WORLD'S FAIR LETTER.

Special Correspondence.
The attendance at the World's Fair is booming now as it never has before and when the returns are all in for the current week it will doubtless be found that all previous records including that of the banner week when Illinois day was celebrated, will have been eclipsed. The records for that week, ending August 26, were 1,003,454. So far the attendance for the first four days of the present week aggregate 707,491 an average daily attendance of 176,873. Should the average keep up the total for the six days would not fall short of 1,100,000. So satisfactory has this attendance been of late that the executive committee of the local directory at its meeting Thursday night decided to pay another instalment of 10 per cent on the debenture bonds September 22d. This will make 40 per cent paid on the total of $1,500,000. More could doubtless be paid but the council of administration has also decided to pay all the balances due on construction contracts.
The present week has been one of justification and celebrations. New York state celebrated on Monday, Wisconsin on Wednesday, Pennsylvania and Brazil on Thursday, California and Utah celebrate Saturday which will also be Transportation day and Grand Army day. Superintendent of Admissions Tucker is figuring on a 250,000 attendance Saturday and the special features promised should certainly make good his anticipations. School children also took part in dedicating the new liberty bell on that day.

The great choral festival of the exposition began Monday when the Welsh Eisteddfod or gathering of Welsh singing societies took possession of festival hall. Druidical services were held before the administration building Monday morning, and immediately after the bands marched in procession to the hall where at 12 o'clock the choirs opened their competition program. The competition lasted through the week until Saturday. Evans Rees, of Cardiff, Wales, won the prize offered for the ode. This makes him the first poet of Wales. The Rev. Ebenezer Edwards of Minersville, Pa., was awarded a prize of $300 for writing the best essay on Welshmen as civil, political and moral factors in the formation and development of the United States. Joseph P. Burners, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., won the baritone solo contest and Hugh Edwards of Rhyll, North Wales was the successful competitor in translating Tennyson's "Locksley Hall" into Welsh. The historic bardic chair ceremony is the chief event of an Eisteddfod. Its early history runs back to tradition. For the first time at the Columbian Exposition since Julius Caesar found the Druids in England has this ceremony been performed outside of Great Britain.

Machinery hall offers new discoveries daily to the observing student. Whoever passes the lathe of Charley Songtag, looks about and then insists on crowding up to the glass partition. Charlie Songtag is one of the few thimble makers of this country. Songtag's lathe is a mimic. When the thimble is in the chuck, it gives a marvelous imitation of the mocking bird whistle which shrieks its blood chilling notes from the top of machinery hall. It does this when the thimble maker is "knurling" the end or top of the thimble. The knurling tool gives out seven distinct notes during the operation and is one of the most musical instruments in the machinery hall orchestra. Three hundred silver thimbles are turned out daily at the thimble factory. The operation is simple and interesting. The preliminary steps in the making of a thimble are taken in the eastern factory, for the machinery hall exhibit has not the space to accommodate the machinery.

The thimble blank is cut and formed at one operation. The silver, in strips about two inches wide and of varying thickness, is fed into a press which cuts a disk and stamps the thimble out of the round blank. The thimble is not cone shaped but a straight sided cup of silver. It is next placed under a straight punch which stretches it to the required thickness after which it is shaped to the familiar thimble form. A boy takes the thimbles and in a lathe turns the edge and turns the rim over, and then the souvenir design is placed on the band immediately above the rim by a roller die which is held against it in a lathe. In this condition the blanks come to the World's Fair to have the finishing touches put on them. The thimble maker places the blank in a chuck and sets the lathe spinning. He first knurls the top of the thimble as he calls the process of putting in the dimples which catch the head of the needle. The knurling tool is a little narrow wheel of hard steel which has teeth cut in its rim. The wheel revolves at the end of the tool which is held on a tool rest. The spinning thimble whirls the wheel around so rapidly that the silver and steel give out the notes of the mocking bird whistle as the tool moves from the center to the edge and back again. When the end is knurled the side of the thimble is dimpled with a similar tool, only the wheel is wider. The thimble is finished inside in another chuck, turned down to the standard weight and burnished. Thimbles are of ten sizes, ranging from No. 4 to No. 14.

Zulu war trophies, the products of the great veldts, rugs and pelts of rare animals adorn the Cape Colony exhibit in the agricultural building. The exhibit is at the extreme northeast corner of the building. Wools make up a large portion of it. This exhibit is in the charge of Robert Lee. Said Mr. Lee: "we have about 100,000 sheep and about 500,000 goats. The sheep will average about six pounds of fleece apiece worth 16 cents a pound in London, while the goats average fifty-two pounds of wool apiece worth 35 cents a pound in the same market. Our growers are paying special attention to the breeding of Angora goats. Perhaps the most valuable animal we have is the fat tailed sheep. I have seen a single tail weighing fifty-two pounds and as it is pure fat it is very valuable. The hides, too, are much sought after. When it comes to game, why there is almost no end to the variety to be had. Of course the big game, such as elephants and lions, is almost altogether in the north country up about Mashonaland. The natives are splendid workmen in some lines especially in the manufacture of robes from the skins of wild animals. The cape country is also very rich in mineral deposits, particularly gold. The ostrich business is still an important feature of our commercial exports. In 1891 the exports of feathers aggregates in value $10,000,000.

GATHERING OF SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS AT ST. LOUIS.

Delegates Attend from All Parts of the World—Two Million Sunday Schools Represented—Distinguished Men Who Took Part—Will Meet in Boston.

Army of the Lord. The seventh International Sunday-school Convention of the United States and the British provinces in America opened its four-days' session in the Grand Music Hall of the Exposition Building at St. Louis, with upward of 1,000 delegates present, representing 130,197 Sunday-schools, with 1,372,558 teachers and an enrolled attendance of 10,870,104 scholars.

World's Sunday-school Convention which followed this four days' session, represented 2,000,000 Sunday-schools and 18,000,000 scholars. The beautiful hall was decorated tastefully for the occasion. The stage had been extended over the orchestra pit for the additional accommodation of the speakers and distinguished guests of the convention.

The number of delegates from each of the States and Territories was equal to four times the representation of both houses of Congress, or four delegates for each 150,000 of the population, with a corresponding number from the provinces and territories of Canada and Newfoundland.

the Rev. B. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, had charge of America's representatives. The most distinguished men in the world's Sabbath work participated in this gathering. Our own country had a distinguished list of participants from every State.

The subjects of international lessons, organization in the church, Christian literature and home influence were among those discussed. Representatives from Paris spoke in the interest of the McAll mission. Signor Charanti represented Italy, with numerous colleagues. Egypt and Palestine, Japan, China and Asia were also represented. The resolutions as adopted indorse training schools for teachers, favor the home department plan of bible instruction, urge more extended use of the bible as a text-book in Sunday schools, plead for wider co-operation of denominations, denounce the liquor traffic and plead for its abolition, and release the committee from all restrictions upon its work except that the action of the Pittsburg convention of 1890 upon temperance shall remain in force.

Boston was chosen as the place of meeting of the convention in 1896. By voluntary contribution $5,000 was raised toward the indebtedness on the model Sunday-school building at the World's Fair.

GLADSTONE'S TRIUMPH.

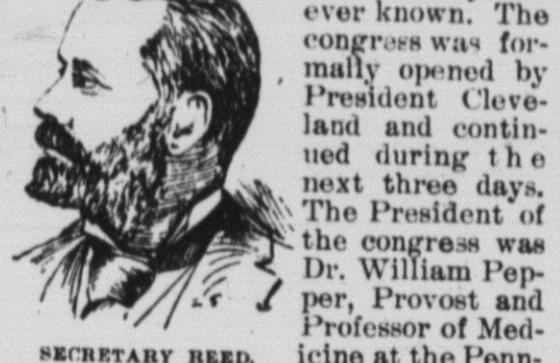

Ireland's Cry for Justice Has at Last Been Heard. The English House of Commons has listened to Ireland's cry for justice. Gladstone's splendid campaign against deep-rooted conservatism and ancient prejudice has ended in magnificent victory.

The Home Rule movement is about twenty-one years old. It began to take form early in the '70's, when patriotic Irishmen realized that Fenianism could do their beloved country no good. The father of the Home Rule movement was Dr. Isaac Butt. He died in 1878. Before his death a new leader had arisen in the Home Rule party, Charles Stewart Parnell, who had been elected to Parliament as member for Meath in 1874. Parnell's methods were far different from those of Dr. Butt. He was essentially aggressive. English statesmen who looked at Ireland's grievances without without prejudice joined the Irish party in the Commons in calling for Ireland's relief. When Gladstone pronounced in favor of home rule, the world instinctively felt that the success of home rule was assured. It is needless here to recall the vicissitudes of the home rule movement during the past five years. They are fresh in the public mind. The probability is that the bill which has passed the Commons will be defeated in the Lords at the present session, and that this Parliament will be dissolved, and a new Parliament elected in which the Liberal strength will be greater than before.

MEETING OF MEDICAL MEN.

North and South American Doctors in Convention at Washington. The Pan American Medical Congress, held in Washington, brought together the greatest gathering of medical men this country has ever known.

SECRETARY REED.

icine at the Pennsylvania University, while the founder of the congress and its Secretary General was Dr. Charles A. Reed, Dean and Professor at the Cincinnati College of Medicine. The delegates assembled upon the invitation, first moved by Dr. Reed of the American Medical Association, seconded by an invitation from the President of the United States authorized by joint resolution of congress.

The congress was divided into twenty-two sections, each dealing with a particular department of medical science. Two sections of extreme interest were those on hygiene and on quarantine. Dr. Conerys, of Cincinnati, brought forward the proposition that, in view of the paramount importance of public health, there ought to be a Secretary of Public Health in the Cabinet of the Presidents of the different republics.

Dr. Juan J. Ulloa, a delegate from the Government of Costa Rica, presented a plan for a uniform international quarantine for all of the American countries. The absence of uniform quarantine regulations at present so far interferes with commerce that a large amount of money is lost through cessation of trade during half of each year between certain of the American countries.

There were in all about five hundred essays read before the congress, which was attended by about three thousand delegates. On final adjournment the South American visitors were taken on a free excursion to New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Niagara Falls, Detroit, St. Louis, and the World's Fair at Chicago.

GOLD ARRIVES IN NEW YORK.

$4,000,000 from San Francisco and $6,000,000 from Europe. A sight to inspire confidence in the ability of the Government to pay its obligations was witnessed on the streets of New York recently. ons were 100 coarse wooden boxes, fastened with bands of iron and big screws. Each box weighed 1594 pounds and contained $40,000 in gold coin, making a total of $4,000,000. This consignment of gold had been sent from the San Francisco mint a week before. A large crowd watched the unloading of the gold at the sub-treasury building. There was also received at the different banks from Europe gold amounting to $6,000,000, which had been brought by the steamships Campania, La Bourgogne and New York.

A Famous Fiction Hero Dead.

"Big Jim" Carter, the famous Nevada fighter, died the other day, and the San Francisco Chronicle recalls the fact that Mark Twain in "Roughing It" tells a story of his prowess. Twain's account well illustrates the quiet but deep determination of the man. One evening Carter entered a restaurant and unintentionally sat down on the hat of a tall and athletic hot-blooded young gentleman, who was with two or three other equally high-spirited companions.

When Carter realized what he had done he apologized, straightened the hat out to the best of his ability, gave his assurance on his honor as a gentleman that it was not an intentional affront, and in a few modest words endeavored to appease the wrath of the young man, who was in fact a worthy citizen though a trifle inexperienced.

Quietly sitting down at the big table he took hold of it with his teeth, and bracing his knees against the lower part of the table, raised it and its contents, a big dinner for four, roast and all, and with his horse load stood erect. When he put the table to the floor without spilling a drop from the well-filled glasses there was an oppressive silence, which he broke by saying: "I have already apologized. My name is Carter. Let's all take a drink."

The Buffalo Bug.

The destructive bug which does so much damage in many sections of the country is the grub of the buffalo beetle. It is a minute hairy creature that largely devours wool, and is said to eat cotton, papers, or anything in its way. It generally is found in dark corners or cracks. It always appears the next season, if the eggs and grubs have not been destroyed, in exactly the same place it did before. The beetle emerges from the pupa state in April, flies out the window, but soon returns to lay its eggs, which soon hatch into the little pest that feeds upon your carpets.

The beetle is a strict vegetarian, and feeds on the spired or other plants. It only feeds on wool while it is a grub. Prof. Lintner, our State entomologist, has found benzine more effective in destroying this grub than anything else. Treat all parts of the carpet where the bug has appeared before thoroughly with benzine early in April, and again in July and August if there are any signs of its reappearance. It is without doubt the most difficult of all household pests to get rid of, because it entirely disappears from the house while it is a beetle, and one can never feel whether it has gone forever or only for the season.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Miss Lucy Leach is now teaching the school in the Jas. Riggs district.

Premium lists of the Chelsea Union Agricultural Society can be obtained at this office.

Miss Jessie Merrill is now cashier and book-keeper for the H. S. Holmes Mercantile Co.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schenk and family, will soon be at home in the H. M. Woods house on Middle street.

The sun is having a hard time today making itself seen through the dense cloud of smoke that overhangs this vicinity.

Last Tuesday Mrs. J. G. Schmidt had the misfortune to make a misstep, breaking her ankle. She is getting along nicely at this time.

Downer & Leach shipped a large carload of poultry from Leshe and Grass Lake. They will ship a carload from Paw Paw next week.

It does not look like hard times at C. E. Whitaker's hardware, as he is increasing the size of his salesroom, and otherwise fixing up things.

Married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. Steinbach, on Wednesday, September 13th, Miss Anna Steinbach to Mr. Herman Fletcher, both of Lima.

Jas. Cooke, of near Pinckney, has purchased the home of Mrs. Etta Wright, on Main street, just south of the Baptist church, and will move to this place at once.

The Croman families from Waterloo, and the Parkers from Lima, had a very enjoyable picnic at Cavanaugh last week. Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Whitaker, of this place, were present and report a pleasant occasion.

Saturday last a team belonging to Dan McLaren, ran away while hitched to a hay-press. They made things lively on Main street for a few minutes. One of the horses was injured by falling and the heavy machine running on him.

W. H. Dancer, of Lima, sowed twenty-two bushels of early red Clawson wheat and harvested 560 bushels, an average yield of thirty-six bushels per acre. The seed bed was an old timothy sod, one half of it was plowed in June, the balance the last of August.

Orders are coming in freely at the stove works and a number of men have been added to the force. This factory has not shut down during the hard times, but has kept a large number of men at work all the season. Would that Chelsea had more of similar enterprises.

Mike Schenk up to date has 100 acres plowed for wheat. He intends to sow 150 acres this fall. Mike has threshed 1500 bushels of wheat, and thinks he has about 1,000 yet to thresh. A person told us that he has on hand at the present time 7,000 bushels of wheat.—Francisco Cor. Grass Lake News.

Hon. T. E. Barkworth, of Jackson, and Rev. L. P. Goldrick, of Northfield, will speak at the picnic to be given to-morrow, at Pinckney by St. Mary's church. Miss Rose Seerey, of Ann Arbor, Miss Crawford, of Howell, and Mr. Luke Rielly, of Chelsea, assisted by the choir of the church, will sing. An enjoyable time may be expected.

Hon. A. J. Sawyer, while out driving with his son Lorenzo yesterday afternoon, at about 2 o'clock, met with a serious accident. When at the corner of S. State and Packard streets, the horse that he was driving became frightened, and making a sudden lurch, threw Mr. Sawyer out. He struck upon his shoulder, and received severe injuries. Three ribs were broken, and he has suffered much pain. Drs. Vaughan and Darling were promptly on hand and relieved him as much as it was possible. No serious results are anticipated from the injuries, but it will probably be some little time before he will be about again.—Courier.

At last it has rained in this section and the farmer's faces wear a smile where before a look of despair was all that could be seen.

The fire in the big swamp in Freedom still continues to burn and the territory now burned over is in the neighborhood of 1,000 acres.

The M. C. R. R. will run an excursion train to Chicago Tuesday, September 19th. Rate one fare for round trip, ticket good for ten days.

Some one carelessly set fire to a marsh about a mile north-east of this place Sunday, and for a while a pretty hot time was experienced by those present.

Glenn C. Stinson has launched the Parma Reflector on the sea of journalism. The first number was issued last week and was a hummer. Here's success to the venture.

Mrs. Hubbell will give the operette "Snow White" at Town Hall in the near future, with Miss Annie Baker as "Snow White," Miss Effa Armstrong "Queen," Mr. Fay Moon "Prince," Mr. W. J. Hubbell "Carl," with a chorus of thirty voices. To be given for the Ladies' Library. Every one turn out and see this beautiful little opera.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Weber, Sr., of South Main street, will celebrate the golden jubilee of their marriage next Monday, September 18, 1893. Solemn services will be held at St. Mary's church at 8 a. m. after which a reception and dinner will be given at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Weber are among our most respected citizens, and we join with their many friends in tendering our felicitations on the memorable event.

Miss Ella L. Morton entertained the M. E. C. O. D. at her home Monday evening, with Progressive "War of Words." The first prize was taken by Mrs. A. R. Welch, the second by Miss May Sparks, and Mr. Faye Moon was presented with a miniature drum as he was "easy to beat." All enjoyed themselves immensely, and returned to their homes at a late hour, after pronouncing the evening a grand success.

According to the new ruling, letters upon which there are no cards will be held by postmasters thirty days instead of ten as heretofore. Every business man should patronize the printer and his card printed on his envelope, and then if one of his letters is misdirected it will come back promptly, but probably 30 days is prompt enough for the man who does not use printed stationery. Surely he does not advertise.

Detroit is now claiming over 300,000 population, and this stimulates Chelsea to up and say she has 1,573 counting the last one born.—Adrain Times. A Chelsea man at our elbow says the above figures do his town great injustice. Counting the two suburbs of Dexter and Jerusalem Mills, Chelsea places her populace in round numbers at 7,000.—Grass Lake News. And counting in its Grass Lake suburb it may reach 7,500.—Argus.

S. G. Ives, after visiting his brother Rev. B. I. Ives, of Auburn, N. Y., went to Lansing, Tompkins county, N. Y., and called on his old friend Roswell Beardsley, the oldest postmaster in the United States. Mr. Beardsley was appointed to this office June 28, 1828 and has held the position, ever since that date, a term of over 65 years. He was not quite 19 years of age at the time of his appointment, which he received under John Quincy Adams being recommended by the late Hon. Wm. H. Seward.

The market advanced sharply on wheat since one week ago, reaching 65c here, but reacted and now brings 62c for red or white with many indications of further decline coming. Rye has advanced and now brings 40c, oats are higher and 27c would be paid. Barley is still unsalable and no price named. Potatoes 35c, tomatoes 50c, apples 40c to 60c, pears 50c to 65c, peaches 50c to $1.00, onions 60c, beans $1.00 to $1.15, eggs 12c, butter 20c, chickens 7c. Receipts are increasing and will soon be large.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary.
Last Sunday was a day of jubilee for German St. Paul's church. They celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary in connection with missionary services. The building was beautifully decorated, and many visitors from the neighboring churches were present.

The congregation was organized in 1868. In the same year a church building was erected on the site of the present edifice. The original church society numbered fifteen families. Since the foundation the congregation has built a school house and procured a parsonage. The number of members has steadily increased, and at the present time over fifty families are connected with the society. The history of the church has been quite varied, but notwithstanding many difficulties it has constantly progressed. During late years the church building proved too small for the congregation and steps were taken to provide a new structure. In this undertaking the citizens of Chelsea assisted them with liberal contributions, and in December last the building was dedicated to the service of God.

Two services were held on anniversary Sunday. In the morning Rev. P. Irion, of Freedom, preached the jubilee sermon, the subject being from the 95th Psalm, after which the pastor, Rev. C. Haag, read a report of the organization and growth of the society.

In the afternoon missionary services were conducted by Rev. E. Aldinger, of Francisco, Rev. R. Beutler, of Detroit, and Rev. J. Neumann, of Ann Arbor. The collection amounted to $61.12.

She Caught Fish.
A correspondent in St. Helena sends this fish story: "Some weeks ago a party of seven, including myself, were enjoying an outing on Deer creek, in Wasco county, Or., about eight miles from The Dalles. While there we thought we would show the natives how to fish. My friend, ex-Marshall Brennard of Scio in just 2 hours and 15 minutes caught 179 trout, weighing 203 pounds. We took the fish into town and bragged not a little about our wonderful catch. To our great surprise the old inhabitants didn't share in our enthusiasm and pityingly said, 'Boys, go up to the narrows and learn how to catch fish.'
"Well, up to the narrows we went, and the sight which met our eyes I will never forget, and yet it didn't amount to much. We simply saw a homely squaw standing on the edge of a rock and holding in her hand a seven foot pole, attached to which was a willow hoop and a bit of sack arranged to form a sort of dipnet. You may not believe what followed, but it is gospel truth, every word: That fair maiden of the north time and time again doused her crude net in the waters of the Columbia river and every time brought three, four or more silver sides, weighing from four to eight pounds each. We watched that squaw catch fish for three mortal hours, and the way she landed them was a revelation."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Hunting the Puma.
You have traveled far. The sun goes down. You build a fire and cook your meat, and then good tea and the tabac. It is pleasant. You hear the loon crying on the water, or the last whistle of the heron up the pass.
The lights in the sky come out and shine through a thin mist; there is nothing like that mist, it is so fine and soft. You are sleepy. You bless the good God. You stretch pine branches, wrap in your blanket and lie down to sleep. It is all quiet. As you sleep something comes. It glides along on its belly like a snake.
It is a pity if you have not ears that feel—the whole body as ears. For there is a swift lunge, a snarl—ah, you should hear it! The thing has you by the throat, and there is an end.
To kill the puma you must watch, always watch. You will see his yellow eyes sometimes in a tree. You will hear his breath at night as you pretend to sleep, and you wait till you see his foot steal out of the shadows; then you have him.

From a mountain wall you watch in the morning, and when you see him you follow and follow and do not rest till you have found him. You must never miss fire, for he has great strength and a mad tooth. But when you have got him he is worth all.—Cosmopolitan.

The Dog Held Fast to the Basket.
A little girl and a big Newfoundland dog came through Steuben park yesterday. The little girl was carrying papa's dinner, and the big dog was caring for both. The little girl thought she would teach her companion to be useful, so as they entered the park she placed the handle of the dinner basket in his mouth. He trotted along quite proudly, and when he came to the sparkling fountain and the cool looking pool beneath it the noble animal resisted the temptation to drop the basket for the pleasures the water offered him. He was too true! He'd take care of that basket if the pool froze over! Well, he would just wade through. He'd take the basket with him, where it would be safe. So he walked carefully through and cooled papa's dinner in sparkling cool water. He ducked his head, but he never let go of that basket committed to his faithful care. He did not tarry long, either, but came out, shook himself and the basket dry, and trotted along "feeling better, thank you."—Utica Observer.

Masculine Dignity.
Masculine dignity must be preserved at any cost. The other day a gentleman was about to put two ladies, evidently his wife and his sister, on board a car on the avenue. He had left his purse at home or spent his last cent, or for some reason found himself penniless, so while standing on the curb he thoughtfully borrowed 25 cents from one of the ladies. Then he hailed a car, bought six tickets, gave two to the conductor, tossed the rest carelessly at his wife and got off.
I had taken the car at the same corner, so I saw the whole performance. It seemed to me a significant illustration of the sort of care which many thoroughly improvident lords of creation give to their womenkind, when in reality it is they who are being taken care of in all the small and troublesome details which make up daily existence.—Kate Field's Washington.

THE CASE OF ALEXIS ST. MARTIN.

How Medical Science Was Enriched by a Singular Injury.
Alexis St. Martin was a young man in the service of the American Fur company at what is now Mackinaw, Mich. In the year 1822, when 18 years of age, he was accidentally shot, receiving the whole charge of a musket in his left side, which fractured two ribs, lacerated the lungs and entered the stomach. Dr. William Beaumont, the surgeon in charge, restored him in a year to good health, with all his former strength and spirit. But the opening in his body was never closed. From 1825 to 1833 Dr. Beaumont began a series of experiments on the stomach of St. Martin, studying its operations, secretions, etc., his patient during all these years presenting the remarkable spectacle of a man in good health, good appetite and good spirits, with an aperture opening into his stomach through which the whole action of the organ might be observed. The doctor thus discovered the presence of the gastric juice in the human subject and demonstrated beyond a doubt its chemical properties and digestive powers.

He made other interesting discoveries. For instance, that the color of the membrane of the stomach is pale pink; that its appearance is velvetlike, and that the stimulus of food causes the gastric follicles to enter into activity and to pour out the acid gastric juice. The doctor would poke food into the stomach and draw it out and examine it at different stages of digestion. One day he would watch the action of stimulants, another day the action of sedatives. He tried opium and alcohol. He experimented with raw meat, boiled meat, broiled meat, baked meat, roast meat and fried meat.

He found that salted pork, when raw or broiled, was digested in from 8 to 3 1/2 hours. The same article fried took 4 1/2 hours, while fresh pork, fat and lean, roasted, required 5 1/2 hours. On the other hand, boiled fresh beef, with a little salt, was digested in 2 1/2 hours, while old salted beef required 4 1/2 hours when dressed in the same manner. Fish digested quicker than meat; boiled milk quicker than unboiled milk.
In spite of his wound, in spite of the indignities to which his stomach had been subjected, St. Martin survived his doctor and lived to a good old age.—New York World.

Oil Furnaces in Ocean Steamships.
The experiment of using petroleum as fuel on ocean steamers instead of coal has proved successful, and it is claimed that in the near future oil will be almost exclusively used. The experiment was made on the British steamer James Brand, which plies between Philadelphia and Spanish ports, and the report submitted is to the effect that the oil goes 2 1/2 times farther than the coal, while only requiring one-tenth the cargo space.
The tests were made on a double ended boiler during a three days' run, and the oil developed the most satisfactory steammaking properties. The James Brand, being a bulk oil carrier, will not be allowed by the insurance companies to use the petroleum fuel, but shipping men claim that on vessels carrying general cargoes it will soon be generally used.—Philadelphia Record.

In some of the placer mines of California fine gold is saved by allowing the water of the sluice to pass over a rough blanket, which collects and retains the fine particles.
