WORLD'S FAIR LETTER.

Our Special Correspondent.

A cloudy, raw day, but without rain, was so much better than the weather the past week gave reason to expect, that the great Exposition can be said to have opened under favorable auspices. A brighter day would have made a larger attendance, but every spectator present is ready to make affidavit that the attendance was sufficiently large for comfort.

The opening was notable in many ways, not the least being that no other public occasion outside of Washington has ever brought the president, vice president and all the cabinet with a single exception to participate.

Add to this the Duke of Veragua, only eleven generations distant from the discovery of Chicago or America (which means the same thing to-day), and there is a combination worthy of occurring once in 400 years. The Duke is accompanied by his brother, but as he attracts little or no attention, I have been wondering how many more generations distant he is from Columbus than the Duke.

But waiving abstruse questions, the fair has been opened on time and there now seems no reason why the exhibitors should not go ahead with their work and in the course of a few weeks have their wares and inventions in readiness for the public.

While the exhibits are already colossal, they will be vastly increased when the remainder comes on the scene.

THE EXHIBITION STARTED.

Aside from the fainting of several women and children, and possibly injuring some in the crush among those who gathered to see and hear the president, opening day was not marred by disaster. It is not an easy matter to handle 150,000 to 175,000 people when all are trying to occupy the same position. The brevity of the president's speech was commendable and the comfort of the crowd would have increased if Rev. Milburn had divided his prayer into five sections, and omitted about four and a half. It was three or four times as long as the president's address. But the wheels go around and by some mistake it only threatened, but did not absolutely rain. When Chicago has a first-class pleasant spring day, there should be a special celebration of the event. Opening day might have been worse weather-wise.

THE SIDE SHOWS.

Midway Plaisance is part of the park system of Chicago, being quite a wide strip of land, just one mile long, connecting Washington and Jackson Parks. The Plaisance is a portion of the park grounds which your 50 cent ticket of admission entitles you to visit. You can enter the viaduct in front of the woman's building, or you take the Seventy-first street—Wabash Avenue cable car to the Washington Park entrance, and, walking through the Plaisance, enter Jackson Park through the viaduct already mentioned. Midway Plaisance is what the side-show is to the circus, the extra touch. There are forty different exhibits nearly all of which charge an admission. Two or three are free, but make up for that by having something attractive to sell.

Nearly all charge 25 cents admission but a few are fifty cents, and from $10 to $12 is required to see all the sights in the Plaisance.

The collection of people from different parts of the globe in their various costumes and style of living, is a curiosity of itself. There are Turks, Egyptians, Arabs, Javanese from the Isle of Java, Chinamen, Ceylonese from the island of Ceylon, Laplanders residents of the Barbara States, Dahomeytes, Japanese, Persians, Siamese, Mexicans, Indians, Zulus, Swiss, Corsicans, German Irish, English and Americans, each with some characteristic exhibit or show.

There are twenty-three different languages spoken in the Plaisance and as many different nationalities represented. No such combination was ever before seen or attempted.

The side shows, like the big exhibits, are still in somewhat chaotic shape but when the Plaisance assumes a more definite form a little later, I will take a walk with my readers among the various and curious people here congregated.

A MINING EXHIBIT.

The Liberty bell is not the only attractive feature of the Pennsylvania exhibit. The much criticised coal barons have sent from the Reading mines a model of an anthracite coal crusher which stands thirty feet high. The crusher is accompanied by miniature engines and but for the dust, the machine might do practical work in the mines and mining building where it is located. That state also contributes solid blocks of anthracite weighing eight and ten tons. The Pennsylvania exhibit in the Mine and Mining building occupies 3,307 square feet. With the exception of Michigan, which occupies 3,308 feet, Pennsylvania exceeds any state in the union or foreign country in the space occupied by her display in this department.

CONDITION OF GROUNDS.

Visitors who do not find the grounds in apple pie order the first week of the Exposition should not shoulder the entire blame on the management. The very nature of the work, the receiving of exhibits on temporary railroad tracks and by trucks, precluded the clearing up of the grounds until the last moment. In the last eight days prior to the opening, seven were rainy and some regular down-pours. The exhibits are still pouring in so that the tracks cannot be removed and roads and walks put in permanent order. While some portions of the grounds are in good shape to-day, other parts impassable for the pedestrian and unless the weather changes this condition is not likely to improve for some time to come. Between the weather and tardy exhibitors the opening is not propitious.

He Was Business All the Way Through.

"Now, if you show me where the burglars got into your store," said the detective, I will see if I can find some clue."

"In a moment," said the proprietor. "I am working at something a little more important than hunting for a clue just now. Take a seat."

And while the detective waited the merchant wrote as follows at his desk. "The man who broke into Katzenhefter's store on the night of the 14th and carried away a silk hat, a fur trimmed overcoat, a black broadcloth suit and two suits of silk underwear was a black hearted villain and a scoundrel, but a man whose judgment cannot be called in question. He knew where to go when he wanted the finest clothing the market affords."

"Jacobs," he said to the bookkeeper "send a copy of this to all the papers in town, and tell 'em I want it printed in big black type to-morrow morning. Now Mr. Hawkshaw, I am at your service."

Hall's Hair Renewer enjoys the confidence and patronage of people all over the civilized world who use it to restore and keep the hair a natural color.

The man who called sarsaparilla a fraud, had good reason; for he got hold of a worthless mixture at "reduced rates." He changed his opinion, however, when he began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It pays to be careful, when buying medicines.

"A wolf in sheep's clothing"—the substitute offered by the "cutter" as being just as good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you don't want to be bitten insist upon having Ayer's Sarsaparilla even if it is a little dearer. Depend on it, it will be cheaper for you in the end.

HAACKINSON IS NEXT.

SENT TO THE WALL BY SIOUX CITY'S UPHEAVAL.

One of Lansing's Banks Forced to Quit—
Western Railroads Cutting Each Other's Throats—Rescue of Shipwrecked Sailors —Women Draw the Color Line.

SIOUX CITY'S STORM NOT OVER.

A SIOUX CITY dispatch says: Ed Haackinson, the pork-packer, Chicago Board of Trade operator and real estate speculator, went to the wall as a result of the recent failures of the last two days, and filed a general assignment of all his property, real and personal, and of his stocks and credits, etc., for the benefit of his creditors, naming Henry J. Taylor, his attorney, as assignee. No schedule of assets and liabilities has yet been filed, and no accurate idea of what they are is obtainable. It is known, though, that his failure is due to his business connections with D. T. Hedger and the defunct Unity Loan and Trust Company. Henry J. Taylor, the assignee, said: "Mr. Haackinson has assets more than sufficient to meet his liabilities. Some of the creditors threatened to attach, though, and he was forced to assign to protect the interests of all creditors and of himself. There was no need of pressing him and none why he should assign."

RATES WILL BE LOW.

FEARS need no longer be entertained that people from the West who desire to visit the World's Fair Exposition will be kept away by high railroad rates. Judging by present indications, World's Fair rates from the West will be as low as any one can possibly desire. The Santa Fe and Rio Grande roads are gradually involving all the Western lines. The blow struck by the Rio Grande on Tuesday in reducing the round-trip rate from Denver and other Colorado points to the Missouri River from $29 to $25 has caused a panicky feeling among the railway officials, and it is expected that if more provocation is offered rates will go down to one fare for the round trip, if not lower.

Another Crash at Lansing.

THE Ingham County Savings Bank at Lansing, Mich., closed its doors Thursday morning. This is the bank on which the run began April 19. At that time Bank Commissioner Sherwood made a speech which calmed the excitement for the time. The closing of the bank is due to its inability to realize on securities. The directors met and decided that it would be best to close the bank for a time. They attribute the bank's difficulties to the unsatisfactory condition of the money market as much as to the Barnes failure.

BREVITIES.

UNDER the sugar bounty act the United States has paid out $3,451,679, and the entire amount for the year will reach $9,100,000.

DR. WM. M. EVERETT, Democrat, has been elected to Congress from the Seventeenth Massachusetts District to succeed Henry Cabot Lodge.

DR. ROBERT W. BUCHANAN, who has been on trial for poisoning his wife at New York, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S sojourn at the Villa Palmieri, near Florence, ended Thursday, when she started for England, accompanied by the Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg.

A RECEIVER has been appointed for the Lehigh Coal and Iron Company of St. Paul. A. G. Yates, who recently failed at Rochester, N. Y., is President of the company, and the trouble is directly due to his failure.

CAPT. R. T. EVANS and the four men supposed to have been lost off the steamer Ohio, have arrived at Cheboygan. They were found nearly starved on Cockburn Island, having been without food for three days.

THE Nebraska Legislature appropriated $15,000 for impeachment expenses, and the enrolling clerks made the item to read $25,000. Some expenses have already been paid, but the validity of the entire appropriation is now questioned.

THE "Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic in Kentucky" have drawn the color line. Several circles composed of white women have surrendered their charters because the State encampment at Louisville was controlled by colored members.

THE arrest of D. P. Thompson, President, and Joseph W. Lithgow, Secretary of the alleged Davenport-Mutual Fire Insurance Company, by the post-office authorities is probably not the end of it. Developments show that the company was doing business all over the country.

TWO CHESTERTON (Ind.) saloonkeepers have been sued by Mrs. John Weston for $2,000 each because they sold liquor to her husband. She charges that they made her husband drunk, in consequence of which he remained out all night, and froze his fingers so badly that they had to be amputated.

CAPT. GILBERT C. WILTS, who commanded the Boston when her men raised the stars and stripes at Honolulu Jan. 16, died Wednesday at his home, 42 East Fifty-third street, New York. His two years' tour of sea duty was completed just after the Hawaiian incident, and he returned a month ago in excellent health. A week ago he was taken ill with congestion of the brain.

EASTERN.

MAYOR BOODY, of Brooklyn, has vetoed valuable franchises on the ground that no pecuniary consideration was attached.

JOSEPH S. HARRIS has been succeeded as President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company by Edward B. Leisenring.

AUSTIN LATHROP, Superintendent of Prisons, lays the blame for the escape from the prison at Sing Sing, N. Y., of Murderers Rohl and Pallister on Guard Hulz and Yardman John Maher.

A STEAM SCOW, used in transporting fire-clay from the Queen's Run Company mines to the works in Lock Haven, Pa., was capsized in a heavy gale of wind and three men were drowned.

REPORTS from oyster-growing districts along the Connecticut coast indicate that the oyster crop was almost ruined by a severe storm which passed over Long Island Sound, covering the beds with a layer of sand.

At a home-rule meeting at Buffalo Lieutenant Governor Sheehan presided and Colonel John R. Fellows of New York and other prominent speakers delivered the addresses. About $5,000 was subscribed to the fund.

THE recent A. G. Yates failure at Rochester, N. Y., caused the failures of the Crescent Coal Company, the Ohio Coal Exchange Company, and the Jacksonville Store Company, all at Columbus, Ohio, and these companies passed into the hands of receivers.

At the meeting of the Philadelphia Presbytery there was a lively discussion over the overtures to the General Assembly. The warmest discussion was on the infant damnation question. It was decided to negative this overture and request the General Assembly to hand down an overture striking out all reference to the election of infants. The overture of predestination was affirmed by a vote of 35 to 5.

SUNDAY'S fire record is a big one. The lumber yard of Ezra Finn & Co., at Scranton, Pa., was destroyed by fire, with a loss of $50,000; the insurance was only partial. Trotter Bros.' warehouse at Montreal, Que., was badly damaged by fire; loss will be $60,000. A large Indianapolis (Ind.) business block burned. The loss will reach at least $50,000. The losers are: Hoffman's Hotel, Wilson's furniture store, two saloons owned by James Richey and John Stewart, and Dick's saddlery and harness store. There was no insurance. A fire in the Daniels building, Providence, R. I., caused a possible loss of $30,000. The fire was extinguished in short order, but the entire structure was flooded. The building was occupied by the Daniels, Cornell company, wholesale grocers, and a number of office concerns. Capt. H. B. Beecher fell 10 feet through an elevator cell. His injuries, though serious, may not prove fatal.

WESTERN.

THE DIXON, a colored man, shot and killed Mike Nolaker, of Kansas City, at St. Louis.

In a test case it was decided that the poll-tax of $2.50 imposed by the city charter of Kansas City, Mo., upon every male person over the age of 21 who fails to vote at any general election may be enforced. The outcome will bring thousands of dollars into the city treasury.

An insecure foundation to an interior wall in the Garl Company's electric plant, in course of construction at Cincinnati, Ohio, caused the falling of the partition wall. Fourteen bricklayers and their helpers engaged on the fourth story fell into the basement. One was killed outright and seven were injured, four fatally.

TRAIN No. 1, south-bound on the Cincinnati Southern Road, encountered a freight car which had been blown upon the main track at Retro, Tenn. The entire train, except the rear sleeper, was thrown from the track and the engine turned over. No one was hurt except Engineer Conroy, who was slightly injured.

THE Union Loan and Trust Company, of Sioux City, Iowa, failed Tuesday for upward of two million dollars, and many other concerns, upon whose papers it was indorser, made assignments. Chief among the failures are the Terminal Railroad and Warehouse Company, $750,000; Sioux City Store Works, $300,000; E. R. Smith Company, $100,000; Hotel Garretson, $780,000. Others will probably go under.

At Butte, Mont., by a fire in one of the shafts of the Butte and Boston Company nine miners were cut off from escape and others burned or suffocated. All hope of rescue of those imprisoned has been abandoned. Their names are: Richard Andrews, Antonio Beard, Frank Gerard, Thomas Gray, James Nolto, Edward Pasco, E. Puglis, Sam Rovolto, Richard Tremboth. The origin of the fire is not known. It may have been started by a candle stuck in the timbers.

A WELLS-FARGO express car coming east on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad caught fire from sparks from the engine at Hancock Siding, N. M., and the car and contents were entirely consumed. The messenger escaped uninjured. There were three safes in the car, each containing at least $25,000 in $20 gold pieces and a large quantity of currency, besides a lot of watches and other jewelry. Many of the gold pieces are badly scorched and a large number melted together.

FIRE Tuesday morning destroyed the First Regiment Armory at Chicago, which had just been reconstructed into the Trocadero Theater. The flames broke out in the rear portion of the building and rapidly ate their way to the magazines. The explosion of the stores of powder shattered the walls and soon after the firemen got to work the north wall, with a crash which blended with the explosion of powder, fell across the Illinois Central tracks. The firemen narrowly escaped death from the ruin, and two employees in the building were killed.

THE fifth week of the triumphant career of "The Black Crook" commenced Monday evening at McVicker's Theater. This spectacle in its finery and magnificence has never been equaled on a Chicago stage, and every night banks of humanity are packed in McVicker's handsome auditorium and the building fairly shakes with their applause and laughter. Thomas O'Brien has added a new song and a number of new acts to his already long list of specialties. Pretty Louise Montrose is as bewitching as ever, and Mr. Fielding, the juggler, is just as entertaining. The four French dancers continue to kick, and Stalacta leads the Silver army over the brilliantly lit staircase and fights with Hertzog every evening. The Bowery and the Ta-ra-ra-ra ballets are vociferously applauded, as well as Mlle. Tornaghi, fairy-like ballet dancer, and Signor Nicola Guerra, whose pirouetting is marvelous; it lasts for fifty-two bars of music. And the grand climax to all these many features and beautiful scenes is the wondrous transformation scene, which is indeed a revelation.

TWO HUNDRED irate Zulus, on their way to the World's Fair, took possession of a train while still 100 miles out of Chicago, and Conductor Brown, with his brakemen, had to barricade the door of the baggage-car to save their lives. At 4 o'clock in the morning word was received by Lieut. Creighton at the Grand Crossing police station that the black men were fighting mad, and requesting that a strong force of officers be sent to meet the train at Sixty-first street. With intrepid bravery the Lieutenant summoned his men, loaded them into a patrol wagon, and, without stopping to reflect on the deadly effect of an assegai hurled by a half-naked savage, drove off to the depot. On the arrival of the train the imprisoned trainmen were released, and it was found that one of the Zulus claimed to have been robbed of some petty trumpery. Hence the trouble. The savages were quieted by a promise that the guilty man on being found should have a spear jabbed through his body. As soon as this promise had been translated to the black warriors the entire 200 crowded around the Lieutenant, and each offered his services as manipulator of the spear during the jabbing process. After this they quietly submitted to being installed on Midway Plaisance.

SOUTHERN.

COTTON in Louisiana has been greatly injured by the recent cold spell and frost.

THE Fueno coal mines near Piedras Negras, Mexico, have been sold to C. P. Huntington for $500,000.

L. O. DESFORGES, member of the New Orleans City Council, shot and killed his brother-in-law, Peter McGuinn.

PIT BOSS INGLE has been assassinated as a result of the troubles in the Eureka Company mines near Spadra, Ark.

THE centenary celebration by the Catholics of the New Orleans See was held Tuesday. Cardinal Gibbons was present.

THE Surrey Lumber Company's mills at Dendron, Va., with 6,000,000 feet of lumber, have been burned. Loss, $600,000.

In an affray in Mexico, just across the line from Phoenix, Ari., Frank Peary and Wm. Brook, miners, killed the Mexican Sheriff and five other Mexicans. Both the Americans escaped.

LOTTA COLE, the daughter of John Cole, of Covington, Va., was found to be chained to the floor of her room, and was released by officers. It is said her father chained her there two weeks ago to prevent her eloping. Her lover complained to the authorities during her father's absence, and Sergeant Kerr was instructed to free her, which he did against the protests of her aunt and mother, who were guarding her in her room. Great indignation is felt in the community over the cruelty.

WASHINGTON.

GEN. PATRICK A. COLLINS will enter upon his duties as Consul General at London, Saturday.

SECRETARY CARLISLE, acting under the personal direction of the President, communicated to the bankers of New York Monday a proposition in writing for a gold loan to the Government of $50,000,000.

The Hawaii Commissioners at Washington say the advice they have received indicate that the provisional government is not only strongly entrenched but is alert and watchful. Commissioner Carter called on Secretary Gresham Tuesday, and returns to Honolulu by the next steamer, satisfied that all is well.

In an interview concerning the financial situation, President Cleveland said: "The inclination on the part of the public to accept newspaper reports concerning the intention of those charged with the management of our national finances seems to justify my emphatic contradiction of the statement that the redemption of any kind of Treasury notes except in gold has at any time been determined upon or contemplated by the Secretary of the Treasury or any other member of the present administration. The President and his cabinet are absolutely harmonious in the determination to exercise every power conferred upon them to maintain the public credit, to keep up the public faith, and to preserve the parity between gold and silver, and between all financial obligations of the government. While the law of 1890 forcing the purchase of a fixed amount of silver every month provides that the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, may redeem in either gold or silver the treasury notes given in payment of silver purchases, yet the declaration of the policy of the government to maintain the parity between the two metals seems so clearly to regulate this discretion as to dictate their redemption in gold. Of course, perplexities and difficulties have grown out of an unfortunate financial policy which we found in vogue, and embarrassments have arisen from ill-advised financial legislation confronting us at every turn, but with cheerful confidence among the people, and a patriotic disposition to co-operate, threatened danger will be averted, pending a legislative return to a better and sounder financial plan. The strong credit of the country, still unimpaired, and the good sense of our people, which has never failed in time of need, are at hand to save us from disaster."

FOREIGN.

RUIN is threatened to crops in Germany by a prolonged drought.

THE grip has raised the death rate of Paris in an extraordinary manner.

THE Norwegian storthing has adjourned sine die owing to King Oscar's attitude on the demand of the storthing for separate consular representation for Norway.

BARON ROTHSCHILD has given his Reichenau chateau and estates in the Styrian Alps to be used for sufferers from lung diseases. The property is valued at $1,650,000.

EMPEROR WILLIAM, of Germany, paid a visit to the Pope in the Vatican, and returned to the Quirinal, where he is the guest of the King. The papal interview lasted an hour.

THE Sultan of Turkey sent his congratulations to Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria and his bride on the day of the wedding and will receive them when they touch at Constantinople on their wedding trip.

THE Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, estimates the expenditures of the British Government for the current year at £91,464,000 and the revenue at £89,890,000, leaving a deficit of £1,574,000. He proposes to increase the income tax a penny in the pound to meet the deficiency.

A FATAL panic occurred at the Church of Torre Annunziata, in Naples. "During the services, which were attended by a very large number of persons, part of the draperies about the altar was blown against a lighted candle. The flames spread with great rapidity, and the congregation made a rush for the doors. Eight women and five children were crushed to death, while hundreds of others were more or less injured. The fire was quickly extinguished."

IN GENERAL.

A QUEBEC paper has been investigating the exodus from that province and declares that it reaches 20,000 a month.

REPORTS from Hawaii say that matters are approaching a dangerous condition. The royalists are declared to be growing bolder because of the weakness of the provisional government, and a conflict is expected in the near future. Nearly a hundred of the provisional government's soldiers were poisoned recently, and the royalists are charged with attempting to put them out of the way in order to execute a coup.

R. G. DUN & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Country doubts have overshadowed all other influences at New York, but have not greatly affected trade at most other points. Wheat has fallen 2½ cents, with sales of 40,000,000 bushels, corn 2½ cents, oil 2½ cents, and coffee 1½ cents. Wheat receipts have been 2,200,000 at Western ports in four days, and Atlantic exports not 600,000 bushels. Pork products are somewhat lower, though declining less than corn. In the cotton market liquidation has continued, and, with sales of 1,200,000 bales here, the price has dropped five-sixteenths. The week's receipts from plantations are fully up to last year's, and Southern advices generally indicate some increase this year in acreage. Reports from other cities show extensive embarrassment from severe storms and the backward spring, with some signs of shrinkage in trade from other causes. The tardy spring makes clothing quiet and the advance in shoes retards buying. The building trade is active and the demand for lumber large, but sales of wool are moderate. Iron is somewhat weaker, but the glass trade is active. Money is active and close everywhere.

DEATH CAME ROARING.

AWFUL RESULTS OF THE OKLAHOMA STORM.

Wrecked Sailors Rescued—The Ann Arbor Railroad Has Rained Many—Arrival of an Escaped Forger—Discrimination by Toronto Banks.

Cyclone in Oklahoma.

THE country west and southwest of Moore, O. T., was swept by a terrible cyclone at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. Great damage was done; how much will not be known until the telegraph communication destroyed by the storm is renewed. The new hand makes it certain that ten people were killed, as many more injured, and untold property destroyed. Among the dead are: J. O'Connor and his wife, family, consisting of five persons; Hanks, H. C. Clements, and child; Henry Bateman. Tom Weaver had arm broken and was otherwise injured and is in a serious condition. Three Mr. Hanks' family were seriously and perhaps fatally injured. The house was blown to atoms and the family only extricated after desperate efforts had been put forth. Phil Dwyer's house was moved twenty feet. His invalid wife and babe, who were the second story at the time the storm came up, were carried away with the building, but miraculously escaped serious injury. Frank Brown's house was blown away just as he and the family escaped. Most of the people escaped to their cyclone caves, having had warning of the impending danger. Further casualties cannot be ascertained, but it seems certain that there were many more. Though the cyclone lasted but a minute or so the wreck in its wake was awful. A path half mile in width and eight miles long was laid in waste. Houses, barns and everything in its way went down.

Later—Further reports of the cyclone multiply the horrors. The latest estimate is that thirty-six people were killed and twenty-five injured. One hundred and twenty-five persons are left in destitute circumstances and thirty-eight houses were swept away. It is feared that the death roll will reach fifty.

Chinese Restriction.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY CARTER at San Francisco, has been advised by Attorney General Olney that he need not order the arrest and deportation of unregistered Chinese, in accordance with the provisions of the Geary law for the reason that prompt hearing and judgment on the constitutionality of the law is expected by the United States Supreme Court, and while the legality of the act is in question matters would only be complicated by a wholesale attempt to enforce its provisions.

CHAPTER XVI.—Continued.

No, I must return; it is better that I should talk here; I wish to speak to you, Ralph.

Why, Ralph has gone to New York. I heard, so I believed; but did you go to New York?

Certainly, there cannot be any doubt that, for a letter came only a few days ago from the Captain.

That is strange," said Untilla, drawing her little red hand across her brow. "But why should you, think it and wonder?"

"I cannot explain, Lea, I do not quite understand the ground for my dread, I fear that some great harm has been done, or is about to befall, Ralph."

"Who could harm him. Your father does not like him, I fear; but his chief of the Montauks, is not a man to be trifled with."

"I cannot answer for men who do not know, not even for Uncas when he is in his head to catch the words of the tempters. This Capt. Fox did sail for New York. His ship returned for nearly a day off Montauk, when he sailed to the south, after seeing some of his people on shore."

"How do you know this? Did you see him?" asked Lea, excitedly.

"I did not see it, but those who told would not lie."

"May there not have been a good reason for this?"

"Yes, but I can but think it means harm to Ralph."

"He can take care of himself."

"One man would be weak in the presence of a ship full. I know Capt. Fox is the enemy of Ralph Denham. Has he not met my brother, and roused his anger until he has been a demon?"

"I am amazed!" gasped Lea.

"And then this Col. Gramam—Do you know that he visited this place twenty years ago?"

"Yes, and I were not here then, Uncas."

"True, but those are living who can tell him, though he is much changed. Is the man who brought Ralph here. Who told you that?"

"Dinah; she knows this Gramam. She told me."

"Stop that! Don't say too much, honey! time will break in' ob dem ar seals to me yet."

"The two girls turned around to find Dinah standing behind them, with her hands resting on the top of her head, and her chin resting on her hands."

"Dinah sprang to her feet, and through the dusk of her oval cheeks the deep mine of surprise, and, it may be, of fear, shone."

"I feel, Dinah, that she, that Lea, knows what I know," said Untilla, "for her life runs nearer to mine."

"Dinah said. Wy, have de news go and 'll ruin all? Let de story git in Sag Harbor 'll never see 'im. Can't ye leave dat to me, ez as twenty year of my old life to de 'tch to finish? De ind is nigh de end of my life, en de ind of acts ez is in de ind de old dried-up skin. Ize 'tch 'im, en I'll keep a watchin'."

"See dat swallowed de fader won't be de son. Ralph Den'm's day of second trial hez come, en if he gits safe, den de worl 'll see who he is, den ez hez turn'd up dere noses, he's no on's son, 'll git down en de of de feet of one ez hez de of de nobelst in his veins."

"The old woman straightened up as she spoke, and the girls looked at her with surprise."

"Dinah and there she pledged them to keep, and when Lea said:

"I have nothing to keep secret."

"Dinah responded:

"Don't say ez 'ow we ever talked at Ralph Den'm's name. Wait till we's ready to talk 'bout it."

CHAPTER XVII.

THE LANDING.

It was a dark night, with a stiff, west wind dashing mighty waves against the headland of Montauk, where, in accordance with a signal now kept beacons burning at the guidance of ships making their way to the waters of the Sound.

The wanderer had been out of sight for four days, when the lookout, near the masthead, shouted out:

"A light on the starboard bow!"

Through the rain and the spray blown by the caps of waves by the fierce summer storm, Captain Fox made the light, and at once took his place at the wheel, for, though nearly bare poles, the little boat was being close-reefed, the Wanderer leaping across the waves like a horse under the spurs of a desperate rider.

Just above the wind that whistled through the rigging, louder than the groaning of the spars and the dash of the waves, rang out the sharp voice of Captain Fox.

"Participation of danger every man on deck, and as quick as the orders were given they were shouted out by officers along the deck, and the men obeyed them as they sprang to obey."

There was not a light visible on the horizon, and, save the flickering light, which the storm threatened to wash, on the distant headland, the boat was enveloped in a darkness that felt.

On dashed the cruiser, till the beacon was well down on the left, now larboard and lee.

As she rounded the point a flash of lightning, that made Fox utter a horrible oath, lit up the bay to the westward, showing that the headland broke the force of the wind and left the water comparatively calm.

Just as the beacon on Montauk Point, was fading from view, another light flashed close down to the shore and not more than a mile ahead.

At the Captain's order, every stitch of sail went down with a run, and before the treacherous tide could seize the ship, the command to let go both anchors was given.

Then followed a dash, and a roaring noise, and a spurt of flame where the flying cables ignited the woodwork, and the Wanderer swung round with her head to the wind.

"That was an easier job than I expected, sir," said a dripping officer, coming back to where the captain was standing.

"Tut!" replied Fox, "the man that couldn't do as I have, isn't fit to command a Yarmouth bloater smack. See that everything is made snug, and the watch set, then come below. We have other work before us to-night."

"Aye, aye, sir," replied the officer, turning away.

"Give me a little brandy, Don, for I am wet to the bone," said Fox, when he entered the cabin.

The cabin boy, with that alacrity that distinguished every one subject to this man's orders, was about to start off, when the last word was uttered, but he was halted by a gesture from his master.

"See here, Don."

"Yes, sir."

"Has the storm disturbed him?" Fox jerked his thumb in the direction of the cabin, where Ralph was sleeping.

"Not much, sir," replied Don.

"Has it disturbed him at all?"

"I can't say, sir. I only know that he has muttered in his sleep."

"You couldn't make out what he said?"

"He said once, 'tis a long, long voyage,' and then called 'Lea.'"

"The longest voyage he ever started on—a voyage from which never a craft returned that ever set out. But away, and get me the brandy."

Don hurried off, and Fox, lighting a candle, went into the room where Captain Denham was lying, as he had been lying for five days, wholly oblivious to the world.

Fox bent over and pressed his ear to the broad, slow-heaving chest.

"Strong as a lion. Gad, it seems a bit of a pity that such a fine fellow can only serve my purpose in this way. If he were in league with our ships and crews, we would be monarchs of every ocean on which the sun shines. We could own rich argosies, and make treaties with kings. But the Palitons were ever either angels or devils, and this man is not a devil."

He came out as he said this and noiselessly closed the door behind him.

In the meantime Don had come in with the brandy, and Fox took a glass as another man might take water.

He was in the act of setting down the glass, when the officer, whom he addressed on deck, came down, with his hat in his hand.

"Take some brandy, Folsom. Has the rain ceased?"

"I think so, sir," said Folsom, smacking his lips, in anticipation of the brandy, and proceeding to help himself.

"Is the light still visible on shore?"

"Yes, sir."

"Frenauld is there. Signal him that I will be ashore in a short time. Get the boat ready, but do not lower it. I am going to land my sick friend," said the captain.

"I understand, sir."

"Select good, cool men, and when all is ready let me know."

"Aye, aye, sir."

Folsom, a heavy, dark-faced man, had his foot on the first step of the companion-way, about to ascend to the deck, but Fox stopped him.

"See the steward. Tell him that Mr. Frenauld and his three men will be hungry when they come on board to-night. Put an awning up aft; I want to keep the rain from the sick man."

"Aye, aye, sir."

"Seeing that Captain Fox waved his hand by way of dismissal, Folsom went on deck.

The ship's lamps were now lit and the watch was set. The ship swinging at her anchors, presented a very different picture from the wild bark plunging over the mad waves and through the darkness straight as an arrow's flight to her goal.

In the cabins and fore-cabin the officers and men not on duty were soon eating their first meal that day, and congratulating each other that they had found a snug port, instead of being, as they had expected, opposed to the fury of the storm that night.

Captain Fox was the only man on board who did not carry himself with an air of weariness. He was the embodiment of force and vitality, and could not feel tired so long as he could stand.

"Now, Don," he said, after the latter had brought in some articles in a leather bag, which Fox was to take with him, "make up your own kit."

"Are we going to remain ashore, sir?" asked the boy, in surprise.

"Ask no questions," replied Fox, sternly; "but do as you are told."

From an adjoining room the captain took out a great many small boxes, covered with oilcloth, and piled them on the table. They would make in all several hundred pounds, and represented the gems plundered from Indians during his piratical depredations.

These parcels were worth in value the rest of the ship and cargo, and were set aside in the division as the property of himself and Frenauld.

There remained still kegs of milled iron from the Spanish Main, and in dollars got by the hundreds from the galleons of Acapulco, and stamped gold bars that would have doubled in themselves the fortune of the richest prince in Christendom.

In addition, there was a rich freight of plate and pictures, of costly silks and laces of fabulous prices, with tropical spices and vines of greater value than ever floated in one ship before.

Suits of antique armor plundered by the Portuguese from Hindoo rajahs, and intended for the decoration of the palace of their king; articles of rare workmanship, secured for a song in the then unknown marts of China and Japan; idols from the South seas, and the plunder of Malay junks, all filled the hold of the cruiser Wanderer, but were as nothing in value to the boxes of rare gems covered up by those oilcloths.

One of these boxes, after some searching, Captain Fox placed in the bag containing the clothing he was going to take ashore.

He strapped on a belt that must have been very heavy, for it was literally filled with small pistols of exquisite workmanship, but heavy caliber.

This done, he went on deck, gave additional orders to the men who were going to row him ashore, then called six men by name, and led them into the cabin.

These six men entered the room where Ralph Denham was lying, their sleeves pulled up as men sometimes think it necessary to have them when they are about to lift a considerable load.

"Pick up the frame, bed and all, and see that you don't drop it as you value your lives," said the captain, sternly.

The men looked at each other in surprise, and then at the sleeping man on the bed, and began their task.

For six ordinary men, the bed with its occupant would not have been a burden; to the six giants who carried Captain Denham to the dock, the load did not seem so heavy as their own wet garments.

They placed the bed in the stern shee's, over which an awning had been spread. The officers, Don, and the men who were to row, now took their places.

"Lower away there!" shouted Fox.

There was a whirl of ropes, a cracking of blocks, and the men on deck let the boat down from the davits.

The books were slipped out, the six oars caught the water as if they had all been driven by one hand.

Capt. Fox had the tiller, and under his guidance the boat shot over the black waters towards the light which indubitably flashed up or was extinguished as the gale rose and fell in the trough of the sea.

As they neared the shore, Capt. Fox rose in his place and called out:

"Rest on your oars."

Like an automaton under the control of its operator, the blades stopped, while the boat under its own impetus sped on.

"Aho! aho! ashore there!" shouted Fox.

"Aho!" came back the reply.

"Is that Frenauld?"

"Aye, aye, sir."

"Where can we land?"

"Keep straight for the light. The beach is good and the sea low," replied Frenauld, who had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of his commander.

Again the oars caught the water. There was a moment of flying spray as the boat leaped through the surf, and the next instant the oarsmen were in the water, and with a shout and a rush, they had the gig and its strange cargo high and dry on the beach.

Leaving the sailors who had come in the boat, and the three who had remained with Frenauld to exchange congratulations, Fox drew the latter to one side, and said:

"Denham is in the boat."

"And still alive?" asked Frenauld.

"Still alive; I have trained Don to administer the drug, and he does it well. The boy is here with me. But how about the Indian, Uncas?"

"He is near by."

"And still of the same mind?"

"More determined than before, if that be possible."

"And, Frenauld, has the chief made arrangements for Denham?"

"Yes."

"Far from here?"

"About half a mile. The place is a sort of vault in an Indian burying ground," said Frenauld.

"And you have found a place where we can hide our own booty? It makes me nervous to keep those boxes longer on board, so I have brought them with me."

"I can show you just the place in the morning."

"But, Frenauld, I want you to go on board to-night and take command. You must take the vessel back at once to Sag Harbor."

"To Sag Harbor!" repeated the surprised Frenauld.

"Yes; I shall be there nearly as soon as you are. And if that fellow Thrasher has earned his money, you will be the commander of the Sea Hawk before the week is two days older. But tell me: have you not a paper, a map of the place that I can use in the morning?"

"I have, though I intended it to be used when we came back and wanted to take the plunder out of hiding," replied Frenauld, as he took a paper from his pocket and handed it to the Captain.

"Anything else to report, Frenauld?"

"Yes, sir; Colonel Gramam is still here."

"What! didn't he go to New York?" asked Fox, starting back as if his officer had struck him.

"No; he got sick and for the benefit of his health came down here among the Montauk Indians," said Frenauld, to whom this information had ceased to be exciting.

Fox hissed out a string of savage oaths, and both his hands worked nervously among the pistols in his belt.

"How far is Gramam from here?" he asked when he could control himself.

"Oh, it is several miles—half-way to Sag Harbor, and he is a guest of the chief. You need not fear that he knows anything about our presence or our plans," said Frenauld, with a view to allaying his commander's excitement.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SERIOUS SUBJECTS CAREFULLY CONSIDERED.

A Scholarly Exposition of the Lesson—Thoughts Worthy of Calm Reflection—Half an Hour's Study of the Scriptures—Time Well Spent.

The Value of Wisdom.

The lesson for Sunday, May 7, may be found in Prov. 3: 11-24.

INTRODUCTORY.

We have here another lesson in wisdom. Last week the subject was considered in its negative aspects, i. e., what evils its absence might occasion. This week we study it in a positive way and as respects the advantages associated with its possession. Another lesson will follow, and, quite naturally, upon the fruits growing out of such seed-sowing. Still later on will come two companion lessons on the practical bearings of this eternal wisdom. Thus we have five studies in the book of Proverbs; and our Sunday schools, should come forth from this month's perusal with a new love for this portion of God's word, born of a closer acquaintance with its sources of beauty and strength. This time we glance at the profits of what may be called wisdom-mining.

POINTS IN THE LESSON.

It is love that speaks here, fatherly and motherly love. Is there a love response in your heart? "My son," is the address. Do you feel the stirrings of sonship within? To you the voice speaks. Only the sons of wisdom will hear wisdom.

Suppose we try to set a value or a price to this mine of wisdom. What is our lode worth? Well, the Scripture here says, "You can make more out of it than by trading in silver and gold; and there is a pretty good market for both of these precious metals to-day. And as for rubies, precious stones, wisdom is 'more precious.' We will take a bold dash, then, and speak of the things not possessed but desired, held before the eye of hope and of yearning. Ah, says the inspired seer, they 'are not to be compared unto her.' Islands full, for one hand holds long life and the other plenty. Feet treading clover and blossoms, for her 'ways are ways of pleasantness (i. e., beauty) and all her paths are peace.' We think at once of the Twenty-third Psalm, and of the still waters and green pastures where the Shepherd leads. And best of all, it is perennial and eternal blessing. 'She is a tree of life.' It sets the Psalm bells to ringing again, and their chiming, 'Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever.'"

In short, it is a part of God. The Lord Jehovah does not conduct the affairs of earth by one scheme and those of heaven by another entirely alien. He is one and the same, above, beneath, everywhere. Whither shall we flee from thy Spirit! By wisdom hath he 'founded the earth,' and by the same understanding he hath 'established the heavens.' O, man of earth, child of God, think of it, be inspired by it; when you mind God's laws you build with God and God with you. When you carve and groin well you carve and groin as the Lord Jehovah would do it. Indeed, he does it through you. Now let him have his blessed will with you all the way. Let wisdom have with your soul her perfect work.

HINTS AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

Stir up a lively conversation on the content or import of "Wisdom." Ask the question, "What do you understand by wisdom?" Put the query, "What do you find when you find wisdom?" Some one will say sagacity, another will say, outlook; another insight. Perhaps some one will be discerning enough to say Scripture knowledge. Possibly some one will leap to the high altitude of answering, reverently, "I find God." At any rate it will be a suggestive and profitable inquiry. Supposing some one says it means Christ. Very well, how it can be wisdom and leave out redemption by the cross, it is difficult to see. Dimly discerned of old, this same Jesus the full orb'd sun of righteousness to-day. He indeed is made unto us—"wisdom."

The church of Jesus Christ makes its appeal to the young men of to-day. She needs them: She must have them. Ninety per cent. of our young men, we are told, are not Christians; 70 per cent. do not go to church. Teachers, pastors, let us gird ourselves in God's name to change the bad proportion. The Bible never intended that things should be as they are; its pages are full of familiar counsel with the young. Its pages were meant for their perusal. God help us bring the young men back to the Interpreter's House and to the Palace Beautiful!

It is a good time for the exercise and exemplifying of this heavenly wisdom, right here and now in America in this ninth decade of the nineteenth century. Said Dr. Strong, "I would rather be living now than to have been one of the twelve apostles." There never in all the history of the world was such a splendid chance as now for wisdom to speak her voice in the streets.

What are you doing with your time—God's time? Are you making a wise use of it? "Lost, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, sixty diamond seconds, set in sixty golden minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

Go to God for wisdom. Go forth after it as the Hebrew word "get" implies. This article is only genuine when it bears the celestial-trade mark. And have a care, for there are spurious imitations and substitutes abroad. Yes, and base adulterations. Buy wisdom; buy it of God. The cheaper quality may satisfy a world that is to fade and pass away, but the eternal sons of God will deal in eternal commodities. They asked Themistocles, you remember, if he would not stop to gather the spoils of the enemy, the gold chains, etc., lying all about. "Thou may'st," was his sententious reply, "thou may'st, for thou art not Themistocles." Sons of the All-wise, be wise!

Next lesson—"Fruits of Wisdom." Prov. 12: 1-15.

THE WEEK AT LANSING

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS DOING.

An Impartial Record of the Work Accomplished by Those Who Make Our Laws—How the Time Has Been Occupied During the Past Week.

The Law-Makers.

The fight over the additional appropriation for the Michigan exhibit at the World's Fair was brought to a finish in both houses Tuesday. The bill was taken from the table in the Senate where it has reposed for the last two months and amended by cutting the appropriation from $50,000 to $25,000 and placed on its immediate passage. Senator Burt made a fierce attack on the commission, which he said was rotten to the core. Despite this opposition it was, after a protracted debate, passed by a vote of 18 to 8. It was immediately sent to the House, where another bitter fight ensued over a motion to concur. The House once refused to concur by a close vote, but after a recess was taken to give President Weston a chance to explain the needs of the commission and the disposition to be made of the additional sum the motion was reconsidered and fifty-seven votes were recorded in favor of concurring. An unsuccessful attempt was made to give it immediate effect.

The House Thursday passed a bill appropriating $2,000 for the expenses of a commission to locate the position of Michigan troops on the battlefields of Chickamauga, Chattanooga, and Mission Ridge; also a bill requiring the closing of barber shops on Sunday. The Senate passed a bill authorizing the organization of lodges of Loyal Orangemen after restricting its membership to citizens of the United States and prohibiting any teachings in conflict with the laws of the United States or the State. The Senate committee of the whole made a favorable report on the Saturday half-holiday bill and nearly the entire afternoon session was spent on the general tax bill without completing its consideration.

Struggles of the Potato.

The way of the potato was said to have been barred by the Presbyterian prejudice that it was never mentioned in the Bible, says Blackwood's Magazine. In the Lothians, it came about 1740, the year of dearth, from Ireland, but was confined to gardens till about 1754, when it was planted in fields about Aberlady. By the close of the century it was a general article of diet.

Ramsay says that George Henderson went about 1750 for a bag of potatoes to Kilsyth, where the Irish method of field culture had lately been tried, and introduced the potato into Mentieth, where a few had been known, but only in kale yards. The old folks, however, did not take kindly to the new food. Old George Bachop, one of the Ochertyre tenants, when told by his wife that she had potatoes for supper, said: "Tatties! tatties! I never supped on them a' my days and wunna the night. Gie them to the herd and get me sowens." It is significant that Burns, who sang the praises of kale and porridge and haggis, has nothing to say of the potato.

They Resist Their Own Language.

The general spread of the English language over the world has been resisted most stubbornly on British soil at home. Two weeks ago the Legislative Assembly of Jersey rejected, by a vote of 27 to 6, a bill to permit the use of English in the Assembly, at the option of a member. This action, of course, affirms the principle that French is the official language. The country parishes are resolutely opposed to the introduction of English, although it has made great progress in the towns of late years and it is said many of the deputies are now unable to express themselves correctly in French. Mr. Gladstone's government has been asked by several Welsh members of Parliament, at the instance of a large body of Welshmen, to make the teaching of Welsh obligatory. It has always been taught in the Non-conformist Sunday schools. The number of Irish people who do not speak English at all is still considerable, and in Scotland it is not small.

A Queer Little Place.

According to a Belgian gentleman now in this country, the territory of Moeresnet, lying between Belgium and Germany, is the smallest Government in the world. It has a population of nearly 2,000. The people are devoted entirely to the tin mining industry. There is no military service, and election days are things they never hear of. There is a Senate of ten members who are appointed by the Mayor. He gets his place by being appointed by two delegates, one from Germany and one from Belgium. The police force consists of one man. He is paid out of the annual revenue, which is about 1,200 francs; this also pays for the maintenance of the roads and the schools. The territory was made independent in 1815, to settle a dispute. Germany and Belgium both wanted it on account of its tin mines, but neither of them got it. The territory contains a trifle over two square miles of ground.

He Boiled Water in an Envelope.

I boiled a half pint of water in an envelope once, said a Texas traveler the other day. It happened in this way: Myself and my wife arrived very late one night at a hotel in Fresno, Cal. It was a second or third rate hotel, convenient to the depot, and we had so much trouble getting in that we thought it no use—after we had been in the place an hour and my wife wanted some boiling water—in trying to get it from the hotel people. After we had discussed the situation my wife asked me if I had an envelope in my sachel. I got one out, when she told me to fill it with water and hold it over a gas jet. I hesitated, but finally did it, and expected to see the envelope blaze up every moment. But it didn't blaze. The envelope took on a little soot, but that was all. The water boiled on time, and the envelope was as good as ever when the experiment was at an end.

Maine Is a Big State.

The wild lands of Maine would make thirteen States as large as Rhode Island, two as large as New Hampshire and Vermont and one twice as large as Massachusetts.

Ann Arbor Democrat: I am told that it now looks as if fewer licenses will be taken out in Ann Arbor for the coming year than last year.

Seventy-six U. of M. students have engaged with the Columbian Wheel Chair Co., and will spend the summer vacation at the World's Fair.

Jas. Geddes, Jr., delivered one of the finest lots of fruit trees that even came to this place. He represents the nursery of J. E. Ilgenfritz & Sons, of Monroe.

Capt. Geo. H. Kempf attended the dedication of the Michigan World's Fair Building Saturday last, in his official capacity as a member of Gov. Rich's staff.

J. Clifford Hand, charged with the murder of Night Watchman Pulver at Ypsilanti on March 11, yesterday pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for May 15th.

The ladies of Columbian Hive, No. 284, L. O. T. M., will hold a match social at their hall Saturday evening. Supper will be served from 5 to 9 o'clock. Every one is invited.

Rev. Washington Gardner will deliver the Decoration Day address at this place. Arrangements for a very fine program are being arranged by the committee having this in charge.

Farmers should look out for the $450 piano men, who just wants to leave an instrument as a sample. The little agreement in the hands of agent number two, proves to be an order for the piano.

Daniel Strange, a Grand Ledge farmer, keeps a record of all the receipts and expenditures incident to his business, and in balancing his accounts finds that he cleared a little over 4 per cent. on a farm of 385 acres.

The fuss that is being made in this country over the alleged descent of Columbus, the Duke of Veragua, is fairly sickening. We don't blame the Duke as he has struck a soft snap and judging from appearances, knows how to hang on to it.

As a Main street resident placed his shoes before the grate one morning to warm them before putting on, and remarking as to how many more tons of coal, he would have to order, he said to his wife, "This is the last winter I'll pass in this beastly climate. Next winter find me in a warm climate." "Well, dear, I do hope that you will first insure your life insurance policies," observed his wife, and the Main street man is yet wondering what she meant by that remark.

The market continues lifeless and receipts very light. Wheat brings 65c for red or white. Rye, 52c; oats, 35c; beans, $1.75; potatoes, 70c; clover seed, nominal at 30c; dressed hogs, $8; eggs, 15c; butter, 23c; fat cattle or sheep, 34 to 4c per pound on foot. The farmers are busy now and there is little doing in town. Wheat will move freely after planting even at the present prices. Occasionally a lot of unwashed wool comes in at 15 to 17c per pound. Contracts can be made now at 20c for washed and it will probably reach 22c if not more.

A fine sewing machine was shipped from this place this week to Constantinople. It was a present from Miss Myrta Kempf to a missionary.

Harmon Marsh, of Waterloo, was this week granted a divorce from his wife, Margaret Marsh, on the ground of desertion. Margaret was his sixth wife.

Through an inadvertence we neglected to say last week that Job Stebbins, who lives over toward Stockbridge, is an old liar and sheep thief. We have dropped his name from our list. He doesn't live up to his promises—Grass Lake News.

Miss Susan B. Anthony declares that we are on the eve of an era of unmarried women.—New York Press. As Susan is over seventy and still a spinster, it would appear that she struck the "unmarried-era" early and struck it for all there was in it.—Grass Lake News.

Jas. L. Gilbert, of this place, has been appointed deputy oil inspector for this district, comprising the counties of Jackson and Washtenaw. The appointment of Mr. Gilbert is very pleasing to his friends here, and while he is well qualified for the position, it is a fitting recognition for work he has done for the republican party.

Prof. A. J. Cook, of Michigan Agricultural College says that the proper time to spray fruit trees for bud moths and fungi is before the blossom appears, and for the codling moth after the blossoms have fallen; do not spray them while in bloom. One pound of Paris green or London purple 200 gallons of water will make the solution strong enough.

Report of school district, No. 7, Sylvan, for the month ending April 28th. No. enrolled, 30; attending every day, Joseph, Oscar, Dave and Lydia Laubengayer, Oliver and Jimmie Killam, Herman and Myrtle Webber, Chauncey Freeman; Standing 90, Jimmie Killam, Oscar and Lydia Laubengayer; 85, Carrie Goodrich; 80, Fred Hinderer, Cauncey Freeman, Lois Killam. Mrs. L. A. Stephens, Teacher.

We write this to remind those who borrow their neighbor's paper that now is an excellent time to have their names written in the place we have reserved for them on our subscription book. Your neighbor does not like to lend it, but dares not refuse, and by paying us for three months, six months, or one year, you can be saved the trouble and disgrace of borrowing as disgrace it is.

Democrat: A gentleman who resides in the eastern part of town says that boys with the deadly sling shot are killing robins. Every boy in Ann Arbor knows that he is liable to a fine if he is seen to kill any song bird and it is too bad that some of them are not caught in the act and made to suffer for it. In my opinion it would be a good thing to fine every boy who carried a sling shot, then perhaps our beautiful song birds would not be killed.

Grass Lake News: The chairman of the board of health of Ann Arbor has notified both the Argus and the Register folks of that city must do something with their office towels. Burying and burning have been suggested but, determined that the university town shall not take a back seat for anybody or anything, famous or infamous the parties notified have resolved to display the said towels at the big Columbian fair. The fragrant face-wipers will be placed in an air-tight glass case in order that no danger may arise from contagion, and displayed in the aborigine underwear department of the great fair.

Four Hillsdale boys between five and twelve years of age played a novel new game Wednesday—guillotine. The two youngest were persuaded to lie down with their heads across blocks of wood and let their playmates see how close they could strike to their necks with an ax without hitting them. An examination of the block on which the operation was performed put the tale of William Tell in the shade, for the haggling indicates that some remarkable close blows were struck. It was great fun for the boys, but it made their mothers' hair stand up when they were told about it. P. S.—The boys' hair stood up later.

W. J. KNAPP

The union service at the Congregational church last Sabbath evening at which Mr. V. D. Bozovsky, a native Bulgarian, explained the customs of his country, was well worth the effort of going to church a rainy night. The speaker has an exceptionally good command of English considering the short time he has been in this country. He makes no attempt at oratory, but tells in a simple but touching way the story of a people who have indeed a history to be proud of.

There will be a district Sunday School convention May 10 and 11 in Dundee. Each school is entitled to one delegate. The district includes three counties, Lenawee, Washtenaw and Monroe. It is in the interests of the International Sunday School work. The names of L. N. Moon, Chelsea, S. T. Morris, Dexter, H. M. Morey, Ypsilanti, and E. A. Hough, Jackson, appear on the program. Others of equal ability, but not so well known to readers of this paper, will take part in the proceedings.

"You can't keep boys quite straight you know. They must have a chance to sow their wild oats." Must? A word from Satan's vocabulary! Look ahead a few years. There he goes—young boy! swearing, swaggering, coarse, obscene! You hope he will marry and sober down? Yes, if some pure girl will pour the fullness of her sweet-life in the turbid stream of his there is a bare chance that he may be saved. How much better to have trained him to the right when you had him under your hands! In the outset he was not unlike his sister in morals. You hold her to the proprieties and decencies, while you let him run at his own will in paths of misdeeds. Now, in purity of life, they are leagues apart. There are as many boys as there are girls in the infant classes of the Sunday Schools; but one-half as many boys as girls in the Bible classes. Women outnumber men in the church two to one. In the State prison men outnumber women fifty to one. This sad proportion tells its own story!

Louisa A. Gulde.

Louisa A. Gulde was a native of this village, born March 3, 1872, and ended her pilgrimage on earth April 27, 1893. The funeral services were held Sunday last from the Evangelical Lutheran church, the services being conducted by Rev. C. Hoag. Her remains will be laid at rest in Oak Grove Cemetery by the side of her father.

Mrs. Mary Frey, mother of Louisa Gulde, wishes to thank her friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness bestowed upon her and during her recent bereavement.

Milo Baldwin. Milo Baldwin was born Feb. 9, 1834, in Whiting, Addison Co., Vt. At age of about nine years, the early part of 1844 he father brought his family to Michigan. In 1849, soon after death of his mother the family moved to Steuben Co., Indiana where he remained for about five years, returning to Michigan. In Sept. 1857, Milo married to Amanda Penn who died 1863 leaving an only daughter, Mary Hick. With the exception of a few years spent in the village of home has been for a number of years on the farm about one mile north of Chelsea.

April 5, 1850, Mr. Baldwin married with the Congregational church at Chelsea, which he held membership at time of his death. For many years he was a very active and efficient leader of the choir for over years. He had been a trustee of the time and was interested in the work of the church.

About one year ago he had a stroke from which he did not fully recover, although he had spoken of himself feeling quite in usual health. His death occurred early Friday morning April 28, 1893, at the age of 59 years, months and 19 days. In the church his immediate relatives there were wife and one child, a daughter, two brothers, and one sister. The remains were interred in the Vermont cemetery the last rites being performed by the Masonic Order of which he was a member.

CONVERSATION OF A PROMOTER.

An Interesting Story of a Practical Joke With a Horrible Sequel.

"It was the most expensive drink that ever I took," said the tall man. "How's that?" asked the short man.

The tall man looked out of the office window at the crowds hurrying along Wall street. He thrust his hands into his pockets. Perhaps he found less there than there might have been, for he reflected a bit before he began his story, which runs this way:

"Well, once I had a great scheme. There was a good deal in it really, and I was confident that I only had to interest some capital in it to make a pretty turn for all of us. I had been making overtures to several moneyed men and had an excellent prospect of carrying this deal through with one of them.

"The day I was to have another talk with my capitalist a couple of friends of mine came in and got me started on a subject I was greatly interested in. Then one of them said, 'Oh, by the way, let's see your watch a moment.' I pulled it out of my pocket and handed it to him. Before I knew what he was about he had walked off with my timepiece.

"Knowing the chap, I didn't worry, but I couldn't see what he wanted with the watch. Half an hour later I ran across my capitalist, and after we had talked a little I asked him to take some quick action refreshment. Mind you, I had been talking as if money was as plenty as planks in a lumber yard.

"We went to a restaurant that was handy, and standing up to the bar gave our orders. The chemist before serving us reached around to the cashier's desk and pulled out my missing clock.

"Here's your watch, sir," says he. "Sixty-five cents due on it, please."

"Naturally I was embarrassed. So was my guest, but he drew himself up stiffly as he said:

"Really, I have some change, if—"

"But I had the funds. I paid the clerk, redeemed my watch and had a drink with my capitalist. As we walked out of the place the atmosphere was very chilly. He said good-by as soon as we were outside, and after that he had no use for my scheme. Nobody could ever convince him that I hadn't personally hooked my watch, and I didn't try to."

"And the fellow who borrowed the watch?" queried the short man.

"Oh, he explained that it was a joke."

"And what became of the scheme?" "That reminds me," said the tall man, "it's just as good as ever. Now, if you want to put in a little—"

"Sorry," said the short man hastily, "but I'll have to be going."—New York Times.

Shipbuilding on the Great Lakes.

The shipbuilding industry on the great lakes, including engine, boiler and other machine works, comprises over 30 firms, with an invested capital of $15,000,000 to $18,000,000, aside from the builders of small craft not represented in the registered tonnage. A few of the large establishments still construct wooden vessels. The business of others is largely confined to repairs, and some of them have great drydocks for repairs and are builders of iron and steel, wooden or composite vessels or all of these as well. Their united capacity is equal to that of all the seacoast and river shipyards combined. The tonnage passing Detroit in 1890 was 21,888,472 tons—1,000,000 tons greater than that of the entire foreign and coastwise trade of London.—Engineering Magazine.

Napoleon's Words About Suicide.

Suicides, like fires, seem to have their cycles. Every despondent man or woman should paste in his or her hat the words which Napoleon spoke to a person who said he would avoid a certain situation by blowing out his brains. "Yes, I can do that," said the emperor, "but those who wish me well could not profit by it, and those who wish me harm would be pleased."

And yet some writers have asserted that Napoleon attempted suicide by taking poison in the palace at Fontainebleau after signing his abdication. A person in utter despair does not think of precept or example.—New York Tribune.

Danger From Strange Animals.

A dainty, clean, cunning kitten looks innocent enough, but it is well to know just where it has been before permitting the children to fondle it. The measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, with other contagious diseases, have made sad vacancies in home circles so carefully guarded that there has been no "known" possible chance for infection. Cats should be kindly treated and dogs also, but both are given to visiting. Is it well to permit the children to fondle strange pets?—Philadelphia Press.

Patrons of the Astrologers.

Astrologers, like fortune tellers, are largely patronized by those who are in love or who want to be and by those who are anxious to get into matrimony or to get out of it. In addition to these there are not a few business men, speculators, politicians and craftsmen who consult them.—Edgar Lee in Arena.

The Coins of China.

China is the paradise of the numismatist. The collections of cash, according to Consul Edward Bedloe's report to the state department, are something marvelous. They are small coins of bronze, brass, copper or silver, ranging in intrinsic value from one-twentieth of a cent to 25 cents. The oldest of these coins on record appeared about 2300 B. C. Over 150,000 different kinds of cash are preserved in collections.

Some are wonderful examples of coinage, but most of them are clumsy and coarse. The numismatist can work all his life, spend very little money and leave to posterity thousands of coins. All he needs to do is to confine his work to the collection of cash, the small coins in brass and bronze, whose value ranges from one-tenth to one-fourteenth of a cent. Their workmanship varies, but is usually very good.

Their shape today is like that of European coins, with the exception that through the center is a square hole through which the coins are strung together like beads. In the past, however, other forms were employed, including the square, triangle, heart, ellipse, shield, key, sword and spear. The number of kinds is simply immense. They are referred to in the literature as far back as 250 B. C.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Human Nature In Eating.

"If I can see a man handle his fork," said the clerk, "I can tell you the part of the country he hails from."

"The hotel dining room is the best place in the world to study human nature and the manners and breeding of our fellows. It seems odd that people in this enlightened and advanced age will still feed themselves with their knives, especially in a first class hotel. Yet instances of this habit are very frequent. In my opinion a man who feeds himself with his knife should be boiled alive in oil."

"As a rule guests from Boston and New York are the most correct in their table deportment. They are very exacting as to service, and all manipulate their knives and forks in one way, which is the proper way. It may seem a trifle strange to form a basis for a judgment of a man's character on the manner in which he holds his fork, but it is a correct one. Some stick it between their first and second fingers, others between the middle and third fingers, while others grasp it as you would grasp a pineapple cheese 'scoop.'—Washington Star.

Old and New Fashioned Diseases.

"Heart failure is a comparatively new term. It wasn't written on certificates of death 10 years ago," said W. H. Osborne of Plainfield, N. J. "It used to be that when a man died and the doctors didn't know exactly what caused his death they attributed it as nonchalantly then to a complication of diseases as they do now to heart failure. The 'complication' gag doesn't work any more with the physicians. The proper 18-carat way of explaining the demise is to characterize it as heart failure. Here's pneumonia, too, having a revel at the expense of the country's death rate. Not so very long ago we used to call it hasty consumption, and what we now dignify into malaria and dose ourselves with quinine for was plain, everyday chills and fever when I was a boy. This thing of Bostonizing our diseases makes medicine the expensive thing we find it."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Travers—Didn't you tell him I was out?

Servant—No, sir. He has been here too often.—Quips.

A MARVEL IN BOOK-MAKING. A Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, IN 12 LARGE VOLUMES, FREE.

There has just been published A Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Large and Handsome Volumes, printed from entirely new plates, with new type. By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to offer to our patrons this splendid set of Dickens' Works, postpaid, free. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No author before or since his time has won the fame that he achieved, and his works are even more popular to-day than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skillfully wrought plots. Each book is intensely interesting. No home should be without a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The twelve volumes in this set contain the following world famous works, each one of which is published complete, unchanged and absolutely unabridged:

DAVID COPPERFIELD, MARTIN CHuzzleWICK, SKIDDEAWAY, DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN, BARNABY RASCH, THE OLD CURIOUS SHOP AND THE UNCOMMERCIAL TRAVELER, THE PICKWICK PAPERS, HENRY RECTOR, THE TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES, AND THE STORY OF EDWIN DROOD.

THE PLAN.

We will send a complete set of these books FREE by mail, postage paid, guaranteeing safe delivery, as follows:

To any old subscriber, who sends one dollar, and returns their subscription to either of the following publications for one year:

THE PEOPLE'S LITERARY COMPANION,

OR—

The National Farmer and Home Magazine

To any new subscriber, who sends one dollar for either of the above periodicals for one year.

This is the grandest offer ever made, and the greatest bargain ever offered. Up to this time the price of a complete set of Dickens' Works has been ten dollars or more. The use of modern, improved printing, folding and stitching machinery, the present extremely low price of white paper, and the great competition in the book trade are the factors which made this wonderful offer possible. Bear in mind that we offer, not a single volume, but the entire set of twelve volumes all free to subscribers. It is now offered at the price of one dollar and 25 cents. A better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but at all seasons of the year, for the reason that it will sell in their homes, and will have it as well as they know the low price, at which one agent can furnish them. Reader, if you need profitable employment, and a business in which you can and will take pride, as well as make money rapidly, do not fail to send for circulars containing private terms to agents and full information, which will be sent FREE upon application. Old and new agents alike are being made successful at the agency business. If so, there is every reason why you should try this. ## IF YOU CAN READ and write, and are possessed of fair intelligence, you are fully qualified to make a grand success of what we offer you. We have lately published at great expense and labor a perfect wonder in the way of an illustrated gift book, suitable to all classes, an ornament to any home, and at a price that brings it within the reach of all, even those of moderate means. Heretofore only those who indulged in luxuries have felt that they could afford a book of this class, as they are sold in book stores at $5.00 and upwards. The book which we offer is not in any way inferior to those above referred to, but is far superior to hundreds of books of this nature that are sold at prices exceeding ours by a enormous percent. It is selling with a rush wherever it goes. Agents have only to show the book and mention the price, and it sells on its merits without their talking. No better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but at all seasons of the year, for the reason that it will sell in their homes, and will have it as well as they know the low price, at which one agent can furnish them. # INTERNATIONAL NAVAL REVIEW

GREAT NAVAL REVIEW

PROUDEST EVENT IN UNCLE SAM'S MARITIME HISTORY.

Nations of the Earth Lend Their Monarchs of the Sea to Do Us Honor—Hampton Roads the Historic Rendezvous—Great Day for Gotham.

An Imposing Spectacle.
HEN your Uncle Samuel sets about to do a thing it is usually done in the most appropriate and elaborate way, and the great naval review witnessed in New York harbor was no exception to this rule. The imposing demonstration signaled the opening of the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, and its international character lent added attraction to a display of naval glory unprecedented in the history of the world.

Representative vessels from the mighty navies of the most powerful nations of the earth joined with the superb warships of our own country in a display grand and impressive almost beyond conception or description. For two weeks prior to the event in New York harbor, the monster ships had been arriving at the rendezvous in Hampton Roads, off Fort Monroe, at the very spot where, thirty-one years ago, the Monitor and Merrimack engaged in the most decisive naval battle in the civil war, and proved to the world that the days of wooden battleships was over.

First to arrive was our own flagship, the Philadelphia, Rear Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, commander-in-chief, Capt. A. S. Parker commanding. Several other vessels of the United States navy accompanied her, and as one after another the foreigners were sighted the monster guns pealed forth their thunderous salutes. For several days the scene was one of animation and excitement. The roadstead was gay with flags of the various nations represented, and saucy little dispatch boats darted about with untiring energy. From the impudent little launch and agile torpedo boat to the ponderous protected cruiser, every species of vessel used in modern warfare was represented, and when finally all were assembled the list was as follows:

American Fleet.
Philadelphia, flagship, Rear-Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, commander-in-chief, Captain Albert S. Barker, commanding.
Baltimore, Captain G. W. Sumner, commanding.
San Francisco, Captain J. C. Watson, commanding.
Charleston, Captain H. F. Pickens, commanding.
Chicago, flagship, Rear-Admiral John G. Walker, commanding division, Captain John F. McGlensy, commanding.

Miantonomah, Captain Montgomery Sicard, commanding.
Vesuvius, Lieutenant Seaton Schroeder, commanding.
Kearsarge, Commander A. S. Crowninshield, commanding.
Concord, Commander Edwin White, commanding.

Atlanta, Captain F. J. Higginson, commanding.
Newark, flagship, Rear Admiral A. E. K. Benham, Captain Silas Casey, commanding.
Bennington, Commander R. B. Bradford, commanding.
Yorktown, Commander Frank Wildes, commanding.
Bancroft, Lieutenant Commander A. Walker, commanding.
Cushing, Lieutenant F. F. Fletcher, commanding.
Constellation, Commander C. F. Goodrich, commanding.
Yantic, Commander Samuel Belden, commanding.

Foreign Craft.
Argentina—Nueve de Julio, Protected cruiser
Brazil—Aquidaban, Battleship
Tiradentes, Gun vessel
Republia, Protected cruiser
England—Blake, Armored cruiser
Australia, Armored cruiser

Holland—Van Speyk, Protected cruiser
Italy—Etna, Par. Pro. cruiser
Giovanni Bausan, Par. Pro. cruiser
Dagall, Protected cruiser
Russia—Omitri Donskoi, Armored cruiser
General Admiral, Par. Pro. cruiser
Hania, Protected cruiser
Spain—Reina Regente, Protected cruiser

Infanta Isabel, Unprotected cruiser
Nueva Espana, Torpedo vessel
The fleet of Xerxes must have awed the Greeks as did this tremendous array of "armed neutrality" the modern world. The Armada was great in its day, and so were the fleets that gathered to besiege Sebastopol. But the advances in naval construction have been almost miraculous in their prodigiousness, and so it is that the war vessels gathered in Hampton Roads could in a day destroy a coast nation as extensive as the line from Key West to New York.

The new vessels of our now renowned navy have been described so often that further mention is superfluous. Of a type different than those of any other nation, they combine fighting ability with swiftness, and challenge the admiration of the world. But, superb as they are, they were in company which divided honors fairly.
England sent the famous Blake, now the equal and lately the superior of any floating battery in the world. Argentina's Nueve de Julio, just from the yards on the Clyde, gave to the world the information that this South American confederation was ready to do battle upon equal grounds with any other power. The Jean Bart, with her gigantic guns, iron-sided hull and wicked-looking ram, looked equal to the task of encountering the whole fleet. Italy, Russia, Brazil, Germany, Spain, and even little Holland, all sent champions fit indeed to appear in this congress of invincible monarchs of the sea.

Under way from Hampton Roads to New York, the American vessels acted as escorts to the visitors, the Spanish fleet having the place of honor, commanded by the Duke of Veragua, Admiral of Spain. Vice Admiral Sir J. D. Hopkins with the Blake led the British squadron; Vice Admiral Kornakoff the Russian, with Grand Duke Alexis second in command; Rear Admiral Magun-ghi was in command of the Italian fleet, and Capt. Amavel, ex-Minister of Marine of Portugal, was in command of the corvette Alfonso de Albuquerque.

Up the coast the formidable procession swept in close order and at a speed of only seven and a half knots to avoid collisions, and in the evening came to anchor in Sandy Hook to await the morning of review.

Early on that eventful morning every available space for sight-seeing was crowded with spectators; crafts of all descriptions, resplendent with bunting of nearly every civilized nation in the world and lively with the music of scores of bands, steamed out to take positions advantageous for view. Slowly up the Narrows steamed the mightiest fleet ever afloat; they were joined by the Columbus caravels, the Santa Maria, Nina and Pinta, and the assembled thousands roared a mighty cheer as these representatives of the great discoverer's frail craft swept on in company with the others. At last, opposite Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, came the supreme moment. The coast defense guns belched forth a sheet of flame, and from out the smoke boomed America's salute to the nations of the world. Hardly had the first cheer rolled up from the multitude before the fleet gave answer with a roar and crash that seemed to split the very heavens. Columbia had received the proudest homage in her history.

The rest of the exercises were simple. The fleet came to anchor, President Cleveland, his Cabinet, and other dignitaries boarded the flagship Philadelphia, and slowly down the line the party steamed in review. Flags and bunting were displayed in profusion. As the President of the great republic passed the warships the yards were manned, the bands played national airs, and the multitude ashore and aloft howled itself hoarse.
The Presidential review terminated the parade, and many of the foreign vessels departed at once for their respective stations. Quite a number of the commanding officers, however, proceeded to Chicago to witness the opening of the Exposition.
It is the opinion of naval officers that the New York review surpassed in magnificence and grandeur the great English display inaugurated for Emperor William of Germany in 1890. Never in the history of the world have so many nations consented to participate in an international parade.

SEVEN PERSONS KILLED.

Bad Wreck on a Branch of the Somerset and Cambria Railroad.
A frightful wreck occurred on the Bare Rock Railroad in Pennsylvania. The road is about two miles in length, and runs from Wyo station on the Somerset and Cambria Road to the quarries of the Somerset Stone Company. The grade is very steep, being about 150 feet to the mile. In coming down, the train, composed of an engine with two cars loaded with large block stone in the rear, became unmanageable and dashed down the grade at a tremendous rate of speed. On the engine were Engineer Neff, his little son Russell, and a farmer, John E. Pile, with his wife and daughter, while on the cars were some twenty laborers returning from the day's work. At the foot of the grade were standing a number of cars loaded with stone. Into these the runaway train dashed with velocity. The engine and cars were thrown from the track, and Pile, his wife and daughter were buried under the engine. When taken out they were dead. Engineer Neff and his son were severely scalded, the latter fatally. A number of the laborers jumped from the train before the crash came. Those who staid on were buried in the wreck. Seven dead bodies have been taken from the wreck.

GOLD NEGOTIATIONS ARE OFF.

Secretary of the Treasury and the New York Bankers Unable to Agree.
Secretary Carlisle, according to Washington advices, brought up the proposition of the New York bankers to supply, under certain conditions, the Treasury Department with gold at the Cabinet meeting Tuesday. It was thoroughly discussed and finally rejected. What this proposition was is not known, as Secretary Carlisle declined to make its terms public. It was not considered advantageous to the Government. This was the culmination of several propositions submitted, one of which was declined last Saturday. A counter proposition was then made by the bankers to the Secretary of the Treasury, which was received last Monday. This was also rejected, and in turn the Secretary submitted a proposition to them which they also refused to accept. All negotiations, therefore, between the Treasury Department and the New York bankers are off, at least for the present, and Secretary Carlisle will look in other directions gold. The administration does not desire to issue bonds and will not do so except as a last resort.

ALEX. and Louis Landam, rich merchants of St. Louis, are under arrest charged with killing Miss Augusta Trovel, a school teacher, in December, 1890. She was run over and dragged six blocks, every bone in her body being broken. The case has been a mystery until the present time.

Why not, indeed?
When the Royal Baking Powder makes finer and more wholesome food at a less cost, which every housekeeper familiar with it will affirm, why not discard altogether the old-fashioned methods of soda and sour milk, or home-made mixture of cream of tartar and soda, or the cheaper and inferior baking powders, and use it exclusively?

Thickly Settled.
The Manderaggio, which is one of the quarters of Valetta, the capital of the island of Malta, is one of the most crowded spots on earth. In Valetta itself the proportion is 75,000 to the square mile, but in the Manderaggio, 2,544 people dwell on a surface two acres and a half in extent, and this gives no less than 636,000 to the square mile, or 1,017.6 to the acre. In the most crowded town in Britain, Liverpool, the proportion is only 116.4 to the acre.

Good Measure.
A bill has been introduced in the Connecticut Legislature providing for the punishment of persons who send "fake" news to newspapers. The evil complained of has grown to great proportions lately. Three or four centers of humbug Connecticut news send such tales to New York papers and to any Connecticut papers that will pay for such service.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.

From Our Special Correspondent.

The Behring Sea arbitration excites great interest in official and political circles at the capital. The general opinion among the best informed statesmen is that Mr. Carter touched the vital point of our case in his argument when he insisted that the seals belong to us by virtue of their domestication upon the Pribylow Islands and of our possession of the land upon which they make their homes during a large part of the year. He does not exaggerate the facts in stating that the existence of the seals in Behring Sea is due to our preservation of them, and he makes it very clear that the seals cannot be regarded as ferae naturae, but as private property, tended and maintained by the United States government. It is here that the strength of the American case lies. Our evident mistake was in going outside of those lines in the international correspondence and afterwards in permitting this correspondence to drift into an agreement to arbitrate.

It is of course impossible to forecast the result of the pending arbitration. We have allowed ourselves to become involved in a controversy in which we have everything to lose and nothing to gain. The court of arbitration, however, will probably be guided more by considerations of European policy than by the intricate equities of the case under discussion. But the fact remains that so much of Mr. Carter's argument as puts the seals upon the footing of property of the United States, which we maintain and tend, and, therefore, have the right to protect against wanton and wasteful extermination, is practically unanswerable.

The democratic politicians in Washington are much more cheerful than a month ago. They have come to the conclusion that the administration intends to give the rank and file of the party a pretty fair showing after all. It was their original belief, based upon expressions coming from the White House and the various departments, that changes in office would be made only where changes were compelled. It is now the conviction that by the 15th of next July there will be a clean sweep in practically all the offices that are not directly governed by the civil service law.

President Cleveland, they say, has already made more changes than he did eight years ago after the same time spent in the White House. They further aver that Secretary Morton has followed gradually in his footsteps, and that the beheading record of Secretary Gresham is unequalled. It began immediately after he took the portfolio, and has continued with undiminished ardor and severity. While Postmaster General Bissel has been slow to make removals in the higher places, the occupants of the lower positions are going merrily enough and with a swiftness that ought to satisfy any well regulated democrat. Secretary Smith is doing as well. The only member of the cabinet who fails to satisfy the Jacksonians is Mr. Olney. Taking it altogether, the congressmen now say that if Mr. Cleveland maintains his present rate for a couple of months, the party will have nothing of which to complain.

Students of diplomacy and plain American citizens are alike mystified by the present course of affairs in the Hawaiian matter. From the beginning the management has been strangely recondite, secretive to an extreme degree. The appointment of Mr. Blount as special commissioner was a surprise, and it still surprises, for there are but few who can figure out the necessity for sending a "special commissioner" to Hawaii. The opinion prevails that if Minister Stevens was believed, to be unfit for the responsible position he occupies, he should have been superseded at once, and the prerogative evidenced in the appointment of Commissioner Blount is said to smack somewhat of royalty. Of this humorously monarchical tendency there is evidence in the letter by which the provisional government was informed of the selection of a special commissioner. This letter says, after the true imperial plural style: "he is well informed of our sincere desire to cultivate the friendship which has so long subsisted between the two countries, and in all matters affecting relations with the government of the Hawaiian Islands his authority is paramount."

The country seat near Washington which President Cleveland has leased for his summer home is about ready for occupancy. "Belvoir" it will be called, a name closely resembling that of "Beauvoir House," the late home of Jefferson Davis in Mississippi. From next month forward, therefore, the wealthy residents of Rock Creek region in driving their spanking turnouts along the country roads about there at eventide may confidently expect to encounter droves and shoals of tired, perspiring travelers in linen dusters and with gripsacks in their arms, footing their way painfully through the dust and sand toward "Belvoir" in search of a private interview with the president. "Belvoir" is a beautiful place. The house is quite old, having been built nearly a hundred years back, and is constructed somewhat after the general and substantial plan of an English rural villa of the past generation. The bricks used in the old portion were mostly brought from England. Though old-fashioned, the house is a large one, and contains twenty-three rooms, all of liberal proportions. The surrounding estate covers forty-three acres. Looking out from the rear of the house one gets a magnificent view, taking in the capitol at the extreme left, with the great white dome plainly visible, and the Washington monument towering upward in front and on the right the silver shield of Potomac gleaming in the sunlight. The whole place is suggestive of comfort, ease and quiet, but the surpassing charm of the president's home consists in its superb oak trees, centuries old, which have been allowed to grow untrimmed like forests monarchs.

A Conundrum.

"Why is a river like the science of pugilism?" casually inquired the exchange editor.

"Because it's a case of bluff on both sides," promptly responded the financial editor. "That's an easy one. Why is a"

"Don't be in such a hurry. You haven't guessed it yet."

The financial editor looked vaguely about as if for a weapon of some kind.

"Then it's because it gets pretty low down sometimes," he said, "and when it can't make a raise it has to dry up. Why is"

"That won't do either."

"Isn't that the right answer?"

"It isn't within four counties of it."

"The trouble with your conundrums is they're too far-fetched."

"How do you know? You haven't fetched this one yet. Whose conundrum is it anyhow?"

"You seem to be trying to shoulder it off on me."

"Well, if you can't answer it"

"I can, though. Because the public—any profanity about it?"

"No."

"Because if there is I won't have anything to do with it."

"That isn't the correct answer either."

The financial editor glared at him and reached for his cane, but restrained himself with a violent effort.

"Because," he said, trying it once more, "because it runs mills—no, that won't do. Because when it gets full it always has more sand than when it"

"You give me the earache!"

"Well, if you think nobody else knows anything about it suppose you answer it yourself."

"Because it all runs to mouth."

And the enraged bystanders interfered. —Chicago Tribune.

The Cold Shoulder.

"Did you visit any of the fashionable people while you were in New York?" asked Major Yerger of his brother, Colonel Yerger, who had just returned to Houston from a trip to New York.

"Yes, I called on our relatives, the Vanderclams, on Fifth avenue, and I've had the rheumatism ever since."

"Treated you coolly, did they?"

"I should say so. I felt precisely like I did when I was a clerk and was shut in a refrigerator by accident and had to stay there four hours." —Texas Sittings.
