they administered to him a small glass of wine, with a few drops of the green, sweet, soporific drug in it, and one drop of a colorless fluid which Frenaud declared was sufficient to destroy the will-power of a giant for four-and-twenty hours.

A few hours after dark the captain's gig was lowered, and into it got Frenaud and three men, all carrying their arms and considerable bundles.

The rowers and the officer in command followed, the hooks were slipped out, and, at a low command from the officer in the stern sheets, the oars dropped into place, caught the water like one blade, and the gig sped away for the cliffs, beneath which a fire had been burning for some time.

Frenaud and his men landed near the fire, where they found an old Indian, sent there by Uncas, awaiting them.

The gig returned at once to the ship, anchor was weighed, and the Wanderer stood out to sea, but she did not sail in the direction of the port of New York.

Frenaud did not at all relish the mission on which he was sent, but he came in obedience to an order that he could not disobey if he would. When delivered, this order met his warm approval, for he had great faith in his captain, whose unapproachably brilliant talents as a villain won his esteem, and at times excited his envy. But when Frenaud, sitting by the shore, saw through the darkness, like a vanishing star, the ship's lights dropping down the horizon's rim, his spirits also fell.

Bidding the sailors spread their blankets and go to sleep, Frenaud lit a cigar, and handing the old Indian another, he invited him to draw up to the fire.

The Indian could not speak very good English, but as he succeeded in making himself clearly understood, we shall not attempt to reproduce his dialect, or rather his broken speech.

Lighting his cigar, the Indian, who said his name was "Old Somonk," squatted on his haunches, and across the little fire, whose flickering flames threw unequal lights on their faces, they stared at each other.

"Uncas sent you here," said Frenaud, more for the sake of talking than with any hope of getting desirable information.

"Ugh, Uncas," replied Old Somonk, and he seemed to blow the words with a jet of smoke from his puckered lips in the direction of the young officer.

"Uncas is a great chief."

"Ugh, Uncas big sachem," grunted Old Somonk.

"Got a wife?"

"No, no wife."

"Why doesn't a fine-looking man like Uncas get a wife?"

"Don't know; mebbe don't want one."

"Ah, like enough. Strange that that hadn't struck me as a possible reason before," said Frenaud, taking an unusually long pull at his cigar, and coming to the conclusion that Old Somonk was not as much of a fool after all.

"When is Uncas to come here?" asked Frenaud, looking up at the black sky as he asked the question, as if it were quite possible for the answer to come from that quarter.

"One sun more, to-morrow."

"What are we to do in the meantime?" Old Somonk slightly elevated his shoulders, but his face gave not the slightest sign of interest as he grunted: "Don't know."

"That is very consoling. Of course you know the country hereabouts very well?"

"Born here," was the reply, with a preliminary grunt.

"Looks as if he might have been born before there was any such place as this," said Frenaud, sotto voce; then aloud, "you are going to remain with us until Uncas comes."

"No, no," said Old Somonk, with decided emphasis.

"The old Harry! then how long will you stay?"

"When young Somonk, my son, be come, then I go home to my squaw."

"And so this old mummy, with a skin like a pump tongue, has got a wife and a son. The squaws imitate their white sisters in having strange tastes," muttered Frenaud; then aloud, "and your son will remain with us until Uncas comes?"

"Don't know."

"For a man of your years your information is about as limited as that of any one I ever met."

"You give my son paper you get from chief big canoe; my son, young Somonk, he take paper to Uncas. Paper talk. Uncas he come. Then make ready for him—Ralph Den'm."

"I see a glimmer of truth, has flashed upon your mist enveloped understanding," Old Somonk did not understand this, but he clearly comprehended when Frenaud added: "Uncas does not like Ralph Denham."

"Oh, no—no."

"Why?"

"Why? 'cause he love wite squaw; daughter medicine man Hedges."

"Tersely and clearly stated. Of course all the Indians like their chief?"

"Oh, yes."

"Do whatever he says?"

"Oh, yes, mebbe."

"Some doubt about that, eh? Well, Mr. Old Somonk, one more question; can we sleep here without watch; is it safe?"

"I so asked."

"It is safe all time in land of Montauk for friend of Montauk."

"From which I am to infer that it would be anything but safe for the foes of the Montauks to intrude here. Well, I am a warm friend of the Montauks."

"Oh, yes," from Old Somonk, with something like sarcasm in the tones, though his sphinx-like face looked as impassive as ever. Satisfied that it was safe to lie down, and confident that he could not continue the conversation with Old Somonk, with any chance of getting information or learning that in which he was interested, Frenaud spread a blanket on the ground, and went to sleep.

He did not wake up till daylight, and the first object that met his eyes was Old Somonk seated in the same place and in the same position, the only change noticeable about him being that he was now smoking a con-cob pipe instead of a cigar.

With that aptitude which distinguishes alike the trained soldier and seaman, the three sailors from the Wanderer set about getting breakfast for themselves and the Lieutenant.

Old Somonk, with a degree of curiosity that is not generally thought to distinguish till the meal was ready, when, without being invited, he came over and began helping himself, in the coolest possible way.

At first this caused the Lieutenant and his men much merriment, but wholly indifferent to their laughter Old Somonk paid the strictest possible attention to the business on hand. And as he threatened to devour all the cooked food, if the others did not hurry up, all pitched in in self-defense, and ate with a speed that emulated but could not equal that of the Indian.

During the day Frenaud and his men made an examination of the coast, in which work they were facilitated by the use of a canoe, which Old Somonk drew out from a cavern made in the rocks by the long-continued action of wind and waves.

Frenaud carefully took note of the bearings of this cave, which had a small entrance that could easily be closed up, while the inside space was amply to hold all the wealth of silver, gold, and precious stones that had ever been floated on the sea.

Back from the beach there were scattering groves set, as if by the hand of a landscape gardener who studied the ways of nature, and undulating lawns or meadows in which pastured the herds of the Montauks.

In the afternoon they followed the example of Old Somonk, and lay down in the shade, where, the sea breeze fanning their faces, they soon sank to sleep.

They would have slept on into the night had they not been aroused by the talking of two men. One was Old Somonk and the other his son.

Before Frenaud could say a word, Old Somonk said, pointing to the Indian youth, with whom he had been talking:

"This is my son, young Somonk. He comes from Uncas; you talk." And, having uttered these words with astonishing rapidity, he turned to the west and ran with a speed that was wonderful for him, and would have been remarkable even in his son.

"Your venerable sire," said Frenaud, looking after the flying Montauk, "is the most eccentric gentleman, white or red, that it has ever been my privilege to encounter."

With much dignity the young Indian cut him short by saying:

"I have come from my chief, Uncas of the Montauks."

"Ah, so I supposed, and—"

"Have you a message, a paper for me?" broke in Somonk.

"I have; but are you not manifesting undue haste?"

For reply Somonk extended his hand, and kept it so until Frenaud had deposited therein the expected paper.

Then, to the unutterable amazement of the sailors, Somonk closed his hand of the paper and darted off with a speed that promised soon to place him far in advance of his fugitive father.

"Well, may Satan fly away with me,

If they are not the most extraordinary sire and scion that ever crossed my course! I wonder if the old woman has the same restlessness on foot and placidity—sitting down?"

The sailors answered this with a loud laugh, and at once began preparations for supper.

Though affecting great lightness of manner, Frenaud was not at all satisfied with the situation.

"What if the Montauk chief did not keep his part of the contract? What, if the Wanderer were lost, or sank, or by any other chance did not return, was to become of Frenaud and his three companions?"

He thought these questions over and over, even while he was eating his supper, and he had not reached a satisfactory answer, when he heard the snapping of a dry twig near by, and looking up, he saw before him the towering form of the Montauk chief.

The appearance of Uncas, though not unexpected, was so sudden as to startle Frenaud and set his heart to beating faster.

After the usual salutations had passed, the chief accepted Frenaud's invitation to join him at supper, and while they were eating, he said:

"I would have seen you before, but that I met the old white chief, Col. Graham."

"What, hasn't he gone back to New York?" asked the astonished Frenaud.

"No; he has been sick."

"And where is he now?"

"He is in my lodge?"

"Your lodge?"

"Yes, in my house with his black servant."

"In the name of all that is not sacred, how did he come to get there?"

"He wanted change, expressed a wish to know more about the Montauks, and I, as their chief, became his guide," said Uncas, with much dignity.

"But his presence will ruin our plans."

"I cannot see how that will be."

"Simply this, that Col. Graham supposes that Ralph Den'm is now at the bottom of the sea, as he deserves to be, were it not that Capt. Fox, who is your great, true friend, and knows how much you dislike your rival, wanted to leave him in your hands for a certain time, when, according to the agreement, you would be free to do as you pleased with him," said Frenaud.

"I know all that," replied the chief, "and you can have but little faith in my wisdom if you think I told Col. Graham anything of my plans, nor have I told any one else, excepting young Somonk and his father."

"Ah, that was the very sublimity of prudence," said Frenaud, smiling and rubbing his hands, then asking in a pleased way: "Have you thought of the place where you are to keep Denham?"

"I have."

"Do you object to telling?"

"No; it is in a cavern down there by the shore, a place of which nearly all our people have a great dread."

As this spot had been appropriated in Frenaud's mind for another purpose, he asked, hurriedly:

"Couldn't you get another place away from the water—it is dangerous to have a sailor near the water, if you are at all anxious to keep him."

"I could; there is even a better hiding place in the hills, but even I do not care to go there in the dark."

"What is it like?" asked Frenaud.

"It is the burial place of our chiefs, replied Uncas.

THE WEEK AT LANSING

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS DOING.

An Impartial Record of the Work Accomplished by Those Who Make Our Laws—How the Time Has Been Occupied During the Past Week.

The Law-Makers.

In the House, Wednesday, the Committee on State Prison favorably reported on the Sumner bill making an appropriation for electrical apparatus wherewith to execute convicts or other prisoners who commit murder. The committee of the whole passed the bill providing for the establishment of a home for feeble-minded children after cutting the appropriation therefor from $60,000 to $50,000, also the bill creating a State Board of Arbitration and Mediation, to consist of three members. The Senate passed, with but one dissenting vote, the McLaughlin bill prohibiting the incarceration of Federal prisoners from other States in Michigan prisons, but an attempt to give the bill immediate effect failed. The bill appropriating $75,000 for colony houses and other improvements at the Kalamazoo Asylum for the Insane was also passed. In his argument in the Supreme Court in the Barkworth case, Judge Cooley broadly intimated that the proposition to call a convention to make a general revision of the Constitution, which was voted on last fall, not receiving a majority of all the votes cast at that election, was carried. Attorney General Ellis recently gave an opinion to the effect that the proposition carried, inasmuch as it was favored by a majority of electors voting thereon, and the House Judiciary Committee has favorably reported on a bill providing for the holding of a convention in October next.

Little of public interest was accomplished in either house Thursday, but both indulged in political wrangles occupying nearly the entire time of the session. The Senate had under discussion in committee of the whole a bill establishing a board of control for the Industrial Home for Boys, which involves the abolition of the present board of control for all penal institutions, established by the Legislature of 1891. The bill was finally agreed to after one of the warmest party discussions of the session. The House was equally stirred up over a resolution for a special committee to investigate the affairs and management of the State Prison at Jackson. A substitute finally prevailed by a party vote leaving the investigation with the joint standing committee of both houses.

Why We Should Eat Apple Sauce.

People often wonder how certain cooking or table-serving fashions grew up, and why mint sauce is served with one meat, apple sauce with another, and so on. It is interesting to note that our forefathers must have been a good deal more thoughtful in regard to their diet than we are, for a good reason can be assigned for nearly all the apparently arbitrary rules of this kind they have handed down to us. For instance, pork should never be eaten without a liberal supply of apple sauce, and never with any kind of rich stuffing or dressing. Pork is generally a rich food, and it contains a great deal of rich matter which wants to be neutralized promptly in the system. The same is the case with fat geese to even greater extent. Apple acids have splendid medicinal powers and properties, and, although they retain a bulk of their strength in the cooked form, little inconvenience is experienced from eating rich meat, especially if plenty of apple sauce is swallowed with it, and more particularly still if a good ripe apple is eaten immediately afterward for dessert. Well-cooked oatmeal eaten with a raw apple is really an ideal diet for humanity, and a man can keep strong and healthy on this at the smallest possible outlay.

The Esquimaux Live on Meat.

The food of the Esquimaux is almost entirely restricted to meat, said a traveler who has just returned from that country. There is no edible vegetation in all Alaska except scurvy grass—the leaves of which taste like sorrel—a small huckleberry, and the crowberry. With these exceptions, the Esquimaux diet is restricted entirely to meat. The meat is for the most part eaten raw, although, to do our friends credit, it is sometimes cooked. Cooking, however, is an art that is almost new to them. It makes absolutely no difference to them whether the meat be fresh, tainted, or rotten. It is eaten with a relish, no matter what its condition may be. This is due entirely to the great bracing qualities of the air. Seal is the favorite meat by long odds. It is a steady diet, much the same as beef is to us, and they never tire of it. The impression that Esquimaux eat blubber is a wrong one; it is not so. Blubber is a much too precious article to be used as food. It brings too much in the commercial market of the world for that. Another thing about blubber—it is also the chief article of fuel. Every scrap of it that an Esquimaux can lay his hands on in the spring and summer is carefully stored away for use during that great, long, cold night that they have to go through. It's a tough country to live in.

The Use of "Buxom."

When we now speak of a buxom person we think of such a one as Mrs. Lupin, in "Martin Chuzzlewit," a plump, middle-aged, good-looking, good-natured, kind, agreeable woman, says the National Review. We do not usually apply the term to a thin woman, or to a young girl, or to an old woman. Assuredly we should never think of calling a man or a boy buxom. The word, however, once really meant pliable or flexible, and afterward obedient. It is the same as the Anglo-Saxon bocsum, or the High German buegsam, from buegen to bend, which root appears in bough and bow (in all its meanings). In the Salisbury Manual the woman at the marriage service promised to be "bonair" and "buxom," which is explained in the margin to mean meek and obedient. We are hereby reminded of Milton's line in the most beautiful of all odes, "So buxom, blithe, and debonaire." This original meaning of the word appears in Chaucer's "Merchant's Tale" (line 9163): "For who can be so buxom as a wife?" The word, in its application, was not limited to women. In "The Clerk's Tale" (line 8062), we are told of men, "And they with humble heart full buxomly." In Henry Cochrane's Dictionary (A. D. 1625), buxom is defined as pliant, obedient.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Oh gentle, balmy spring
Thy breezes how we dread,
For though they kiss the flowers awake,
They make the freckles spread.

M. B. Moon now rides a Columbia bicycle.

Sylvan township offers a bounty of 15 cents for crows, hawks, woodchucks and owls.

Dr. Calvert, a former resident of Chelsea, died recently at Denver, Colorado.

Postmaster General Bissell has the grip. Many fourth-class postmasters have lost theirs.

Miss Carrie Cunningham commenced teaching the school in the McIntee district Monday last.

Chas. Tarbell and family intend to remove to Jackson, where they will make their home in the future.

Louis J. Liesemer, of Ann Arbor, has purchased the Lansing Staats-Zeitung, and will make a state paper of it.

The maple syrup social given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sparks Wednesday evening by the Epworth Orchestra, was an enjoyable affair.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kaiser, of Owosso, are rejoicing over a bouncing ten-pound boy, who made its appearance at their home, Sunday, April 9, 1893.

There were less business failures in the United States, during the past three months, than for any similar period in the past eleven years with a single exception.

A man was arrested in New York and fined five dollars for forcibly kissing six girls on the street. This fixes the value of a New York girl's kiss at eighty-three and one-third cents.

A general wail is going up all over the state about the scarcity of hired girls. It is due in a great measure to their all wanting to go to the world's fair, where big wages are offered them.

Frank Tucker opens his engagement in the Town Hall next week with the society comedy entitled "Is marriage a failure?" and follows Saturday afternoon and evening with an entire change of program. The matinee Saturday afternoon is expected the most popular of the engagement.

On a wager as to who could eat the more raw oysters two club-men in Baltimore the other day ate eleven dozen each and were still in good working order when the "shucker" became tired out and quit furnishing the oysters. They called it a draw but they should have called it gluttony.

Probably this season will be the last chance to see Frank Tucker, as he is now playing week stands almost entirely. However the management have succeeded in getting him to give three performances at the Town Hall next week Friday and Saturday, April 21st and 22d with a matinee Saturday afternoon.

The postoffice clerk who asked a young lady whether she would have her stamps with or without, and in answer to her inquiry what he meant responded. "One-centers have, no whiskers on Columbus and the two-centers have," was nonplussed himself the other day by being asked for "A discovery and a landing." On inquiry he found that it meant a one-center—Columbus in sight—and a two-center—Columbus landing.

Ed. List, of Jackson, was killed by a M. C. R. R. train at Francisco last Saturday night. It seems that he had spent Saturday with some friends in Chelsea, eating drinking and having a good time generally. What he ate did him no harm but what he drank cost him his life. He started for home on the 10 p. m. train. At Francisco he stepped of the train and after it started attempted to get on again. He fell and both his legs were cut off. It was some time before he was discovered, and was then in a very weak condition, and died about two hours later.

Died, Wednesday, April 18th, Emma, aged 19 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stevenson, of North Lake. Mr. Stevenson and his daughter had just returned from a trip to California, a few days ago, where the young lady hoped to regain her health, which we are informed had been poor for some time, but the effort was in vain, and they returned home Tuesday evening of this week. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. Funeral services at the Congregational church, Chelsea, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CHURCH NEWS.

At the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be given the second sermon on the book of Job.

There were no services at the Congregational church last Sabbath, on account of the illness of the pastor.

The subject for the Epworth League prayer-meeting for next Sunday evening is "Ruling the Spirit."

The Subject for the meeting of the B. Y. P. U. for next Sunday evening is "Jesus a Model for Me"—Phil. 2:5.

The Lutheran society held a social at the home of Mrs. Girbach Tuesday evening. A very pleasant time was had by all present.

The census bureau reveals the unpleasant fact that there are 5,000,000 people in the United States over 15 years of age who cannot write.

It is said that Perry county, Ky., in 1890 had not a single church nor school house in all its borders. Five hundred murders were committed there in twenty years, the fault of whiskey and illiteracy, no doubt.

More than 3,000,000,000 cigarettes are sold annually in the United States. In twenty-six states there are laws against selling tobacco to minors. In Pennsylvania the penalty is $300. In South Carolina the maximum penalty is $100 and one year's imprisonment. In Chelsea, by common consent, the cigarette law has become a dead letter. And who cares?

Reader, please ponder the following facts and figures: Fifty per cent of insanity comes from strong drink. Seventy-five per cent. of criminals and ninety-six per cent. of tramps and depraved youth may be traced to the saloon. To the same cause may be referred 800,000 paupers, 30,000 idiots, 70,000 drunkard's funerals and countless wars and woes, public and private, for which christian people by their silence and inaction are largely responsible. Pulpit, press and pew should speak out. Light and life are closely related.

Tuesday next at the Congregational church, the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Jackson Association will hold its annual meeting. Meetings commence at 11 a. m. and at 2 p. m. In the evening the Association proper will begin with a sermon by Rev. H. S. Mills, of Union City. Wednesday morning at 8:30, a devotional service will begin the day. Important papers will be presented by Revs. J. W. Bradshaw, Ann Arbor, and S. T. Morris, of Dexter. In the afternoon addresses will be delivered by Rev. Van Omoren of Grass Lake, Rev. W. C. Stiles, of Jackson, on "Why am I a Congregationalist." The Sunday School work will be presented by N. C. Lowe and J. R. Blake. In the evening there will be a recitation by Miss Zoe BeGole. A Free Parliament, theme: Christian Consecration. All of these meetings are open to the public. Friends from other denominations are cordially invited to attend any and all of these services. The program is arranged not for Congregationalists alone, but for all of God's people. It is hoped that every Christian who attends may be able to receive a spiritual uplift. May-God grant that this shall be a Pentecostal season for Chelsea.

George S. Hunt.

Geo. S. Hunt was born at Culche's county, N. Y., March 20, 1812, and died at Sylvan, March 30, 1893.

When a young man he came to Michigan, then to Ohio, where he met and married Lydia Williamson, which union was blessed with nine children, four of whom are living—J. W., Wm. F., Geo. E., and Matilda A., wife of Byron Wight.

Mr. Hunt removed to Sylvan twenty five years ago and resided there until his death.

He was buried April 1st, from the Sylvan church, his remains being interred in Maple Grove cemetery by the side of his wife, whom he survived about three years. M. A. W.

E. C. Hill has removed his jewelry business to Brown City and will leave for that place Saturday.

There has been a flood of fish and game bills in the legislature this season, although very few have received consideration. The house committee on state affairs will report a general bill changes in the present close seasons for game. Among the changes proposed is a uniform deer season in both peninsulas, an earlier season for partridge, cutting off spring shooting of ducks, making a closed season for squirrels, and prohibiting the use of ferrets in certain cases. This measure was drafted in harmony with the recommendations of the inter-state conference at Detroit, and has received the approval of many of the leading sports men of the state.

The confidence that people have in Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood medicine is the legitimate and natural growth of many years. It has been handed down from parent to child, and is the favorite family medicine in thousands of households.

The Courtesy She Expected.

"When I was down in North Carolina last," remarked the drummer, "I met a mountaineer beauty, in Asheville for a day's sight-seeing. She was tall and angular, and her calico dress and limp sun bonnet of the same material, clung to her as if they had no other support in the wide world. Her face was freckled and her teeth showed that she either 'dipped' or hit the pipe. I met her in the railroad station, waiting for a train, and she spotted me on sight.

"Ain't you a drummer?" she inquired.

"I'm a traveling salesman," I replied, "What will you have?"

"I want to know about my train, an' ther' ain't nobody 'round that seems to know anything. Drummers know it all," she laughed.

I told her what she wanted to know, and then she branched off.

"I wuz over thar in the men's side of the deepot, awhile ago," she said, "looking 'round, and when I went in thar, every man was smokin', and the way they treated me was real insulting."

"You didn't expect them to stop smoking when you came in, did you?" I asked. "That's their waiting room, you know, and they have the right of way."

"She tapped the floor with her big calfskin shoe for a moment.

"But they might have been polite," she contended weakly.

"What did you want them to do."

"Well, some uv them" and here she pouted, "might a' asked me to smoke."

Then I offered her my cigar case and she took all I had and I smiled."

"Six days shalt thou labor," says the great lawgiver. To do good work man must be at his best. This condition is attained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It overcomes that tired feeling, quickens the appetite, improves digestion, and makes the weak strong.

STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

YPSILANTI GOES THROUGH A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

Its Entire Business Portion a Scene of Desolation—Handsome Residences and Business Places Wrecked—Darkness adds to the Terror of the Inhabitants.

YPSILANTI, April 12.—A cyclone has spread devastation over the business portion of this city. For about one-half hour previous to its coming a murky atmosphere indicated that a rainstorm was brewing, but nothing aside from an April shower was expected. Preceded by a slight fall of rain, the wind demon struck the city about 7.30 o'clock and in less than one moment had swept across it leaving a path of desolation in its wake.

Those who saw the cyclone coming state that it appeared like a large kite made up of slate-colored clouds much lighter than those surrounding it. As it drew nearer the funnel shape became apparent and the monster of the air assumed a darker hue.

The first place struck was the handsome residence of Prof. S. C. McChenahan, on Summit street, razing it to the ground. It then shot across to Benevolent hall, on the south side of Chicago avenue, leaving it in ruins. Then continuing in a zigzag course it crossed Chicago avenue, tearing up by roots a row of handsome maple trees and taking the roof off the residence of Wm. Krisley.

Its course down Chicago avenue and then down Congress street was continued without much damage, except for a slight injury to the residence of C. P. McKinstry, until the large double brick dwelling of Mrs. S. A. DeNike was reached and completely demolished.

The Cleary Business College, just east, was completely unroofed. The funnel-shaped cloud then swept directly south and lowered H. M. Curtis' carriage works to the ground. Drapers Opera House was next to be damaged. The roof was taken off bodily, part of it landing on and smashing to the earth the dining room and all above it of the Hawkins house. Yost's livery barn on Washington street was next unroofed. Then sweeping across Washington street the new Dolsen block and store building of W. W. Wooden was unroofed and every pane of glass in the front of this building broken. It then proceeded to Huron street, taking the roof off the Laible block and tearing out all of the second story of Fairchild's meat market.

Across Huron street to the east side it crushed the windows of the Occidental hotel, tore down derrick connected with the sanitarium, uprooted several trees and took out the north wall of the Bucklin block, tore up a barn standing in the rear of Bucklin block and with its contents including three horses, landed all at the foot of the hill on meadow land near the Huron river. Continuing its eastward course the storm cloud swept across the river mowing a path through that residence portion of the city, badly damaging dwellings and barns that lay before it. East of the river Milo Gage, Jonathan C. Voorhees, George A. Cook, John Ross and William A. Moore were the greatest losers.

Coming at an hour when the streets were lined with people, it seems like a miracle that no one should have been killed. So far as can be learned, the only person needing a surgeon's care was Robert McNeal, a farmer living near the city. He was driving down Huron street and when the storm struck the Laible block he was directly in front and received injuries upon the head from flying missiles. The horse he drove was not touched.

Perhaps the greatest consternation was experienced at the Hawkins House. Supper was still being served to late comers when, without warning, the whole upper portion of the wing where the dining room is located fell upon them. Several dining-room girls and several guests were in the room and all escaped with hardly a bruise.

Huron street has the appearance of having been the city dumping ground. It is so filled up with fragments of tin roofs, awnings, bricks, boards, telephone and telegraph wires that traffic is impossible from Pearl to Congress streets.

Hardly a whole light of glass is left in the business block bounded by Adams, Pearl, Huron and Congress streets. The damage caused is hard to estimate, but will reach many thousand dollars. After the cloud had passed, a drenching rain set in, so that most of the contents of the unroofed buildings were nearly ruined by water. The Bell Telephone company, which had just moved into the new offices in the Laible block, estimates his damage at $10,000.

Those who suffer most by damage to stock are Cook & Brown, undertakers and furniture stock; E. Holbroke, grocer; Mrs. Daniels, milliner, on Huron street. W. W. Worden, paints, oils and wall paper; Cady's restaurant and Yost's livery barn, on Washington street.

S. Draper, owner of opera house; A. L. Nowlin, Hawkins House; Mrs. H. C. Swift, livery barn, W. W. Worden, store building; R. C. Dolsen, stores, and C. Clark, S. and J. R. Wortley and Mrs. E. Laible, stores on Huron street, are the heaviest losers on business building.

Brooklyn, in Jackson county, is having a little sensation of its own. Meetings have been held at that place recently where different denominations met together on the union plan. The pastor of the Baptist church thought that a union church would be a good thing, and resigned his pastorate and called upon all Christians to join forces and unite in an undenominational church. They didn't unite, but one of the results accomplished is the splitting of the reverend gentleman's church into two or three factions.

Showing a Pass.

As a rule, the man who rides on a free pass does not seriously object to showing it, but he does hate to be annoyed and suspected by the conductor. A passenger on the Royal Blue was requested to show his pass four times between Baltimore and Philadelphia.

"Look here, Mr. Conductor," said he at last, "is there anything wrong with that pass? Did you ever see one before?"

"If you were in my place, you couldn't see them too often. You don't know perhaps that only about 1 pass in 10 is good on the vestibuled trains, and when a conductor turns in one that isn't he is responsible and must stand the loss. Yours seems to be all right, and we shall not worry you again."

It seems to be the custom of most roads to give free pass holders the benefit of the slower trains.—New York Tribune.

Handwriting on Iron.

It was a fortunate accident that led to the discovery of the method of transferring handwriting to iron. An iron founder, while experimenting with molten iron under different conditions, accidentally dropped a ticket into a mold. He presently found that the type of the ticket was transferred to the iron in distinct characters. Following up the idea which this fact suggested, he procured a heatproof ink, with which he wrote invertedly on ordinary white paper. This paper was introduced into the mold before the molten iron was poured in. When the mold cooled the paper had been consumed by the heat, but the ink, which had remained intact, had left a clear impression on the iron.—St. Louis Republic.

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASH. TENAW, S. S. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the 29th day of March in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate, in the matter of the estate of Charles H. Wines deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Fannie H. Wines praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased may be admitted to probate and that administration of said estate may be granted to herself, and Charles S. Wines and Charles H. Kempf, the executors in said will named or to some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 1st day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the devisees, legatees and heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the CHELSEA STANDARD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. # IF YOU CAN READ write and are possessed of fair intelligence, you are fully qualified to make a grand success of what we offer you. We have lately published at great expense and labor a perfect wonder in the way of an illustrated Gift Book, suitable to all classes, an ornament to any home, and at a price that brings it within the reach of all, even those of moderate means. Heretofore only those who indulged in luxuries have felt that they could afford a book of this class, as they are sold in book stores at $5.00 and upwards. The book which we offer is not in any way inferior to those above referred to, but is far superior to hundreds of books of this nature that are sold at prices exceeding ours by an enormous per cent. It is selling with a rush wherever shown. Agents have only to show the book and mention the price, and it sells on its merits without further talking. No better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but at all seasons of the year, for the reason that all will want it in their homes, and will have it as soon as they know the low price at which our agents can furnish them. Reader, if you need profitable employment, and a business in which you can enjoy yourself, as well as make money rapidly, do not fail to send for circulars containing private terms to agents, and full information, which will be sent FREE upon application. Old and new agents alike are making handsome salaries—yes, fortunes. Many of those who are making the best records are new at the agency business, having had no previous experience. Make a start—the field is entirely new. No such terms have been offered agents as we now offer on this wonderful book. Special qualifications not necessary, for it is everywhere at sight. Perhaps you have at some time been unsuccessful at the agency business. If so, there is every reason why you should try this, the PRINCE of gift books, as failure is impossible if you make A START. Write us to-day, study our circulars and directions, then order an outfit and go to work with push and energy. You may make the greatest mistake of your life, if you allow this GOLDEN opportunity to pass unimproved. E. C. Allen & Co., Box 202, Augusta, Maine.

WORLD'S FAIR MAYOR.

CARTER HARRISON ELECTED IN CHICAGO.

After a Most Exciting Campaign the Democratic Candidate Wins by Over 18,000 Plurality—Results of Municipal Elections Elsewhere—Other News.

Chicago Chooses Harrison.

After the bitterest and most stubbornly contested municipal campaign in its history, Chicago has elected Carter H. Harrison to the chief magistracy of the city. His majority is in the neighborhood of 20,000, and with him the whole Democratic city ticket is elected. The election of Harrison was opposed by every newspaper in the city except the Times (his own paper) and the Mail, and the fight has been notable for the bitter personalities indulged in by both sides. The fact, also, that the man chosen this year is to serve through the World's Fair, a period that will be most trying to the city government, has caused the whole country to watch the contest with eager interest. There were four candidates in the field, and the vote, barring a few precincts from which returns had not been received, stood as follows:

Carter H. Harrison, Dem.	108,302
Samuel W. Albertson, Citizens' Rep.	84,891
Dewitt C. Cregar, United-Citizens.	2,699
Henry Ehrenpreis, Socialist.	1,637

Carter Henry Harrison was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, Feb. 13, 1825. He graduated at Yale in 1845, read law, engaged in farming, traveled for two years in foreign countries, and finally settled in Chicago, where he engaged in real estate operations. After the great fire of '71 he served as county commissioner for three years. In 1874 he was elected to Congress and at the close of his term was re-elected, until 1879, when he was chosen Mayor of Chicago, in which office he served for four biennial terms.

ELECTIONS ELSEWHERE.

Elected to the Supreme Bench in Michigan.

A Detroit dispatch says that there is no doubt of the election of Hooker (Rep.) to the Supreme Bench by a plurality of 10,000 or over, and the Republican candidates for regents have won a still greater victory. In the old Democratic strongholds, such as Wayne and Saginaw counties, the Republicans have made great gains. They have captured Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Manistee, Lansing and other cities formerly Democratic. The Democrats elect Mayors at Ypsilanti and Port Huron, overturning Republican majorities. All the proposed constitutional amendments have undoubtedly carried, the opposition being inconsiderable. A light vote was polled throughout the State.

License Issue in Minnesota.

Party lines were not closely drawn in Minnesota cities, the contests generally hinging on the question of license. At Anoka the Democrats and Populists united against the Republicans and elected George McCaughey Mayor by a majority of 124. The combat on also elected all the Aldermen except one and all the other city officers except Treasurer. Donald Grant (Rep.) was chosen Mayor of Faribault. At Ada W. H. Bangs was elected. No license won by a majority of 3. At Wabasha the Citizens' ticket, headed by C. C. Hirschey (Dem.) for Mayor, was elected by a majority of 111. At Albert Lea T. W. Knatvold (Rep.) was chosen Mayor over W. G. Kellar by a majority of 143.

The hottest fight in South Dakota was at Watertown, where everything hinged on the question of whisky or no whisky. According to dispatches the cold-water people were defeated, the opposition candidate for Mayor, W. A. Davis, being elected by a majority of 150. All of the Aldermen and other city officials on the Davis ticket were also elected.

Republicans Carry St. Louis.

The election in St. Louis resulted in a victory for the Republicans. They secured Mayor, Collector, Council, and most of the minor officers, if not all. Cyrus P. Walbridge secures the Mayorship plum from James Bannerman by a majority of about 3,000. Henry Zelegenheim, for Collector, and Charles Nage, for President of the Council (Republicans), defeat their Democratic opponents by still larger majorities. The Republicans, it is thought, also secure every one of the six councilmen and a majority of the house of delegates.

Result in Milwaukee.

The Democrats carried Milwaukee, electing all their judicial candidates and sending Mayor Peter J. Somers to Congress to fill the vacancy caused by the election of John L. Mitchell to the United States Senate. The vote cast was surprisingly large, considering the quiet manner in which the campaign was conducted, and shows that both sides planned a surprise for each other. The Republicans did some hard and quiet work and got out a large vote, but the Democrats were equally active.

At Springfield, Ill.

At Springfield returns from over half the city show that the entire Democratic city and township ticket is elected by decisive majorities. The probability is that the Republicans have elected four out of seven aldermen.

Little Interest in Nebraska.

The result of the municipal elections in Nebraska as shown by returns from towns representing all portions of the State are without special political significance. In many places the issue was license or no license or high license or low license. The contest appears to have been about equally waged, with the advantage somewhat in favor of license. Excepting places where this question was up, no particular interest was manifested and a light vote is reported. In South Omaha O. E. Walker, the candidate of the American Protective Association, was elected over Walters, Democrat, by sixty-five majority. He carried the rest of the ticket with him by smaller majorities.

Quiet Day in Kansas.

The elections in Kansas were the most quiet and orderly ever held in the cities of the State, owing to the operation of the election law passed by the Legislature making it a fine and imprisonment to give away whisky or cigars or to pay money for votes or to influence votes. Elections were held in all the first and second class cities for Mayor, Aldermen, and members of the School Board. At these elections women generally voted, and the result is a mixed victory. Wherever the Democrats and Populists combined they defeated the Republicans. The Republicans won a victory in Topeka, electing their candidate for Mayor, D. C. Jones, by a large plurality.

WINTER WHEAT CROP.

Varying Conditions Reported from Eleven States.

A detailed report in the Farmers' Review covering eleven States shows that there has been little improvement in the condition of winter wheat since the last report. The present condition in Illinois is not even fair. Most of the reports run from fair to poor. In some counties the late sown wheat is found to be killed and will have to be plowed up. On clay lands especially the damage in some counties has been great. In other counties the late sown wheat sprouted after the advent of winter and such fields were killed by the later severe weather. In Indiana the general condition is fair. The wheat that got a good start last fall is generally doing well. Some of the fields that were believed damaged are reviving, but slowly on account of the cold nights. Much of the wheat on the low lands has been damaged by excessive wet. Ohio reports show the condition to be much better than either of the two States mentioned. The condition varies from fair to good. The early wheat is looking well, but late is not so promising. In many counties the stand is very good and without any disaster will make a fine crop. In Michigan the condition varies greatly, some reporting very good and some very poor prospects. The general condition is fair. Considerable damage has resulted from freezing. In some counties the crop is still covered with snow, and condition cannot be determined. In Kentucky the general condition is only fair. Much of the wheat was frozen out. In Missouri most of the correspondents report fair. A few report poor and a few good. Some wheat has been frozen out, and the fields look dead, while other fields look well. Conditions in Kansas are a little better than in Missouri. The crop is little rain badly. In Nebraska the general condition is good, but in most counties there has been as yet little growth. A few counties report the condition as fair. In Iowa and Wisconsin the condition is reported as fair to good. In Wisconsin many of the wheat fields are still covered with snow. Reports from Minnesota are too meager to summarize. The outlook for fruit is generally good. The trees ripened their wood well in the fall, and the buds are well developed. The condition at present is reported as from fair to good from all the States covered by our report of winter wheat. A few counties in Illinois and Michigan report the outlook poor.

JUDGE RICK'S DECISION.

Declares Against the Boycott of the Locomotive Engineers.

Now that the text of Judge Rick's decision in the Ann Arbor strike cases is published, the Court's position appears not at all revolutionary. He declares that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has no right to maintain a boycott against the interstate freight of any road on which there may be a strike. The ordering and furthering of such a boycott, he says would be criminal, under section 10 of the interstate commerce law. He, therefore, enjoins Chief Arthur and the brotherhood from enforcing the boycott rule against the Ann Arbor Road.

But when he comes to the individual rights of the engineers he declares that Clark, Case, Rutger, and Conley acted within their rights and were entitled to quit the service of the Lake Shore Road when they did. These engineers, employed by the Lake Shore, were ordered in turn to haul out a Lake Shore train in which there were Ann Arbor cars. Each in turn replied that he would quit the road's service. This, Judge Rick says, they had a right to do. Engineer Lennon, who, being out on a run, refused to switch an Ann Arbor car into his train, is judged guilty of contempt of court and fined. It seems, therefore, that the right of each individual engineer to refuse to make a run with a train containing cars for or from a road on which there is a strike is affirmed. But if preconcerted action to the end should be proven it would constitute a crime punishable by a heavy fine.

The Week at Jackson Park.

Chicago correspondence: The World's Columbian Exposition will be ready for business May 1. President Cleveland will touch the electric button, if he lives, and the spindles will whirl, and the great wheels revolve, and every door in every department will swing open so that all the world through its representatives may enter and behold the acres of exhibits which will be in place on that day. The cannon will boom across the inland sea; the flags of all countries will float in the air of a Chicago spring; the bands will play; the electric boats will dart along the lagoons, and the gondolas will move dreamily over the waters and loiter in the shadows of the great buildings. One country will vie with another in exhibits which will at that time be displayed in the most attractive manner by men of the world who have made effective beauty a study. The native of the various States of the Union will go to their State buildings and renew their allegiance in such manner as may seem best to them, and then turn to gaze with wonder at the work which has been done in Jackson Park

Not only will every requisite of health and comfort be provided without cost to the visitor, but the management has gone so far as to sterilize the drinking water, a sanitary precaution of great importance to the health of visitors.

As to charges outside of the grounds, let it be clearly understood that the best hotels have said plainly that they will not charge more than their usual prices, and the hotels of lesser magnitude will be compelled to do likewise. Chicago is full of enterprising people, and really enterprising people know that extortion ruins enterprise. There will be millions of visitors to Chicago during the exposition season, and for that very reason there will be fierce competition for their custom. There are now hundreds of restaurants in this city at which a satisfying meal can be purchased for from 15 to 25 cents, and the number of such places will be greatly increased during the year. The scramble for the patronage of visitors of moderate means will be furious. It is quite possible that the prices of the restaurants that cater for the people of small incomes will be reduced by reason of excessive competition, and it is certain that they will not be increased.

Admission Tickets.

Three hundred and seventy-five thousand tickets of admission to the Exposition have arrived and have been placed on sale down town. As already published the engraved entrance cards will be handled in the principal hotels, at the Randolph street and Van Buren street stations of the Illinois Central and at the Exposition Treasurer's office, in the Rand-McNally building. Fifty cents is the price of a ticket, and the installment just received will be good at any time from the date of purchase for over a year and a half. So it will be with those whose mother countries are under other flags. The buildings of most of the countries of the East and South which will exhibit will be ready for the reception of their children. Even Midway Plaisance, that strip about which people outside of Chicago know so little, will be ready. In one day the visitor may wander or ride, as he may be prepared, along this great highway and see how the people of countries which the tourist seldom visits live and dress.

The Plain Truth.

An impression seems to prevail in some quarters that the Columbian Exposition is to be cut up in some way into sections, and that the fifty cent entrance fee will hardly do more than admit the visitor to the vestibule. The truth is, on the contrary, that that one entrance fee will give the visitor free access to every building erected by the Exposition Company, and to all the State and foreign buildings, including all their exhibits. Every exhibit proper may be seen without any further entrance fee. The false impression in question is due to the fact that there will be some side shows, some of them in Jackson Park, some in Midway Plaisance, and some elsewhere. Those in Jackson Park and Midway Plaisance are under the supervision of the exposition management, and a certain per cent. of their receipts will go to the management. Of until the close of the Fair. A good many Chicago merchants have placed advance orders for tickets with Horace Tucker, superintendent of admissions, who is sanguine enough to estimate a revenue of more than $1,000,000 from tickets before the gates open. His estimate is re-enforced by a surprisingly large number of inquiries from souvenir collectors who wish to purchase specimen tickets of every series issued.

"An excellent remedy," is what Mr. W. H. Ames, 712 South 17th street, St. Louis, Mo., says of it, in these words: "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and found it to be an excellent remedy for coughs and colds."

To be poor, and seem to be poor, is a certain way never to rise.

A "RUN DOWN" and "used-up" feeling is the first warning that your liver isn't doing its work. And, with a torpid liver and the impure blood that follows it, you're an easy prey to all sorts of ailments.

That is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

$500 is offered, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for an incurable case of Catarrh. Their remedy perfectly and permanently cures the worst cases.

G. S. ASAY, RUSHVILLE, NEB.
An Indian Trader tells his story of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Cured of a Distressing Stomach Difficulty.

RUSHVILLE, NEB., June 5.

Some time ago after suffering severely with stomach trouble and dyspepsia, which had been greatly aggravated by the alkali water of the western country, and when I had reached that stage where I could frequently hold nothing on my stomach, and would even throw up water as soon as drank, I learned from a Sioux Indian, who had been on a visit to the Kickapoo tribe, of a wonderful remedy called "Sagwa." I got him to procure some for me. The effect was remarkable. I tried to get more from the Indian, but he would not let me have more of his. He prized it so much he would not give it up. I then learned that Healy & Bigelow, of New Haven, Conn., had an arrangement with the Kickapoo tribe, and was putting their remedies on the market. I sent and got a bottle of the Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, and found it to be the same as that I had procured from the Sioux Indian. I got more, and after the use of a few bottles, I was not only relieved but entirely cured, and have stayed cured ever since.

I can eat anything set before me. Salt bacon, which used to have a most distressing effect, I can now eat and relish like an Indian.

I cannot speak too highly of the Kickapoo remedies, and cheerfully recommend them to anyone.

"THE BLACK CROOK."
The Great Spectacular Production Now On at McVicker's.

The first of the great World's Fair spectacular ballet attractions has been inaugurated at McVicker's Chicago Theater, and "The Black Crook" is now on. The name of "The Black Crook" is familiar to every one; it was originally produced over twenty-seven years ago in New York, at Niblo's Garden, and the sensation it created then has not died yet. It was the first spectacular production this country had seen, and tight up to that time were unknown, and such magnificence, gorgeousness in costumes and scenery had never been seen before. But what would the people who witnessed "The Black Crook" then say if they could now drop into McVicker's Theater and see the performance as there presented? Manager Eugene Tompkins and James H. McVicker have put on the spectacle in unrivalled brilliancy and unexampled completeness in detail. The costumes have all been manufactured in London, and cost alone over sixty thousand dollars. The scenery has been painted by the best artists that America affords—Albert Grover, and Burridge—at a cost of not less than fifteen thousand dollars.

Speaking of the first performance, the Chicago Times says: "The big handsome theater on Madison street never was packed as it was last night. It was simply impossible to get a glimpse of the auditorium from the foyer. Seldom has Chicago seen a more gorgeous spectacle. The scenery is elaborate and beautiful, and the splendor of the affair is completed by some of the most dazzling costumes Chicago has yet seen. The most striking scenic effect is that of the illuminated terrace or electric stairway in the third act. When, near the close of the act, the grand march of the amazons is introduced, a picture of brilliancy and magnificence is presented that has rarely if ever been surpassed on the stage."

Other notable pictorial representations are "The Grand Incantation Scene," "The Birth of the Rainbow," and the transformation scene symbolizing "Want and Abundance." The ballet in the second act is well designed, and is one of the most attractive features of the entertainment. Mile. Zole Tornaghi, premier danseuse assoluta, is a ballet artiste of great skill and grace, but the most remarkable performance in this line is that of Sig. Nicola Guerra, who gives a truly marvelous exposition of the dancer's art. Among the most prominent specialties is that of Fielding, the juggler, whose wonderful feats were received with tremendous enthusiasm. The ballet to the accompaniment of popular airs was also a hit, especially "The Bowery" and "Ta-ra-ra" numbers.

The engagement of "The Black Crook" at McVicker's will continue for fourteen weeks. The other World's Fair attractions at McVicker's Theater will be Denman Thompson in his famous play, "The Old Homestead," Thos. W. Keene, the eminent American tragedian, Wm. H. Crane and his great comedy company, and Joseph Jefferson.

Curious Facts.

To the naked eye 3,000 stars are visible; the best telescopes show 5,500,000. The fixed stars are of all colors, violet, blue, green, and red predominating.

The strongest telescopes bring the moon to an apparent distance of 100 miles.

The tail of a comet is believed to be matter similar to that contained in the nebulae.

The planets Venus and Mars most nearly resemble the earth in climatic conditions.

The spectroscope has shown that the prominences on the sun are outbursts of growing hydrogen.

The sun's volume is 1,407,124 times that of the earth, and 600 times greater than all the planets.

The Argument Used

By the makers of the second-class baking powders to induce the dealer to push them off on Royal consumers is that they cost less than Royal and afford the dealer much more profit.

But you, madam, are charged the same price for them as for the absolutely pure Royal, which is perfectly combined from the most highly refined and expensive materials. The lower cost of the others is caused by the cheap, impure materials used in them, and the haphazard way in which they are thrown together.

Do you wish to pay the price of the Royal for an inferior baking powder, made from impure goods, of 27 per cent. less strength? If you buy the other powders, insist upon having a corresponding reduction in price.

The Wardroom "Boy."

The wardroom "boy" on board a man-of-war is often as old as many of those whom he serves, but the old-fashioned title and form of address sticks to him. Wardroom boys usually are colored men or foreigners. When the Haytian or Jamaican negro is obtainable he is regarded as a catch. This is truer still of the Jap. The latter seems to understand by instinct, to remember a multitude of details without effort, and to obey promptly and without question. The rule aboard ship is one boy to every two officers in the wardroom. All are immediately responsible to the steward, and through him to the mess caterer, who is one of the officers detailed for the purpose. All are under semi-military discipline, but they seem to desert with impunity.

Queer Names.

The astonishing information comes from Wyoming that a legislator named Kabis poisoned a legislator named Kime in the interest of a candidate for the United States Senate. It is not so surprising that one legislator should poison another as that two such cognomens should appear in the same connection. We would suggest to the investigating committee to inquire: "What was your name in the States?"—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Injust Taxation.

It is unjust to tax the stomach with burthens that it cannot bear. Many silly people thus tyrannize that faithful servitor until it rebels and punishes them as they deserve. Dyspepsia is usually the child of gastronomic folly, but whether this or the natural associate of inherent feebleness from childhood, it is surely and pleasantly remediable with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest and most highly sanctioned gastric tonic in existence. As a result of the tone imparted to the stomach, and the increased activity of its digestive and assimilative action, insured by the persistent use of this benign invigorant, general stamina is augmented, the nerves strengthened and tranquilized, and a tendency to insomnia and hypochondriasis defeated. Blisters, chills and fever, rheumatism and kidney troubles are conquered by this admirable medicine.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.

From Our Special Correspondent.

Of pre-eminent public interest is the discussion in the senate over the proposition to investigate the charges of criminal embezzlement that have been lodged against United States Senator, W. N. Roach, of North Dakota. Senator Hoar's resolution looking to such an investigation was the sensation of the week. The embezzlement charged is reported to have been taken place while Mr. Roach was a clerk in a Washington bank years ago, before he went to Dakota. It is thought that if official notice is taken of these accusations, a general drag-net inquiry will be commenced which may prove disastrous to more than one senatorial reputation.

The feeling which has been expressed by some republican senators in favor of non-action upon the resolution which proposes an investigation of Senator Roach is not unanimous. On the contrary, Senator Chandler is reported to have said that so far from the investigation being abandoned, an attempt would be made to widen the scope of inquiry. "We want to learn," said Senator Chandler, "if any of the money which he is alleged to have embezzled was used to procure his election, and if not, whether any funds of the national democratic committee were used for that purpose." Senator Chandler is said to believe that as the republican speaker of the Dakota house and ten republicans in all voted for the democratic candidate, Mr. Roach, there is a legitimate jurisdiction of the senate in connection with the election.

Social Washington is itself again. After forty days of fasting in a spiritual sense, it will proceed to discuss the good things of life in a social sense. Ended is Lent, the season of penitential garb and demure demeanor. Prayer books have been well thumbed. The matin ringing and vesper chimes have fallen upon attentive ears. The preacher has acquired full development of the cough which is to give him his annual holiday. But it is over. Bright garments take the place of those which were dove-colored, and the sober covering for the head gives place to an Easter bonnet that is a marvel of cost.

The gayety which follows Easter Sunday is the reaction from unaccustomed restraint. In the light which came through the stained windows the tapers have burned dimly, and white bosoms have been gently smitten. The "mea culpa" has come from the lips more used to the light jest of the drawing room or the sibilant whispers of the conservatory. But heads that ripple over with curls and eyes wont to challenge to the tourney lists of flirtation cannot remain forever bowed and chastely shaded. In fact, the owners consider forty days ample time in which to atone for the slight sins of an occasional loss of temper and speaking a little bit harshly of one's neighbors. Washington women are like other women, and enjoy freedom. Now they have it, in all their radiance. The capital has long been celebrated for the beauty of its women. Owing to the opposite character of its population and the fact that it makes drafts upon all sections of the country, it possesses samples of every kind of femininity. They all go to make up the national vanity fair. The ball is again started, the social kaleidoscope turns rapidly, and the city is on with the dance.

A slackening of the office-seeking rush has commenced. Many of the representatives left for home during the past week, and those who remain are nearly all committed in favor of some one candidate for the larger offices. While, however, the total of office-seekers in town has decreased, others continue to arrive, and in this way manage to keep up an imposing attendance. There is no question but that the demands upon the presidential time arising from this source will run through the month of April and into the month of May.

It seems to be definitely settled in the congressional mind that there is to be an extra session of that body in September to get the work of tariff reform under way at the earliest possible date, and Senator Gorman is credited with the statement that the two houses would be asked to assemble on September 18. A statement that the present extra session of the senate will probably adjourn by the 10th instant is also ascribed to Mr. Gorman.

The public debt statement for March, issued by the treasury department, shows a net decrease in the debt of $1,956,173.88. The aggregate interest and non-interest bearing debt March 31 was $962,828,219.13, on February 28, it was $963,281,752.68. The total cash in the treasury March 31 was $762,763,327.26 against which liabilities were outstanding to the amount of $738,137,699.05, leaving an available surplus of $25,630,728.21. The receipts for the month of March were $34,438,844.99, and expenditures $42,327,997.73. In February the receipts were $30,009,892.23 and expenditures $31,677,454. Custom receipts increased from $16,936,395.28 to 19,644,874.60.

The records of the pension office at the change of the administration showed that there were 952,336 persons drawing pensions from the United States Government on disabilities incurred in wars in which this country took part. Of this number 922,801 are credited to the war of the rebellion. The pension rolls carry 128 survivors of the war of 1812, and 6,080 widows of soldiers who fought in this war. There are 14,607 pensioned survivors of the Mexican war.

There are excellent reasons for believing that Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Maxwell will prove a record breaker with Adlai's ax.

Undemonstrative Americans.

How many American boys over 15 kiss their parents? They've outgrown such "soft" demonstrations, and all because they have not been held to the pretty custom.

Anyhow we Americans are curiously undemonstrative among ourselves. I have seen men—brothers—parting who were thrilled by the strongest motives toward each other, and somehow they seemed as helpless as dumb animals in expressing it. Each knew how the other felt, of course, but only because he knew what he felt himself. He couldn't do anything, he couldn't say anything, because he was a man and an Anglo-Saxon.—Washington Post.

Couldn't Spare Him.

Mrs. Witherby—Is it necessary, dear, for you to attend the directors' meeting as often as once a week?
Mr. Witherby—Yes, darling; they might get along without some of the others, but I have such a good financial head that I have to act as banker.—Clothes and Furnisher.

A GREAT SHOT.

Wonderful Feats of a Hunter Who Could Shoot.

"The finest rifle shot that ever walked the soil of the west was a man named 'King' Woolsey, an old timer, who lived near Yuma, A. T., in the good old stage days of the west, 20 years ago," said Wallace McLaurin, a commercial tourist of Philadelphia, as he was swapping stories with a half dozen other drummers at the Lindell last night. "I remember him well, for I used to live in the wild and woolly west before I commenced selling goods on the road. This man Woolsey was originally from Ohio. He moved to Arizona in his early childhood. When he was about the age of 10 his father and mother were killed and scalped by the Apaches. He hid in the rocks and escaped. Five years later, when he was a mere boy, he went on the warpath for the Apaches, and he never spared one. He could not count exactly how many he had killed in his life.

"The last time I saw him was one day while the stage stopped to let the horses rest near Texas hill, on the Gila river, in 1872. His fame as a rifle shot had spread all over the west, and the mention of his name filled the Apache's heart with fear and trembling. The passengers persuaded him to give an exhibition of his marksmanship, and he consented. He nailed a board up to the side of a little shanty and put 100 balls at a distance of 100 yards in the same place without the difference of a sixteenth of an inch in 100 shots. He then drove the nails far into the board with 10 more shots. Every one applauded.

"Then he took a common bullet, tied it to an infinitesimally small thread, fastened the thread to the limb of a tree 20 feet above the ground, placed a small neck bottle on the ground and started the bullet swinging to and fro. He walked back 50 paces, wheeled suddenly around and fired.

"Well, gentlemen, you may stuff me with sawdust and exhibit me as the biggest liar in the universe if Woolsey didn't cut that string in twain with his rifle ball and make the bullet drop in the mouth of the bottle."—St. Louis Republic.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equaled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood-diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. Jarmann, 33 William st., New York City.
