The Story of a Little Fir Tree. BY MAUD LEONE FAY.

Far off in the forest a little fir tree grew. It stood by its brother, and listened to the bird's songs and watched the rabbits, as they leaped among the bushes. One cold day two boys came and chopped down the fir tree's brother, "Where has he gone," he asked of some snow birds? "To-morrow is Christmas said the birds, and he has gone to be a Christmas tree. He will be strung upon him. 'Oh! we know, "sang the birds, and then they flew away. The the birds had told him. He thought it was a fine thing to be dressed with beautiful presents, and shining candles. So although he shuddered when he thought to be a Christmas tree. But the tree, who had grown quite large now, would not listen, and longed more, every day, to be a beautiful Christmas tree.

So the year rolled around, and on the day before Christmas, a man came and chopped down the fir tree. He looked back at his brothers and sisters, as the man carried him along and said, goodby, I am going at last. At last, whispered the trees, "but forever." That night the tree was put in a and beautiful toys were hung upon him.

Home Hints.

Fresh eggs are heavier than old ones, herefore when put in water the older ones will float higher.

The odor of onions, left on the hands after peeling, may be removed by rubbing the hands with celery or mustard.

If oilcloth is laid down where the sun will shine on it much of it will stick fast to the floor unless paper is laid under it.

Mix fine sawdust with glue to a stiff paste for filling nail holes or cracks, and the patch will hardly be discernible, especially if the sawdust is of the same wood that is mended.

The best way of treating a stove that has not been blacked for some time is to rub it well with a newspaper, adding just a little clean grease of almost any kind. It will soon take a polish after a few treatments of this sort.

A flaxseed lemonade is excellent for a cold. Try a small quantity at first. To do this take a pint of water and add two small tablespoonfuls of the seed, the juice of two lemons, not using the rind, and sweeten to taste. When too pasty the mixture may be diluted with water. Always ice for drinking.

Great care should be taken in administering remedies in the form of tinctures which have stood for a long time in small vials in the family closet. When the bottles happen to be loosely corked the alcohol readily evaporates, leaving the drug in the form of a concentrated tincture the pharmacopœial dose of which might produce very serious if not fata l results.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's only 40c gal. Prendergast Cut to the Quick by a Lawyer's Words.

Attorney Trude's Denunciation of Carter Harrison's Murderer Brings Him to His Feet with Wild and Emphatic Denials.

DRAMATIC SCENES IN COURT.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30 .- Thursday was the last day of argument in the Prendergast case. Mr. Trude for the prosecution had not completed when court adjourned.

Prendergast trembled, fretted and then turned livid with rage while A. S. Trude denounced him before the jury. The crowds that packed the courtroom witnessed a remarkable dramatic scene. Again and again the man who shot Mayor Harrison shouted defiance to the attorney, and when the court adjourned at 5 o'clock Attorney Wade said, despairingly: "Prendergast has done more to-day to hang himself than all the witnesses and attorneys put together."

Mr. Trude had been confining himself to the law for some time, but at 4 o'clock he began a description of Mayor Harrison's last acts. With the pistol used by the murderer in his hands he was describing the manner in which Prendergast went to the Harrison residence, and, animated by malice, fired the two shots. Prendergast kept moving nervously in his chair until, when Mr. Trude was telling how the mayor fell to the floor a smile passed over his face. Mr. Trude. quick to catch the effect of this unseemly mirth, said, still pointing to where he sat: "These are the statements which are made to you about this man, whose face now wears a smile of derision and contempt-"

Prendergast could bear the stinging remarks no longer. He sprang from his seat, his face livid with rage, his eyes blazing, and lifting his left hand as high as he could he shouted: "I was not animated by malice! I swear before high neaven that I was not animated by malice. If I am hanged you will be my murderer!"

The jurymen and every person in the courtroom started. Two bailiffs pulled the prisoner back into his chair. But the sudden burst of passion had exhausted him. He sunk down and in a few moments was as pale as the wall by which he sat. He trembled and put his hands over his eyes, completely exhausted. In a few moments Mr. Trude again attacked the prisoner, stating to the jury that Prendergast was acting when a little while before he made the outery.

"But, Mr. Prendergast," continued the attorney, addressing the prisoner, "while you were in jail you didn't say that to the doctors."

"Yes, but ask Dr. Spray-" retorted the prisoner. He was interrupted by the judge, who ordered him to remain quiet.

Mr. Trude, continuing, described the scene in the county jail when the funeral of the mayor passed up Dearborn street and said: "The other prisoners, deprived of their liberty, but with still a sense of justice in their breasts, yelled: 'Hang Prendergast!'"

"They were friends of Harrison whom he had pardoned out of the bridewell," interpolated Prendergast. A few moments later he shouted at Trude: "You're a coward! You ought to be hanged!"

When Mr. Trude returned to the scene of the murder he described how Prendergast, when interrupted by the coachman, pointed the pistol at the latter.

"It's a lie," said the prisoner. "I never pointed the pistol at any man except Harrison."

Said Mr. Trude: "Ah, see, gentlemen, how well he remembers now what took place then. The law says no insane man can do that. If I live under an insane delusion whatever takes place is never known, gentlemen of the jury." And, turning to the counsel for lowA is overrun with tramps, who the defense, Mr. Trude said: "Show me resort to force if a pitiful story does not an authority and 1 will read it to the jury, wherever a man committed an act of murder."

The Jury Finds Anna Wagner Guiltless of the Crime of Murder.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 30.-After being out for twelve hours the jury in the Annie Wagner murder case brought in a verdict of not guilty. The courtroom was crowded, and the announcement of the verdict was received with cheer after cheen. During a scene of the wildest confusion the prisoner fainted away. Through the trial Annie Wagner has manifested the most stoical indifference and it was not until the verdict of the jury that her feelings obtained mastery over her. Mr. Holtzman, the prosecutor, announced that as the state had failed to convict in this, its best case, and owing to the state of public opinion, he deemed it best to dismiss the other two indictments for murder against the prisoner.

Not since the trial of Mrs. Nancy Clem for the murder of Jacob Young and wife at Cold Springs, north of this city, twenty years ago, has the Indianapolis public been as much interested in a murder trial as in the case which has just closed.

Anna Wagner was a servant in the family of Charles Koesters at 456 South Meridian street. On May 22 last Mrs. Clara Koesters, aged 73, the mother of Charles Koesters. died very suddenly. The coroner was called upon to investigate and found that the death of Mrs. Koesters was the fifth that had taken place in the Koesters family since October 15, Looking further for evidence of a crime, a druggist, George F. Borst, at Meridian street and Russell avenue, was found, who said that Anna Wagner had purchased a box of "rough on rats" from his store on May 22. The family physician was Dr. Reyer, who told the coroner that he had no doubt Mrs. Clara Koesters had died from poison, and advised that an analysis of the stomach of the dead woman be made. The coroner gave the viscera of the dead woman to Dr. Eisenbeiss for analysis, and the doctor reported back that arsenic had been found in sufficient quantities to cause death. On this evidence Anna Wagner was arrested. At the time of her arrest, the prisoner denied having any poison in her possession, although the half emptied box was afterward found in the closet where she kept her clothes. She was taken to the drug store where the poison was bought, and she denied to Druggist Borst ever having bought any "rough on rats" from him. Charles Koesters added a sensation to the story of the crime by making a statement that he thought the woman was in love with him, and he furnished the motive for the crime by suggesting that she wanted to get his wife and children out of the way to make room for him to marry her.

The people in the Keosters family who died under suspicious circumstances were: Mary Keosters, age 31, the wife of Charles; October 15, 1892: the baby, age 3 months, found lead in bed January 6, 1893; Frank L. Koesters, age 74, the father of Charles, January 26; Mary M. Koesters, age 8, daughter of Charles, February 27, and last, Clara Koesters, age 73. Each of them, except the baby, was ill for about the same length of time and showed the same symptoms. The evidence taken before the coroner was of such nature that he felt justified in ordering the bodies of the dead exhumed and their stomachs removed. This was done and the visceea was turned over to Dr. Eisenbeiss for analysis. The doctor did not make a complete report for several weeks. but at the end of that period he announced that he had found arsenic in every one of the stomachs submitted to him. Anna Wagner had a hearing in the police court on Tuesday, June 20. The examination lasted until June 22, at which time the prisoner was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,50). few days thereafter she furnishel the security and was taken to the house brother-in-law. Here she of her re m tined until the grand jury met and returned an indictment against her for murder in the first degree. She was rearrested and taken to jail without the privilege of bail. She has lain in jail ever since. On December 18 the accused was placed on the stand in her own defense. She made a general denial of the crime. She said that after the death of Mrs. Koesters, the wife of Charles Koesters, Mr. Koesters said to her that he would depend upon her to look after her clothing and the children: that he knew nothing about such things himself; that she took care of the children because they were motherless: and that all her attentions to him and to them was on account of the fact that the wife and mother was dead

"I went up to the grated door and unlocked it. I had no sooner done so than Morel pulled a six-shooter on me and ordered me to throw up my hands. I supposed he was joking and did not obey. Just then Chris stepped up and said: 'That's right, Ben, put your hands' up.' " "I saw they meant business then, and did as I was told. Evans then demanded to be let out of the back door of the jail through the kitchen, but I told him I hadn't the keys. They were in the safe. They then said they would go out at the front Before leaving they searched me. door. They stated their intention of making me go with them, and I protested. It was no use, however, and I was marched out between them. Mrs. Evans was the only one in the jail besides myself and the prisoners and Morel. She remained behind, having apparently fallen into a faint.

"Evans allowed me to lock the door of the jail behind us. I was marched to the street entrance to the courthouse grounds by Evans and Morel. We cut across the street and went up Mariposa street.

"At the corner we met a man and Evans ordered him to come along. The fellow saw what was going on and made tracks in another direction. Morel was somewhat in advance and when we got to the Adventist church I suddenly heard a shot. Believing I was being fired upon I started to run. Evans ordered me not to, but I broke away, and coming down town gave an alarm. I heard another shot while running away. While going toward the church mentioned Evans. told me his wife had nothing to do with his escape."

Morel struggled and yelled, "Shoot him." Wyatt was about to take away Morel's pistol when Evans came up and cried: "Let gö that man or I'll kill you." Morgan feeling further resistance useless was about to release Morel when Evans fired, hitting Morgan in the right shoulder, inflicting a painful though not dangerous wound. Evans and his pal then attempted to get into a buggy near by, but the horses, frightened by the shots, plunged and reared and finally broke away. The fugitives ran to Mono-and Q streets and came across a man named Willard Cochran riding along in a cart. They fired at him several times, making him alight. They then took possession of the cart and drove away. The escape has caused intense excitement and officers have gone out in all directions to pursue the men. Evans was recently convicted of murder in the first degree for killing Deputy United States Marshal Wilson in the famous fight at Simpson's Flatand was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary. He was yet to be tried for the murder of Deputy Sheriffs McGinnis and Beaver and several trainrobberies. In the fight at Stone Corral. where Evans was captured and Sontag killed, Evans had an eye shot out and his right hand so badly injured that it had to be amputated.

Knights of Labor Urged to Protest Aginst the Issue.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1?-A telegram o'clock Thursday evening Chris Evans, has been received at the headquarters of the Knights of Labor stating that from the county jail. Deputy Sheriff General Master Workman Sovereign Scott was on duty, the regular night had been taken quite ill at Hazleton, jailer, Ben Merritt, being absent. Pa., where he had gone on business of Scott went on at 5 o'clock and the order, and upon the advice of found everything all right. About 5:30 physicians had hastily taken a Mrs. Evans, who had arrived in train for his home at Des Moines, Ia. the morning from Visalia, came to the Prior to the general master workman's jail to see her husband. She went to departure for Hazleton he prepared an the upper corridor where Evans was address to the rank and file of the order confined and they talked together denouncing Secretary of the Treasury for awhile. Shortly after 6 o'clock Carlisle's request to congress to grant a man came to the jail door with him authority to issue $200,000,000 in supper for Evans. Scott admitted interest-bearing bonds. The following him and let Evans out into are extracts from the document, which "The issuing of bonds is an outrage upon a liberty-loving people. Bonds and slavery are synonymous terms. Recent authentic statistics prove that a sum of money equal the entire circulating medium of to name is Ed Morel, asked to be let out, this nation must pass from the hands of the people of this nation into the coffers of the interest takers at least once every six months, and that means that on an average of once every six months the people must reborrow the money from the interest takers with new securities-thus the compound power grows with graduating power and if not checked will absorb all wealth and leave labor in abject servitude.

"Society and government must take the profit out of the money and put it into labor and products. As it now is the profits of the dollars at interest absorb the profits of the dollars at production, and as dollars have no power to create other dollars the profit of the dollars at interest must be paid out of the dollars at production, and as soon as the dollars at interest absorb the dollars at production God's green earth and the fullness thereof has to be mortgaged to the dollars at interest to induce a few dollars to return to the fields of production, only to be reabsorbed by the dollars at interest. Each time they draw great amounts of land and products over to the interest taker. Finally the dollars at interest absorb all elements of increase."

Instead of an issue of bonds Mr. Sovereign advocates the issue of full legal tender non-interest-bearing money. He then calls upon the workingmen of the country to petition congress not to grant the secretary of the treasury authority to make the proposed issue of bonds. "Every man," he continues, "connected with the disreputable transaction should have his name branded with eternal infamy."

Aran Abilene (Kan.) social gathering, the other day, the time-honored custom of allowing the men to desert the parlor for a smoking room and a cigar after lunch was reversed. The men received no such invitation from the host but the ladies of the party one by one disappeared until the gentlemen were alone in the parlor wondering what was up and how on earth to pass the time. It was soon announced that the ladies had gone up-stairs to chew gum and talk over the fashions and would be down in an hour or so.

MISS CHARLOTTE W. HAWES, of Boston, is making an effort to have the church bells of that city rung in the interests of the musical education of the people. Perhaps the most famous charm is that in the tower of Christ church, Salem street, which was presented to the church by the citizens of London in 1744. These bells were formerly rung in the old English fashion, and when Gen. Lafayette visited Boston in 1824 the city authorities had the bells put in order, and they rang out a musical welcome to the great Frenchman.

MR. LAVITT DENIES IT.

Says He Did Not Advise the Removal of Cronin.

LONDON, Jan. L - Michael Davitt the Irish nationalist, in denial of the statement made in some of the Chicago papers alleging that he had advised the removal of Dr. Cronin, says:

"I can only answer that it would be just as true to charge me with having advised the removal of Julius Caesar or Abraham Lincoln. I never heard of Dr. Cronin's name or existence until the spy Le Caron spoke of him at the Parnell commission hearings and the news of his brutal murder came to Europ . The fur her allegation that I wrote a letter to Detective Coughlin at that or any other time is without the shadow of foundation, as I never wrote to him directly or indirectly, nor have been written to by him or by anybody on his behalf in my life. The whole story is a monstrous fabrication from beginning to ead, and must emanate from some madman or perhaps from some interested knave who wishes to satisfy some feeling of maligaity in coupling my name with the commission of so foul and cowardly a crime. I am reluctantly compelled to say in connection with this infamous slander that the press of America is the only press in the civilized world to-day through which ruffianly attempts like this at the moral assassination of public men can be made with impunity.'

MR. GLADSTONE IS 84.

Congratulated by the Queen, Diplomates and Leaders of Both Parties.

LONDON, Jan. 1.-Rt. Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, prime minister of England, was 84 years old Friday, having been born December 29, 1809. Mr. Gladstone throughout the day was in the best of health and spirits. He took a short carriage drive before proceeding to the house of commons and at his residence there was a constant procession of visitors, including many members of the diplomatic corps. Among the diplomatic representatives who called at Mr. Gladstone's residence were the Russian and Turkish ambassadors, but no member of the United States embassy called. Mr. Gladstone during the day received an immense number of presents in addition to letters and telegrams of congratulation. A number of ladies brought flowers for Mrs. Gladstone. The queen and the prince of Wales and nearly all the prominent members of both parties were among those who telegraphed their congratulations to Mr. Gladstone.

HIS DOOM.

It Is Announced to the Murderer of Carter Harrison.

The Jury Returns a Verdict of Guilty and Fixes Death as His Punishment-How the Assassin Received the News.

VOTED FOR DEATH.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1.-Attorney Trude finished his argument for the state in the Prendergast trial about noon on Friday. At the opening of the afternoon session Judge Brentano delivered his charge to the jury. The list of instructions was a long one, and they favored the prisoner. At 1:25 p. m. the jury retired to consider the evidence. At 2:28 p. m. they returned and presented the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find the defencant, Patrick Eugene Prendergast, guilty of murder in manner and form as charged in the indictment, and fix his penalty at death."

The prisoner's strength seemed to have failed him. During the morning and while the judge read the instructions he sat like one exhausted. Part of the time he covered his eyes with a black handkerchief. "I was praying," he said afterward to his brother. His face was pale and his lips quivered.

When the verdict was read and as the word "death" reached the prisononer's ears he raised his right hand slowly and made the sign of the cross. His evelids closed for an instant, there was a slight tremor and that was all. He betrayed no other motion of what what was passing in his mind. The people simply looked at the prisoner. Not a person whispered. All at once the full force and meaning of the verdict struck them. Every face showed a trace of sympathy for the man whose fate was decided.

A life sentence was the most that the friends of the Harrison family had ever hoped for. A. S. Trude's face expressed sorrow. Attorneys Wade and McGoorty looked disconsolately at each other. Some person near the door passed the word downstairs and in a moment the waiting crowds knew the sentence. a feeling of resentment against the prisoner, but they made no demonstration when the word finally reached them. The verdict met with their approval. That was all.

WORST FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

The Dismal Record of 1898 in the Commercial World.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.--R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Starting with the largest trade ever known, mills crowded with work, and all business stimulated by high hopes, the year 1893 has proved, in sudden shrinkage of trade, in commercial disasters and depression of industries, the worst for fifty years. Whether the final results of the panic of 1837 were relatively more severe the scanty records of that time do not clearly show. The year closes with prices of many products the lowest ever known, with millions of workers seeking in vain for work, and with charity laboring to keep back suffering and starvation in all our cities. All hope the new year may bring brighter days, but the dying year leaves only a dismal record. The review of different departments of trade given exhibits a collapse of industry and business which is almost without precedent. The iron industry sustained a weekly production of 181,551 tons pig May 1, but by October 1 the output had fallen to 73.895 tons, and the recovery to about 100, 000 December 1 still leaves 40 per cent. of the force unemployed. Over half the woolen manufacture is idle, and, excepting a brief recovery in November, has been ever since new wool in May, for all sales at the three chief markets in the eight months have been but 106,705,460 pounds, partly for speculation, the price having fallen 20 per cent for fleece to the lowest point ever known, against 212,339,003 pounds in the same mouth last, year. Sales of cotton goods are fully a quarter below the usual quantity.

The small advance attempted in boots and shoes a year ago was not sustained, but with prices as low as ever the shipments of boots and shoes from Boston are 24 per cent. less than last year in December, and though in November the decrease was but 10.8 per cent. it has been 22 per cent. for the last four months. Not only manufactured goods as 'a whole, but the most important farm products are so low that producers find little comfort. Official and other reports give the notion that the crops of last year were so short that famine prices could be realized on purchases. Enormous stocks were bought and held with the aid of banks till heavy receipts in the spring caused a collapse of wheat, pork and cotton peols. Disastrous failures helped to produce the alarm. which soon made money impossible to get, but even at the worst hour of the panic prices were scarcely lower than they are now.

Monetary anxieties appeared to cause the panic and became epidemic when doubts were raised in April about redemption of treasury notes in silver. Western banks had given reason for distrust by connection with real estate, produce and stock ventures. Deposits in national banks alone decreased in five months nearly $300,000,000. Purchases These persons had all come there with for consumption shrunk so much, so many hands were out of work or earning reduced wages, and business of all kinds was so reduced that the circulation of idle money became the greatest ever known, exceeding $200,-000,000 in New York. Representatives of manufacturing inter ests are as thick around the door of the ways and means committee room at Washington as flies on a molasses barrel. Only a few of them get inside the door. Nearly every interest affected by the bill, and that means every interest in the country, has a representative there now, and as the senate may make changes in the bill they are likely to camp in the capitol all winter, and will probably see the trees burst forth into leaf next spring.

The saliva of dogs and cats is especially rich in bactsria, that of the latter containing a form which is seldom observed and so, fatal that rabbits and guinea pigs inoculated with it die within 24 hours. The dog's saliva contains an even greater number of bacteria plus, occasional eggs of intestinal worms and so on. Those fond and loving women who are prone to waste their caresses upon lap dogs will be interested in this item .- Pharmaceutical Era.

"Cheap toothbrushes are responsible for many obscure ailments of the throat and stomach," said a surgeon, a few days ago "The bristles are not properly fastened on, and come off in dozens when wet and brought in contact with the teeth. I performed an operation on a patient some time ago who had a regular crop of bristles in her throat. You can imagine how unpleasant it must be to have a single bristle in the glottis. You cough until you are exhausted, but nothing moves it."

A large shoe manufacturing establishment in Detroit has set an example of practical charity that has at least the merit of novelty. Certain days are set apart for the making of shoes for the destitute unemployed, the owners of the factory tilled, and compare favorably with contributing the material and use of machinery, while the employes contribute the labor. The shoes are as good as money to the recipients, while the donors feel the burden less than they would were contributions made in hard cash. One should always have close beside the steepest part, are good yet for a numbed at night a candle and a box of matches. Distingu shed Bachelors.

Pope, Pollock, Herrick, Goldsmith, Macaulay, Watts, Haus Andersen, Voltaire, Swinburne, Newton, and a host was known as the interrogation point of literature, hated women. Dr. Watts was said to have written one of his sweetest hymns after being refused by a lor President, was something of an author, and used to publish his love verses in the papers.

In art the bachelors were also numer-Raphael, Angelo, Landseer, ous. Joshua Reynolds, and Beethoven were never married. Congreve, the dramatist, was a specimen of the bachelor lady-killer, and Swift, bitter and malicious as he was, was really of the same order. Cowper was of a tender, sensitive nature, and was as shrinking as the petals of a dainty flower. At twentyeight he met with a love misfortune. and the wound never healed. Keats, also tender and modest, had been affected by Cupid's darts, and never recovered. Pope had the iron driven into his soul by his deformity, which made him all the more bitter. Dr. Thulenbourg and Adam Smith had curious stories about their love affairs, and even Hans Andersen, as gentle and lovable as was his nature, had his trials, and told his story in his own simple and childlike way. Turner, the artist, had his life shaped and sharpened by his love shadow, and he became reserved and dropped into the hard line of money-making. Something serious prevaded his writings and paintings. Lamb was defined as the self-denying bachelor, because he gave up marriage on account of his sister. Gray and Erasmus were old-maidish bachelors

The Alfred Shakers.

Chicago. with mingled curiosity by those not familiar with their home life. To-day. in company with Amos Allen, Esq., late clerk of courts for this county, we paid a visit to the Shaker village, and found the experience an interesting one. The village is pleasantly situated upon the east bank of Shaker pond, so-called, and all the fields look well those of any other farming community. The oldest building in the village is the church, a gambrel-roofed structure. with green painted doors and blinds. which was erected in 1792, and is good for another century. In fact, its roof is now covered with the original handshaved cedar-shingles, which, on the ber of years. Around this church are society, and the larger part of the 1,200 acres of land it owns. At the present an occasional visitor, and during the forty-eight years that Elder Vance, the present head of the society, has been connected with it, about 100 members have passed over to the majority. The good living and regular habits enjoyed by the Shakers are so conducive to longevity that of the last fifty persons who have died in this society the average has been seventy years. The oldest member at present is Merrill Bailey, who has seen eighty-four summers, seventy-two of which have been passed in his present house. He is still well preserved, and promises to retain his faculties for several years longer. Old and curious as is the belief and practice of the Shakers-the literal interpretation of the Bible and the living apart of the sexes-there are many things about the people that are commendable. Their living is of the best, plain and wholesome food-no pork having been eaten since 1847-and of great abundance. Their houses, buildings and lands are models of neatness, with frugality and economy everywhere apparent. But no one overworks, and there is freedom among them which other communities do not enjoy. All with them is not somber and longfaced, but instead all have the appearance of enjoying their life. Elder Vance himself, though possessing a quiet dig-nity, being withal one of the pleasant-est gentlemen we have ever met. None of the members take any part in poli-tics, though being well read in the current events of the day. From the 1st of June to the 1st of October the Sunday meetings of the society are open to and decisively: "Connect yourself with the public, and there is generally a some prominent church where you can good attendance of those belonging to the "order of generation," as the outsiders are called. Repairing Gloves and Stockings.

In some shops nowadays they agree to mend all the gloves and stockings bought of them. The mind immediately reverts to the lone bachelor who will be assisted by this kindness No less, however, does it encompass the by no means rare case of the busy bachelor girl who is glad to find other fingers to do for her what her occupations never seem to give her time to do for herself. She was, first of all, obliged to give over making her own frocks, Then she bought her underclothing readymade-a shocking step, to many oldfashioned ideas. Now she gladly tries taking her mending out of the house, as well. For the bachelor girl of today is a business woman, and has no spare moments.-Ex.

How to Cleanse the Carafa.

Carafas, which have so lately replaced the ice-pitcher, are pleasing and refreshing to look at if they are kept fastidiously clean and bright. Unfortunately the purest water obtainable very soon dulls the insideand it isn't everyone who knows a quick and easy way to remove this. A very simple thing to do is to tear a newspaper into small bits and nearly or quite fill the carafe. Then pour in warm soapsuds, with a little ammonia, and shake well. The paper will soon scour the bottle thoroughly clean, and it only remains to rinse it out well before using it again .- Ex.
